In the evening Rev. E. V. Stevenson delivered an address to men, especially young men, taking his text from St. Luke, chap. xii, v. 23, "The life is more than meat and the body more than raiment." The speaker began by saying that the subject he had selected impressed him with a great sense of responsibility, but his personal and official capacity could not be separated. He would not indulge in any gratuitous good advice or well-worn platitudes, but would endeavour to set before them the great model, the perfect man, Jesus Christ, who was perfect even in the example of his human life. We all needed one thing—companionship, something to lean upon, something to help young men in the struggle of life We should have a standard for life; and that it should be well-grounded and balanced we should take a broad and comprehensive view of life. There were two common standards of life; one made material success to highest good, and the other attached the highest importance to morality. While both in their proper relations were commendable, still there was a standard that was above both, that of doing right because it was right, and the life of Christ was the noblest pattern upon which to model the ideal life. It was a very low course that was pursued simply because it paid. This would apply to worldly as well as religious affairs—they were two conditions that yielded a poverty of result. When we worked for principle and conscience we have developed a zeal and heroism that is all too infrequent. The speaker eloquently urged his hearers to set upon the belief that there was something nobler than working for mere reward, so that they might realise the full significance and truth of our blessed Lord's saying, "the life is more than meat and the body more than raiment." Every life should have a definite object—to make the most of our powers and opportunities. In conclusion the speaker pointed out that there were three essentials requisite to make a noble and true life length, breadth and height as referred to by St. Paul. By length of life was not meant mere measure of days, but the pursuit of a definite aim with all our strength according to our capacities. In whatever sphere they moved, whether humble or high, young men were urged to do their very best. But in such a pursuit there must be the complementary quality of breadth; that is such a pursuit should not be selfish, but followed with sympathy for and a helpful attitude towards our fellows in their endeavour to work out the problem of life—to help them, to feel for them, and in fine to assist in fulfilling the saying that "the life is more than meat." But the greatest object to aim at in striving to realise a noble life was the height. No life was complete, no matter how highly the first two conditions were developed, without the third being conjoined with them as they were harmoniously blended in the character of the ideal man Jesus Christ, in whom all these conditions were developed in perfect combination. This was a standard that the humblest might aspire to emulate.

A Meeting of the Board of Directors Held on Friday Last.

The Board of Directors met at the call of the President and pursuant to notice in Morgan House at 7.30 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 12th. The President, J. Fred Davidson in the chair. There were also present Wm. Collins, Secretary, and Messrs. Cockburn, Garbutt, Lush and Milburn directors.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, the Secretary read the correspondence and the names of ten new members were received.

The President stated the object of calling a meeting was to discuss the advisability of holding the March public meeting.

Moved by Mr. Cockburn, seconded by Mr. Garbutt, that Mr. R. E. Birdsall be appointed a director.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Cockburn, seconded by Mr. Garbutt, that the secretary be instructed to collect the membership fee from all those whose names were handed in as members, also to write Mr. Birdsall and find whether it would be desirable to hold the March public meeting in Norwood.

The meeting adjourned to call of the President.

Books as Cheap as White Paper.

A new lot of novels, with popoular titles by standard authors, have just arrived at the Peterborough Bookstore to be sold at almost the price of white paper. They are in assorted lots at 5 for 25c.—3 for 25c.—2 for 25c.—3 for 50c. We haven't enough to go round, and they may be gone before you get here if you are not alert. A. H. STRATTON & Co.

A THRIVING ASSURANCE CORPORATION.

The annual report of the North American Life Assurance Company, to be found on the second page of this issue, indicates the success that has attended the past year's operations of a company, which seems to have incorporated into its character the sterling qualities of its first president, Hon. Alex. Mackenzie. The report indicates that last year the company reached the high water mark of new business in its history, the amount of new business being 18 per cent. ahead of 1895. The public confidence reposed in the company is shown by the fact that the total insurance in force is the great sum of $17,494,107. Last year brought the handsome addition to the assets of $215,315.26, making the total assets over two and a half millions of dollars. The ratio of assets to liabilities is exceedingly high, 1.20, in which the North American hold a gratifying and decided pre-eminence. Mr. Blakie, the president, also referred to the fact that not only does his company hold an unexcelled position in a point of financial strength in relation to its responsibilities, but that its "matured investment policies have returned handsome profits of a very gratifying nature to the holders," and the large surplus fund of the company, $221,456.20, demonstrates the ability of the company to provide satisfactory returns for the future, under their investment policies. The benefits accruing to those insured in this company are handsomely illustrated by the statement that over a quarter of a million dollars were paid last year on account of policy holders for endowment, death claims, profits, etc., but in spite of these large payments, the Company was enabled to close the year with a largely increased surplus. No doubt excellent management and sound principles contributed to such large results, but there is much in this regard to place to the credit of the agents representing the Company in the several districts.

In this connection it is a pleasure to state that the Company is under very great obligations to Mr. J. W. Garvin, manager of the company for Central Ontario, for the successful work he has accomplished, both in securing new business, and in organising his territory. In view of the satisfaction his services have given the Company, Mr. Garvin has been re-engaged and the Company will doubtless realise expectation of most successful work in the Peterborough district the coming year under Mr. Manager Garvin.

Obituary.

Mr. Irvine Junkin, postmaster for some 23 years at Bobcaygeon, died of heart failure Thursday at 12 o'clock. He was a prominent citizen of the village, a staunch Reformer, clerk of the division court and clerk of the township of Verulam, also of the village. He was an old time Methodist, and was a man of the highest character, and beloved and esteemed by all who knew him. His death will be widely lamented, as he was a prominent citizen.

An Advertising Sermon.

Mr. J. West Goodwin, editor of the Sedalia, Mo., Basso, recently delivered a lecture on advertising for the benefit of a local society. Sermon would be a better word than lecture, as Mr. Goodwin took for his text a verse from the Bible, showing how Boas directed Naomi to sell a parcel of land by advertising it. He maintained that all advertising ought to be like Scripture—a setting forth of the truth. "A great many men make mistakes in advertising," said he, "by not using the proper channels. Too little advertising is like sowing too little seed. It is the constant advertisements that refuse to be ignored. That time must be allowed for the fruit to grow, ripen and be gathered, is as true as that wheat cannot be reaped the day after it is sowed."

NEWS NUGGETS.

Paragraphs Picked Up and Pencilled for Public Perusal.

—Important meeting of Catholic Association board of directors this evening.

—The clock on the town buildings was stopped from about two o'clock until five this afternoon for repairs.

—Mr. Smith, game warden, of Belleville, was a visitor in Minden last week, and several violators of the game laws will receive more attention at his hand than they desire.

—Every column in a newspaper contains from ten to twenty-two thousand distinct pieces of metal; the displacement of one causes a blunder or typographical error, and yet some people think it strange when they can find an error in a newspaper.

—In future when a man dies, besides saying he was a "staunch member" of a political party, it will be necessary for newspapers to state whether he ever rode a bicycle. An obituary of a man who was lately killed, says he was a clever bicycle rider, thirty years of age, and unmarried!

—The open air carnival at the Riverside rink, Ashburnham, this evening promises to be a grand success in every particular. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance during the evening. Those not in costume may skate on the hockey side while the masqueraders hold the larger rink till after the prizes are awarded, when the entire rink will be open.

—The society editor, in describing the balls of the ball, concluded, saying:—"And her dainty feet were encased in shoes that resembled fairy boats." But he was horror stricken on glancing down the column of his paper to see that his blundering printer had set it up in this manner:—"And her dirty feet were incased in shoes that resembled ferry boats."

—The six aldermen of the civic Property Committee, of Ottawa, with their market inspector, show a combined avoirdupois of 1,449 lbs—an average of 207 lbs. per individual. If it could be disposed of at the current price of beef the Property Committee of Ottawa is property in itself. Peterborough's Property Committee on the other hand is composed of lightweights; but then we select our committee men for brains, not beef.

—The Toronto Electric Light Company announce a reduction in the price of residence lighting of 33⅓ per cent. to prompt-paying customers. It is claimed that this reduction places the cost of electric lighting below that of gas at 90c per 1,000 feet. At 90c the gas consumed by a five-foot burner would cost about 4½ tenths of a cent per hour, while under the new tariff a 16 candle power incandescent lamp will cost only 4 tenths of a cent per hour.

What modest woman does not shrink from the examinations and local treatment upon which physicians insist when treating weakness and disease of the organs distinctly feminine. For this reason thousands of women go on suffering untold torture rather than apply to a physician for help. It is safe to say that one-half of the women in America suffer thus in silence. It is all unnecessary.

The reproductive organs of women are directly acted upon by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures all disease and weakness of those delicate organs. It fits a woman for the highest duties of her sex, wifehood and motherhood. If taken during the expectant period in makes baby's coming easy and safe and insures the health of the child. The "Favorite Prescription" is the discovery of a regularly graduated physician, an eminent and skillful specialist in diseases of women. Dr. Pierce is, and has been for thirty years, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. His "Favorite Prescription" does away with all necessity for distasteful examinations or local treatment. It corrects distressing and painful displacements and irregularities, and cures where doctors fail.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser not only tells you how to get well when you are ill, but how to stay well when you are well. It contains 1,008 pages and over 300 illustrations. Over a million women have a copy. A new edition is just out. The reader may have a paper-covered copy absolutely FREE, by sending 21 one-cent stamps, to cover the cost of customs and mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, at Buffalo, N. EASTERN WAR CLOUD

Everything Looks Like a Serious Outbreak.

GREAT EXCITEMENT AT ATHENS.

The Turkish Government Said to Have Played a Double Game—Midnight Editions of the Papers—Berlin Post Says War is Inevitable—Europe in a Ferment.

London, Feb. 12.—The Morning Post will to-morrow publish a news agency statement that the powers are unanimous in their condemnation of the attitude of Greece, and that they will not allow her to continue her present course. She must, it is added, abandon the idea of commencing a war with Turkey.

The Athens correspondent of The Daily News telegraphs that Turkey is forming the marauding bands of Albania into bodies that will be employed to invade Thessaly. The Greek Government is fully alive to the danger in this direction, and is hastening troops to the frontier to repel any attempted invasion of Grecian territory. It is reported that a collision has already occurred between the troops and Albanians on the frontier.

ATHENS TERRIBLY EXCITED.

The People Are Wild Over An Alleged Trick of the Turkish Government.

Athens, Feb. 13, 1.15 a.m.—The greatest excitement prevails here. The newspapers have issued midnight editions, containing a report that the Vali of Smyrna has chartered a steamer for the purpose of transporting troops to Crete, and this in face of the assurances given to the powers by the Porte that Turkey would not send reinforcements to the island.

The newspapers and the crowds in the street declare that the action of the Vali is taken with the full cognisance of the Porte, which has again proved, if proof is necessary, that not the slightest confidence can be placed in its assurances or promises. Hearty denunciations of the Turkish Government are heard on every hand. The city is alive at this hour and the principal streets are filled with Greeks, who demand that the Grecian warships shall prevent the landing of further troops in Crete. It is believed here that orders to that effect have already been given to Prince George, and there is no doubt that he will fully carry out his instructions, in which case war with Turkey would probably result, unless diplomacy or superior force should be employed to divert Greece from her determination to protect the Cretan Christians, and also, perhaps, to bring about the long-sought-for annexation of the island.

Prince George at Canea.

London, Feb. 12.—The Times has a despatch from Canea, stating that Prince George of Greece, with four torpedo boats and one transport, has arrived there. The despatch adds that reports from everywhere on the island indicate the increasing gravity of the situation.

An Italian officer of the Gendarmerie has been sent to Kisamo to enquire into the condition of affairs there. It was at this place where 21 Moslems were killed on Feb. 7. The Christians then suddenly began firing in the streets and the Moslems stampeded, making no resistance to their assailants. Seven persons were beheaded with swords, including three women and two children. The Christians fired a volley at a Turkish warship which arrived at Kisamo yesterday.

The insurgents are closing around Sitia.

Halepa to be Neutral.

Canea, Feb. 12.—The Cretans and the foreign consuls here have agreed that Halepa shall be regarded as neutra territory until an attack shall be made on Canea. In the event of such an attack being decided upon, the consuls shall have 24 hours' notice. The commander of the Greek warships here has promised the commanders of the other war vessels to give them 40 hours' notice in the event of his attacking the town. Prince George, the commander of the Greek torpedo flotilla, has not yet arrived here.

Italy Won't Oppose Greece.

Rome, Feb. 12.—A semi-official note has been issued here, stating that Italy will not oppose Greece in any action the latter country may take on the Cretan question. It is added that Italy does not wish to serve Turkey in any way.

War Almost Inevitable.

Berlin, Feb. 12.—The Post of this city this evening publishes an article in which it says that war between Greece and Turkey is almost inevitable. The paper adds that Turkey is entitled to allow her troops to cross the Thessalian frontier in view of the action of Greece.

Blockade Talked.

Vienna, Feb. 12.—It is reported here that a blockade of Crete by the European powers will be established shortly.

A Franco-Russian Scheme.

London, Feb. 12.—M. Hanotaux, the French Foreign Minister, has initiated proposals that the powers blockade Crete and that they also occupy Canea, Retimo and the other centres of disorder, pending a settlement of the dispute that will be satisfactory to the Cretans. Active negotiations on these proposals are now proceeding.

A high authority at the Foreign Office to-day told a representative of the United Associated Presses that he believed the proposal of M. Hanotaux was a Franco-Russian scheme to permit Greece to occupy the island, with Prince George, second son of the King of the Hellenes, as Governor-General, the island continuing to pay tribute to Turkey.

Greece Means Business.

London, Feb. 12.—D. T. Metaxes, the Greek Charge D'Affaires, called at the Foreign Office here last evening and presented a note stating the Greek Government had decided to prevent Turkish troops from debarking in Crete by all means in its power.

Greece Must be Held Down.

Vienna, Feb. 12.—The semi-official Fremdenblatt to-day says: Greece must be restrained from going any further. Austria has already acted, and the other powers will not be backward. They will not assist Greece nor hinder Turkey in sending troops and responding with hostilities to the aggressive action of Greece.

And Mr. Irwin Junkin, Postmaster of Bobcaygeon, is a Corpse Also.

Lindsay, Ont., Feb. 12.—Mr. Irwin Junkin, postmaster for over thirty years at Bobcaygeon, Ont., died of heart failure last night. He was a prominent citizen of the village, a staunch Reformer, Clerk of the Division Court, Clerk of the Township of Verulam and also of the Village of Bobcaygeon. Mr. Junkin was a Methodist of the old school, and a man of highest character, beloved and esteemed by all who knew him. His death will be widely mourned. He has been in poor health lately, and caught cold while attending the funeral of his brother, James Junkin, last week.

GRAND TRUNK LOOKING UP.

The Half-Yearly Report Shows to Decidedly Good Advantage

London, Feb. 12.—The half-yearly statement of the Grand Trunk Railway was issued to-day. It shows that the gross receipts were £2,079,700 during the six months, and the net receipts £616,000. A deficiency of £61,500 is charged to the Chicago and Grand Trunk section, while the Detroit and Grand Haven part of the system is behind £24,900. A surplus of £39,000 is shown for the half year, as against a deficiency of £33,100 for the same period of 1895.

LOSS OF VOICE

After Acute Bronchitis

CURED BY USING

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

A PREACHER'S EXPERIENCE.

"Three months ago, I took a violent cold which resulted in an attack of acute bronchitis. I put myself under medical treatment, and at the end of two months was no better. I found it very difficult to preach, and concluded to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The first bottle gave me great relief; the second, which I am now taking, has relieved me almost entirely of all unpleasant symptoms, and I feel sure that one or two bottles more will effect a permanent cure. To all ministers suffering from throat troubles, I recommend Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—E. M. BRAWLEY, D. D., Dist. Secretary, Am. Bapt. Publication Society, Petersburg, Va.

ORIENTAL TAPESTRY

WOMEN WEAVERS WHOSE WORK IS ADMIRED ALL OVER THE WORLD.

A Weaver of the Caucasus—A Popular Delusion About the Oriental Woman Dispelled—Astounding Stories About European Tapestry Buyers.

The popular conception of the Oriental woman is rather erroneous. It is that of one who is doomed from infancy to spend her life in a harem. Yet the simple truth is that the large majority of women in the East never become members of harems, and work quite as hard for their daily bread as do their sisters in the West, aye, even harder, for, as a rule, married women in the West are supported by their husbands, whereas in the East married women are, as a rule, constrained to support not only themselves, but also their husbands and children.

This statement applies especially to the thousands of women in Turkey, Persia and other countries of the Orient who make a living as weavers. The whole civilized world appreciates their handiwork, for none can match them in making tapestries, carpets and other gorgeous products of the loom. This is the age of machinery, but no machine has yet been invented which can do the marvellous work of these Oriental weavers. Europeans know this, and they have tried hard to establish factories in Smyrna and other cities, offering large inducements to the women to come and do their work here. But the women have not taken kindly to the plan. In them the nomadic gypsy instinct is still strong, and they prefer to work at home, as they have worked for centuries.

In their way these women are consummate artists, and yet, strange to say, they have at the same time a keen eye for business. Their husbands may sell the goods, but they take care that a good price is paid for them. Yet many of these women work for pitiful wages. After cleaning and preparing the wool and shaping it into a lovely piece of tapestry, all they receive is from four to six francs a week. The woman who can earn seven francs is considered a Croesus, and her husband esteems her so much that he never dreams of beating her. These women would be fortunate if they were allowed to keep their poor wages, but they are not. The money is always paid to the husband, and he invariably appropriates it. Not only, then, is the woman obliged to work several hours extra each day in order that her husband may live like a gentleman, but she is also obliged to turn over to him all her hard won earnings.

Yet no matter how hard she may work, her husband is always impoverished. He seldom has enough money to pay for the wool in advance, and is obliged to obtain it on credit from the Hebrew merchant. To such merchants come these Europeans, who want to purchase tapestries. They can get any quality of goods in the merchants' stores; cheap and ugly or costly and beautiful. The traffic in vulgar tapestries has been far greater than is known, and this is one reason why we have so much of the decadence of Oriental art, as expressed in these productions. The splendid tapestries, however, have always been sought by the best houses in Europe and America, and special pains are now being taken to stimulate the desire for these rare specimens of art. In the manufacture of these first-class tapestries extreme care is taken. The wool is purchased by experts and is then carefully washed and dyed, after which it is handed over to a number of women who are unexcelled weavers and who never spend their time at cheap work. From beginning to end the work of these women is faultless. The fine classical models given to them are reproduced with lifelike exactness, and the keenest eye cannot discover in the woven picture a coarse line, an inharmonious detail, a glaring color or any other offence against good taste or against the laws of art. As by dint of studying Raphael and Titian many men have become fine musicians, so by dint of studying the fine ideals before them these Oriental women have become filled with the true spirit of art and have even become creators of fine ideals themselves.

Yet they are very womanly. Of gossip they are very fond, and while they are at work their tongues are constantly going. Perhaps this is one reason why they have so obstinately refused to herd together in factories where the constant whir of machinery, not to speak of the surveillance of a foreman, would very probably compel them to keep silent. Moreover, the work is so easy that they can chat and attend to it at the same time. The only tools they use are two wooden cylinders. These are placed horizontally and the wool is stretched between them. Swiftly and deftly the fingers ply the wool hour after hour and all the time the busy tongues keep going at an equally rapid rate.

In order to fashion a first-class carpet or piece of tapestry the weaver must not only have a memory which will prevent her from making the slightest mistake while copying the design, but she must also possess a lively imagination and a thoroughly developed artistic sense. For the first-class weaver does not copy, she creates; She invents her own designs, she combines the various tones, she selects the dyes, she chooses the shades, and, finally, she obtains those effects which seem so charming to us of the West, and with good reason.

The reproduction of famous pieces of tapestry has been attempted in Europe, but it has apparently not succeeded. Experts claim that the East alone possesses the wonderful secret of imparting harmony and warmth of color to such work. Yet a machine was invented a short time ago by means of which tapestry very similar to the Oriental—at least, to outward appearance—can be manufactured. A mechanic invented it, and he gave a public exhibition of its method of working a short time ago. Those who watched him saw him manufacture a piece of tapestry which looked exactly as though it had come from Smyrna. That this machine will be largely used is considered very likely. The work done by it, however, will never replace the real work of the Orient. Still, there are many persons who cannot afford to buy costly Turkish tapestry, and they will, no doubt, be glad to procure the tapestry wrought by this machine, because not only has it all the appearance of the genuine article, but it is also much cheaper.

In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries the manufacture of fine carpets and tapestries seems to have been at its height in Europe. During those centuries such carpets were very popular in France and were found in all well appointed houses. Many large factories were kept busy in those days, and they continued to flourish until the beginning of this century. Why work in almost all of them was stopped about that time is not very clear. The fact, however, remains that the industry was practically dead until about thirty years ago, when the invention of some good machinery gave it a fresh lease of life.

The most ambitious European manufacturers know well that in some respects they can never hope to equal the splendid achievements of the Eastern women. The latter, then, need never dread the stress of modern competition, for so long as the world wants fine tapestries so long will there be a demand for those delicate works of art which the Orient alone can furnish.

Some astonishing stories are told, by the way, of Europeans who have gone to Turkey to buy tapestries. Here is one of them: "During our travels through the country,' says the European, "we had bought two or three pieces of tapestry, on which were stamped in Turkish characters certain verses from the Koran. The export of such tapestry is rigorously forbidden, clearly for the reason that the Turks do not want their sacred verses to be trodden under the feet of infidels. In vain does the purchaser assure the authorities that the tapestry will not be used as a carpet, but as drapery or portieres; they will not listen to him. The tapestry which I had bought got as far as Paris, but no sooner had it arrived there than I received telegram after telegram inviting me to return it. My friends and I considered the matter carefully, and, as we did not want to be hampered when making any future purchases, we returned the tapestry at once. Moreover, we were afraid that if we did not return it our agents in the East would be severely punished. After all, there is the law, plainly forbidding the export of any such holy tapestry, and we had no right to break it."

ERRATIC GEOGRAPHY.

Mountains and Lakes Found on the Map, But Nowhere Else.

Among the anomalous results that geographical exploration is constantly calling to the front is the annihilation of "landmarks" which have been considered to be firmly established. Less than three years ago it was discovered that Mount Iseran, a peak of the Graian Alps, which figured on all detailed maps of the Alpine regions with the very respectable elevation of upward of 12,000 feet, had no existence in fact, and the assumed mountain has since been consigned to oblivion. A somewhat less complete effacement was announced in the early part of the past year in the removal of 7000 feet from the height of Mount Brown in British America—generally credited with an altitude of 16,000 feet in place of the 9000 feet, which is now given to it by Professor Coleman—a condition somewhat similar to the experience of Mount Hood, in Oregon, which, when being gradually reduced from its presumed height of 16,000 to 11,000 feet, brought out the facetious remark that with a few years more of grace the mountain would be a hole in the ground. It is not alone the miner explorer, however, who is responsible for the perpetuation of great errors of observation. Sir Samuel Baker, the discoverer of the Albert Nyanza, the second great basin of the Nile, stated that from his position on the lake no boundaries of it could be traced southward to the limits of vision; whereas Stanley and others have since shown that not only did the lake terminate within a few miles of where Baker stood, but that its southern shore was actually bounded by high mountains.

G. Scott Elliot, in his recently published work, "A Naturalist in Mid-Africa," in turn corrects Stanley's errors with the no insignificant statement that "Mount Gordon Bennett, Mackinaw Peak and Mount Lamson are not mountains, but quite insignificant hills, if they had any existence at all." He also said: "I spent much time and trouble in trying to discover where on earth the enormous freshwater sea, discovered and christened the Alexander Nyanza by Mr. Stanley, could possibly be. This, of course, it is now clear, had no existence whatever." And finally, as the latest negative contribution to geographical knowledge, we have in the Jackson-Harmsworth report from Franz-Josef land (recently brought to London by the vessel of the expedition, the Windward), the assurance that not a trace of the so-called Peterman Land of Lieutenant Bayer could be discovered, and that even Lichy Land was merely a disjointed archipelagic mass of entirely inconsiderable extent.

Facts About Furs and Bankrupt Stocks.

Some dealers in Furs believe in selling Bankrupt Stocks but others there are who do not; yet, at the same time have offered several bankrupt stocks for sale within a short time, while claiming also to sell nothing in Furs but of their own manufacture. We certainly must stand away ahead of our competitors as we do not require the aid of such stocks but stand on the merits of our own manufactured goods, which we can always guarantee as such. Our reputation of 36 years standing without a failure is the best proof that customers believe in us and support us so well. We do not require to make any bombastic statements regarding the size or quality of our stock; both are only too well known in the town as well as in many other places at great distances. We wish to thank our customers for their patronage through the late season.

CARD FROM
MR. R. M. ROY
TO THE PUBLIC!

Having purchased Mr. P. H. Green's complete Photograph Studio on Hunter street, I take this opportunity of inviting a continuance of the favours of the numerous patrons of this Studio and solicit from my own friends, as well as the public generally, a liberal share of their orders.

Mr. Green will remain with me for a few weeks to personally assist and introduce me to his customers, as well as to complete all work under contract by him

I have arranged to carry out within a reasonable time any of Mr. Green's unfinished orders after his removal from Peterborough, and will do all in my power to meet the wishes of my patrons.

This popular studio has been so well known and has enjoyed so large and valuable a patronage ever since its establishment, that it only remains for me to state that it will be my constant aim to continue the high standard of superior photography which it has deservedly maintained.

Miss Dawson will still be in charge of the retouching and finishing department.

Please bear in mind that all Photographs taken by P. H. Green while in business in Peterborough, the negatives of which are in perfect order, are now in my possession, and copies can be had at any time on application.

R. M. ROY.

CARD FROM
MR. P. H. GREEN.

I desire to take this opportunity of thanking my numerous friends and customers for the very liberal patronage I have been favoured with during the past twelve years.

It is a pleasure for me to know that during my residence in Peterborough my associations with the citizens of the town and county has been of the most pleasant and satisfactory character.

All parties who have left work at the Studio uncalled for, will please call as soon as possible and receive the same. Those who have made engagements with me for sittings are also requested to call as early as convenient, and have their orders filled. For the convenience of parties who may be unable to do so, I have made arrangements with Mr. Roy to execute their orders.

I take great pleasure in recommending Mr. Roy to my friends as an expert, practical and enthusiastic artist, who, I feel confident, will fill my place very efficiently.

WINTER CHEESE SHIPMENT.

A Good Price was Realised at Campbellford.

The present prospects look very encouraging for the dairy farmer, with the cable in Enland rating at 59 shillings for good Canadian cheese.

On Thursday last there were shipped from the Campbellford station, by Mr. A. E. Bailey, buyers for Messrs. Hodgson Bros. at Montreal, and Liverpool, England, 128 boxes of white cheese. It was manufactured by Mr. W. Benesly in his factory at Norham, and is the first shipment of winter-made cheese ever made in this section. The price paid was 10½c per pound. The cheese was made during the months of December and January and is of No. 1 quality.

CHURCH CHIMES.

Miss Mein took the solos in the anthem "Now the Day is Over" in St. Paul's last evening.

Yesterday morning St. Paul's choir sang the anthem "Lead Kindly Light," Miss Vair taking the sole parts in remarkably fine voice.

The early service yesterday morning in St. John's church was very largely attended by the men of the congregation, who communicated in a corporate capacity.

The music rendered by St. John's choir at the services yesterday morning is particularly deserving of mention, being of an exceptionally pleasing character.

Good congregations filled Murray street Baptist church yesterday at morning and evening services. Rev. Mr. Dykeman took for his evening text the word "Wonderful," preaching a vigourous and earnest sermon, after which a short prayer meeting was held. Special services, conducted by the pastor, to which all will be cordially welcomed, will be held in the Sunday School room every evening this week with the exception of Friday.

The attendance was unusually good in the Murray street Baptist Sunday school yesterday afternoon. By having new music books the singing is much improved and greater interest is taken in this department. Rev. Mr. Mellick, Superintendent of Home Missions in Manitoba and the Northwest, addressed the school, and was listened to with breathless attention, as he told of the work among the Mennonites, the Russians, Germans, the Scandinavians, and the Indians.

The first of the sermons on the subject of Christian Unity was preached by Rev. H. Symonds in St. Luke's last night. Speaking from Eph. III, he pointed out that Christianity had two aspects, first an individual aspect, and secondly a social aspect. Every man is an individual, and must ask the question: "How am I to be saved saved from sin" The answer to this question had been expounded by St. Paul in the Epistles to the Galatians and the Romans. But although man is an individual, he is not an independent individual. The whole human race is really a family. Therefore there is a social side to Christianity, and it is this St. Paul expounds in the hpistles to the Ephesians, I Corinthians and elsewhere. This social side of Christianity finds expression in the Church, which the Apostles describes as the body of Christ, made up of many members, yet but one. The man who only thinks of his own salvation is a very imperfect Christian, and a very selfish Christian. The social side of Christianity is more and more coming to the front, and in all parts of the world men are pondering the great subject of the Unity of the Body of Christ. The subject will be continued next Sunday evening.

A CASE OF DIABETES.

No Help From Medical Men—Suffered for Many Years—Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

North Bruce, Feb. 15 (Special)—An old and well known settler in this Township, named Thomas Brooks, who lives on lots 7 and 8 in the 14th concession is rejoicing with his neighbours over his recent recovery, and he said:

"I was cured by using twenty-four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and as nothing else ever helped me I say they saved my life."

"I had tried all the doctors of this locality and was treated for Diabetes, hoping and suffering for years."

"From reading of cures I determined to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I must say that after using the first box I would have considered them reasonable at ten dollars a box."

Mr. C., a leading politician, says; "Miller's Compound Iron Pills cured me of nervousness and wakefulness." Sold in Peterborough by Wm. Madill, druggist.

A RICH GOLD MINE.

Camp McKinney, B. C., and Its Famous Cariboo.

Figures of the Output of British Columbia Ores—January Was a Record-Breaker—The Production Now at the Rate of $3,000,000 Per Annum—The Minnehaha the Extension of the Cariboo.

The modest little mining boom that began in British Columbia nine months ago has now assumed such gigantic proportions as to attract world-wide attention. That there is a solid basis for this boom the rapid increase in the output of ore from Kootenay gives ample evidence. Official figures are hard facts that cannot be denied. The total value of ore and ore-bearing matte sent out of this district in January of this year was $675,506, or at the rate of over $3,000,000 per annum.

Although the output is so large, still at the present time there are only two mining camps in the whole of British Columbia that can boast of dividend-paying gold mines. The one is Rossland, in Trail Creek district, with its dividend-paying Le Roi and War Eagle; the other is Camp McKinney, with its equally prolific and wonderful Cariboo. Whilst the name of Rossland is on every tongue, and that place is growing up as if it were by magic into a modern city, still very little is heard of Camp McKinney. The character of the ore has much to do with this. In Rossland the ore has to be smelted, requiring a large expenditure of labor in transportation and otherwise, whilst in Cariboo the rock is free-milling and can be stamped and turned into gold on the spot.

Camp McKinney is situated about 60 miles due west from Rossland and about the same distance north of the international boundary line. In McKinney is located the Cariboo mine, which pays dividends, and should not be confounded with scores of other Cariboo mines. This mine has had a wonderful record, and the dividends to date, including one of two cents per share declared this month, amount to $140,964 76 since the summer of 1894, when a ten-stamp mill was erected on the property. This ten-stamp mill certainly has a record to be proud of. There is not another mill of its capacity on the Pacific coast that has produced more bullion. A Toronto syndicate has been fortunate enough to secure the Minnehaha claim, which is the southern extension of the Cariboo ledge. Before placing the property on the market in the east a shaft was put down on the Minnehaha 43 feet, when the vein was found to be about four feet wide and the ore, which was assayed at Vancouver and at the School of Practical Science in Toronto, gave assays running from $20 to $260 in gold. There is no gold to be seen in the rock with the naked eye, as it is all disseminated in fine particles through the quarts. In sinking the shaft 35 tons of this ore was taken out.

The property is one of great promise and the stock was placed on the eastern market by Messrs. Campbell, Currie & Co., brokers, Toronto, at the low figure of ten cents per share. In three days 46,000 shares were sold. The price of the stock will doubtless be advanced between the 20th and 25th of this month, possibly to 13 or 15 cents, as the company do not wish to sell too much of their treasury stock at a low figure.

The officers of the company are representative eastern men, and are as follows:—President, Prof. Henry Montgomery of Trinity University, Toronto, M.A., B.Sc., Ph.B., F.A.S.A., formerly Professor of Mineralogy and Geology and head of the Mining Department in the State University of Utah: Vice-President, Capt. J. F. Ramsay, wholesale merchant, Toronto; Second Vice-President, Alexander K. Roy, Esq., merchant, Toronto; Manager, Major Ainsley Megraw, Camp McKinney, B.C.; Secretary-Treasurer, Hiram Kiteley, Esq., broker, Toronto; Directors: Prof. H. Montgomery, Toronto; Capt. J. F. Ramsay, Toronto; Alexander K. Roy, Esq., Toronto; S. G. Detchon, Esq., wholesale chemist, Toronto; Walter Wells, Esq., dentist, Waterloo; Capt. J. A. Currie, broker, Toronto; W. R. Barnett, Esq., merchant, Paisley; A. G. Seaman, Esq., lumberman, Wiarton; J. L. Ballantyne, Esq., merchant, Tiverton; G. K. Mills, B.A., Stratford; Barthelemi Verret, Esq., wholesale merchant, Quebec.

All the stock of the owners and promoters is pooled and cannot be sold in competition with the treasury stock until the mine is on a paying basis. The treasury stock is 250,000 shares out of a capital of 1,000,000 shares, par value $1 each, with an additional 50,000 shares reserved for the treasury in case there is not sufficient money realized from the first block in the treasury to place the mine on a paying footing. Messrs. Campbell, Currie & Co. have been kept busy issuing prospectuses to inquirers all over the country from Halifax to Vancouver. They will be pleased to send a prospectus and particulars of the property to anyone desirous of obtaining information.

Mr. Chas. Smith, Dawn Mills, Ont., says: "For several years I was troubled with pains in my limbs, which continued getting worse until I thought I would have to quit work. In fact the pains were so bad that I could not rest nights. I took one box of Miller's Compound Iron Pills and am perfectly cured." Although it is nearly a year since Mr. S. took the Pills he has had no return of the pains, and feels splendid. Sold in Peterborough by Wm. Madill, druggist.

Constipation Cured.

Gents,—I was in very poor health for over four years; the docter said it was constipation. Not wanting to spend too much cash I got three bottles of B.B.B. and took it regularly, I can certify that I am now in the very best of health and feel very grateful to B.B.B.

SHUTTING DOWN
—ON—
LONG-WINDED CREDIT

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 10th, 1897.

NOTICE—From and after this date, Messrs. H. LeBRUN & CO. have decided to shorten the Term of Credit heretofore given, and, in future, no goods will be sold except for Cash, or on such limited time as may be mutually arranged.

We believe the safest way to do business in these days is to sell for Cash. The next best way is to sell on short dates. Many of our customers who have regularly paid their bills after a reasonable term of credit, would perhaps feel the "Spot Cash" system a hardship, especially while times are so hard and money so scarce. We regard these customers as among the best we have, and are quite entitled to continue to extend to them the same terms of limited credit they have been accustomed to enjoy.

Our chief complaint is with the "long-winded" customer, who compels us to say that he makes business life a down-right worry. It makes no difference to us whether a man is worth a million if he won't pay his account. When we need money for our business and are repeatedly put off with "promises to pay" by those who are well able to pay, we have no use for such trade. If every customer treated us in that way we could not carry on business at all. Besides, it is very disagreeable to us to have to "dun" a customer half a dozen times, or spend the profits in postage stamps, and wearing out shoe-leather to boot. We are compelled, therefore, to shut down at once on long credits. Those who can't pay within a reasonable time, we don't want their account in future.

There is a resolution all over the country in favour of Cash or shorter Credits. Cash is a more powerful friend now than ever, and if we must compete with the Cash Stores, who save their discounts, we can't afford to give long credit. Wholesale houses are now offering such big baits in the way of Cash Discounts that we must be prepared to take advantage of them or be handicapped.

All past due Accounts must be settled by the 1st of March; after that date they will be placed in Court for collection. All parties having contra accounts against us are requested to hand them in for settlement at once.

MR. BLAKE'S OPINION

Regarding Manitoba School Question.

CORRESPONDENCE ON THE MATTER

Between Solicitor-General Fitzpatrick and the Eminent Lawyer—The Settlement Arrived at Endorsed—Impossibility of Coercing the Provincial Government.

Quebec, Feb. 15.—Le Soleil received this morning the following letter from Rome in reference to the Manitoba school settlement:

From the Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick, Q. C., M. P., to the Hon. Edward Blake, Q. C., M. P., 27 Norfolk-street, Strand, W. C., Jan. 19, 1897:

Dear Mr. Blake,—It has been represented to me that the Roman Catholic bishops of the Province of Quebec have stated to the Cardinal Prefect of the Propaganda and Rome that the effect of the judgment rendered in the case of Brophy by the Privy Council was that the Roman Catholic minority in Manitoba was entitled to their Separate schools, as they had enjoyed them previous to the Manitoba Act of 1890. As you acted for the Manitoba minority in the case in question, and must, therefore, be familiar with the true import and meaning of the judgment, I would thank you to state whether or not, in your opinion, the effect of the judgment has been correctly stated by the Roman Catholic bishops above mentioned, and I would also thank you to state briefly what has been declared to be by the judgment the powers of the Governor-General and the Dominion Parliament, in so far as it is open to them to remedy the stated grievances of the Catholic minority in Manitoba, and to what extent it is possible to restore the condition of things existing previous to 1890. Yours truly (Signed), C. Fitzpatrick.

The Hon. Edward Blake, 112 Ashley-grounds, S. W.

London, Jan. 20, 1897.—I have considered the questions put to me by the Solicitor-General for Canada contained in my letter of Jan. 19 inst., on the subject of the Manitoba school question. I think it is an entire misapprehension of the judgment of the Judicial Committee in Brophy's case to say that its effect was that the Roman Catholic minority in Manitoba were entitled to their Separate schools as they had enjoyed them previous to the Manitoba Act of 1890. The gist of that judgment was that, contrasting the state of things under the laws prior to 1890 with that created by the laws of 1890, the rights or privileges which the Roman Catholics had enjoyed under the former had been affected by the latter laws, thus rendering admissable an appeal to the Governor-General-in-council, under the Manitoba Union Act, and giving the Governor-General jurisdiction to proceed under that act. This was a question of law, or of mixed law and fact, and, therefore, properly entertained by the Judicial Committee as an appellate court of law. It was upon this ground that I succeeded in inducing the court to touch the question at all.

It is absolutely clear, as everyone will see who reads the print of the argument, that the Judicial Committee drew a sharp and, in my opinion, an absolutely true line between this question of the jurisdiction of the Governor-General-in-council, and the question whether at all, and, if so, in what forms and to what extent, the jurisdiction should be exercised by the Canadian authorities. These were questions not legal, but political, not of binding obligation, but of discretion, on which the Judicial Committee were not and could not properly be asked to decide, which during the argument they plainly intimated to be beyond their judicial province, and as to which they expressly say that the "course to be pursued must be determined by the authorities to whom it is committed by the statute," and "it is not for this tribunal to prescribe the precise steps to be taken; their general character is sufficiently defined by the third subsection of section 22 of the Manitoba Act."

So far from indicating any impression that the Roman Catholic minority are entitled to be restored to the old position, the judgment says: "It is certainly not essential that the statute repealed by the Act of 1890 should be re-enacted, or that the precise provisions of this statute should again be made law." And I am sure that if in order to succeed in the appeal I had found it necessary to maintain such a position I should have failed in my attempt.

It is true that the concluding passage of the judgment is thus expressed: "The system of education embodied in the Acts of 1890 no doubt commends itself to and adequately supplies the wants of the great majority of the inhabitants of the province, and all legitimate ground of complaint would be removed if that system were supplemented by provisions which would remove the grievances upon which the appeal is founded, and were modified so far as might be necessary to give effect to these provisions."

I am of the opinion that the Judicial Committee did nothing to define, and did not in fact define, what were the precise powers or duties of the Governor-General-in-Council, further than that there was a jurisdiction to hear the appeal and to proceed under the Union Act. Now, the course of procedure under the Union Act is clear. The Governor-General-in-Council, after hearing the appeal, should decide on the nature and extent of the changes in the new law, which, viewing all the circumstances, they think may fairly be proposed for the substantial redress of the grievances, and should communicate their decision to the provincial authority. If, after negotiation, it is found impossible to come to terms, which the Provincial Legislature will embody in law, then, and then for the first time, a power exists in the Parliament of Canada, "only so far as the circumstances of each case may require," to make a remedial law for the execution of the decision of the Governor-General-in-Council.

But the Governor-General-in-Council cannot compel the Provincial Legislature to execute their decision, and both the Provincial Legislature and the Parliament of Canada have the right to act or refuse to act, according to their political judgment. In this case the Governor-General-in-Council decided that the latter Act should be modified by a provincial law restoring to the Roman Catholic minority:

(a) The right to build, maintain, equip, conduct, manage and support the Roman Catholic schools in the manner provided by the statutes which were repealed by the Acts of 1890,

(b) The right to share proportionately in any grant made out of the public funds for the purpose of education.

(c) The right of exemption of such Roman Catholics as contribute to Roman Catholic schools, from all payment of contribution to the support of any other schools, but the Manitoba Legislature refused to pass any such law.

The reason a Remedial Bill was introduced in the Canadian House of Commons, which bill, however, did not attempt to give the Roman Catholics the right to share proportionately in any grant made out of public funds for the purpose of education, unless indeed the Provincial Legislature should itself choose to grant an appropriation for the Separate schools proposed to be established by provincial funds, a thing, of course, under the circumstances, absurd to imagine. It thus appears to have been conceded, "and as I conceive rightly conceded," by the authors of the Remedial Bill that the practical and constitutional difficulties in the way of imposing taxes or appropriating public funds of the Province of Manitoba by the Parliament of Canada were overwhelming. The bill failed to become law. The whole question had been and remained a political question, such as I have described.

All sides seeem to have practically agreed that the complete restoration by the Parliament of Canada (of Separate schools) was impossible in view of the overwhelming difficulties to which I have referred; as to the appropriation of public funds. I believe no thinking man who knows Canada and the provinces can doubt that there would be the greatest practical difficulty in forcing on an unwilling province many other provisions of the Remedial bill, and that in the attempt the interests of the Roman Catholic minority in Manitoba and six other provinces would be but too likely to suffer. In this state of things the limitation of power as to money and the dictates of policy alike seems to me to have pointed clearly to an adjustment whereby the province should agree to substantial concessions, and having considered the provisions of the settlement now under discussion I think them infinitely more advantageous to the Roman Catholic minority than any Remedial Bill which it is in the power of the Parliament of Canada to force upon the Province of Manitoba. (Signed) Edward Blake.

ELLIOTT'S STRANGE TALE.

A Man From Toronto Who Barely Escaped With His Life From Madagascar Natives.

New York, Feb. 13.—John Elliott of Toronto, who came over in the steerage of the St. Louis, which arrived to-day, told a weird story to Dr. White of the hospital staff. Three years ago, he said, he went to Madagascar, where he was captured by natives and preparations were made for his execution, when he found a Hova who spoke English. Through the man he was liberated. Then Elliott and the Hova pricked their veins and traded a drop or two of blood; this in token of everlasting friendship. After that Elliott got concessions and things in large quantities, and he brought home a lot of broken pottery, curios and beads, but not very much money. He says in conclusion that he wants a job in the street cleaning department.

THE WAR ABOUT OVER

Britain, Russia, France and Italy Land Men

TO HOLD THE GREEKS IN CHECK.

Rejoicing at Athens When it Was Learned That the "Army of Occupation" Had Landed British Lords and Commons Discussed the Matter —The Very Latest News.

London, Feb. 15.—The matter of the disorders in Crete and the independent action taken by Greece in sending a torpedo flotilla and transport ships to that island came up in the House of Lords to-day, when Lord Salisbury declared that reforms for the Island of Crete had been arranged and were already being put into effect when Greece intervened. The powers, the Premier said, were unanimous in regarding the action of Greece as ill-advised, to say the least, and had lost no time in expressing this opinion in language of the most earnest and unmistakable character to the Greek Government. The Government of Great Britain, Lord Salisbury declared, remained in complete accord with the other powers, and there was no ground for thinking that they would depart from the policy which they had hitherto pursued.

In the Commons.

London, Feb. 15.—Mr. George N. Curzon, Parliamentary Secretary for Foreign Affairs, announced in the House of Commons to-day, in reply to questions regarding the exact situation in Crete, that the powers were taking every step that was possible for them to take advantage of to the end of checking the disorders in that island. All of the foreign consuls in Crete, he added, were under instructions to cooperate in the direction of restoring order.

Mr. Curzon, answering further questions, said that the Government had absolutely no information that the Mussulmans in Crete were exposed to massacre at the hands of the Christians.

Replying to requests for information as to the course to be taken by the British naval vessels in Cretan waters, Mr. Curzon said that the British naval officers had been instructed to take no isolated action in Crete under any circumstances. Mr. Curzon declined to make any statement as to the nature or purport of the correspondence which had passed between the powers concerning the Cretan situation and the position of the powers in regard thereto.

THE POWERS ACT.

British, Russian, French and Italian Marines Landed in Crete.

Canea, Feb. 15.—One hundred men each from the Russian, French, British and Italian fleets at Canea, and 50 Austrians have been landed under command of an Italian officer and have occupied the city, the Turkish officials having given their assent to the step. The flags of the nations represented by the occupying force have been hoisted upon the ramparts of the fortress.

The Crisis Ended.

London, Feb. 15.—The Standard will to-morrow print a despatch from its Athens correspondent saying that the powers have decided to supervise the execution of a new charter for Crete, the chief feature of which is the autonomy of the island under the joint rule of the powers. The Standard's correspondent further says that he has been assured by a Greek official of high position that Emperor William of Germany used his influence very largely to effect this solution of the matter, which is hailed with delight, and the crisis is considered over.

Athenians Mounted for Joy.

Athens, Feb. 15.—Advices received here from the Island of Crete announce that the "corps of occupation," consisting of infantry, artillery and engineers, and numbering 1500 men, which embarked at Piraeus yesterday, have landed at Platanias, 14 kilometres west of Canea. The warships of the powers, these advices also state, had previously landed strong detachments at Retimo, Heraklion and Canea.

When the announcement was made here that the "corps of occupation" under comamnd of Col. Vassos, chief aide-de-camp to King George, had landed in Crete demonstrations of the wildest joy were indulged in by the populace. A despatch from Canea states that Col. Vassos has issued a proclamation to the Cretan and has demanded that the Turks surrender.

Could Not Divulge

Paris, Feb. 15.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day M. Hanotaux, Minister of Foreign Affairs, replying to an inquiry by M. Jaures, regarding the situation in Crete, said that the status of affairs in that island was such as to render a public explanation impossible. M. Jaures expressed his dissatisfaction with the reply of the Foreign Minister to his request for information and demanded that the Cretan affair be discussed at once by the Chamber. Thereupon M. Ndline, the Premier, declared that such action was impossible as the discussion demanded would necessitate the divulging of secrets which were not France's alone, and demanded that the consideration of the matter be adjourned, and this course was adopted by a vote of 362 to 70.

Details of the Landing.

London, Feb. 15.—The Times will publish to-morrow a despatch from Canea giving details of the landing from the foreign warships of the force which occupied Canea. The debarkation of the men took place in the afternoon under the direction of the Italian admiral, the senior commander.

Boils

It is often difficult to convince people their blood is impure, until dreadful carbuncles, abecesses, boils, scrofula or salt rheum, are painful proof of the fact. It is wisdom now, or whenever there is any indication of blood, to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and prevent such eruptions and suffering.

"I had a dreadful carbuncle abecess, red, fiery, fierce and sore. The doctor attended me over seven weeks. When the abcess broke, the pains were terrible, and I thought I should not live through it. I heard and read so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I decided to take it, and my husband, who was suffering with boils, took it also. It soon purified our built me up and restored my health so that, although the doctor said I would not be able to work hard, I have since done the work for 20 people. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured my husband of the boils, and we regard it a wonderful medicine." MRS. ANNA PETERSON, Latimer, Kansas.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

REMARKING that it doesn't seem to be generally known that every man who serves on a coroner's jury is now entitled to payment for his services the Hamilton Herald says that some coroners, even, are not aware of the fact. By an act passed by the Legislature last year every juryman is entitled to receive fifty cents a day when the inquest does not last longer than four hours on any day, and if it exceeds four hours he is entitled to a dollar a day. In addition, he is allowed ten cents mileage. The act came into force nearly a year ago, but many man who have served on coroners juries since then have failed to take advantage of their rights.

THE Mail and Empire assures its readers that Mr. Whitney, the leader of the forlorn hope known as the Opposition in the Legislature, in his remarks on the address "contented himself with very moderate comments." It is true that this is a remarkable departure from the practice which has prevailed for some time, but it showed, says the Ottawa Free Press, Mr. Whitney to be possessed of more discretion than has been. in the past, exhibited by the Merediths, Martens, Landers, Merricks and other luminaries of their party. It wants some moderation, as well as discretion, to tackle such a comprehensive and business-like document as the speech delivered at the opening Legislature. Mr. Whitney's lot is not exactly a happy one, and he does well to be moderate. His path will not grow smoother as he progresses.

"AN interesting discussion has taken place in the Nova Scotia House of Assembly concerning the abolition of the Legislative Council in that province. The question is, of course, not a new one," says the Ottawa Free Press, "and for eighteen years every successive Legislature has petitioned the Crown for the abolition. The Imperial authorities have, however, naturally declined to touch the question, as it is one so manifestly within the powers of the province itself. It is reasonably held that the time has come for the change to be made as the cost is a serious matter to the province. A resolution to the effect that the Upper Chamber be abolished, but granting a retiring allowance of three years' sessional indemnity to the members has just been discussed but opposed by the government on the ground that it had not yet exhausted the means at its disposal for the attainment of the end in view." But the end it seems must come. The spirit of the age is in consonance with the principle of reducing the machinery of legislation and reducing the number of representatives.

NEWSPAPER POSTAGE.

(Ottawa Journal.)

In emphasizing the necessity of reimposing postage on newspapers, Hon. Mr. Mulock pointed the Canadian Press Association to the fact that the Dominion Government had recently largely increased the postal payment to the Canadian Pacific Railway, and would probably have to increase that to the Grand Trunk. These increased payments the Postmaster-General said were due to the great quantities of newspapers being carried.

In this connection there is a somewhat interesting development in the United States in the shape of an agitation for reform of postal payments to railways. The newspapers are alleging that the government pays the railways too much, and the view is supported by a statement just published by Mr. Vilas, formerly postmaster-general of the United States.

Mr. Vilas declares that while this business costs the United States government from $8,000,000 to $11,000,000 more than it yields in revenue, any expert business man would give adequate bond to do all the business for the revenues and would make a fortune at it. Mr. Vilas gives facts and figures to support his contention.

There may be a hint for Mr. Mulock here. Is he sure that the Canadian railways are not getting too much for the postal work they do?

Mildmay Bank Property Seized by the Sheriff Peculiar Methods of Business.

Walkerton, Ont., Feb. 15.—(Special.)—After a hard struggle with fate for a couple of months the Mildmay private bank has been compelled to assign. Mr. Sheriff O'Connor seized the property of the bank and its proprietors on Saturday, on an execution for $1919 at the suit of Rev. S. E. Wadel of Chepstow, and immediately thereafter the company assigned to Mr. John Snyder, liveryman, of Mildmay. This gentleman has called a meeting of the creditors of the bank for the 27th inst. Another writ for $1600 was issued by Mr. O. E. Klein, barrister, on Saturday, at the suit of Mathias Stroeder against Messrs. Schurter, Geissler, Lobsinger, Hergott and Zettel, proprietors of the bank.

A special writ was also issued against Mr. Zettel individually, on account of a transaction with his son incidentally arising out of the difficulty of the bank. Mr. Zettel sold his farm to his son in November last, taking a mortgage thereon for $4940. Since the commencement of the trouble in the bank Mr. Zettel discharged this mortgage. Mr. Stroeder thinks the discharge was not a genuine business transaction, and has brought suit to have it declared that Mr. Zettel is still the mortgagee. The bank is not an incorporated institution, but merely an association of private parties who, for the past fourteen years, have been carrying on business under the name of the Carrick Financial Company.

All their private property is liable for the debts of the institution, and when a run commenced on them after the Messner failure two months ago, they claimed a surplus of some $50,000 all told. The liabilities of the bank were then given at $64,000, with assets nominally over $85,000. Nearly $40,000 of the liabilities is for deposits by farmers and others in the immediate neighborhood. It is now said that the assets will not pan out nearly so well as at first stated. Mr. Schurter, the manager, has been carrying on a mill and Mr. Hergott, another of the proprietors, has been carrying on a foundry, both of which were dependent on bank capital, and both of which are now closed up. Their notes are in the bank, given by themselves as individuals to themselves as a bank, and counted by the bank as valuable assets. Their value remains to be seen. The interim assignee is a friend of the family and not a business man, so that in the meantime the managers will practically have control until the meeting of creditors on the 27th inst.

TWEED TOPICS.

Mrs. James Davenport Makes a Statement for the Benefit of Others.

Mrs. Davenport is well-known in Tweed, and this is how she spoke to our representative concerning Doan's Kidney Pills. Said Mrs. Davenport:—

"I have suffered for some years from dizziness pufing under the eyes, pains in the side and back, sleeplessness, poor appetite, and in fact, was in a bad state generally.

"I took two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills which I got at P. K. Newton's drugstore, and experienced immediate relief from their use.

"I am now very much better indeed; appetite improved, pain almost disappeared and I feel stronger and healthier in every particular."

"I heartily recommend them to all sufferers from kidney trouble."

CAN CURE ASTHMA

A Leading Physician's Discovery.

He Will Prove it Free of Charge to Every Sufferer in Peterborough.

It is but natural that sufferers from that terrible disease known as "Asthma," after treating with doctors and trying without avail, numberless remedies advertised as "positive cures," have come to the conclusion that there is no cure for this most distressing of diseases and can be pardoned for being still skeptical when they learn that Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann, the recognised authority, who in thirty years of experience as a medical practioner, has treated more cases of Asthma and its kindred than any living doctor, has at last achieved success by perfecting a remedy which not only gives instant relief even in the worst and most inveterate of cases, but has cured thousands of sufferers who were considered incurable.

Knowing that in making this broad claim a strong doubt may exist in the minds of many who have been duped by fraudulent nostrums, and that a personal test will establish the truth of his claims, Dr. Schiffman authorizes this paper to announce that any sufferer from Asthma, Bronchitis, Nasal Catarrh or Hay Fever, who will send him their address plainly written on a postal card will receive a free trial package of Dr. Schiffman's Asthma Cure absolutely free of charge. To accept this most generous and extraordinary offer involves only the cost of a postal card and the remedy undoubtedly possesses the merit he claims for it, otherwise the Doctor would not openly invite sufferers to test it absolutely free of charge, before purchasing; even paying the postage on the sample himself. This offer is not good after March 1st, so persons desiring to avail themselves of the same should promptly send their address to Dr. R. Schiffman, 345 Rosabel Street, St. Paul Minn., U.S.A.

HORSE HANGED BY ITS FOOT.

The Peculiar Accident That Happened to Mr. Thomas Wilson of Pickering.

Pickering, Ont., Feb. 14.—What might have been a serious accident was narrowly averted here to-night. As Mr. Thomas Wilson was driving across the iron suspension bridge over the river his horse stumbled and fell against the wooden railing, which gave way. Had it not been that the harness broke, the cutter, with four occupants, would have been dashed down on the ice, fifteen feet below. As it was, the horse went over, but in the fall one foot caught in the iron work, and the poor animal hung thus suspended for about twenty minutes. Finally with heavy pries the foot was let loose, and he fell on the ice below. The horse was badly cut and bruised, but was able to walk home.

Another Oil Gusher.

Chatham, Feb. 14.—Another lucky oil syndicate for Chatham is composed of A. L. Shambleau, Tom Pierce and W. Cameron. They bought a location three miles from Bothwell, and began boring a month ago. To-night word was received that the drill had opened a veritable gusher, whose flow is judged to be 150 barrels a day.

THE OTTAWA BUDGET

Classes of Matter on Which Postage Must be Paid

BY THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENTS

Reports on Public Health Matters Go Free, as Also Do Weather Reports—Ontario Government Innocently Precipitated the Whole Trouble—Notes From the Capital.

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—(Special.)—Inquiry was made at the Postoffice Department this afternoon as to the extent of the recent order imposing postage on mail matter sent from the public departments of the several provinces. Hereafter the exemption from postage rate will apply strictly to the class of matter mentioned in the Postoffice Act, namely, "petitions and addresses to the Provincial Legislatures of any of the provinces of Canada, or to any branch thereof, and also votes and proceedings and other papers printed by order of any such Legislatures, or any branch thereof." Hitherto the franking privilege has been allowed on the documents mentioned in the following paragraphs of the Dominion Postal Guide, and on these hereafter postage must be paid at the rate of one cent for two ounces.

(15) Periodical bulletin circulars, schedules and reports prepaid by and issued from the Provincial Departments in connection with agricultural, industrial and sanitary matters, as well as returns made to the Provincial Government on schedules furnished by them; forms used by clergymen, medical men and others, when making returns of marriages, births and deaths; contagious diseases reports addressed to the Provincial Board of Health, Montreal, and meteorological reports addressed to the Dominion Observatory at Toronto, are allowed to pass free of postage, but should registration be required, the usual charge of 5 cents must be prepaid by stamps in every case.

(16) These circulars, schedules, reports and returns may thus pass, whether sent with or without envelopes, but if sent in envelopes they are to be unsealed in order to show that nothing but the return is enclosed therein. As regards the obligation to leave the envelopes unsealed, exception is made in the case of certain official reports posted in official envelopes addressed to the "Conseil d'Hygiene de la Province de Quebec" or "Board of Health of the Province of Quebec, at Montreal."

City postmasters were advised last week that as soon as the Postal Guide for 1897 is out, which will be in about ten days the law will be enforced in reference to the above class of mail matter. The Provincial Secretaries of all the provinces of Canada have been apprised of the opinion of the Minister of Justice, and that the franking privilege hereafter must be confined strictly within the limits laid down by the statute.

It was an innocent question from the Ontario Government that led to the law being looked into and the getting of Sir Oliver Mowat's opinion thereon.

Collectors of Inland Revenue have been notified that hereafter cases containing whiskey for export must hereafter be branded with the letters "Expn" (meaning exportation) with a branding iron, in place of stencil marking them. On whiskey for export no excise duty is paid, and there have been instances where the stencil marking has been rubbed out, and the spirit actually diverted to home consumption. It is to guard against fraud of this kind that the Department will hereafter require a more durable branding mark.

The British Columbia politicians who are in town had an interview with Sir Henri Joly to-day to urge the appointment of Mr. Lawson, assistant to Prof. Ellis of Toronto, as public analyst for British Columbia. Before the late Government went out, Mr. Fagan of New Westminster, was recommended for this position, but His Excellency did not sign it. Mr. Fagan is the only chemist in British Columbia who has passed the public analyst's examination.

The work of straightening out the books and papers carried from the Western block on Thursday is proceeding apace. By Wednesday departmental routine will be going on as usual.

The Minister of Public Works is preparing a statement of how the fire occurred, as to the condition of the fire appliances, water supply and other details. It will endeavor to show that the statements published as to the hydrants being frozen and the hose in a dilapidated condition, are all wrong. Meanwhile Mr. Tarte has taken temporary measures to protect the centre and eastern blocks from fire. He has caused to be placed fire protection pails at different points.

Mr. Peter Lyall, a well-known building contractor of Montreal, has arrived here at Mr. Tarte's invitation to guide him in his action regarding rebuilding. He visited the scene of the fire with Mr. Ewart, acting chief architect, this morning, and went over every portion of the building. Mr. Lyall considered the brick and mason work standing above the second storey very sound, and not calling in any way for repair. As regards the building. Mr. Lyall says it certainly was one of the very best of its day. If the block is to be made fireproof in the modern acceptation of that term the interior partitions of wood should all be removed, down to the basement, and replaced by metal. As they are now they are most inflammable and the putting in of a fireproof roof would be no help if the blaze started in the lower floors. Moreover, the walls would have to be all replastered and this would take time. It would mean at least six months before the buildings would be fit for occupation, and would involve a considerable expenditure, but the structure would be as permanent and indestructible as any that could be put up. This is his idea of permanent rebuilding, but if it is only intended to patch things up, the work could be done in six or eight weeks. It rests with the Minister of Public Works to say which shall be done, and the likelihood is that Mr. Tarte will not consent to any perpetuation of another firetrap.

Mr. Tarte, by the way, is almost overcome with pressure of work, and has not been well since the night of the fire. To-day he sent the following letter to Mayor Bingham: "Feb. 13, 1897.—My Dear Mayor,—Permit me to thank you for the great assistance that your municipal organization extended to the Government of Canada in the recent disaster. The fire brigade worked with great energy, vigor and pluck. I have myself witnessed their efforts, and can bear testimony that they have done everything that men could do to save the building. Believe me, my dear Mr. Mayor, truly yours, J. Israel Tarte."

At the council meeting to-night votes of thanks were tendered the Mayor of Montreal, the Montreal firemen and others who assisted the Ottawa brigade in putting out the fire.

The object of the visit of Sir William Van Horne, President, and Mr. Shaughnessy, Vice-President of the C. P. R., to Ottawa on Saturday was to oppose the application which the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern Railway is making to the Dominion Government for assistance to build its line from the coast into the mining regions of East Kootenay, connecting with the Crow's Nest Pass road. As previously stated, the C. P. R. seeks permission to construct the line from the Crow's Nest, or rather from Lethbridge, in the N. W. T., through to the Pacific coast by the southern route.

The Supreme Court term opens to-morrow, when judgment in two appeals will be given. One of these is the case of the ship Frederick Gerring, Jr., vs. the Queen, involving the legality of a seizure made by the Canadian fisheries protection service last summer for fishing within the three-mile limit.

The City Council to-night approved of the report favoring the immediate purchase of two quick-steaming engines, two chemical engines, two extension ladders and the erection of two new fire stations. Owing to a technical objection of one of the kickers, the motion to ask the Legislature for power to issue debentures for $115,000 to purchase these appliances, and to extend water mains, was laid over until next meeting.

Patent solicitors will hereafter be debarred from direct access to the examiner of the patent office.

He Failed in Health and Strength—His Kidneys Ached and he Took Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Deseronto, Feb. 8. — (Special). — Among business people here, and especially by his fellow-workmen, great interest has been taken in the case of Mr. James Stokes, who for the past fifteen years has been shipper for the Rathbun Company.

Lately he has run down in health and strength to the point of being compelled to quit work, and his recovery now as the result of using Dodd's Kidney Pills is the talk of the town. On seeing Mr. Stokes he said:

"From overlifting and strain I suffered greatly from Kidney trouble, being advised after all else had failed to use Dodd's Kidney Pills; from the first dose I got relief, and hundreds of people here can vouch for my cure."

HAD INDIGESTION!

For a Matter of Some Forty Years or More.

Joseph Gardner, stove dealer, of Bath, Ontario, is a great believer in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, Bright's disease, rheumatism, and kidney, liver and stomach troubles generally.

"I was troubled for over forty years with indigestion and constipation," he writes. "At intervals I suffered from severe headache. I spent dollars and dollars without result until Mr. Ball, our druggist, advised me to try Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and must say that they are the only remedy that gave me relief. I would not be without them for anything."

Many people suffer from rheumatism. Bad blood and diseased kidneys bring it on. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will remedy all this and cure rheumatism, sciatica and all kindred complaints. Here is a sample case:

"My boy was all crippled up and suffered awfully with rheumatism," writes Mrs. H. Wills, of Chesley, Ont. "He also had a touch of diabetes. The doctors could do him no good, but Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills completely cured him."

LONG-WINDED CREDIT

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 10th, 1897.

NOTICE—From and after this date, Messrs. H. LeBRUN & CO. have decided to shorten the Term of Credit heretofore given, and, in future, no goods will be sold except for Cash, or on such limited time as may be mutually arranged.

We believe the safest way to do business in these days is to sell for Cash. The next best way is to sell on short dates. Many of our customers who have regularly paid their bills after a reasonable term of credit, would perhaps feel the "Spot Cash" system a hardship, especially while times are so hard and money so scarce. We regard these customers as among the best we have, and are quite satisfied to continue to extend to them the same terms of limited credit they have been accustomed to enjoy.

Our chief complaint is with the "long-winded" customer, who compels us to say that he makes business-life a down-right worry. It makes no difference to us whether a man is worth a million if he won't pay his account. When we need money for our business and are repeatedly put off with "promises to pay" by those who are well able to pay, we have no use for such trade. If every customer treated us in that way we could not carry on business at all. Besides, it is very disagreeable to us to have to "dun" a customer half a dozen times, or spend the profits in postage stamps, and wearing out shoe-leather to boot. We are compelled, therefore, to shut down at once on long credits. Those who can't pay within a reasonable time, we don't want their account in future.

There is a resolution all over the country in favour of Cash or shorter Credits. Cash is a more powerful friend now than ever, and if we must compete with the Cash Stores, who save their discounts, we can't afford to give long credit. Wholesale houses are now offering such big baits in the way of Cash Discounts that we must be prepared to take advantage of them or be handicapped.

All past due Accounts must be settled by the 1st of March; after that date they will be placed in Court for collection. All parties having contra accounts against us are requested to hand them in for settlement at once.

Mr. Chas. McClelland has opened out an exceedingly neat and convenient jewelry store in Cox's new block, a few doors south of the Bank of Commerce building, "Charlie" is starting on his own account for the first time and expects by careful attention to business, to secure a good share of the public patronage. Glad to welcome all his old friends who may come round to see him.

Dairy Farmers.

It is said that the improved condition of Iowa farmers in the last ten years is due to subordinating the production of grain to the products of the dairy. "The Iowa cow has proved of far more benefit as a revenue raiser than ten cent corn." Since the creamery became an established institution of the Hawkeye state the farmers have been paying off their mortgages and putting money in the banks. According to the latest report of the Iowa state dairy commissioner the farmers of one county have over $3,000,000 in bank deposits.

Patronize Your Newspaper.

This is sensible advice given by one of our exchanges to its citizens:—"When an agent from other places comes around and offers you envelopes or letter heads, at what he says are below our rates, don't take his word for it, but learn our prices. If we can't satisfy you, then consider sending your work away. Don't patronize a little job office till you want a 'puff,' and then expect the newspaper man to break his neck to give you a free write up."

Opera House, Saturday, Feb. 10th, Matinee 2.30, Evening 8.15.

Stowe's grand scenic production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be the attraction on the above date, of which a leading Pennsylvania daily has the following to say: "Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Sixth Avenue Theatre, Saturday afternoon and night was quite well attended. The presentation in many points excelled anything ever seen at the theatre by an "Uncle Tom's" company. The scenery was very fine, and the closing acts of this old but ever popular play were surpassingly fine and received hearty applause. The company is first class in all respects. Matinee prices will be 15c for children, adults 25c; evening, 25, 35 and 50c.

STREET RAILWAY EXTENSION.

Jackson Park to be Made More Accessible to the Citizens.

In accordance with a motion made by Councillor J. B. McWilliams at a recent meeting of the town council, the consideration of the extension of the street railway to Jackson Park was taken up yesterday afternoon.

The Street Railway Co. was represented by Messrs. T. G. Hazlitt, A. P. Poussette and E. H. D. Hall; the Nicholl's Estate by Mr. Richard Hall; the town by the mayor and councillors J. B. McWilliams, W. H. Meldrum and Robt. Neill and the property holders by Messrs. G. M. Roger, G. W. Hatton and James Ferguson, who own the land which would be effected.

The scheme of extending the street railway up Park street to Smith and thence to the park was considered, as was the idea of extending an avenue from the park to McDonel street along the bank of the creek. The latter proposal found the most favour in the eyes of all.

It is thought that if the property holders will take a nominal amount for the land) which it was pointed out they might well do on account of the increase in values which would take place consequent upon the extension of the street railway through the property, then the land could be improved by the Nicholl's Estate and an avenue laid out along the bank of the creek from McDonel street to the park. Along the centre of this the car track would be laid with a roadway on each side bordered by a row of trees. Inside the roadways walks would be arranged and another row of trees thus making a most magnificent avenue.

Although the proposition was most favourably entertained by all present, the details of the scheme have not as yet been entered into.

THE STONE PURCHASED.

Prisoners Will Break it for the Benefit of the Town.

At a meeting of the Street and Bridge Committee yesterday afternoon, with Chairman J. B. McWilliams presiding, the tenders of Messrs. Edward Murphy and Philip Crough were accepted for 25 cords of stone each at $1.90 per cord, to be delivered at the gaol to be broken by the prisoners in accordance with the conditions suggested at the last meeting of the County Council.

NEW POST OFFICE RULES.

Letters Which Fail of Delivery to be Returned Without Charge.

Attention is called to the fact that the rules of the Post Office Department now permit the return to the senders direct, without being forwarded to the dead letter branch and without charge, except as noted below, of letters, which fail of delivery to address, provided they bear upon the face or back the name and address of senders.

Request letters are returned at the end of the period specified, and letters with the name and address only at the end of two weeks.

These letters are not subject to any fee upon return, and the only change made is in the case of letters originally insufficiently prepaid, where the original rating is collected. Thus it will be seen that the delay in returning caused by the forwarding of undelivered correspondence to the dead letter office, as well as the payment of the returned letter fee, can be avoided if the public will take advantage of the regulation as above indicated and have their name and address printed on the corner of their envelopes.

THE FIRST OF THE SEASON.

The Carnival on the Open Air Skating Rink, Ashburnham—List of Costumers and Prize Winners.

Ashburnham's first open air carnival came off last night and drew a large crowd. The scene presented on the rink, when the costumers had all made their appearance, and were doing the rounds for the benefit of the spectators. The rink had been nicely decorated and presented a most pleasing appearance. The costumes of the merry throng of skaters were shown to the best advantage. Some of the costumes were excellent, and the make-up of a few of the characters were most original. "The Two Little Girls in Blue" being worthy of a special prize. Mr. Calcutt would like to see the pair at his office.

The Fire Brigade Band occupied a position in front of the engine room, and furnished excellent music during the evening.

The masqueraders seemed to enjoy themselves immensely, and afforded sufficient amusement to keep the spectators in the best of humour. The niggers and such characters predominated, and it was remarked that the same amount of time and trouble had not apparently been given by those who "dressed," although those whom the judges selected as worthy of the sixteen prizes awarded were first-class and were deserving of the trophies. There were queens, soldiers, sailors, the goddess, dudes, the new woman and, in fact, all specimens of humanity down to a scissors grinder. Sousa's band was there also, the melodies played being most acceptable to the ear.

The management seeing so great a success intend holding another carnival, which will be announced at an early date.

The following is a list of those who gave in their names:

THE GAME LAWS FOR 1896.

Changes Recommended by the Commissioner.

At the Ontario Game and Fish Commissioners' meeting, held in Toronto last week, it was agreed not to change the open season, but it was recommended, in regard to deer-shooting, that the regulation prohibiting shooting deer in the water be abolished. It was pointed out that the regulation was of no use, and, as the number of deer which can be shot by each hunter is still limited to two, it was thought that nothing would be gained by retaining this rule. The coupon system, by which two coupons are issued to each hunter with his license, one of which must be attached to each deer sent out of the hunting districts, was reported to be working admirably. Owing to the dissatisfaction among the settlers with the license fee of $2.00, it was agreed to recommend that this be abolished as regards the settlers, and that a nominal fee of 25 cents be charged. As to the duck laws it was recommended that the hours during which duck may be shot be changed from "between half an hour before sunrise and an hour after sunset," and, also, that no blinds or hides be allowed, except within 100 yards of the shore or rushes. The opening of the quail season is recommended to be delayed until November 1, making it only two weeks, as three-fourths of the birds are not fully grown when the present season opens. Cotton-tail rabbitts, it will be recommended, may not be shot after the close season, nor may guns be carried to kill them, as it has been found that people, when they go with guns after rabbits, also kill other game.

Humors, pimples, boils, are very annoying. They quickly disappear when the blood is purified by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Windfalls from Stock-Taking

For lack of room, we are obliged to thin out many lines of Staple Stationery, Fancy Goods and Sundries, which will stand reducing.

It never pays to carry too heavy stocks at this season, and before spring stocks come crowding in we must do a little blood-letting whenever it is needed.

Count on getting Stationery and Sundries at pretty near your own price this month. That's one way we take of making February busy. Here are some samples of the "windfalls" from Stock-taking which will add to the crowds that buy at the Peterborough Bookstore:—

—Plain Cedar Pencils, per dozen	5c.
—Cedar Pencils, Nickel Rubber Tip, per dozen	9c.
—Octogan or Round Pencils, per dozen	10c.
—3 Bottles of Keystone Ink, for	5c.
—100 Slate Cleaners, worth 5c., to-morrow	1c.
—Scholar's Companions, containing Lead Pencil, Pen Handle and Pen, Slate Pencil and Ruler for	4c.
—30 Boxes of Tinted Stationery, containing 25 sheets and 25 envelopes, worth 45c, to-morrow	10c.
—50 quires "St. Neot's" Note Paper, beautiful surface, worth 10c. per quire, to-morrow	5c.
—Ruled Tablet, "Chautauqua," 100 sheets, regular 10c, to-morrow	5c.
—1000 packages Envelopes, square, 3 for	10c.

No section of the Peterborough Bookstore without its appeal to one or other of our readers. We're willing to sell cheap for the sake of selling quick.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL RESEARCHES.

Mr. David Boyle's Retrospective Making of History.

(Globe.)

Among the documents laid on the table is Mr. David Boyle's archæological report. It forms an appendix to the report of the Minister of Education, but is printed separately, and its blue cover and uncut edges are decidedly more artistic than the regular business-like, trimly-cut, red-covered blue books—that is if a red-covered book may be called a blue-book. The paper, too, is of a finer quality, as is necessary in a book where it was required to reproduce half-tone and other engravings. The past year has been unquestionably a harvest time for Mr. Boyle, and our knowledge of vanished tribes who peopled this Province in pre-historic times has been somewhat advanced as the result of his year's labours. The relations of the Europeans to the aboriginal inhabitants of this continent at different periods present some odd contrasts. They serve to show us how widely we are separated from our remoter ancestors in the matter of our intellectual interests at least. The discoveries of this continent had it in their power to ascertain by observation of the living man problems which to-day are being painfully solved by the application of powers of research, inference and analysis that would serve to furnish forth a half dozen Sherlock Holmeses.

The white man intruded on this continent at what may be regarded as a crisis in its racial evolutions. We know that almost the whole of North America was loosely apportioned among small, inconstant and wandering tribes. Life and property were too insecure to permit of much advance in the arts of civilization, but there are plenty of indications that the first glimmerings of the art of making visible records had burst on some inspired minds, and all that was necessary was a greater area of peace and security to insure in the course of the years a step into a higher civilization. All that seems to have been needed was the appearance of a warlike people, under an ambitious and formidable leader, capable of subduing and peopling so large a stretch of territory as to give guarantees for the practice of the common arts, and especially of that which permits the preservation and transmission of thought to remotest posterity. Some will believe that the Iroquois were, as like as not, fated to be that people in this northern part of the continent had not the French stepped in at tht psychologic moment and spoiled one of the prettiest anthropological dramas of whose beginnings we are aware.

If they had not stepped in, of course, we would have known nothing about it, although it is possible that the struggle along these lakes and rivers between the Hurons and Iroquois would have served as the theme for an epic by some Iroquois Homer of a later age, quite as fabulous as the Tale of the Troy, or as full of signs and wonders as the wanderings of Ulysses. Having stepped in, however, archæologists of to-day can only regret that such limited advantage was taken of the glorious opportunity of studying at first hand a typical primitive people of the stone age, but a people containing within themselves great possibilities of improvement and achievement. The family of men that produced a Tecumseh and a Brant was capable of great things, even left wholy to itself. But the whites who came to America in that age evidently did not number a David Boyle amongst them. The cultivated portions of them were either warriors or churchmen—the one mostly intent on terrorising the savages by butchering them, the other in persuading them to partake of the sacrament before they were called thus rudely to their last account. They did everything but study them, although incidentally we have some little history of their wars and intrigues in the Jesuit Relations. Much remains, however, that is uncertain, and it is to clear up some of thes uncertainties that Mr. Boyle rummages in mounds and in the dust of long-vanished villages that sharp-eyed curiosity has discerned in various parts of Ontario, perhaps the most considerable find of last year was the identification of the principal earthwork on Roach's Point, Otonabee, as a serpent mound, the only one known in Canada, and, Mr. Boyle is inclined to think, the only effigy mound in the Province." Those who feel interested in the matter, however, must procure a copy of the report and scan its interesting pages for themselves. A number of private persons interested in the science have contributed their quota to this year's volume, among them being A. F. Hunter, M.A., Mr. Geo. E. Laidlaw and Mr. W. A. Brodie.

"Through the action of the Peterborough Town and County Historical Society, the Archæological section of the British Association will probably be invited by the town council to visit the Otonabee serpent mound next summer.

The Executive of the Midland Colts Association ordered Port Hope and Peterborough to play off here on Thursday next, but Port Hope objects for some reason to coming to Peterborough, and so neutral ice will have to be agreed upon. The local Colts will be satisfied to play in either Lindsay or Toronto. If Peterborough wins the trophy this year, making the third consecutive time, it will pass into their possession for keeps.

HOCKEY.

When a hockey team is engaged in practice a well posted referee should always keep the game firmly in hand, remarks Saturday Night. When a scrub seven is got together to meet the team in a practice match, it is too often the case that "everything goes." Off-side plays go unchallenged, the game becomes swift shinny and nothing more, and combination play is almost impossible. When a stern referee controls practice, the team, on going into an important game, has nothing to remember and nothing to forget. It has simply to sail in and play its game for all it is worth.

Saturday night at the Kingston rink Queen's and Frontenac hockey teams had a spirited practice match. In the first half the Presbyterians succeeded in shutting out their junior opponents. In the second half the little fellows pulled themselves together and scored four points. In the same half Queen's scored one more goal, making the score five to four in Queen's favour. It was one of the finest exhibitions of hockey witnessed here this season.

Belleville evidently has a swift hockey team, as a fast team from Kingston, including Reyner, Harty, Waddell and Savage, was defeated there by a score of 13—0. The Belleville boys might be invited up for a game.

The Rockwoods, of Kingston, who have never been defeated on their own rink, which is about the size of the local ice, are anxious for a game in Peterborough.

The McGill College hockey club has challenged Queen's team to home and home matches for the intercollegiate championship of America. The Queen's men at present hold the championship, and have signified their willingness to give McGill team a match in Kingston.

Varsity won from the Toronto Athletic club last night in Toronto by one goal, and therefore enters the finals against Queens. Mr. George Horkins was up and witnessed the game, at the conclusion of which he challenged the winners to a game with the Peterboroughs. The match will come off in Toronto next week probably, and it is said that the return fare will be reduced to a dollar for the occasion.

TWO SELF-MADE MEN.

Remarks on the New Appointments to the Senate.

Gatineau, in his weekly letter to Ontario newspapers, says: "With the entrance of Sir Oliver Mowat, Mr. David Mills and Mr. Geo. A. Cox, of Toronto, the Senate does not exactly renew its youth, for it was always an institution for the aged, but receives a considerable addition to its intellectual strength. Mr. Mills will probably not remain in it long; he is said to be booked at the request of Chief Justice Strong for the first vacancy on the Supreme Court bench. Mr. Cox is one of the leading financiers in the country. It speaks well for the free play of our democratic institutions that these two should have been able to rise from a comparatively humble station to their present distinction. Mr. Mills began as a school teacher. In due course he became a school inspector. In 1867 he entered Parliament. He has a farm at Clearville, which he worked to maintain himself while in the House. Every general election swept away his small accumulation and he had to begin over again. From the first he made his mark as an authority on constitutional questions and a singularly well-informed man all round. By and by he took to studying law and was called to the bar, but the rough and tumble of the court was not to his liking. After a while he became editor of The London Advertiser and professor of constitutional law at Toronto University. Now he is a Senator and will shortly be a member of the highest tribunal in the country.

Mr. Cox started as messenger boy in a telegraph office. From telegraphing he went into into insurance, from insurance to banking, and now he is banker, insurance man, loan company president and half a dozen other things, with a large fortune honestly earned. It if said of self-made men that they usually worship their creator; have too high an opinion of themselves. This is not true of Mr. Cox or Mr. Mills; it would be hard to find two more unassuming men, or two men with a greater store of natural good-heartedness. Having been through the mill themselves, they are always ready to give a helping hand to young fellows struggling up the steep, and their geniality makes them popular with everybody. Sir John Macdonald had a high opinion of Mr. Mills, and offered to take him into his Cabinet when he had the formation of another coalition in mind. As for Mr. Cox, the Tories would have been only too glad to get him any time these five and twenty years and to have put him in the Senate, or, perhaps, in the Cabinet as a worthy representative of the great Methodist body. But they could not bring themselves to consort as Tories with the Tory leaders, preferring to wander in the wilderness with their own party till the time came for it to enter the Promised Land.

At an early date Mr. Robert Jaffray, President of the Globe newspaper, will be appointed to the Senate. Mr. Jaffray deserves all the honours of the party has to bestow. For forty-five years he has been an active Liberal, and it is fitting that that long life of unselfish devotion to principle should be rewarded somehow. Mr. Jaffray's best reward, however, is the respect of all who know him, of Tories as well as Grits, which he enjoys in as full a measure as any other man in Canada.

Miss Jessie Elmhirst, teacher in S.S. No. 4, Asphodel, was the guest of Miss Aggie Comsbock on Sunday.

Mr. Jas. Walsh, Douro, was the guest of Master Jos. Walsh, on Saturday.

Mr. John Grady, Otonabee, was the guest of his daughter, Mrs. John Doherty, last week.

Miss Mary Stewart, Hastings, is in town visiting her sister, Mrs. J. Sargent.

Quite a number of our Westwood Endeavourers attended the reception accorded them by the Norwood Y.P.S.C.E. on Friday, the 12th. Everyone seems to have fairly enjoyed the entertainment and the night's outing.

The boys have decided to break the dullness of the season by organising a hockey team. With such enterprising boys as Westwood has no difficulty in keeping up a rink. We have some fast flyers on steel and no doubt would make good puck chasers. Warsaw would like to play Westwood at hockey as soon as possible; so hustle, boys.

"If any of ye know just cause or impediment why these two persons should not be joined together in Holy Matrimony, ye are to declare it, or forever after hold your peace." If physicians obeyed this solemn admonition in the marriage ceremony and protested with the honest and scientific reasons in their possession half of the unhappiness, sickness and death in the world would cease to exist. The man or woman who has developed symptoms of that dread disease consumption should not marry until cured. Consumption should bar the way to wedded life. It is a crime to transmit to future generations the death-dealing germs in the blood of the consumptive.

Many physicians pronounce consumption an incurable disease. In this they are mistaken as thousands will testify. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It corrects all disorders of the digestion. It promptly improves the appetite and makes it keen and hearty. It fills the blood with the tissue-building elements of the food, and acting directly upon the lungs, drives out all impurities and disease germs. It makes rich, pure blood, builds new, firm, healthy flesh, and strong, springy muscles. It soothes and invigorates the nerves. Thousands have testified to their permanent recovery from consumption through its use, after they were given up by the doctors and all hope was gone. Druggists sell it and nothing else is "just as good."

There cannot be too many good, practical books in a home. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is a good practical book for husbands, wives, mothers, daughters and sons. PRITCHARD WAS TOO SWIFT.

In Jail at Buffalo Charged With Marrying Wife No. 2 Before Free From Wife No. 1.

Buffalo, Feb. 14.—Samuel Pritchard, a building contractor of Blasdell, a suburb of this city, is in the freezer at headquarters on a charge of bigamy. Pritchard came to this city from Canada about 10 years ago. He brought with him his wife, whom he married in Norfolk County, whose maiden name was Ida Shaw. He lived there with her until five years ago, when he had some trouble with her and separated from her. He began proceedings for a divorce on the statutory grounds. About this time he became acquainted with Miss Lizzie Johnston, and on Oct. 3 was married to her. At least, Mrs. Pritchard No. 2 says she has the certificate to prove the marriage. She also alleges that before the marriage Pritchard represented to her that he had secured a divorce from his first wife, and she says he told her parents the same thing. It developed that she lately became acquainted with wife No. 1, and learned that Pritchard's divorce proceedings were still unsettled, and the proceedings against Pritchard followed.

TOOK TWO HOURS TO SEW HIM UP.

William B. Scott of Buffalo Was Roughly Used by the Sons of His Paramour.

Buffalo, Feb. 14.—Miss Harriet Henderson, a comely girl of Sheffield, Ont., married a man named Bennett when she was 18 years old. That was 20 years ago. She lived with Bennett until three years ago, when William B. Scott of the same town told her he loved her, and she said she loved him, and they decided to elope. They did elope. They went to Hamilton, and she took her five children with her. Three of them were boys.

The hero and the heroine and the heroine's children lived there until four weeks ago, when they came to Buffalo. Scott got drunk yesterday, and Mrs. Bennett's eldest boy and his brothers tied his hands and then gave him a thrashing, the net result of which, as seen at the Fitch Hospital this morning, was two beautiful black eyes, a broken nose, cut and bruised cheeks and head, and it took the doctors two hours to sew him up. His face was so distorted that he could hardly speak.

WELL-DRESSED LUNATIC.

A French-Canadian in Charge of the Sheriff at Newport, Vermont.

Newport, Vt., Feb. 14.—An insane man is being detained here pending identification. He has a railroad ticket for Quebec, which was issued at Northampton, Mass., Feb. 11. He came into East Coventry on Friday and remained over night. He was then taken to this city for safe keeping. He has given different names. One of them is Arthur Dorion. His shirts are marked H. Dibble, his cuffs Thomas Orton, and his vest Fitsgerald. He is French, about 25 years old, of medium height, weighs nearly 200 pounds, has sandy complexion, mustache and hair light red, and is well dressed in black pants, grey mixed coat, brown overcoat and black soft hat. Any information should be sent to L. D. Miles, Sheriff, Newport, Vt.

Bombardment Proceeds.

Canea, Feb. 14.—Evening—George Berovitsch Pasha, the Christian Governor of Crete, who, having been menaced by the Moslems, recently took refuge at the Greek Consulate, and the Greek Consul embarked this evening on different war ships. They were accompanied by their families. The Consuls and the commander of the Turkish forces have removed the military post. The insurgents continue their bombardment from the landward side of the fortress, and the Turks are returning their fire with sanguinary results.

A CASE OF DIABETES.

No Help From Medical Men—Suffered for Many Years—Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

North Bruce, Feb. 15 (Special)—An old and well known settler in this Township, named Thomas Brooks, who lives on lots 7 and 8 in the 14th concession is rejoicing with his neighbours over his recent recovery, and he said:

"I was cured by using twenty-four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and as nothing else ever helped me I say they saved my life."

"I had tried all the doctors of this locality and was treated for Diabetes, hoping and suffering for years."

"From reading of cures I determined to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I must say that after using the first box I would have considered them reasonable at ten dollars a box."

HAMILTON GIRL IN HARD LUCK.

Says Her Father Gave Her a Dollar and Sent Her to Buffalo to Look for Work.

Buffalo, N.Y., Feb. 14.—A poorly-dressed young girl of 16 years of age, who gave her name as Mamie Graham, and her home as Hamilton, Ont., was taken to Police Headquarters yesterday by a depot officer, who found her lounging in the waiting-room, and suspected that she was a runaway. She told the officer she had come here seeking for work, that her father had given her a dollar to pay her fare, and that this had taken 70 cents. She had been here three or four days, had begged her meals and slept where she could. She wanted to go to Springville, she said, where she had relatives able to care for her, and she was sent there.

PREACHED IN A THEATRE.

A Clergyman's Peculiar Text Discoursed on Before a Peculiar Crowd in Hamilton.

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 14.—(Special.)—The first of the series of Sunday afternoon services by Rev. W. J. Cameron at the Star Theatre was held to-day. The text announced in the Saturday papers was "He Has Seen Better Days," and smoking was to be a part of the program. The Star Theatre is to Hamilton what the Bijou, on Yonge-street, is to Toronto, and it was jammed to the doors. On entering the curiosity-led visitor found an orchestra of twelve pieces playing lively marches, and footlights and all gas ablaze. Until the curtain rang up scarcely a head was bare, and from the gods in the gallery to the worshippers in the pit cigars and corn-cob pipes puffed out little clouds of smoke.

A little after 3 up went the curtain, and the Rev. Mr. Cameron walked forward. He is a young fellow of about 25 years, clean shaven, of middle height, and dressed in a black suit that had no clerical stamp about it. Extending his hand, without delaying by preliminaries, he said, "Bow your heads, while I ask God to be with us this afternoon, and as all hats came off the Almighty was invoked to give power to the spoken words. The prayer over, the reverend gentleman picked up a Bible, and remarking that if Jesus Christ lived now he would write a novel, he read the story of the prodigal son. The reading ended, Percy Peel, the son of the bandmaster, was asked to favor the audience with a cornet solo, which he did acceptably, and called out great applause.

The preacher then apologized for the lack of vocalists, saying that he had asked some city singers to be present, but they had refused on the ground of it being a theatre. Mr. Cameron spoke warmly on the subject, and remarked that if he could have secured the services of the actresses, they would have had such hymns as would have put to shame the singers at the churches.

After the taking up of the collection to defray the rent of the hall, the preacher entered on his sermon, the 13th verse of the story of the prodigal son. In his hand he carried a copy of James Thornton's song, "She Has Seen Better Days," and three-quarters of his remarks were given to the description of the circumstances that led to its composition. Referring to the unhappy girl, the speaker remarked that she was "not one of the sluts of the city, as the boys say, but a true unfortunate one, lost through the wrong-doing of another," and that the song was popular from the rich curtained room of the wealthy to the drunkard's home, because it expressed so deep a sympathy. The speaker went on, "I don't know who James Thornton is, but if he knew what Christ is and if the Bible were destroyed to-day I could, from that song, renew religion. I make the motion, therefore," went on the speaker, "that the piece be sung in every church next Sunday, to teach the ministers and the church people what Christianity really is." Going from the Bible story, the preacher referred to men daily met with "who had seen better days," and, talking of wasted reputation, spoke of a thief "in Judge Jelfs' list of honor" whom he had befriended when no one else would.

The sermon was closely followed and applauded throughout. At its close the speaker asked for a show of hands as to the desire for another service on Sunday next, and the suggestion carried.

MAWHINNEY SENT UP.

One of the Deputy Returning Officers of Macdonald Will Have to Stand Trial.

Winnipeg, Feb. 14.—(Special.)—John Mawhinney, who was one of the deputy returning officers in the Macdonald election, was on Saturday committed to the Assizes for trial on the charge of ballot-box stuffing.

J. Jerschki, a young ranchman living near Dewdney, was found dead at his ranch yesterday with a gun beside him. The contents were lodged in his body. It is considered a case of suicide, though why Jerschki should commit that crime is a mystery. He was young, healthy and wealthy, and on the decease of his parents, who live in Holland, would have come into a large fortune. He is supposed to have been drinking.

Hon. Mr. Prendergast's resignation from the Manitoba Legislature has precipitated a bitter contest in St. Boniface. J. B. Lauson is the Conservative candidate, with the support of Archbishop Langevin, and S. A. Bertrand is the Greenway candidate. A pastoral letter was read on Sunday in all the Catholic churches in St. Boniface, instructing the faithful to vote for Lauson. The election takes place next Saturday.

Discussing the free trade arguments of the farmers' delegates before the recent tariff enquiry here, The Free Press (Ind.) says: "Does anyone for a moment suppose that the Manitoba farmers would have received a higher price for their wheat than prevailed across the line, if the duty on wheat had not prevented the Dakota and Minnesota crops from pouring into our local market? If Canadian millers had not been able to come upon our market and pay these prices the Manitoba farmer would not have received a cent over the Duluth prices, and it was the import duty of 75 cents per barrel on flour which enabled them to do so."

Rufus Atkinson, a well-known Manitoba merchant, is dead.

THE BARMAID'S KISSES

At a Shilling Each Added Eighty-Seven Shillings to the Famine Fund in Less Than Three Hours.

New York, Feb. 14.—A London special says: The famous Duchess of Devonshire, who bought Parliamentary votes for kisses at a historic election in the last century, has found an imitator in a barmaid at Bexhill Arms, Eastbourne, who has utilized a cupid's bow mouth for a far worthier object. She is very pretty, and has numerous admirers among the bar-frequenting men of the town. When this week the Mayor opened a fund for the India famine sufferers this young woman placed a money box on the bar and intimated that everyone who put a shilling in it might have a kiss. Within half an hour she was kissed by every man who entered the saloon, accumulating twenty-three shillings for the fund. But this novel mode of collection drew such a crowd to the bar that the proprietor put a stop to the entertainment, though not until the barmaid, as the money box proved, had been kissed eighty-seven times in less than three hours.

CURED BY USING

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

A PREACHER'S EXPERIENCE.

"Three months ago, I took a violent cold which resulted in an attack of acute bronchitis. I put myself under medical treatment, and at the end of two months was no better. I found it very difficult to preach, and concluded to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The first bottle gave me great relief; the second, which I am now taking, has relieved me almost entirely of all unpleasant symptoms, and I feel sure that one or two bottles more will effect a permanent cure. To all ministers suffering from throat troubles, I recommend Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—E. M. BRAWLEY, D. D., Dist. Secretary, Am. Bapt. Publication Society, Petersburg, Va.

GOLD MEDAL AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

AYER'S LEADS ALL OTHER SARSAPARILLAS.

The average American insures his life for $5000 for the benefit of his widow.

It is a small amount. Frequently it is all she has. It is indeed the "widow's mite," says the York Journal.

A few days after her husband's death the widow is confronted with the awful problem of how to live on the income from this small fortune.

Some of the shrewdest and most successful business men in America have something to say on that same widow's mite. Here it is:

"Invest in First Mortgages."

The first thing a woman should do when left to support herself on so small an amount as the income of $5000 is to seek a safe investment for her capital.

I know that it is much easier said than done, for the average woman has no knowledge of business or of investments.

It is easier to get 5 and 6 per cent. on small sums than on large ones.

I have large amounts out at 2 per cent., and I am glad to get that.

A woman who has $5000 left her and who is obliged to live on the income of it, without supplementing it by any effort of her own to earn money, should invest it in a first mortgage on city property. She would have but little difficulty in doing this, and could easily get 6 per cent.; this would be $300 a year.

Possibly she might live in the city on that amount. I presume there are thousands who live on less, although, of course, very meagrely. She would have to make her own clothes, dress very plainly, and do all her own work. It would be far better to live in a small country town or village. Three hundred dollars a year would be considered quite an income in some places, where a house could be rented for less than a hundred dollars a year.

RUSSELL SAGE.

"Catch the Other Fellow."

The question how a woman is to live on the income of $5000 is like confronting a stout wall. I do not see how it would be possible.

If she is bright and business-like she can supplement her income by a salary for some work she is able to do. If she is a brainy woman she can write for the papers and help out her income in this way, and keep her capital intact. If she has no brains, and does not want to work, she will use her $5000 to catch the other fellow.

GEORGE STUDWELL.

"Go West and Take Up Land."

Let a woman, or all women, who are left with small amounts like $5000, on which they are compelled to live, come west. Five thousand dollars may be "a widow's mite," but it would prove a fortune in the west.

If a widow has a family of children, or if she is alone in the world, with a little fortune, the broad west is the place for her. She can go there and take up Government land, which costs her nothing. She may invest part of her money in Eastern securities and take the rest with her to build her house and stock her farm. Be sure she will not leave her money long in the East, for she will find she can get 10 per cent. in the West for it.

Women are at a premium in the west. There are always strong hands and brave hearts ready to help them. Let the widows go West, I say.

WILLIAM F. CODY.

"Utilize Your Cooking Experience."

How can a woman live on the income of $5000? is a problem that is presented to me very frequently.

Once a week—yes, sometimes two or three times a week—some woman comes to me with this all-absorbing question of support.

The usual story is that her husband, who during his life concealed from her his financial condition, giving her always the impression that he was possessed of plenty of means, has suddenly died, and she finds herself with only a life insurance of $5000 and the household furniture. She never has had to work, and she wants to know what she shall do. I always ask her what her ideas are.

She invariably thinks that she can make money by keeping a fashionable boarding house, or a house with rooms to rent, and tells nebulous stories of what she has heard of those who have supported and educated their children, and secured independence and sometimes a competence for themselves in this business.

Again, most women who are left with $5000, and have no children to support, have some talent by which they are able to earn an additional income.

They will find it hard to obtain places in shops in competition with those who are younger and well used to this business, and few of them are educated one-half so well as the girls who are graduated from our great educational institutions every year. So teaching seems impossible for a widow.

However, most such women from experience can cook, and they know all about neat and careful housekeeping, and this knowledge properly utilized would always make a woman independent. She could take a position as housekeeper, and with what that brought her and the interest of her $5000 she would be able to buy many luxuries. It seems to me a woman who knows how to cook well and has brains enough to apply her knowledge to practical use need ask no odds of any one.

But, unfortunately, all women are not gifted with good common sense, and the very suggestion that they make use of their experience of housekeeping and cooking horrifies them. "Go out to service," or into the country? No; they had rather spend their $5000 and starve in here.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW.

"Run a Good Laundry."

A woman who is left with $5000, if she has brains and "savoir faire," could invest it in some sort of business and could make a fine living.

A woman is very foolish to attempt to live on the interest of 3 or 5 per cent., which mortgages and ordinary investments pay. Women are going in business every day and doing well. Two leading ladies of New York's social set have just opened a tea room on Fifth-avenue and it has not detracted from their status. Every one thinks more of them.

The trouble with most women is that they have no courage. A woman left with $5000 has the nucleus of a large fortune, and she ought to bide her time and watch her opportunities to invest it well.

A woman with $5000 might start a laundry where fine clothes are laundered as well as they are in Paris. She could send to Paris and get some of the blanchisseuses who do such fine work. She would make a fortune. The most famous London laundries are run by women.

(COL.) THOS. P. OCHILTREE.

"Raise Chickens and Make Pies."

If a woman is left with the income on $5000 to live on, or is compelled at first to spend a little of her principle to secure a home, it seems to me she will have a pretty hard road to travel. However, there are thousands of almost helpless women who are left with less, and thousands whose husbands die leaving them absolutely penniless.

If a woman has children and if left with so small an amount, it would be a good thing for her to buy a little home somewhere in the country, with land enough to raise all the vegetables and most of the fruit she might need. She could keep chickens as well, so you see she would have most of her living off her place. Such a place could easily be bought for $1000. Then she would have $4000 invested at, say 5 per cent., which would be $200 a year—quite a little money to help along. Hundreds of farmers do not have as much cash in a year.

Then, again, if a woman is left absolutely with this widow's mite, and finds it almost impossible to live on the interest of it, she should put on her thinking cap and try to recall what she can do the very best.

I know of a woman who was left with precisely that amount. She had always lived luxuriantly, but when her husband died she had nothing but his "widow's mite," a $5000 life insurance.

"What shall I do?" was her pitiful cry to a lady friend.

"What can you do?" questioned the friend.

After a while the widow said: "Yes, I can make chicken pies."

"Just the thing," exclaimed her friend.

Next day the widow went to the Woman's Exchange and took some chicken pies of her own making. They were accepted, and from that time she has kept on making chicken pies.

EGBERT GUERNSEY, M.D.

"Keep a Stationery Store."

Investments in the East pay such small interest that I do not see how a widow, especially if she has children, could live on the income of $5000. In Utah one can get 8 and 10 per cent. on money, and $5000 would bring in from $400 to $500 a year, and if a woman did not wish to work, she could live comfortably on that. But I should suggest investing part of her principle in a little dry goods shop or a stationery store. I am sure a woman could do well in such a business in the West—or in the East, if she had any energy or idea of business.

(SENATOR) GEO. Q. CANNON.

"Live in a Modest Country Town."

It would seem almost impossible for a woman to live in New York or any large city on the income of $5000.

"KEEP A SMALL SHOP."

While it might be possible to get 6 per cent., 5 per cent. is the usual interest on investments of that amount. First mortgage bonds on city property would be the best investment for a widow to make of her mite, as it would be safest.

You know people in the country are not measured by their wealth, as they are apt to be in cities. In Watertown one can board well and live in a comfortable home for $3 a week—that is $156 a year. Then there would be $144 left to dress on and have for pin money.

THE EYES OF THE WORLD

Are Fixed Upon South American Nervine.

Beyond Doubt the Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

WHEN EVERY OTHER HELPER HAS FAILED IT CURES

A Discovery, Based on Scientific Principles, that Renders Failure Impossible.

In the matter of good health temporizing measures, while possibly successful for the moment, can never be lasting. Those in poor health soon know whether the remedy they are using is simply a passing incident in their experience, bracing them up for the day, or something that is getting at the seat of the disease and is surely and permanently restoring.

The eyes of the world are literally fixed on South American Nervine. They are not viewing it as a nine-days' wonder, but critical and experienced men have been studying this medicine for years, with the one result—they have found that its claim of perfect curative qualities cannot be gainsaid.

The great discoverer of this medicine was possessed of the knowledge that the seat of all disease is the nerve centres, situated at the base of the brain. In this belief he had the best scientists and medical men of the world occupying exactly the same premises. Indeed, the ordinary layman recognized this principle long ago. Everyone knows that let disease or injury affect this part of the human system and death is almost certain. Injure the spinal cord, which is the medium of these nerve centres, and paralysis is sure to follow.

Here is the first principle. The trouble with medical treatment usually, and with nearly all medicines, is that they aim simply to treat the organ that may be diseased. South American Nervine passes by the organs, and immediately applies its curative powers to the nerve centres, from which the organs of the body receive their supply of nerve fluid. The nerve centres healed, and of necessity the organs which has shown the outward evidence only of derangement is healed. Indigestion, nervousness, impoverished blood, liver complaint, all owe their origin to a derangement of the nerve centres. Thousands bear testimony that they have been cured of these troubles, even when they have become so desperate as to baffle the skill of the most eminent physicians, because South American Nervine has gone to headquarters and cured there.

The eyes of the world have not been disappointed in the inquiry into the success of South American Nervine. People marvel, it is true, at its wonderful medical qualities, but they know beyond all question that it does everything that is claimed for it. It stands alone as the one great certain cure, remedy of the nineteenth century, should anyone suffer distress and pain when this remedy is guaranteed at their hands?

HAMMOND MURDER TRIAL

Opened at Bracebridge This Morning - Mr. Osler Will Prosecute and Mr. Johnston Defend.

Bracebridge, Ont., Feb. 15.—(Special.)—A special Assize Court for the Provisional and United Counties of Nipissing and Muskoka was opened here at 6.30 this afternoon, His Lordship Mr. Justice McMahon presiding. The docket is very heavy and contains one case each of murder, manslaughter, rape, house breaking and larceny.

The interests of the Crown are being looked after by Mr. B. B. Osler, Q. C., of Toronto.

On the opening of the court the grand jury was immediately impaneled and His Lordship proceeded to address them. As true bills were returned against the prisoners in the murder and manslaughter cases at the last assise, the judge did not refer to them, but confined his remarks to the other cases which would come before them.

At the conclusion of His Lordship's address the court adjourned till 9.30 to-morrow morning, when it is expected that the celebrated Hammond-Tough murder case will be called. Great interest is being manifested in this case and hundreds of people are in town, all anxious to hear it. The Crown claims to have a very strong case against the prisoner Hammond, and will call about fifty witnesses, some of them coming all the way from New York, Buffalo and Toronto. Mr. B. B. Osler will prosecute, while the prisoner's interests will be looked after by Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, Q. C., of Toronto.

Detectives Greer and Burrows of Toronto and Detective Archy Sloan of Gravenhurst are also here, looking after the Crown's side of the case.

A FARMER IN TROUBLE.

A Grenville County Man Speaks his Mind—Feels Like a New Man—Cured by Four Boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Cardinal, Feb. 1 (Special)—Mr. Robert McIntosh, a farmer very widely known in this county, and living near this village, has been in a painful and dangerous condition as the result of kidney disease affecting the bladder. When called upon he said:

"During three years, until quite recently cured by using four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, I have been an intense sufferer from kidney disease, which kept going from bad to worse, though I was doctoring all the time.

"Under advice I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills, at once realizing great help. I now feel like a new man and am perfectly cured of kidney trouble in any form.

THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Hon. J. M. Gibson Brings in His Bill to Regulate the Immigration of Children.

Toronto, Feb. 16.

In reply to a question by Mr. Matheson, Hon. Mr. Harcourt promised to lay the estimates on the table to-day and to deliver the budget speech on Wednesday or Thursday.

Mr. Dynes presented a petition from the County of Dufferin, representing that the petitioners did not agree with the idea held by some persons, including some judges of the Superior Courts, that vagrants and paupers should not be confined to the common jail with criminals. They think that, as no stigma is attached to such vagrants, the county should not be compelled to erect a poor house for their accommodation. They claim that such institutions cause an unnecessary expense for salaries and would cast a reflection on the social condition of the province. The sherins and jail officials should look after the poor. They also suggest the changing of the name "jail" to that of "jail and house of refuge," and recommend that inmates be employed in cultivating a lot adjoining it.

The Township Council of Adjala ask for an act which will separate them from the County of Simcoe and annex them to Dufferin. The latter county petitions for the same.

The Free Methodist Church of Ontario for an act to amend their act of incorporation.

The County Council of Wentworth, by Mr. Flatt, for certain amendments to the Municipal Act respecting the auditing of accounts. They propose the appointment of county inspectors of municipal accounts. Also to amend the General Road Companies Act by compelling annual inspection of toll-roads.

Also for an amendment to the Pounds Act; also for amendments to the Registry Act respecting the emoluments of registrars.

Hon. J. M. Gibson—To regulate the immigration into Ontario of certain classes of children.

This proposed act will allow the Lieut.-Governor-in-council to authorize any society or agent to carry on the work of bringing in indigent, neglected or dependent children, to provide homes for them, but such society shall be inspected at least four times per year by a duly qualified inspector, who shall report to the Government. These societies must keep a record containing: The full name of each child brought out and the name and address of parents or guardians; the date on which it was brought out and its age and date of birth; the name and place of residence of every person having for a time the child in custody, and such other particulars as the inspector, with the approval of the Minister in charge, may require to be kept on record.

Every society shall maintain careful supervision over each child until it reaches the age of 18 years, and a society agent shall visit him at least once a year. A permanent home is to be provided for children not adopted or allowed to go. Persons adopting the children will be required to give full particulars as to the health, conduct, progress and welfare of the children. Foster-parents not wishing to retain children shall return them to the home at their own expense, the penalty for neglecting to comply with this or for abandoning the child shall be a fine of not less than $10 or more than $100. The society shall be enforced to state cause of return of child to the home to subsequent applicants. In cases where a child runs away from its master or guardian, the society is to give all reasonable assistance in recovering him or forfeit a fine of from $5 to $25 and costs. The bill provides for a penalty of not less than $10 and not more than $100 upon any person bringing in a child after July 1, 1897, contrary to the provisions of the act. Section 11 is an important one. It provides that no child shall be brought from any port in Great Britain or Ireland until a duly appointed examiner shall report that he has satisfied himself that the child named in the certificate is free from vicious tendencies. Equally important is section 12, which provides for a penalty of from $10 to $100, or in default 3 months in jail, upon any person who brings or causes to be brought any child who, from defective intellect, or disease, or physical infirmity, is unable to follow any trade or calling, any child of known vicious tendencies, a habitual criminal, or one who has been reared or resided amongst criminals, or any child whose parents have been criminals, lunatics, idiots, weak-minded, defective, or confirmed paupers or diseased, or without a certificate, as provided for. If children so brought in within three years thereafter become a charge upon the funds of the municipality or province, or charity in any way, they shall be maintained at the cost of the agent bringing them out, and, if the inspector so orders, the latter shall send them back whence they came. Section 14 provides that the society or agent must investigate complaints of ill-treatment of children placed out, the penalty being a fine not exceeding $50, or, in default, imprisonment with or without hard labor for not more than six months. When an imported child is confined in jail the sheriff must notify the superintendent of Neglected and Dependent Children regarding the name, age, etc., of such child. The inspector is to take proceedings against violators of the act at his own discretion.

Mr. Hardy—To amend the Married Women's Property Act. The section imitates the English law and provides that contracts of married women are to bind all their separate estate.

Mr. Hardy—Respecting wage-earners and the estates of deceased persons. It will provide that employes of a deceased person shall have first claims upon his estate.

Mr. Hardy—To lessen the number of town councillors and to do away with the election of reeves and deputy-reeves so far as they were formerly required for representation in the County Council. The act provides that in towns of over 4000 population the council shall consist of a mayor, two councillors elected by general vote, and two councillors from each ward. For towns of 4000 and under, the council shall consist of a mayor and six councillors, all to be elected by general vote. Villages, a reeve and four councillors, by general vote; and townships, a reeve and four councillors, by general vote where the township is not divided into wards; where wards exist, each shall elect a councillor, to act with the reeve. The act will also regulate the qualifications of voters and the number of votes each shall be entitled to.

Mr. Gibson (Hamilton)—Bill for the removal from Crown lands of persons unlawfully thereon.

Enquiry from the Ministry—Has the Government received any notice from the Postoffice Department limiting the franking privilege on Government and departmental reports and papers hitherto granted, and, if so, to what extent?

Paine's Celery Compound Cures Are Always Permanent.

The Happy Cures That The Afflicted Desire.

A Report From Mr. Douglas Hixon, of Beamsville, Ont.

A great number of men and women, cured months and years ago by Paine's Celery Compound, have taken the trouble to assure the proprietors of that famous medicine that their cures are permanent.

This noble and bright record of permanent cures, shown only by Paine's Celery Compound, is worthy of special notice, as it is the grandest record of the kind in the world. It should also be noted that all the permanently cured people are residents of our own Canada.

There are medicines that partially relieve pain and suffering, that assist in building up vain hopes of a new life; but after a few days or weeks the terrible agonies come back again in more alarming forms, and hope and faith are lost forever.

This never happens when Paine's Celery Compound is used as a banisher of disease. The first bottle establishes a joyous feeling of security, and soon a perfect cure is effected, which is permanent and lasting.

Mr. Hixon says: "To-day I think more of Paine's Celery Compound than ever before. Since I was cured—over two years ago—I have never had bad day or lost a day's work, never having had a return of the rheumatism from which I once suffered so terribly.

"Though my influence many have used Paine's Celery Compound and have been cured. I wish to affirm once more that it was Paine's Celery Compound that took the rheumatism from my system. I strongly recommend it to all rheumatic and sick people."

Not Drowned After All.

London, Feb. 12.—The missing crew, 20 in number, of the British steamer Cyanus, from Bilbao, for Glasgow, which on Jan. 10 was reported lost off Ushant, have arrived safely at Audierne, in Finisterre, France. It was supposed that the men had been drowned. All of the crew of the lost steamer are now accounted for.

PETITIONS ARE BEING PRESENTED

The Cause of the Overworked Shop Girls Championed by the Council of Women

—Public Accounts Brought Down—

The University Authorities Want Information—Other Matters.

Toronto, Feb. 17.

The usual routine proceedings at the Legislative Assembly yesterday afternoon having been disposed of the Attorney-General moved the appointment of the following committees:

To prepare and report with all convenient speed lists of members to compose the select and standing committees ordered by this House, to be composed as follows: Messrs. Gibson (Hamilton), Dryden, Charlton, Conmee, Ferguson, Haycock, McKay (Oxford), McNicol, Marter, Whitney and Willoughby.

A select committee to act with Mr. Speaker in the control and management of the library, to be composed as follows: The Attorney-General and Messrs. Harcourt, Ross, Bennett, Cairn, Davis, Gibson (Huron), Howland, McKay (Victoria), Matheson, Stratton and Whitney.

The Attorney-General, in a brief speech, moved the following resolution:

"That this House deply deplores the terrible ravages by famine and the plague among our fellow subjects in India, and will cheerfully approve a grant from provincial funds of the sum of $6000, to be forwarded to the proper authorities to be applied in the purchase of food and otherwise for the relief of the distress now so unhappily prevailing."

Mr. Whitney cordially concurred in the motion, and agreed that the money should be sent immediately.

Mr. Little made the following inquiry: "Is it the intention of the Government to assist Public Schools that have organized continuation classes in connection with the same? If so, to what extent?

Hon. G. W. Ross replied in the affirmative, but added that the extent of the aid would be made known when the estimates are brought down.

Notices of intention to introduce bills have been given as follows:

To amend Municipal Act—Mr. Hiscott and Mr. McKay.

To amend Assessment Act—Mr. McLean and Mr. Gibson (Huron).

To amend the Marriage Act—Mr. McLean.

To amend the General Road Co.'s Act—Mr. McKay.

To amend the Ontario Game Protection Act, 1893, as amended by cap. 58 of 59 Vic.—Mr. Biggar.

To amend the Public School Act—Mr. Carnegie.

The following petitions were presented:

Mr. Carpenter—From the County Council of Norfolk for amendments to the Municipal Act to compel cities to provide shelter for persons and their produce.

Mr. Hiscott—From T. F. Best and others of Niagara, for amendments to the Municipal Act, respecting the disqualification of electors.

Mr. Little—Mr. Patrick Small, Reeve of the Township of Adjala, and 336 others, praying that no action be taken by the Legislature towards annexing said township to the County of Dufferin.

Mr. Pardo—From the Municipal Council of the city of Chatham, asking that the qualification of freehold electors in cities of less than 15,000 inhabitants be fixed at not more than $200 and that of tenants at not more than $300.

Hon. E. H. Bronson—From the Pontiac Pacific Junction Railway and the city of Ottawa, asking for confirmation of a bylaw.

Mr. Pardo—From the County Council of Kent, praying certain amendments to the Municipal Act, respecting the erection of shelters for vendors of market produce.

Mr. Paton—From the County Council of Simcoe for amendments to the game law respecting the shooting of deer. They ask that the Legislature prohibit the killing of deer in certain townships in the county until 1900.

Mr. McDonald—From the County Council of Bruce for amendments to the Assessment Act, respecting the sale of wild lands for taxes.

Mr. Biggar—From the County Council of Hastings, asking that steps be taken to lessen the financial burdens of the counties in connection with the maintenance of the Victoria Industrial School and praying that it be placed on the same footing with the Ontario Reformatory for Boys, which is under the maintenance and control of the Government.

Mr. Loughrin—From the Township Council of Springer for an act to confirm a bylaw.

Mr. Biggar—From the County Council of Hastings for amendments to the Registry Act, fixing the emoluments of registrars; also for amendments to the Assessment Act.

Mr. J. L. Haycock—From the County Council of Frontenac, respecting the maintenance and repairs of toll-roads; also respecting salaries of registrars.

Mr. Carpenter—From the County Council of Norfolk, for amendments to the Municipal Act that would permit of the offering of a reward for the capture of horse-thieves.

The only bill introduced was that setting apart certain wild lands of the Crown for the use of the University of Toronto, by Mr. Ross. The act sets apart six townships, three within the Rainy River district, one of which may be near the Township of Dryden, between the towns of Port Arthur and Rat Portage, and the other two in the Seine River District, or near the Lake of the Woods. The University is to execute a release of all claims upon the Government, and upon that being done the Government is to declare the townships that are set apart.

OVERWORKED SHOP GIRLS.

A Delegation From Prominent Organizations Interviews the Government.

The National Council of Women is taking hold of the matter of the overworking of shop girls and boys. A representative deputation asked the Ontario Government yesterday to enact legislation that would amend the Shops Act to protect shop girls in a similar manner as the factory girls are protected by the Factory Act. They desire that the Act should limit the time of work in shops of boys under 14 and of girls under 16 to 60 hours per week. The lunch hour at noon and 45 minutes for supper, as well as a proper lunch room in the larger establishments, are among their other requests. They consider an adequate fire escape, provision for overtime, for allowing the inspector to examine employes under oath, and for the keeping of a register to record the names and addresses of all employes of shops and stores as absolute necessities in connection with large mercantile establishments. Some provisions against overcrowding, against unsanitary or unhealthful work, and many other evils are cited as worthy objects for legislation.

In a pamphlet submitted for the consideration of the Cabinet, they state that a large majority of shops in places outside Toronto make no provision for seats for female employes, have only one lavatory for the use of both men and women, and in many cases have none at all. The inspector in Toronto found many very similar cases, and where the law was enforced these abuses have since been remedied.

Physicians well know that the health of a young woman working under the conditions named above will certainly be impaired; nor will the injury affect herself only—her offspring may suffer also.

Having, as they claim, complied with all the technical provisions of the statutes, and also representing that the institution is up to the required standard, the Board of Trustees of the Western Hospital on Manning-avenue are of the opinion that they should be placed on a similar footing with other and similar charities and receive a per capita grant from the Ontario Government. A deputation waited upon the Ministers yesterday afternoon and explained these facts. They also drew attention to the fact that a recent investigation revealed that there were only 50 vacant ward beds in all the hospitals of the city put together. This, they claimed, was an entirely insufficient margin. The petitioners, therefore, believe it to be incumbent on the Government to grant them the 30 cents per inmate per day appropriation which the boards of other hospitals receive. They have accommodation for 25 patients.

Toronto University Finances.

President Loudon, Dr. Hoskin, Q.C., and Messrs. B. E. Walker and Rutherford waited upon the Ontario Government yesterday to make enquiries regarding the financial standing of Toronto University.

Mr. Richardson Dissatisfied.

Mr. John Richardson, M.L.A. for East York, is not satisfied with the operation of the County Councils Act in his constituency. According to the Act, the north division of the county has four representatives in the council, the west and east having only five in all. The latter, however, are each nearly as large as the first, so Mr. Richardson will move that a readjustment of the various divisions of all counties be made after a number of years.

Seen in the Shops.

Some novel dancing slippers combine satin and silver.

Red in every tone and semi-tone is in high fashion this winter, not only as a prominent accessory, but forming entire gowns, wraps and head coverings.

The general tendency is to discard all stiff interlinings on the newest gowns. This does very well where one can afford a crisp taffeta silk lining, with no sort of interlining added even as a facing.

THE HAMMOND TRIAL

MR. OSLER OUTLINES THE CASE

Which the Crown Will Try to Prove Against the Accused Young Man—Great Interest Manifested—The Town Hall at Bracebridge Crowded.

Bracebridge, Ont., Feb. 16.—(Special.)—The Court of Assize for the Provisional and United Counties of Parry Sound and Muskoka resumed its sitting promptly at 9.30 this morning. As was expected the Hammond murder case was immediately taken up. The Town Hall, where the court is held, was crowded with people, all anxious to hear this now famous case.

The prisoner, William James Hammond, was brought in by Constable Armstrong and given a chair (there is no prisoners' or witnesses' box in the room), just behind the lawyers' table and facing His Lordship.

The prisoner is about 5 feet 10 inches in height, slim, clean shaven, and has a very boyish appearance. In fact, he looks much younger than he really is (22 years). His face was very white when he entered the court room, showing clearly the effects of his 11-months' close confinement, but during the day color came back to his cheeks. He was neatly dressed in a black morning coat with brown trousers, and his linen was spotless. He is fairly good looking, and bright in appearance, although at times he looks a little surly. He seems to realize his position keenly and seldom looks up, except once in a while, when he takes a side glance at the reporters. Even when his father stepped over and shook hands with him he scarcely glanced up, and only said a few words to his devoted parent, who is now spending every cent he owns in his defence. The mother died about two weeks ago.

The impaneling of a jury lasted about 30 minutes, there being 17 challenges by the prisoner's counsel, while the Crown asked four to stand aside. Finally the following good and true men were selected:

John Johnston, yoeman, of Morrison Township; W. H. Bray, yeoman, of the Township of Brunel; Alex. Corbett, mechanic, of Huntsville; August Breese, lumberman, of the Township of Watt; Frank Forge, yeoman, of Windermere; William Tackeberry, yeoman of the Township of McLean; Ralph W. Lee, mechanic, Bracebridge; Charles Oldham, yeoman, of Medora; Isaac Whyte, yeoman, of Medora; James Weir, yeoman, of the Township of Stephenson; Duncan McKenzie, yeoman, of the Township of Chaffey; Moses Dickie, contractor, Bracebridge.

Mr. Osler, Crown prosecutor, then commenced his address to the jury. He spoke for about 40 minutes, briefly outlining the case as it would be presented by the Crown. He said on March 6 last, Katie Hammond, or Tough, wife of the accused, was found dying on Brown-street, in the village of Gravenhurst. The Crown alleges murder, and charges the prisoner Hammond with the crime, and it was the sworn duty of the jurors, after hearing the evidence, to say whether it is true or not. The parents of both the prisoner and the deceased live close together in Gravenhurst, and the dead girl and prisoner were intimately acquainted. The prisoner and the deceased were secretly married in Buffalo, N.Y., in November, 1895, under an assumed name, that of James.

Her life was insured in favor of the prisoner for about $15,000, all told, having been applied for on her life. Some of these policies had failed. All the insurance was effected after the marriage. The two lived in Buffalo for a while, then went to New York city, where they lived as man and wife under the name of James, and attending to the placing of the insurance on the deceased's life. They returned to Toronto, but did not live together there, although they frequently met. About three weeks prior to her death she returned to her home in Gravenhurst, and on the Monday prior to the day the crime is alleged to have been committed the prisoner also went to Gravenhurst and met his wife several times. On the fatal night in question she went with him to his father's house, where she stayed about fifteen minutes, and shortly after 8.30 o'clock she was found in a dying condition on the roadside, 100 feet from the Hammond place, and 300 feet from her father's door, with her head towards home. She was carried home, where she died in a few minutes. Her death was caused from prussic acid poison.

The Crown will show that the prisoner bought a bottle of prussic acid that morning from a doctor in Gravenhurst, first saying he wanted it to kill cats, then again saying it was to kill a dog. Prussic acid is a peculiar poison, owing to its rapid action. The prisoner had been a drug clerk for a year; afterwards in a law office. He was prescribing medicine for his wife, as will be shown by a telegram from him, telling her she had the wrong medicine and to stop taking it. She had the utmost confidence in him, and if he intended to kill her this was an easy way to prepare her for to take the fatal dose. We have, therefore, the death by poison, the purchase of the poison, the secret marriage, placing insurance on her life after the marriage, the insurance payable to him, the administering of medicine to her and his object for procuring a large sum of money.

On the evening of her death the prisoner suggested that the deceased had been taking poison and further suggested that her room be searched. He had been previously missed from the room, where the body was, and he was seen coming from her room. On her room being searched two bottles were found under the mattress, also a cup with a mixture in it. The mixture was not sufficiently strong to cause death. The inference is that the prisoner had been up to her room after

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Since the general elections of June last, the Liberals have lost two members in the House of Commons as the result of death. The latest victim is Mr. Fauvel, a Protestant, who was returned as representative for Bonaventure, P.Q.

The Province of Quebec will soon be agitated from end to end with party politics, both Dominion and Provincial. Two important bye-elections for the House of Commons—Champlain and Bonaventure—are now pending, and in addition the Provincial general elections will take place next month. It will thus be seen that the strength of the Liberal party in the province will soon be severely tested. We will be greatly surprised if the drift toward Liberalism on the part of Jean Baptiste is not be something more than ephemeral.

Hon. W. S. Fielding, who happens to come from Nova Scotia, and is tinctured with free trade ideas, has often been held up before Canadian Protectionists as a sort of scarecrow. Yet, speaking before the Canadian mining engineers, the other day, he referred to the proposed tariff changes, declaring that the policy of the Liberal party was reform, not revolution, and that injustice would be done no legitimate interest of the country. Mr. Laurier and many other leading members of the party, have spoken to similar purport. They do not forget that as a government they are confronted with conditions and not theories, and will legislate along these lines.

The Conservative press is manifesting very great eagerness to throw the responsibility for the partial destruction of the Western block by fire upon Hon. J. I. Tarte, declaring that it was the fault of an appointee of his that the hydrants on Parliament Hill were found to be frozen when required for use. Mr. Tarte will doubtless be heard from in due season, and, if the facts are as alleged, will, no doubt, be open to a certain measure of censure. At the same time, his critics are acting unfairly in concealing the fact that the city of Ottawa is responsible for the protection from fire of the Government buildings, and receives annually a stated grant because of this fact. The Ottawa newspapers, both Reform and Conservative, are not engaged at this time in picking ing holes in Mr. Tarte's blanket, but in calling attention to the inadequacy and insufficiency of their own municipal system.

WHITE PINE.

At the close of an article on the export of Canadian timber to the United States, the Montreal Witness says:—

"Canada's exports of saw-logs to the United States have risen from less than half a million feet in 1866 to three hundred and seven million feet in 1896. During the same period our exports of sawn lumber to the United States have increased very little. It is said that there is less than ten years' supply of pine left in Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin at the present rate of cutting. Now that the whole question of our timber trade with the United States is up it would be well to discuss the question whether the time has not come for the framing of a new policy in regard to our forests; whether, for the protection of our national and provincial interests, not for the protection of individual interests, the cutting down of camping forests should not be carried out under strict regulations laid down by laws well enforced. White pine forests can be preserved in a constantly yielding condition under careful state supervision, as in Germany, but once destroyed, reforestation is impossible. The end of the white pine industry is already within measurable distance in America. Canada's areas are among the greatest and richest still in existence. The whole question of their future should be well considered and a permanent policy laid down by the Provincial and Dominion Governments in council, after consultation with all the interests affected.

THE ELECTION CASES.

Argument Before the Supreme Court at Ottawa in the Winnipeg, Macdonald and other Appeals.

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—(Special.)—The February session of the Supreme Court of Canada opened to-day with five judges present, Mr. Justice Taschereau being still absent on leave.

The election cases were first called and the first on the list, the Maskinonge case, was struck off, no counsel appearing for the appellant.

The Winnipeg case was then argued by J. Stewart Tupper, Q.C., for the appellant, and Howell, Q.C., and Chrysler, Q.C., for the respondent. Mr. Tupper stated that only two of the preliminary objections taken would be relied upon: 1. That the status of the petitioner was not proved; 2. That the copy of the petition was not served on the respondent.

On the first point the counsel contended that it was necessary to prove that the petitioner was on the list as finally revised, and also on the list as used by the deputy returning officer.

Counsel for respondent argued that it was sufficient to prove that the petitioner voted, which was prima facie evidence of his right to vote; also that all necessary and possible evidence was given. As to service, that the filing of objections admitted service under the act, moreover service was properly proved.

The Macdonald election case was next called, Mr. Tupper, the same counsel, appearing. Mr. Tupper stated that, without repeating the argument in the previous case, he would rest this appeal on the objection that no proof had been made that the petitioner's name was on the list used at the election.

Davin v. McDougall, the West Assiniboia election case, was next called. In the West Assiniboia case the only question raised on the appeal was whether or not the preliminary objections were filed. They were left with the prothonotary of the court after office hours of the last day for filing, and the judge of the court below held that they were not filed at all, and dismissed them on a motion in chambers. McIntyre, Q.C., contended that, as the prothonotary had received them, the filing was good. Chrysler, Q.C., and Howell, Q.C., for the respondent, claimed that there was no appeal; 1, Because security was not deposited within eight days, as required by the Controverted Elections Act, and the extension of time granted was unauthorized by the act. 2. That it was not an appeal from a judgment, rule, order or decision on a preliminary objection, as, if allowed, the objections must still be dealt with. They also argued that the decision dismissing the objections was right under the Northwest Territorial ordinance. Judgment was reserved.

The Montreal election case, Roddick v. Griffin, was struck off, no counsel appearing on either side.

The Marquette case was next called and Tupper, Q.C., for respondent, moved to quash the appeal, because; 1. The six months for the trial of the petition having elapsed, and an extension refused, the appeal was not substantial, but one for costs only; 2. The petition was dismissed after examination of the petitioner, in which he admitted that his affidavit was false, and that he did not know whether the petition was true. No appeal lies from such a judgment. Howell, Q.C., and Chrysler, Q.C., for appellant, argued in favor of jurisdiction, contending that it was really a preliminary objection and its character could not be altered by the form in which it was taken. Argument was proceeding when the court rose.

Ladder Slipped and Killed Him.

Barrie, Feb. 16.—Yesterday one of the best known citizens of the town met with an accident that resulted fatally. In the afternoon William Ferrier was standing on a ladder chopping the ice off the roof of his house. The ladder slipped, and Mr. Ferrier, who was a very heavy man, fell a considerable distance, striking on the ice. The concussion was so severe that he did not recover consciousness, and died during the night.

INJURY AND NEGLECT.

He Failed in Health and Strength—His Kidneys Ached and he Took Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Deseronto, Feb. 8. — (Special). — Among business people here, and especially by his fellow-workmen, great interest has been taken in the case of Mr. James Stokes, who for the past fifteen years has been shipper for the Rathbun Company.

Lately he has run down in health and strength to the point of being compelled to quit work, and his recovery now as the result of using Dodd's Kidney Pills is the talk of the town. On seeing Mr. Stokes he said:

"From overlifting and strain I suffered greatly from Kidney trouble, being advised after all else had failed to use Dodd's Kidney Pills; from the first dose I got relief, and hundreds of people here can vouch for my cure."

Mr. Chas. Smith, Dawn Mills, Ont., says: "For several years I was troubled with pains in my loins, which continued getting worse until I thought I would have to quit work. In fact the pains were so bad that I could not rest nights. I took one box of Miller's Compound Iron Pills and am perfectly cured." Although it is nearly a year since Mr. S. took the Pills he has had no return of the pains, and feels splendid. Sold in Peterborough by Wm. Madill, druggist.

R. M. LIVINGSTONE KILLED.

Melancholy Death of a Nephew of the Great African Explorer.

Toronto, Feb. 16.

A Winnipeg despatch last night told of the death of R. M. Livingstone by falling off the train near Martin station, west of Fort William, while on his way to visit his brother at Seattle, Wash. Deceased was well-connected, being a nephew of the celebrated African explorer, having a brother in the drug business at Listowel, another a bank manager at Georgetown, and a third, the one at Seattle, who is prominent in mercantile circles there. He was on his way from Listowel and was a guest at the Tremont House from Monday until Thursday of last week.

TREVELYAN'S SUCCESSOR.

Sir Charles Cameron Holds the Bridgeton Seat for the Liberals.

Glasgow, Feb. 15.—The election to fill the vacancy in the House of Commons for the Bridgeton Division of Glasgow, caused by the retirement of Sir George O. Trevelyan, Liberal, was held to-day, resulting in the return of Sir Charles Cameron, Liberal, by 4606 votes to 4381 cast for Charles Scott Dickson, Solicitor-General for Scotland, who stood in the Conservative interest. At the last election Sir George O. Trevelyan received a majority over the Conservative candidate of 442, and the Labor candidate polled 600 votes.

LATEST WAR NEWS.

Greece Has Apparently Not Subsided Yet

A PROCLAMATION TO THE CRETANS

The Hellenic King Resolved That the State of Anarchy and Oppression Must Cease—Italy is Greatly Excited and Will Send Help to Greece.

London, Feb. 16.—A despatch from Athens to The Evening News says that Greek troops have landed at the Bay of Kolymbari.

Col. Vassos, the commander of the Greek forces in Crete, has issued the following proclamation:

"Cretans.—You are suffering from the present state of anarchy and are exposed to the excesses of a fanatical populace, excesses which have awakened the national sentiment and have deeply stirred the Hellenic people. This lamentable situation of a people of the same race and the same religion, having common destinies with ourselves, could not any longer be allowed to exist. The King of the Hellenes has resolved to end this state of things by proclaiming a Greek occupation of the island. In making this proclamation, I promise in the name of King George to protect the lives, honor and property of the inhabitants without distinction of religion or nationality, and to respect the religious convictions of the inhabitants, while bringing to them peace and law."

Italy Admires Greece.

Rome, Feb. 16.—The bold action of Greece in attempting to solve the Cretan question with the sword has excited popular admiration everywhere in Italy, and a great philo-Crete agitation is being carried on throughout the country. The sympathies of the people are entirely with the Cretan Christians in their struggle to throw off the yoke of Moslem rule, and this sympathy is taking practical form. Enthusiastic mass meetings have been held in several cities, at which the speakers have traced the whole history of Turkish misrule in Crete, and have dwelt upon the promises of the Porte, broken time and again to inaugurate reforms in the island. At these meetings subscription lists were opened for the benefit of the struggling islanders, and goodly sums have been realized.

Many young men whose enthusiasm has been aroused by the heroism of the Cretan Christians and the bold defiance of Turkey by the Greeks have volunteered to serve with the Christians, and numbers of them have already started for Crete.

Did Not Threaten George.

London, Feb. 16.—The Parliamentary Secretary for the Foreign Office, George N. Curzon, replying to a question in the House of Commons to-day, said that the British admiral in Cretan waters could not have used the threats to Prince George of Greece which were attributed to him in press despatches from Canea yesterday.

The despatches referred to said that the British commander threatened to use force against Prince George of Greece in the event of his executing the orders he had received from the King of Greece and the Greek Government.

Will They Declare War?

Constantinople, Feb. 16.—The Council of Ministers has been sitting at Yildiz Kiosk all day long. As a state of war between Greece and Turkey practically exists, although it has not been officially declared, it is believed that the Council will decide to recall the Turkish Minister at Athens, Assim Bey, and give the Greek Minister here, Prince Maurocordato, his passports.

Fighting is Going On.

Canea, Feb. 16.—Gen. Bor, who is in command of the gendarmerie at Canea, formally notified Col. Vassos, commanding the Greek troops at Akrotiri, yesterday of the joint occupation of Crete by the powers. To this notification the Greek colonel replied: "I am ordered to occupy the island, and must carry out my orders until I receive other instruction."

All business in Canea is suspended except that of a manufacturer of coffins, the demand upon whose wares has largely increased.

Fighting is still going on at Akrotiri and Selion, but it is confined to conflicts between the Turks and Christians. The Greek troops, which were landed on the island, have not yet engaged in a battle. The Christians hold all of the districts around Canea.

A VICTORY FOR GREECE.

Athens, Feb. 16.—The first definite news of a Greek victory in Crete was received this evening, and the wildest enthusiasm followed the receipt of the intelligence. The Greeks, it is said, attacked and captured Fort Ahgia, taking 400 Mussulmans prisoners. Among the number are 100 Turkish troops, the remainder of the prisoners being Moslems who had taken refuge in the fort. Details of the engagement are lacking. One report states that no fighting occurred, the garrison surrendering upon the demand of the Greek commander. As no mention of any losses is made in any of the despatches, it is surmised that this report is true.

Notwithstanding the reports that the powers would take concerted action to prevent Greece from taking further hostile action in Crete, warlike preparations are being made with all possible despatch. In addition to the "Corps of Occupation" already in the island, which numbers 1500 men of all arms, another regiment embarked upon a transport and sailed for Crete to-night. Another regiment will sail to-morrow. The Government is preparing for every possible contingency, and has summoned two classes of the naval reserves for active service.

The people are in a frenzy of excitement, and demand that the Cretan question be settled now for all time. It is popularly thought that when the powers find the annexation of the island, which Greece has in view, an accomplished fact, they will readily acquiesce in this spoliation of the Turk. The Cretan Christians are wild with delight over the manner in which Greece has come to their rescue. When the Greek troops landed on the island they were received with the greatest enthusiasm, men, women and children hailing them as deliverers from their long bondage to the hated Turks. Everywhere the deepest anxiety was displayed to swear loyalty to King George, the Christians taking it for granted that they were to become at once subjects of the King. The temper of the people is such that they would scarcely hesitate to undertake the foolhardy task of defying the combined powers in their efforts to secure their liberty.

How much business can a man do whose system is in a state of disorder? Headache is only a symptom. It is not a disease. The pain in the head is the sign of rebellion. There have been mistakes in diet and other abuses.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a gentle, effective renovator and invigorator of stomach, liver and bowels. They assist nature without threatening to tear the body piece-meal. There are no griping pains, no nausea. One is a laxative.

Mark Twain in Trouble.

Few of Mark Twain's friends know of the plucky fight he is making with adversity, or how badly he has been used by fortune. In a word, Mark Twain, who, a couple of years ago, thought himself a rich man, is to-day worse than penniless. Since his return from Africa, a few months ago, he has been living in very modest lodgings in London, going nowhere and seeing but one or two friends, working all day and every day at a history of his trip around the world. With the proceeds of this book he hopes to be able to pay off his creditors and to leave something for his family. Mark Twain lost practically everything when Webster and Company failed, and the lecture trip around the world which he undertook with the hope of retrieving his fortunes did not turn out a financial success for him. So, more than sixty years of age, in poor health, and in a strange country, America's greatest humorist is perhaps working harder than ever before.

HAD INDIGESTION!

For a Matter of Some Forty Years or More.

Joseph Gardner, stove dealer, of Bath, Ontario, is a great believer in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, Bright's disease, rheumatism, and kidney, liver and stomach troubles generally.

"I was troubled for over forty years with indigestion and constipation," he writes. "At intervals I suffered from severe headache. I spent dollars and dollars without result until Mr. Ball, our druggist, advised me to try Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and must say that they are the only remedy that gave me relief. I would not be without them for anything."

Many people suffer from rheumatism. Bad blood and diseased kidneys bring it on. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will remedy all this and cure rheumatism, sciatica and all kindred complaints. Here is a sample case:

"My boy was all crippled up and suffered awfully with rheumatism," writes Mrs. H. Wills, of Chesley, Ont. "He also had a touch of diabetes. The doctors could do him no good, but Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills completely cured him."

Sold by all dealers and Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 25c.

When all other remedies fail Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine will cure the worst chronic cold 25 cents.

FAIRWEATHER & CO

MANUFACTURING FURRIERS,

PETERBOROUGH — TORONTO — LINDSAY

Facts About Furs and Bankrupt Stocks.

Some dealers in Furs believe in selling Bankrupt Stocks but others there are who do not; yet, at the same time have offered several bankrupt stocks for sale within a short time, while claiming also to sell nothing in Furs but of their own manufacture. We certainly must stand away ahead of our competitors as we do not require the aid of such stocks but stand on the merits of our own manufactured goods, which we can always guarantee as such. Our reputation of 36 years standing without a failure is the best proof that customers believe in us and support us so well. We do not require to make any bombastic statements regarding the size or quality of our stock; both are only too well known in the town as well as in many other places at great distances. We wish to thank our customers for their patronage through the late season.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.

Passed by Queen's Own Lodge, L.T.B., on Monday Last.

At a meeting of Queen's Own Lodge of Loyal True Blues, on Monday evening last, the appended resolution, which speaks for itself, was passed:

To Thos. A. Lang, Esq., from the members of Queen's Own Lodge, L.T.B.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—At a meeting of the above lodge held on Monday, the 15th inst., the undersigned were instructed to tender to you, on behalf of the members, their sincere and profound sympathy in the affliction through which you have recently passed, in the removal through the providence of God) to the unseen Key, your dear brother Frederick. While bowing in humble submission to the will of the supreme ruler of our destiny, it is but natural that we should mourn the loss of loved ones, that we should miss their cheerful words and their endearing companionship. It should be a source of conciliation, however, when we reflect that we, too, are but mortal, and sooner or later be partakers of that cup of death, so that the separation from our loved ones may not be very long. We trust and believe that your dear brother is happier in Him who is "the Resurrection and the Life," and when we think of the happiness which is in store for him, we should be content to say, "O God, Thy will be done." We express the hope that by steady dependence on the mercy of the Great Grand Master on high, who gave life and hath taken it away, your bereaved family and yourself will derive that comfort and sustaining power which no other hand can bestow. And finally, conduct you to a happy reunion in the great hereafter.

W. H. G. ARMSTRONG, Worshipful Master. SETH ADLAM, Rec. Sec.

HOCKEY.

The Wellingtons went up to Guelph last night and practically won the Junior Championship by defeating the home team by 6 goals to 3.

At Lakefield last night the home team won from Norwood by 10—4.

The celebrated Buffer and Duffer return match will take place on the Riverside Park Rink to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock. The Buffers are in prime condition and the big fellows will have to hustle in order to be in it for a minute.

The game of hockey on the Park Rink between the Peterborough Hardware Co. and the dry goods merchants has been postponed till Monday evening next.

The game of hockey on the Park Rink, which was to have been played between the so-called Lakeviews and the Park Rink seven last night, had to be cancelled, the "Southerners" best players being absent on their farms. However, "Riplets" Hartley would like the two teams to come together in order to even things up.

MILLBROOK DEFEATS COBOURG.

What proved to be the most hotly contested game of hockey that has been played in Millbrook this season took place Tuesday night, when the home team defeated Cobourg by a score of 7 goals to 1. The score was by no means any criteron as to the strength of the two teams, as the playing was very close throughout. At half time the game was a tie, each side having scored one goal. After that, however, Millbrook got down to work and rolled up six more games. The teams lined up as follows:—

Millbrook.		Cobourg.
Tucker	goal	Turpin
Coombs	point	Kirkpatrick
T Natrass	cover point	Frost
C Leach	forwards	McCallum
F Leach	forwards	McCallum
J Nattrass	forwards	Phillips
H Duncan	forwards	Pratt
McCartney	umpire	J Forgot

Referee.....H S Clarry.

For Millbrook, Harry Duncan and Fred Leach are deserving of special mention. Millbrook will leave sometime next week for Port Hope and Cobourg, where they will play return matches.

A CONTRIBUTION.

T was on the evening of the tenth, and bright and early, to,
That the Ashburnham hockeyists met their Waterloo.
They lined up on the battle-field and thought they looked so nice,
But red sweaters and blue jackets "don't cut any ice."

The South-end boys walked on the ice, and with their captain brave
Soon put the Ashburnhamites away down in their grave.
"Riplets" Hartley was the referee, who thought his noted square,
But with the South end boys I'm sure he wasn't very fair.

"Ginger" Logan and "Sweat" Calcutt, "Whisk" ers" Scott and a few more,
With "Patsy" Neil between the flags, who tried to stop the score.
They slipped, fell and swept the ice, and thought they "cut a shine,"
But the boys had two to nothing when "Rip" lets" called half-time.

"Play ball," says "Riplets" Hartley, whose voice had a sad ring,
But with the South-end boys, sure they couldn't do a thing.
Two more were added to the score, which showed that they had grit,
When some one from the audience told "Sweat" he'd better quit.

This angered the "brewery gang," who scored two goals at last,
While the spectators, by this time, were looking on aghast.
"Time's up!" called out "Riplets," with voice sadder than before,
And when the books were totalled up the score stood two to four.

The return match was scheduled for some future date,
And then I'm sure the "brewery gang" again will meet their fate.
The boys and girls among the crowd said it was a fright,
That the Ashburnham "brewery gang" didn't beat the boys that night.

A LAKEVIEWER.

LACROSSE.

The Lacrosse Club will play lacrosse on skates on the Park Rink next week. The game will be a most novel one. It being the first of the sort in this district a large crowd no doubt will witness the game. The Park Rink is a good large one, being a full acre, which will afford ample room for the fun.

PROHIBITION CONVENTION.

It Will Assemble on Tuesday in the Y. M. C. A. Hall.

It is earnestly hoped that there will be a large turnout at the Prohibition Convention on Tuesday next, the 23rd inst., at 2 p.m., in the Y.M.C.A. Hall.

Prominent temperance workers will be in attendance from different parts of the county, and all friends of the cause are considered delegates.

In the evening there will be a mass meeting, to be addressed by the Revs. Mr. Dykeman, (Baptist), W. R. Young, (Methodist), and others that will be announced later.

Mr. Geo. Schneider will preside at the organ, and with the assistance of the choir a good time may be expected. Mayor Yelland has promised to preside. Come one and all and show your interest in the cause. Chair taken at 8 p.m. Collection to defray expenses.

Scrofula

Infests the blood of humanity. It appears in varied forms, but is forced to yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies and vitalizes the blood and cures all such diseases. Read this:

"In September, 1894, I made a misstep and injured my ankle. Very soon afterwards,

A Sore

two inches across formed and in walking to favor it I sprained my ankle. The sore became worse; I could not put my boot on and I thought I should have to give up at every step. I could not get any relief and had to stop work. I read of a cure of a similar case by Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to try it. Before I had taken all of two bottles the sore had healed and the swelling had gone down. My is now well and I have been greatly benefited otherwise. I have increased in weight and am in better health. I cannot say enough in praise of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. H. BLAKE, So. Berwick, Me.

Mrs. T. H. Hamilton, Homewood Avenue, is not recovering from her recent illness as rapidly as could be wished.

Mr. Frank Vipond, managing editor of "Ups and Downs," the organ of Dr. Barnardo's Homes, is in town in connection with the work for a few days. Mr. Vipond is one of Canada's rising young journalists and already has attracted notice through his magazine articles.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams started this morning for the Algonquin Park. He will visit in the interests of the Ontario Government the operations of Messrs. Gilmour & Co., The C. Beck Mfg. Co., Mickle, Dyment & Son, J. D. Sheer and Rathbun Co. This will necessitate an absence of about ten days.

Miss Fannie Bryson, of the Nicholls' Hospital, Peterborough, who contracted diphtheria in the infectious ward of the hospital three weeks ago, from the patient coughing and sending some of the secretions from the throat into her eye, is now considered out of danger, and Dr. Bryson is expected to return to Lindsay this evening leaving his daughter in charge of Miss Clark.

We are pleased to be able to announce, says the Lindsay Post, that Mr. L. V. O'Connor, B.A., barrister, who located in Peterborough last fall after passing a brilliant exam., has decided to remove to remove to Lindsay as the result of strong solicitations on the part of his many friends. Mr. O'Connor had succeeded beyond his expectations in Peterborough, but as there are already 24 or 25 members of the legal profession in that town his friends feel that he has acted wisely in deciding to make the change.

THE CORN SOCIAL.

Young People of the George Street Methodist Church Raise Twenty Dollars.

When the trustees of the George street Methodist church were talking of having the interior of the church cleaned and brightened, the members of the Christian Endeavour Society promised to give $25 to help in this work. It was not known by many of the members of the League how the money was to be raised, however, they decided that if one and all the members would work together that they could have what is called a "Corn Social."

Accordingly the above-named social took place last night in the Sunday school room of the George street Methodist church. The room was decorated with corn cobs, which were hung all over the room, and there were little tables where one could take a seat and be served with pop-corn, as well as cakes, bread and butter and coffee. After all had enjoyed the pop-corn and other refreshments, a Shakesperian burlesque was given by Misses G. Kendry, Florence Cevany, A. Vanevery and Miss Yenny, which greatly pleased everyone and won unstinted praise.

This was followed by an instrumental solo, given by Miss Roger, which also received warm applause. A vocal trio by Mr. Harvey, and the Misses L. Pascoe and V. Belleghem, with banjo accompaniment by Miss Harley and Mr. Walter Brooks, preceeded Miss Roger's instrumental solo, and was also the recipient of unbounded praise. An instrumental duet, which was much appreciated by all was that by Miss A. Robinson and Miss B. Sherin, and which was followed by ten minutes talk or general conversation, and brought this very successful social to a close. Rev. W. R. Young was in the chair, and it is understood that $22 was raised, not counting the tickets which are out.

NIGHT COME TO PETERBOROUGH

An Effort Should be Made to Bring the Eastern Dairymen Here.

If the Mayor and members of the town council will bestir themselves, there is every probability that the convention of the Eastern Dairymen's Association would accept an invitation to hold its next annual meeting in Peterborough in January, 1898.

These annual meetings bring together about three hundred of the most progressive dairymen of the country, who pay their own way, and do not expect anything further than the offer of a suitably-lighted and heated place in which to hold their sessions, and their presence here would mean about the best advertisement that Peterborough could wish, as the delegates would most certainly carry away most favourable impressions of the prosperity of the town.

It has been the custom of the municipalities in which the meetings have hitherto been held to banquet the visitors, and the outlay involved would be trifling to the benefits which would accrue to Peterborough through the presence of the delegates.

A CASE OF DIABETES.

No Help From Medical Men—Suffered for Many Years—Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

North Bruce, Feb. 15 (Special)—An old and well known settler in this Township, named Thomas Brooks, who lives on lots 7 and 8 in the 14th concession is rejoicing with his neighbours over his recent recovery, and he said:

"I was cured by using twenty-four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and as nothing else ever helped me I say they saved my life."

"I had tried all the doctors of this locality and was treated for Diabetes, hoping and suffering for years."

"From reading of cures I determined to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I must say that after using the first box I would have considered them reasonable at ten dollars a box."

YOUNG'S POINT.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Mrs. Walter Young, who has been in Toronto the past five weeks undergoing an operation on her eyes, has returned home. Mrs. Young was confined to the Toronto General Hospital while there, and we are pleased to learn has benefitted by the operation.

Mr. Walter Young was in Toronto this week to accompany Mrs. Young home.

The Young's Point Football Club are going to hold an entertainment in Heard's hall on Tuesday, 23rd inst. They expect to put on a good programme, as they have secured the services of Mr. C. T. Taylor and Mr. G. H. Adams.

Hauling wood is the order of the day, and the sleighing is excellent.

Mr. Phillips, traveller for Jas. Linton & Co., shoe dealers of Montreal, was at the Lakeview House this week.

One of the young men here shot a wildcat this week. He was going toward the barn when he perceived Mr. Cat on the fence, so he returned to the house and armed himself with a gun and captured the animal.

Some of the members of the Dramatic Club intend giving a hop in Heard's hall on Thursday, 25th inst. Good music will be furnished for the occasion and a pleasant time is anticipated.

IT IS IN THE AIR.

Tweed People Talk About it.

It is in the air.

Can't stop it spreading.

Can't keep down a good thing.

People who don't know about it want to known.

People who do know, want to tell about it.

It is kidney education.

Tweed people are learning fast.

Here are some facts.

One of the best known residents of Tweed is Mr. W. H. Houston, who relates the following interesting facts: Mr. Houston says, "I have been very bad for several years with pains in my side and back.

"I had to urinate very frequently, in fact my rest was disturbed by frequent rising at night for that purpose. I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, at Newton's drugstore, and have experienced great relief from the first.

"I am sure that I have been greatly benefited, and can recommend them highly to anyone troubled as I was."

MR. R. M. ROY

TO THE PUBLIC!

Having purchased Mr. P. H. Green's complete Photograph Studio on Hunter street, I take this opportunity of inviting a continuance of the favours of the numerous patrons of this Studio and solicit from my own friends, as well as the public generally, a liberal share of their orders.

Mr. Green will remain with me for a few weeks to personally assist and introduce me to his customers, as well as to complete all work under contract by him.

I have arranged to carry out within a reasonable time any of Mr. Green's unfinished orders, after his removal from Peterborough, and will do all in my power to meet the wishes of my patrons.

This popular studio has been so well known and has enjoyed so large and valuable a patronage ever since its establishment, that it only remains for me to state that it will be my constant aim to continue the high standard of superior photography which it has deservedly maintained.

Miss Dawson will still be in charge of the retouching and finishing department.

Please bear in mind that all Photographs taken by P. H. Green while in business in Peterborough, the negatives of which are in perfect order, are now in my possession, and copies can be had at any time on application.

The woman who wears an armor of good health protects herself against almost all the ordinary ills and troubles that beset her sex. The woman who takes proper care of the health of her womanly - self, who is careful that the organs that constitute womanhood are always well and strong, will be happy in her wifehood and capable in her motherhood.

The best and most-used of all medicines for women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly upon the delicate feminine organism. It makes it strong and healthy. It cures all weakness and disease. It prepares a woman for her greatest mission, motherhood. It does away with the usual discomforts of the expectant period. It insures the health of baby and makes its advent easy and almost painless. Over 90,000 women have testified to its wonderful virtues. More of it is sold than of all other medicines for this purpose combined. Women who want to know more about it should write to its discoverer, Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y.

"The best doctors in Kansas City told me that unless I went to the hospital and had an operation performed I could not live," writes Miss Brooke Galloway, of Wilder, Johnson Co., Kans. "I had ulceration and weakness, and each month I would get down in bed and suffer severely for twenty-four hours. I could not keep anything on my stomach for five minutes at a time. I have taken four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and am now well. I owe it all to your medicine. I can cheerfully recommend it to any suffering as I did."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a safe, sure, speedy and permanent cure for constipation. They never gripe. One is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. All medicine dealers.

EMBROIDERED LINEN

SOME NEW DESIGNS FOR THE COLORED LINEN PATCH.

The Applied Centerpieces Make a Charming Novelty For Effective Needlework —The Edges Are to Be Buttonholed With Silk and Over Cord.

One of the latest noveities for embroidery work is the applied center treatment when a colored linen patch is applied to the middle of centerpieces, doilies, sofa-pillow covers and table spreads.

Around the edge of a patch a cord is buttonholed down and caught under the cord on the stem of flowers and leaves embroidered on the body linen.

It is a very effective scheme, and some beautiful results can be had if care is taken with the needlework and in blending the colors.

Two designs are shown in the illustrations, one for a round centerpiece and one for a square doily to match in general design.

The centerpieces can be made from twelve to twenty-four inches in diameter, with the patch center just half the diameter.

A ROUND CENTERPIECE.

The pattern on this piece is the maidenhair fern, and is to be worked in its natural colors of two shades in green with the stems of a dark brown.

Before they are worked, however, it will be necessary to apply the middle patch.

Obtain a piece of linen of pale-green tint and cut it to the desired size, arrange it on the body linen and pin it fast temporarily, then run a piece of cord around the edge of it and buttonhole it down securely so as to hide the edge of the green patch. This buttonholed and raised edge will form an excellent finish and dividing line, and will form a centre whereon a piece of bric-a-brac or vase or other ornament may rest. With a compass mark a circle to indicate the outside of the centerpiece and buttonhole the outer line in the drawing.

A very pretty and novel effect can be had if the buttonholing is carried out in the manner illustrated, and by employing two shades of any light color a rippled or full effect can be produced, as the illustration shows.

The projecting segments should be worked with the lighter shade, while the recessed ones are to be carried out in the darker shade. Long and short stitches should be employed to obtain the best results, and the finished edges should be found very satisfactory and pleasing.

A portiere of maidenhair fern, forget-me-nots, chrysantheumus, sweet peas or other suitable blossoms may be worked on the body linen, and when drawing them in it would be well not to crowd the design, as an open one that is well arranged is very much more satisfactory in result than a closely drawn and huddled-together design.

Small round and square doilies to match this design in center, pattern and edge can be made six or eight inches in diameter, or square, if desired. A very nice set would be one square centerpiece about twelve inches each way, one round centerpiece about twenty inches in diameter and half a dozen each of square and round doilies, all worked in the maidenhair fern pattern and having pale green applied centres. The design for a square dolly, shown in the other illustrations, is somewhat similar in pattern to the centerpiece, but bearing a buttonholed scroll edge.

This is very effective if nicely worked and filled in the solid parts, and centerpiece treated in a similar manner would be very pleasing. In combination wit green fern leaves a brigh pink edging would be in harmony, but if a white or cream edging is preferred it is always a satisfactory finish at the edge of fancy pieces.

For cotton table covers, sofa pillow-slips and pillow shams this treatment of applied centers will be found very attractive, as, for instance, a white cloth with a pink, blue or green patch and a design carried out in the same shade of linen as the applied patch.

What could be more pleasing than a centerpiece of white linen with a pale pink applied center and a design of sweet peas worked in several delicate tones of pink and blue and the stems and leaves in light green?

The possibilities of this scheme are without limit, and while these suggestions are for the centerpieces and doilies only it will be possible to adapt this idea to most any piece of embroidery work.

Portieres of blue domino having a border worked in white, with applied white patches at stated intervals apart, would result satisfactorily, and a lambrequin of white antique or butcher linen would present an imposing appearance if treated with a yellow chrysanthemum edge and applied ecru or light straw colored patches, under which the flower stems seemed to be caught or held by the cord edge encircling them.

How to Keep Wrinkles Away.

A simple preventive against the appearance of wrinkles is this: Saturate a soft towel in very hot water, wring it and apply it to the face, keeping it there for at least twenty minutes. Then dry the face very gently. this must be done just before going to bed. When traveling, if the skin is very sensitive, do not bathe the face except at night and in the morning, and then throw a few drops of tincture of benzoin into the water, so that it may be made soft and agreeable to the skin.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Much of life's misery is due to indigestion; for who can be happy with a pain in his stomach? As a corrective and strengthener of the alimentary organs, Ayer's Pills are invaluable, their use being always attended with marked benefit.

Puget Sound Flax.

Every fresh test of the quality of Puget Sound flax results in confirming the claim that it is the equal of any in the world and far superior to most. The progress in establishment of its production as a steady and permanent industry is nevertheless very slow. The Federal Government has given aid in securing experiments in culture, and it is not probable that further appropriations can be had except to maintain the station. An effort will be made to persuade the State Legislature to extend financial aid, but the outlook for it is not promising.

The success of flax production will depend chiefly upon the enterprise and perseverance of a few farmers who will pay attention to the requirements of good flax, and will unite to purchase the inexpensive machinery necessary to turn the farm product into mercantile flax This they can ship abroad to the manufacturers and insure a fair profit on their investment.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

The Worst River on Earth.

"The scourge of China," is what they call the Yang-tse-Kiang River. During the last 200 years its floods have fourteen times forced the massive dams of the central provinces and each time covered its banks with thousands of human corpses. In 1883 its inundation ravaged the province of Hu-Pae to an extent which can be retrieved only by the labors of many successive generations. Another terrible flood occurred a few years since, which spread its havoc over an area of 550,000 square miles in the most densely popoulated districts of China. The loss of life on that occasion has been estimated at 750,000, even after deducting the hundreds of thousands that succumbed to the subsequent famine or those slain by marrauders and hunger-crazed cannibals

TO A VIOLIN.

Wee brown house, with echoing hall,
Magic roof and curving wall,
What art thou? Beloved so well,
Whence has come thy potent spell?
Framed three centuries ago,
All thy secret I would know.

From the Architect supreme
Came my plan; a starlight gleam
Sorrow's darkest night to cheer;
Love to man has sent me here.
Whose finds mine inner key
Finds life, joy and liberty.

Wee brown house, so frail, so strong,
Home of gladness, tears and song,
Soundings from thy wondrous floors,
Floating through thy circling doors,
Triumph, sorrow, joy, despair,
Why has each its echo here?

Lo! a shining hope I stand
Beckoning thee with outstretched hand;
Thou wilt find, in bending near,
Love's deep secrets vocal here.
Love is lord my walls within,
I am called a violin.

LOSS OF VOICE

After Acute Bronchitis

CURED BY USING

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

A PREACHER'S EXPERIENCE.

"Three months ago, I took a violent cold which resulted in an attack of acute bronchitis. I put myself under medical treatment, and at the end of two months was no better. I found it very difficult to preach, and concluded to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The first bottle gave me great relief; the second, which I am now taking, has relieved me almost entirely of all unpleasant symptoms, and I feel sure that one or two bottles more will effect a permanent cure. To all ministers suffering from throat troubles, I recommend Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—E. M. BRAWLEY, D. D., Dist. Secretary, Am. Bapt. Publication Society, Petersburg, Va.

OUR CENSUS-TAKING.

ACTS MANY AND VARIOUS CULLED FROM THE RETURNS.

The Necessity For the Census Enumeration - The Country's Progress Shown by the Figures - Statistics on Several Interesting Topics.

The law of Canada requires that a census shall be taken every ten years. The Census Act was first passed in 1870, was revised in 1879, and again in 1886, the last act being that under which the census of 1891 was taken. It provides that the census shall be taken so as to ascertain with the greatest possible accuracy in regard to the various territorial divisions of the country, their population, and its classification as regards age, sex, social condition, religion, education, race; occupation and otherwise; the houses and other buildings therein and their classification as dwellings inhabited, uninhabited, under construction, and otherwise, the occupied land and its condition, whether town, village, country; cultivated or uncultivated; the produce, state and resources of the agricultural, fishing, mining, mechanical manufacturing, trading and other industries; and, lastly, the municipal educational, charitable and other institutions, and whatsoever matters may be deemed desirable by the Government at the time of the taking of the census.

Under the constitution the electoral representation in the House of Commons is based upon population, and is regulated by the number of persons living in the Province of Quebec. Therefore, it is necessary to ascertain carefully the population in each province and also to follow in the enumeration of the people the electoral division provided by Parliament.

The last census of Canada was taken in 1891, the organization consisting of 14 census officers, 241 census commissioners and 4386 enumerators. The largest census district was that of New Westminster, with an era of 204,-060 square miles. In Ontario the largest census area was Algoma, with 143,517 square miles, and in Quebec, Chicoutimi and Saguenay, with 118,921 square miles. To accomplish the task of counting the population in these immense areas enumerators had to take camps and camp furniture with them, be ready to ride on horseback, paddle a canoe and walk miles all in one day.

The first census of the Dominion of Canada was taken in 1871, and comprised the four provinces of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. The population of these four provinces was found to be 3,485,761. A census of Prince Edward Island, then an independent province, was taken, the same year, giving a population of 94,021, and a census of British Columbia was taken in 1870, when the population was found to be 36,427, including Indians. This province was also at that time independent. The population of Manitoba at the taking of the census of 1870 was 18,995, including 6,767 Indians. The population, therefore, of what at present constitutes the Dominion, exclusive of the Northwest Territories may be set down as being, in 1871 3,635,824. The population of the Territories was at the time estimated to be about 60,000.

The next census was taken in 1881, and comprised the whole of the present Dominion, the total population being 4,324,810. The third census was taken in 1891, when the total population was placed at 4,833,239.

Of the total population Ontario contained 1,926,922 people and Quebec 1,359,022. The urban population was 1,390,910, or 28.77 per cent. of the whole. In 1871 the percentage of urban population was only 18.8. The growth of the urban at the expense of the rural population is one of the features of the percentage throughout the world, and prevails in Canada as elsewhere.

At the last census there were 2,460,471 males and 2,372,768 females. Ontario had 1,069,487 males and 1,044,834 females, while Quebec showed an almost equality, there being 744,141 males and 744,-394 females. In British Columbia there were 62,002 males and 35,170 females. In each census group of 10,000 persons there were 249 infants, 1000 children between 1 year and 5 years old, 2350 boys and girls from 5 to 15 years, 1061 youths and maidens from 15 to 20 years, 1731 young men and women from 20 to 30, 2105 middle-aged persons from 30 to 50, and 1325 elderly persons over 50 years.

Out of every 10,000 persons in Canada 6317 were single, 3283 were married and 397 were widowed. Of tese last 267 were widows and 130 widowers. In each of these groups of 10,000 there were 1907 families, the average number of persons in eac being 5.2.

Computing by averages the following facts were found with regard to every 10,000 of population; 949 bachelors over 20 years old; 634 spinsters; 2907 were French or Acadian, 8661 Canadian-born and 1339 born in other countries; 1014 were British-born and 325 were foreign-born. Engaged in agriculture, mining and fishing were 1635; 336 were engaged in trade and transportation; 662 in manufacturing; 131 were in the professions; 599 were in domestic and personal occupations; 110 belonged to the non-productive classes; 1521 were farmers; 56 were fishermen; 31 were miners and 27 lumbermen.

Out of every 10,000 persons 140 died during the year preceding the census, of whom 38 were infants. Of the causes of these 140 deaths, phthisis or consumption was accountable for 15 and lung diseases for 12. Old age gathered in 9; 47 died from local diseases, and 19 from constitutional; violent deaths were responsible for 5, and there were 23 of an average in each group ill-defined and not specified.

To each group of 10,000 persons there were, on an average, 2982 horses, 8,-402 cattle and 5201 sheep.

Out of each 10,000 people nearly 3,-000 could not read and 3500 could not write. The insane numbered 28, the blind 7, and deaf mutes 10. The amount of life insurance at risk per 10,000 people was $562,549, and fire insurance to the extent of $1,655,559.

Taking the population as a whole, 4,185,877 of the people were born in Canada and 647,362 born in other countries. To show the intermingling of the people it was found that there were 11,658 people from Ontario in British Columbia, 46,620 in Manitoba, 344 in New Brunswick, 738 in Nova Scotia, 105 in Prince Edward Island, 15,541 in Quebec and 13,594 in the Territories. On the whole there has been a very considerable movement of population between the provinces, the general trend being from east to west.

According to the last census, the total population of Canada by religions was as follows: Roman Catholics, 1,-992 017; Church of England, 664,059; Presbyterians, 754 193; Reformed Presbyterians, 708; other Presbyterians, 425; Methodists, 829 815; Bible Christians, 7183; Primitive Methodists, 160; other Methodists 607; Baptists, 257,-449; Free Will Baptists 45,116; Tunkers, 1274; Brethren, 11,637 Lutherans, 63,982; Congregationalists 29,157; Disciples, 12,763; Adventists, 6354; Unitarians, 1777; Universalists, 3138; "Protestants," 12,283; Salvation Army, 13,-94.; Quakers, 4650; Jews, 6414; other denominations, 33,756; not specified, 89,-355. The number of pagans, or Indians still adhering to the belief of their fathers, was 16,427.

The following facts were ascertained at the last census with respect to Canadian industries:

Capital to the extent of over a million dollars was employed in the making of arms and ammunition; 495 employes were engaged, to whom wages to the extent of $175,394 were paid, the value of output being $1,105,205.

In the books and stationery manufacturing business over $10,000,000 was invested; nearly 10,000 hands were employed; wages to the extent of $3,-875,543 were paid to the value of the output being $10,553,487.

In the manufacture of carriages and other vehicles $10,630,000 was invested, and over 1400 men employed, whose wages aggregated $5,000,000. The value of the output was nearly $20,000,-000.

There was the sum of $7,054,000 found to be invested in distilleries, which employed 404 hands, whose wages amounted to $178,950. The output was $2,199,000.

Brewers and maltsters had $8,533,164 invested, employed 1835 hands, whose wages aggregated $60,681. The annual output was $5,956,253.

Bakeries to the number of 1656 were found, with capital invested $4,781,605. The number of employers was 4551, and the annual output $11,148,367.

There were 2650 grist mills, using a capital of $23,039,041; employing 6317 hands, whose wages aggregated $2,-366,931. The total output was $52,423,-336.

In the whole Dominion there were found 226 establishments for the production of light. The total capital employed was $21,336,214. Their employes numbered 3942, whose wages were $1,-395,965. The total output was $7,485,721.

No less than $55,598,434 capital was invested in 12,631 establishments engaged in the manufacture of machines, tools and implements. These manufacturers employed 49,432 hands, who received $17,815,445 in wages, and turned out goods valued at $62,016,178 yearly.

Carpenters and builders had 4618 places of business. The capital invested was $5,012,670. They hired 10,137 hands and paid $2,349,998 in wages.

No less than 5666 sawmills were enumerated, having an invested capital of $50,203,111; 51,378 employes, with wages aggregating $12,625,895 and a yearly output of over fifty million dollars.

Summing up the results of the census with regard to industrial establishments the following facts are gleaned; There were in all 75,968 industrial establishments, having an invested capital of $364,620 780, employing 370,-256 hands, distributing to wage earners $160,063,650 a year and producing articles valued at $476,768,836. Of the capital invested $31,446,324 was in land; $60,908,043 in buildings; $8,601,247 in machinery and tools and $151,450,126 was capital other than "fixed."

Of the employes 273,424 were men, 70,220 women, 19,476 boys and 7076 girls under 16 years of age.

The Life of a Clam.

The clam's body is completely enshrouded in the mantle, except for two openings, through one of which the foot can be pushed out. The other is for the siphon, or what is commonly known as the "neck" of the clam. In some respects the clam may be a little better off than we are, for he has a little brain in his foot and also a gland for secreting strong fibres. With this he spins a byssus by which he can attach himself to whatever he likes. He does not even have to search for his food, but waits for it to come to him. He makes a furrow in the mud or sand, attaching himself to the bottom of the byssus. Then he thrusts his syphon up through the mud and water until it reaches the surface. The siphon is made up of two tubes, the water flowing in through one and out the other.

When the inflowing current, laden with minute plants and animals, reaches the gill chamber, some of these are sifted out and retained for food while the water and waste matter flow through the other tube.

The clam's eggs are carried by the mother on her gills. When there are fish in the water with them the mother clams discharge the eggs, which soon hatch, but if there are no fish they carry the eggs until they decay. The reason of this strange behavior is this: When the eggs are set free in the water they soon hatch, and the little ones swim about until they find some fish to which to attach themselves. They live for a time on the mucus of the fish, and then drop off, sink to the bottom and form burrows for themselves. This curious semi-parasitic life is no doubt a reversion to the habit of some ancient ancestor.—Appleton's Monthly.

Two Box Cure

MILVERTON, 20th JULY, 1895.

Gentlemen,—For the last ten years I had been troubled with kidney disease, being so bad at intervals that I could not lie in bed at night nor stoop to the ground.

I had tried all the remedies I could find without effect, but heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills and procured a box.

I am most happy to say it for my own sake as well as for others that I am positively cured after using four boxes.

THE HAMMOND TRIAL.

her body was found. The action of a fatal dose of prussic acid is very rapid, usually immediate loss of consciousness, but sometimes it takes from 10 seconds to half a minute to operate. No bottle or vessel was found on the road between the two houses, so she must have got the dose at some house. She had not been home for half an hour, so she could not have got it there.

The argument must be that she got the poison in the Hammond house. If she took two steps to a second or five feet each second in twenty seconds she would be 100 feet away, just about the distance she was found from the Hammond house. When the prisoner was asked what he had done with the bottle of poison he had purchased he said he had thrown it away. A bottle was afterwards found empty on Sarah-street, 100 feet away, the stopper 40 feet nearer the house. Thus the presumption is that it was opened before it was thrown away. Why had it been opened? It had not been used to kill cats or dogs. Then what had it been used for? Self preservation would have made a man of the prisoner's intelligence keep the unopened bottle as an evidence that he did not sell the poison. Another bottle was found, but not the one purchased from Dr. Campbell, supposed to have been placed there by some indiscreet friend. Then there was the trouble of getting the deceased's trunk. The prisoner got her trunk and would not send it to her, although she urged him to do so. In that trunk were found the insurance policies. While his wife was the real actor re insurance, yet we find a letter re insurance which he gets her to copy. Where were the means coming from to keep up these policies? No money in sight to pay premiums, and the only money in the policies was by death. There is also a letter from Hammond to a man in New York, re situation as president of some company, on payment of certain sums of money.

THE EVIDENCE.

Surveyor Galbraith Gave a Plan Showing the Locality of the Crime.

The first witness called was Mr. William Galbraith, D.L.S., who submitted a plan of the scene of the alleged crime.

Here the grand jury entered the court room and presented a true bill against Daniel Tobin, for house-breaking.

Miss Ida Campbell was the next witness. She lived in Gravenhurst; knew the deceased for a number of years as Kate Tough; found her lying in the snow on Brown-street; heard her groan and went for assistance; got Alex. Bailey and found a woman (Kate Tough) lying on her face about three feet off the beaten track, head towards east, arms down, body straight; saw nothing around or about the body; the woman had a cape and hat on; Bailey touched her; went for my father and he, Bowes and prisoner removed the body to the Tough house; Bowes went to the Hammond house to get assistance and the prisoner came back with him; did not recognize her until Rev. Mr. Burton came with the lantern; froth was coming from the mouth when she was carried home.

Cross-examined by Mr. Johnston: The night was dark; hard to recognize the body; I did not recognize her until a lantern was brought; the prisoner was crying at the house; sometimes I have a little bitter feeling against the prisoner, and sometimes I haven't.

Miss Annie Bailey gave similar evidence to Miss Campbell's examination in chief.

John Bowes: Live next to the Hammond house; was called to go out to see a woman at three minutes past 2; turned face of deceased up and there was a strong odor and froth coming from mouth; did not recognize her until the light came; I said I thought it was Kate Tough, and then the prisoner looked at her face and said it was she. The crust on the snow where the body was found was broken; helped carry the body to the house; on the last day of March saw Alex A. MacNab pick up a bottle on Sarah-street and on April 1 found another bottle in Mr. Cockburn's property.

Cross-examined by Mr. Johnston: I felt no smell of drugs at Hammond's door; at the house the prisoner cried; MacNab came up to me at the fence and then looked around and said: "There's the bottle."

The court then adjourned for one hour.

On the court resuming after lunch the Crown attempted to prove that Hammond went up to the deceased's room after the body had been found, and called Colin Campbell, who said he saw prisoner in the front room and afterwards missed him from the room; heard footsteps upstairs and next saw prisoner outside.

The cross-examination somewhat weakened this witness' evidence.

John McAllister gave evidence as to prisoner and his parents visiting his place on the 6th of March last, and staying for tea. The prisoner left his place (which is two miles away), returned to Gravenhurst about 5.45 p.m., saying he wanted to get the mail. There was nothing suspicious about the prisoner's actions.

Rev. John Burton, Presbyterian minister at Gravenhurst, passed up Brown-street a few minutes before the body was found, but did not see anything. When he got home he had a "feeling" to go back, and did so, carrying his lantern. Met friends carrying the body to the Tough residence; went to the house and saw prisoner coming from a corner near the stairway leading to the dead girl's room.

This reverend witness was severely cross-examined by Mr. Johnston, but he denied having "mental impressions."

Rosina Russell was called to prove the entrance of the prisoner and deceased into the Hammond residence, but as she did not know either of the two, she was asked to stand aside.

John Brodie did not know Kate Tough, but on being shown a photo of her, he said a girl looking very much like the photo came into Dr. Cornell's drug store where he worked on the evening of March 6th at 5 or 6 o'clock and asked for ten cents' worth of phosphoric acid. He gave it to her and she went out. Phosphoric acid is taken as a tonic.

J. R. Dawson: Was in Cornell's drug store at time mentioned by previous witness; saw Miss Kate Tough come in and get medicine from Mr. Brodie.

H. Oaten: Saw Kate Tough at about three minutes past 3 one block south of Cornell's store going towards home.

William Creasor: Had looked for the bottle in company with MacNab, Sloan and Bowes; saw something 50 feet away from the fence, walked over, stooped down and picked it up: it was only a leaf of a tree.

Allan A. MacNab: Live in Gravenhurst; deceased was a niece of mine; was at Tough's on the night of the 6th of March; Frank Tough came in about half-past 8, smoked, and then went to bed upstairs, three-quarters of an hour before the body was brought in. Miss Tough was in good health, and had a cheerful disposition. On the 19th of March saw parties searching for a bottle; saw Bowes looking for the bottle and went and spoke to him, and as I turned around saw a red paper in the snow, which was the bottle, and picked it up; the bottle produced is the one found by me.

Fred Tough: Younger brother of the late Kate Tough; searched for the stopper after the bottle was found; several days after found the stopper about 20 feet from where the bottle was found; brother Frank was with me when it was found; sent for Constable W. Sloan, who picked it up about 10 or 15 feet from the fence and almost directly south of where the bottle was found.

Adjourned to 9.30 a.m. On resuming in the morning, the evidence of the remainder of the Tough family will be taken, then that of Dr. Campbell, followed by evidence of tracing the trunk, and possibly the medical testimony. A verdict is expected on Thursday.

These Murderers Must Die.

SHUTTING DOWN

—ON—

LONG-WINDED CREDIT

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 10th, 1897.

NOTICE—From and after this date, Messrs. H. LeBRUN & CO. have decided to shorten the Term of Credit heretofore given, and, in future, no goods will be sold except for Cash, or on such limited time as may be mutually arranged.

We believe the safest way to do business in these days is to sell for Cash. The next best way is to sell on short dates. Many of our customers who have regularly paid their bills after a reasonable term of credit, would perhaps feel the "Spot Cash" system a hardship, especially while times are so hard and money so scarce. We regard these customers as among the best we have, and are quite satisfied to continue to extend to them the same terms of limited credit they have been accustomed to enjoy.

Our chief complaint is with the "long-winded" customer, who compels us to say that he makes business-life a down-right worry. It makes no difference to us whether a man is worth a million if he won't pay his account. When we need money for our business and are repeatedly put off with "promises to pay" by those who are well able to pay, we have no use for such trade. If every customer treated us in that way we could not carry on business at all. Besides, it is very disagreeable to us to have to "dun" a customer half a dozen times, or spend the profits in postage stamps, and wearing out shoe-leather to boot. We are compelled, therefore, to shut down at once on long credits. Those who can't pay within a reasonable time, we don't want their account in future.

There is a resolution all over the country in favour of Cash or shorter Credits. Cash is a more powerful friend now than ever, and if we must compete with the Cash Stores, who save their discounts, we can't afford to give long credit. Wholesale houses are now offering such big baits in the way of Cash Discounts that we must be prepared to take advantage of them or be handicapped.

All past due Accounts must be settled by the 1st of March; after that date they will be placed in Court for collection. All parties having contra accounts against us are requested to hand them in for settlement at once.

Dr. J. L. Limes Endorses Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Because he Has Found them Efficacious—Believes the First Duty of a Physician is to Cure His Patients.

From the News, St. John, Kansas.

Hearing that Dr. J. L. Limes, of St. John, Kansas, had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in his practice with great success, a reporter called upon and interviewed him regarding the matter. The reporter found the doctor a very pleasant and affable man of probably fifty years of age. We were much impressed with his manner, as it was kindly and dignified. When we broached the subject of our call, he proceeded to give us the following for publication:

"My attention had been called to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People by several persons of my acquaintance who had been greatly benefitted or entirely cured by their use. I determined to give give them a trial in my practice and if they proved to be satisfactory I would adopt them and use them regularly. Since I began prescribing them I have never had cause to regret my determination. I have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a number of cases of nervous troubles, neurasthenia, rheumatism, etc., and in every case have been exceptionally well pleased with the results, and I can honestly and conscientiously recommend Pink Pills for the above diseases. I shall continue to use them and recommend them to my patients, for I consider there is nothing better for the diseases they are recommended to cure than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If you desire to use this for publication you can attach my name. I am well known in this part of Kansas. I am secretary of the U. S. Pension Examining Surgeon's Board for Stafford County, Kansas, and Chairman of the Republican County Central Committee for the above named county."

Yours faithfully,
JESSE L. LIMES, M. D.

We also ascertained the doctor's standing in St. John by a few interviews with prominent people, which we herewith publish along with the doctor's statement regarding Pink Pills:

"I am well acquainted with Dr. J. L. Limes and know him to be an honourable and straightforward man, and whatever he may say can be relied upon.
E. R. BENEFIEL,
Supt. of Schools.

I have known Dr. J. L. Limes for a number of years and can recommend him as a prominent physician, and a man well liked in this vicinity.
HOWARD GRAY,
Cashier Commercial Bank.

I have known Dr. J. L. Limes for several years, and as a physician he is very prominent, and his reputation for honour and integrity are too well known to be questioned for an instant.
H. J. CORNWELL,
Editor St. John News.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a blood builder and nerve restorer. They supply the blood with its life and health-giving properties, thus driving disease from the system. There are numerous pink coloured imitations, against which the public is warned. The genuine Pink Pills can be had only in boxes the wrapper around which bears the full trade mark. "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Refuse all others.

—Rev. John Ross, Brussels, Ont., is reported to have said that he thought that "if, instead of preaching at certain fixed intervals, preachers only went into the pulpit when wrapped with prophetic fire, better preaching would result." Some preachers might thus become afraid of the sound of their own voices!

Delay Means Death.

One Dose Relieves—A Few Bottles Always Cure.

"For ten years I have suffered greatly from heart disease. Fluttering of the heart, palpitations and smothering spells have made my life miserable. When dropsy set in my physician said I must prepare my family for the worst. All this time I had seen Dr. Agnew's Heart Cure advertised. As a last resort I tried it and think of my joy when I received great relief from one dose. One bottle cured my dropsy, and brought me out of bed, and five bottles have completely cured my heart. If you are troubled with any heart affection, and are in despair, as I was, use [illegible] for I know it will cure you."—[illegible], Syracuse, N. Y. Sold by H. E. Mitchell.

Too Good To Miss!

No Time To Lose!

GOUGH'S Winter Wind-Up.

These are WIND-UP DAYS, and GOUGH BROS' Slashing Cut in Clothing, Cloths, Boots and Shoes, Gentlemen's Furnishings, &c., to Wind-up the Winter Selling Season, is an extraordinary event too important to miss. Never since the days of Adam has good Clothing and Boots and Shoes been sold so cheap as we're selling them now. A colossal stock of Clothing and Boots and Shoes for Men, Women and Children at prices that revoulutionizes the trade, and emphasizes the possibilities of this great emporium for clothing the people.

THE STOCK MUST MELT!

The sudden thaw in prices must dissolve the Bargain Lots on Tables, Counters and Shelves, and the flood of bargains will lend spirit and snap to bargain lovers while they last. Our plan of campaign demands that all Winter Goods must be out of the way for Spring arrivals. Besides we want to do our share in alleviating present distress by helping the farmer, the mechanic, the business man, the women and the youth, and at the same time keeping our tailors and salesmen busy.

New Spring Goods are rushing in upon us faster than we can place them, so we have decided to let the "hide go with the hair" until our two big stores are clear of Winter lines.

More gigantic selling, forced on by tremendous buying, has never been planned, for we dump everything into this Colossal Sale at an average reduction all round of 20 Per Cent. Below Manufacturer's Prices!

These bargains now stare you in the face, and what is worth emphasizing is that in all the lines we show a large variety of patterns and sizes, both in Clothing and Boots and Shoes. It is not our policy to select two or three catch lines. You get the choice of the whole stock. You merely choose what you need—no question about the goodness of the material or workmanship.

ONTARIO'S FINANCES

The Estimates for 1897 Laid Before the House.

REDUCTIONS AMOUNT TO $190,000

As Compared With the Previous Year—Cuts Made in Regard to Agriculture and Hospitals and Charities—A Host of Petitions—Questions and Answers.

Toronto, Feb. 18.

The estimates for the year were laid upon the table by the Provincial Treasurer yesterday. The total amount which the House is asked to provide on account of current expenditure is $3,250,341, on capital acount $229,232 and for other purposes $36,504, making a total of $3,516,068, or $190,000 less than the actual expenditure for last year, as shown by the public accounts brought down on the previous day. Maintenance of public institutions continues to be the largest account, closely followed by education with $717,927. Under the last named heading an increase from $3000 to $15,000 for Public school leaving and continuation classes apparently represents the extent of aid which the Government intends to grant toward the establishment of continuation classes. The total increase in the amount asked for educational purposes is $13,000. For maintenance of public institutions, an increase of $7000 is asked, of which $5000 is for the Mimico Asylum. An increase of $1800 for maps and printing is shown in immigration account. The agricultural interests are not to receive as much practical assistance as last year, a reduction of nearly $5000 being made in the estimates this year. The grant of $2000 to the Ontario Creameries Association does not appear this year, and the provision for the Pioneer Dairy Farm is $2800 less than formerly. Hospitals and charities have also suffered from the pruning knife to the extent of $9000, almost the whole of which is taken from those institutions classed as Schedule B in the Act. Grants of $4000 each are made to the Houses of Refuge in Perth and Lambton. The appropriation for repairs, plants and contingencies at Government House is reduced by $1000.

PETITIONS.

Mr. T. Loughrin—From Mayor Cochrane and 183 other residents of Sudbury and vicinity, representing that the northern portion of the District of Nipissing and Eastern Algoma, on the mainland, is well known to be rich in minerals of different kinds, of which several discoveries have been made by prospectors and others, and already valuable mines are being developed in those districts, with profit and advantage to their respective owners.

2. That we are of the opinion that a large number of prospectors will be looking out for minerals hereafter with a better method than in the past, as they have a more thorough knowledge of the country and its formation, acquired by practice, as well as by attending the Mining School sessions held here for the last two or three years.

3. In order to facilitate the work of the prospectors and to enable them to make an intelligent exploration of the country they wish to travel over, it is a matter of vital importance to them to know promptly what part of the lands are already sold or leased, as well as to know where lands are for sale and where they are not.

Therefore, your petitioners ask you to establish a mining land office at Sudbury, where persons interested in the development of our mining resources can obtain all the information required to succeed with their work and save time and money, which are so often wasted by poor prospectors in exploring parts of the district where claims cannot be taken up, lands not for sale or on lease, or already applied for.

The petition is accompanied by a resolution of the Board of Trade of the town of Sudbury, and of the Township of McKim, passed at a meeting on Jan. 15 last, in which they endorsed the petition "asking to establish a mining office at Sudbury to facilitate the work of the prospectors and to enable others to make an intelligent exploration of the mineral lands of the district.

Mr. McLaren—From the Hastings County Council for an amendment to the County Councils Act that will remove the disqualification from members of municipal councils and will restore the election by the majority. Also for permission to issue a reward for the capture of horse thieves.

Mr. Pattullo—From the Oxford County Council for amendments to the General Road Companies Act; also in reference to the appointment of municipal auditors.

Mr. Cleland—From the Grey County Council for amendments to the County Councils Act.

Mr. Blezard—From the Peterboro County Council for protection to produce vendors.

Mr. Taylor—From a number of license holders in the district of North Middlesex, protesting against the amendments to the Liquor License Act as proposed by various temperance societies. They further ask serious consideration of the amendments as proposed by the Ontario License Holders' Protective Association.

Mr. McNaughton—From the Bruce County Council, asking for amendments to the Assessment Act.

Mr. McKee—From the city of Windsor, asking for the passing of an act to consolidate the city debt and give authority for the issue of debentures; from the Essex County Council for amendments to the Registry Act, respecting emoluments of registrars; also for amendments to the General Road Companies Act.

Mr. Reid—From the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham for shelter to produce vendors.

Mr. Chapple—Bill to amend the Municipal Act; bill to amend the Marriage Act, 1897.

Mr. Gamey—Bill to amend the Election Act.

Mr. Garrow—Bill to amend the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1892.

Mr. Whitney asked for an order of the House for a return giving a summarized statement of the amounts paid by the Government of Ontario in connection with the Dominion-Provincial arbitration, and to whom, year by year.

Mr. Kerns asks is it the intention of the Government during the present session to introduce legislation to establish a uniform system of keeping municipal accounts?

Mr. Matheson asked: Has the Government received any notice from the Postoffice Department limiting the franking privilege on Government and departmental reports and papers hitherto granted, and, if so, to what extent?

Mr. Hardy replied that his Government were in correspondence with the Ottawa Government about the matter. He could not as yet give any decisive answer.

Mr. Willoughby—Did B. H. Britton, Q. C., Referee under the Drainage Act, resign his office as such referee? If so, what is the date of his resignation, and up to what date was he paid his salary?

Mr. Hardy's answer was that Mr. Britton had resigned on Sept. 19, had been paid in the ordinary way up to the middle of the month, and was, therefore, in receipt of salary for the whole month.

The actions of the Ontario Prison Inspector next came under Mr. Whitney's scrutiny. His enquiry was: Is James Noxon still in the service of the Government as Inspector of Prisons or otherwise? Is he also in the service of the Government of Canada, and, if so, in what capacity? At what date did he enter into the service of the Government of Canada? Has he received his salary from the Ontario Government since said date, and who has, since said date, performed his duties as Inspector of Prisons?

Hon. E. J. Davis replied that Mr. Noxon was still in the service of the Government as Prison Inspector. He was by commission temporarily appointed by the Dominion Government to make special examination into the affairs of Kingston Penitentiary, owing to his special knowledge relating to the management of public and penal institutions. He served 31 days upon the commission, most of which time was during the three weeks' annual vacation allowed him. He has been in receipt of salary from the Ontario Government except during his absence on the commission. When he was appointed it was understood that his salary would be abated during his absence.

Then came Mr. Whitney's expected enquiry re Librarian Preston. He asked: Was W. T. R. Preston, now librarian of this House, a candidate for the representation of the electoral district of West Toronto, in the House of Commons of Canada at the general election of June, 1896? If so, did he resign his position as librarian, and on what date? Was any promise given, or understanding arrived at, with the said W. T. R. Preston, that, in the event of his defeat at said election, he should be re-appointed librarian? Was he re-appointed librarian, and, if so, on what date?

The Premier stated that Mr. Preston was a candidate. He resigned his position as librarian on June 16. No promise or understanding was arrived at with him that, in the event of his defeat at the election, he should be re-appointed librarian. He was re-appointed librarian on June 20. The Government understood when he resigned that it was because of his nomination as a candidate and that he intended to contest the West Toronto election, and that he resigned for that purpose.

The Attorney-General asked for time to procure copies of correspondence before he could reply to a similar question regarding the resignation and candidature for the Dominion House of James Conmee.

THE MURDER TRIAL

Which is Agitating the Whole Country Just Now.

SECOND DAY AT BRACEBRIDGE.

Some Pretty Strong Circumstantial Evidence Put in by the Prosecution—Testimony of the Mother of the Dead Girl—Hammond Bought Prussic Acid Prisoner Wept.

Bracebridge, Ont., Feb. 17.—(special.)—The second day of the great Hammond-Tough murder trial saw no diminution in the interest taken in it by the people of this district. But, on the other hand, the interest is more intense than it was on the opening day, and nothing else is talked about in town.

When court opened at 9.30 this morning the town hall was crowded, and many were unable to gain admittance.

There are many features connected with this case which call to mind that famous trial at Woodstock some six years ago, when Birchall was tried and convicted for the murder of Benwell. Then, as now, the trial was held in an amusement hall, with all the gay features pertaining thereto; the same judge is presiding; the same Crown counsel prosecuting, and the prisoner here, as was the case there, is a young man stylishly dressed and well educated. It has also some resemblance to the Hyams case, as in both cases the Crown alleges that the crimes were committed to secure insurance money on the lives of the victims. The name of Aylesworth, who was famous in the Hyams case, also bobs up in this case, he having been handed the cheque for Miss Tough's trunk by the prisoner's father. Besides, it is said that young Hammond was a friend of Aylesworth's and a continual spectator at the Hyams trial.

Another coincidence is that the prisoner in this case commenced his electric light scheme with the New York man immediately after the Hyams' first trial.

The Crown, in resuming the case this morning, tried to establish the fact that the prisoner had been seen in company with the deceased at about 8 o'clock on the evening of her death; also to prove the identity of the now famous trunk and the finding of the stopper of the bottle on the road, and the discovery of the bottles in the deceased's room. To do this Frank and James Albert Tough, brothers of the dead girl, were called. Both now swore positively that they saw their sister in company with Hammond shortly after 8 o'clock on the fatal night. Frank told how he found two bottles under the mattress on her bed after the body had been brought home. He identified the trunk produced as his, but which his sister was using while she was in Toronto. He further said that when he asked the prisoner if he and his sister were married he (the prisoner) said they were not, but that she was married to a man named James, whom he was acquainted with.

James Albert was sure he saw his sister with Hammond that night. The prisoner also denied in witnesses' presence that he was with Kate that night. The finding of the stopper of the bottle on the road was also told of by this witness. Both the Tough brothers admitted they had strong feelings against the prisoner, and had expressed themselves to the effect that they would like to put a rope around his neck.

Under the severe cross-examination of Mr. Johnston, they both contradicted themselves, and it was necessary for the judge to caution Frank to be careful what he was saying. There are many discrepancies in their evidence to-day with that given by them at the inquest and preliminary trial.

Frank also admitted that he kept a watch on his sister, as he expected she was hearing from Hammond.

Rev. George Whitman of Buffalo, N. Y., was called to prove the marriage of the prisoner to the deceased. This witness affirmed. Mr. Johnston admitted the marriage, but the marriage certificate was produced and read. It showed that the prisoner, under the name of William Thomas James, was married to Miss K. E. Tough at Buffalo on Nov. 19, 1895.

Mrs. William Tough, sworn, said: I am the mother of the deceased. She was my only daughter. She kept company with the prisoner previous to their going to Toronto. There was a quarrel between them about a year before Kate went to the city. The prisoner left Gravenhurst about a year before the deceased did. She left home at Easter, 1895, and stayed away for several months. She then returned and remained at home until October, when she again went to Toronto. I got a letter from her in November, 1895, saying she was in Buffalo. She returned home the Saturday before Christmas, but she did not bring her trunk with her.

She again went back to Toronto the day after New Year's. On Feb. 15, 1896, Kate again came home. She had no trunk with her, but expected it and enquired for it at the station. She was in good health and spirits. Never knew her to take medicine, except for neuralgia. She intended going to Orillia the day after her death. While home she was sewing for herself. Made a dress, etc., and quilt. She received letters during her last visit home. While home she did the housework and on the evening of her death prepared tea and had the table cleared away by 7 o'clock. When she went out about 7.30 she wore a large cape, large sailor hat and a black veil. (These articles were here produced and identified by witness.) She came in again, went upstairs, and immediately went out again. Did not speak to her, as I was reading. Mr. Allen McNabb came in at the back door as she went out at the front door. Frank came in shortly after, smoked a while and went upstairs. Mr. McNabb started to

THE SENDING OF VALENTINES.

A noticeable feature of recent years, and one worthy of comment, is the increasing tendency to do away with the custom of sending to friends valentines, Christmas cards, Easter cards, and other periodical souvenirs. Monday, for instance, was St. Valentine's Day, and it would be safe to assert that there are hundreds of people in Peterborough to whom it was once an occasion of importance, yet for whom it came and went Monday without a passing thought. This is, perhaps, natural in those whose advancing years have left love-making and courtship behind. But it is almost equally true among the young people of this generation, as compared with those who went before them. There was a time, and not so long ago, when it was worth a young fellow's chances of success in his suit, to neglect the sending of one of those dainty missives whose frilled and embroidered edges delighted his lady's heart, and whose hidden depths contained the verse he had chosen with so much care. All that is changed. The sentiment of to-day does not permit of the extravagant rhapsodies in which our grandfathers indulged when making love. The young man of to-day does not go on his knees to propose, nor utter formal phrases of adulation concerning the maiden's grace and beauty. Neither does he send her valentines. It does not mean, of course, that there is not as much genuine, honest affection between the sexes as there used to be. The old story of love is not dead, nor is any of its sweetness gone; but the quaint dignity of old, the delicate, if somewhat stilted courtesy, in courtship which lifted it into the realm of romance, and, once in a life-time, separated a man from his fellows—did these vanish with the minuet?

Everything, however, has its compensations, and the disuse of love-valentines has one in the doing away also with those ugly little one-cent prints which formerly filled the shop windows whenever February came round. Intended only to hurt, conceived in the spirit of coarse and bitter ridicule, they had no good object, and blessed neither him that gave nor him that received. Few, if any, of them were even funny, and their tendency was altogether bad. They, too, have practically gone, and their return will not be eagerly looked for.

With respect not only to valentines but to those other souvenirs which in former days burdened each year the postman's arms and found their way into almost every home., it is, after all, unfortunate that their use should become less general. Bearers of kindly greetings, emblems of friendship or affection, their arrival warmed many a heart and kept alive the fires of memory in those who, perhaps, had long been separated. Often have they touched chords which had of late been too seldom sounded, and revived the images of home and kindred when they had grown dim. Life has already too few of such influences. Men are already sufficiently materialistic. A custom which appeals to the finer instincts, to humanity's better nature, should not be allowed to lapse.

A FLAT CONTRADICTION.

The Oft-Repeated Statements by Physicians that Chronic Rheumatism Cannot be Cured Refuted by Sworn Statements.

There never was a time when people were so sceptical in reference to medicine as the present; 'tis no wonder, for their credulity has been played upon by the unreliable claims of advertised cure-alls until doubt is converted into a belief that all announcements are imaginary pen pictures. Rheumatic sufferers are of the class whose intense suffering has led them to try first one thing, then another, until repeated failures convince them "there is no help for them." They hear about the startling cures made by Kootenay, but cannot overcome the suspicion that 'tis like all the rest. They do not know of the hidden power in "The new ingredient" peculiar to this preparation, that banishes Rheumatism—of how it enabled George Ball, blacksmith, residing corner Sanford Avenue and Huron Streets, Hamilton, to arise from a helpless condition and take up work in the City Quarries at hard labor, discharged from the hospital with the assurance "they could do nothing for him, his system was so full of rheumatism no power on earth could drive it out;" then lying at his home for weeks unable to lift hand to mouth, having to be fed by his wife, when the King's Daughters of Hamilton brought him Kootenay. Three bottles effected a complete cure. This is not more strange than the story told by Mrs. Guy, wife of Mail Carrier Robt. Guy, Brant Ave., Hamilton, whose mother love breathes thanks for the restoration of their seven year old Willie. His lower limbs were so swollen with inflammatory rheumatism he could not put his feet to the floor, the slightest touch causing intense pain, growing gradually worse, until his condition was pitiful; it seemed they were going to lose him, when Kootenay was used and three bottles completely cured him, so that he is going to school. The detailed sworn statements of above cures, with hundreds of others, can be obtained by addressing The Ryckman Medicine Co., Hamilton, Ont. If Kootenay is not obtainable of your dealer, sent charges prepaid on receipt of price, $1.50 per bottle. Send for Chart Book, mailed free.

NEWS FROM OTTAWA

The Matter of Restoring the Western Block.

WILL IT BE DONE BY CONTRACT ?

A Good Deal of Pressure to Have It Done by Day Labor—Acting Chief Architect Ewart Makes His Report—Writs for Champlain and Bonaventure Elections.

Ottawa, Feb 17.—(Special.)—Mr. Tarte has not yet made up his mind whether the work of restoring the West Block is to be done by contract or by day labor. Much local pressure is being exercised in the latter direction, but it is altogether unlikely that, with the multifarious duties of his department pressing upon him, and with Parliament to meet in a few weeks, the Minister of Public Works will care to assume the responsibility of personally conducting such an important work, for that is what it will amount to unless the contract system be adopted.

Mr. Ewart, Acting Chief Architect of the Public Works, made his report to the Minister of the official investigation into the circumstances surrounding the fire. In the main it pieces with the reports published in the newspapers. The spread of the fire is attributed to lack of water pressure in the attic of the building, the inflammable nature of the structure and the unacquaintance of the city firemen with the premises. Mr. Ewart points out that attempts to cut a section of the roof away as a fire breach were made, but were ineffectual because the roof was a double one. As to the frozen hydrant on the grounds it is shown that it would have availed but little as a water supply, being fed from the tank in the west tower, which also supplies the hydrants in the corridors, while those dispersed on the grounds are said to be for grass watering purposes only. The apliances in the building were never intended to cope "unaided" with a considerable fire, the assistance of the city brigade being always counted upon. Mr. Ewart, in conclusion, finds that the staff of the Public Works Department did its duty, in short "that nothing which could be done under the difficult circumstances was left undone."

The Cabinet will decide on Friday as to the precise manner in which the Western Block will be restored.

The possible consequences of a fire in the tinder-box top floor of the Eastern Block have so impressed themselves upon the Minister of the Interior that he has had a quantity of records of that department removed to the Agriculture Department. The much-abused Langevin building is the only fire-proof structure of the lot, and it is the model room of the patent branch that Mr. Sifton has chosen for the storage of the valuable records of the Interior Department.

The Canada Atlantic Railway ran a special excursion to Montreal this afternoon for the hockey match. The train left here at 4.18 and arrived at Montreal 6.55, which included twenty minutes' stop at Alexandria. The actual running time was 2 hours 17 minutes, not bad for 120 miles.

Richard Nettle of the Inland Revenue Department has been granted leave of absence until July 1, when he will be superannuated. He is possibly the oldest man in the public service in Canada, although not the oldest in point of service. He was first appointed in 1857.

Writs for the Commons vacancies in Champlain and Bonaventure counties will be issued to-morrow. Nomination March 2 ;polling March 9.

The Government has decided to abolish the office of Deputy Commissioner of Patents, vacant by the death of Mr. Richard Pope. A bill for this purpose will be introduced into Parliament. Since the disputes about patents are now decided by the Judge of the Exchequer Court, Mr. Fisher thinks the signing of official documents can be done by Mr. Scarth, his deputy.

The following telegram was received to-day by His Excellency the Governor-General from Chief Justice Sir Francis McLean, Chairman of Famine Relief Committee, Calcutta: "Am directed by Central Executive Committee to convey their most grateful thanks to your Excellency and the subscribers to the famine fund for their splendid response to appeal."

Detective Flannigan made an important arrest in connection with incendiarism at Harmon school this afternoon, Theresa Kissick being in the cells, arrested on suspicion of having started the recent fires. The girl reported to the police that she had been employed as a domestic at the school for several years. She comes from Hardley, and is said to be well connected.

The organization of the Reform Association for Eastern Ontario is completed. Sir Richard Cartwright has been appointed president and H. A. Bate of Ottawa, secretary. There is a council of thirty, and the Executive is comprised of Sir Richard Cartwright, Hon. E. H. Bronson, N. A. Belcourt, M.P., H. A. Bate, O. K. Fraser (Brockville), W. C. Edwards, M.P., and F. T. Frost, M.P. S. W. Dawson, ex-M.P., is paid organizer for the district, with headquarters at Ottawa.

The ratepayers of Hintonburgh yesterday voted in favor of the $8000 debentures bylaw submitted to them. The Molsons Bank and other debts incurred by the council of last year will now be paid. Following is the result of election: For the bylaw 177, against 31.

Lady Aberdeen has addressed a circular letter to the press explaining the details of the Home Helpers' jubilee scheme. The Bank of Montreal has undertaken to receive subscriptions for the Victorian Order of Home Helpers in Canada, at any of their branches.

Mr. Fielding to-day received a representation of the American Bank Note Co., tenderers for the contract for printing Canadian notes, stamps, etc. As far as has transpired, no contract has as yet been definitely entered into.

It is reported that the C.P.R. has made the Government a definite proposition to build the Crow's Nest Pass Railway as part of their system if a suitable and sufficient subsidy is given.

The Department of Railways and Canals have extended the time for receiving cement tenders for Portland and hydraulic cement, instead of for Portland only.

The contract for construction of the wharf at L'Orignal has been awarded to Messrs. Murray and Munro, Pembroke, the lowest tenderers.

Rev. Dr. D. M. Ramsay of Mount Forest to-night received a unanimous call from the congregation of Knox Church.

PAUPER IMMIGRATION

Has Been an Inconvenience to Winnipeg and Mayor McCreary Wants It Stopped—Northwest News.

Winnipeg, Feb. 17.—(Special.)—Mayor McCreary of Winnipeg is about to leave for Ottawa to discuss with the Government the question of pauper immigration. During the past year 300 pauper families have been brought in here from Southern Europe, and all are now a charge upon the city.

The Manitoba Legislature opens to-morrow. The amendments to the National School Act made necessary by the recent settlement will be the most important matter up for discussion.

There were three important gatherings in Winnipeg to-day, viz.: Manitoba Dairy Association, which chose John Hettle, president; Western Veterinarians, who elected W. J. Hinman, president, and Grand Lodge of Oddfellows, which elected Thomas Lyons of Winnipeg, Grand Patriarch.

Sir William Van Horne has written the Winnipeg Board of Trade, promising to give special rates to members of the British Association, who meet at Toronto, if they desire to visit the Canadian Northwest. However, Sir William is desirous that members of the association should not go together, in a large party, but singly, or in small parties, which would be better for themselves and the country.

The Winnipeg Board of Trade is memorialising the Dominion Government to establish an experimental farm in the Red River valley.

Winnipeg ladies have contributed over $600 to the local Indian famine fund.

NASHVILLE SOCIETY AGOG.

The Earl and Countess of Aberdeen Made A Great Sensation at the Hon. A. Marjoribank's Wedding.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 17.—There have been notable weddings in Nashville, but none have approached in importance that of Miss Mysale Brown, a member of one of the oldest families in the exclusive section of the South, and the Hon. Archibald J. Majoribanks, brother-in-law of the Governor-General of Canada, Earl aberdeen. The wedding ceremony was performed in the First Presbyterian Church of this city, and a more brilliant collection of old families has not been seen here in a long time.

The groom is a brother of Lady Aberdeen and brother of Lord Tweedmouth. The party which accompanied the groom was unquestionably the most distinguished party that has ever visited this city. It consisted of Lord and Lady Aberdeen, their daughter (Lady Marjory Gordon), Captain Wilberforce of the Queen's Boys, Robert Monroe Ferguson of the Royal Scottish Archers and Lieut.-Col. Strathy of the Fifth Royal Scots Guards of Canada.

The groom is a member of the Royal Scottish Archers, and all of the gentlemen named appeared in full regalia at the wedding and reception at the residence of Mrs. Leslie Warner, which followed. The distinguished party will leave in the morning for Canada. The young couple will make their home in England.

TO REPLACE WEYLER.

A Crisis Impending in Spain Which Will Affect Cuba.

Madrid, Feb. 17.—El Dia, in an article on the political situation, asserts in the most positive terms that a Ministerial crisis is impending, and that it is possible that Senor Sagasta will return to the Premiership.

The paper also says there is a likehood that Gen. Ramon Blanco, late Governor-General of the Philippine islands, will replace Gen. Weyler as Captain-General of Cuba.

The full intensity of living is reached only by the perfectly healthy. Sickness discounts the capacity for enjoyment. If his body is all out of order and run-down, he will not be able to enjoy anything, no matter how full of enjoyment it may be for other people. If he is just a little bit out of order, if he "is not sick, but doesn't feel just right," he will only be able to enjoy things in a half-hearted sort of way. The nearer he is to being perfectly well, the nearer will his capacity for enjoyment be perfect. If this condition doesn't exist, something ought to be done. That means nine cases in ten the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It works directly on the digestive organs, and on the blood and through these on every tissue of the body. It makes the appetite good, digestion and nutrition perfect and supplies rich, red blood to all tissues, building up solid, healthful flesh.

DUNNVILLE INFANTICIDE CASE.

The Police Authorities Believe They Have Got on the Trail of the Guilty Parties.

Dunnville, Ont., Feb. 17.—In the infanticide case here Detective Murray is slowly but surely collecting evidence and seems to be weaving a web from which the perpetrators of the foul murder and their accomplices, if such there be, will find it hard to escape. The witnesses have been most unwilling and would give no evidence excepting what was forced from them.

The theory of the Crown is that the mother of the child is a Miss Diebolt, who is a servant at the Mansion House here. A young farmer named Ross, living about three miles out of town, is said to be the father of the child. The proprietor of the Mansion House and his wife and daughter said they knew nothing about it, that they never even suspected the girl's condition, and that she had never been absent from her work.

Miss Alice Clark, a former companion of the girl, said she had seen her from time to time and believed that she was pregnant lately, and was also enciente about two years ago, when she went to her sister's, a Mrs. Nelson, in Moulton Township, and when she returned some considerable time afterward she had evidently gotten rid of her child, and she never heard what had become of it.

William Overholt, the Mansion House hostler, on being recalled, said Miss Angeline Diebolt had requested him to procure medicine with which to perform an abortion.

Detective Murray and Constable Stevens drove out and interviewed Ross. He made a statement to them to the effect that he was aware the girl was in trouble and acknowledged that he was the father of her child. Ross cannot now be found.

The inquest stands adjourned until Wednesday, 24th inst. Detective Murray will return to Toronto in the morning.

Too Good To Miss!

No Time To Lose!

GOUGH'S Winter Wind-Up.

These are WIND-UP DAYS, and GOUGH BROS' Slashing Cut in Clothing, Cloths, Boots and Shoes, Gentlemen's Furnishings, &c., to Wind-up the Winter Selling Season, is an extraordinary event too important to miss. Never since the days of Adam has good Clothing and Boots and Shoes been sold so cheap as we're selling them now. A colossal stock of Clothing and Boots and Shoes for Men, Women and Children at prices that revoulutionizes the trade, and emphasizes the possibilities of this great emporium for clothing the people.

THE STOCK MUST MELT!

The sudden thaw in prices must dissolve the Bargain Lots on Tables, Counters and Shelves, and the flood of bargains will lend spirit and snap to bargain lovers while they last. Our plan of campaign demands that all Winter Goods must be out of the way for Spring arrivals. Besides we want to do our share in alleviating present distress by helping the farmer, the mechanic, the business man, the women and the youth, and at the same time keeping our tailors and salesmen busy.

New Spring Goods are rushing in upon us faster than we can place them, so we have decided to let the "hide go with the hair" until our two big stores are clear of Winter lines.

More gigantic selling, forced on by tremendous buying, has never been planned, for we dump everything into this Colossal Sale at an average reduction all round of 20 Per Cent. Below Manufacturer's Prices!

These bargains now stare you in the face, and what is worth emphasizing is that in all the lines we show a large variety of patterns and sizes, both in Clothing and Boots and Shoes. It is not our policy to select two or three catch lines. You get the choice of the whole stock. You merely choose what you need—no question about the goodness of the material or workmanship.

The engine frame will be built up of rolled steel I beams with engine castings bolted on. The engine will be placed in a new hull 103 feet long by 19 feet beam, now being built at Bobcaygeon to replace the "Stranton," and is expected to attain a speed of 14 miles an hour. The engines are being built to specifications prepared by A. P. Rankin, consulting engineer, Toronto, and the work will be under his supervision.

WEDDED IN CHINA.

Marriage of Miss Ella Hawkins in the Far East.

The many friends of Miss Ella Hawkins, daughter of Mrs. M. E. Hawkins, of College street, will be interested in learning of her recent marriage in Wuhu, China, to Mr. James Smith, formerly a prosperous young business man of Hamilton.

Both are missionaries in the great Eastern Empire having been sent out through the Christian Alliance. Miss Hawkins, it will be remembered, left Peterborough for the mission field about two years ago.

The wedding took place on December 31st, but news of the affair did not reach town until yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Smith have removed to the city of Tsng-lang-tsien, where they will work in the same together. The residents of the city in question are understood to be very friendly to the missionaries, and so for the present the future of the young couple will not be fraught with the dangers which are frequently associated with the life of a missionary in the Land of the Celestials.

AN OTONABEE WEDDING.

Celebration of the Nuptials of Miss Belle Mitchell and Mr. J. J. Mortimer.

A very pleasant event took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Mitchell, Downer's Corners, Otonabee, on the evening of Tuesday, February 16th. The occasion was the marriage of their youngest daughter, Bella May, to Mr. John James Mortimer, of Minden.

The ceremony took place at eight o'clock in the evening, and was performed by Rev. E. V. Stevenson, M. A., assistant curate of St. John's church, Peterborough.

As the Wedding March was being played, the bride entered the room supported by her father, and accompanied by her bridesmaid, Miss Ada Mitchell, her sister, and two maids of honour, Misses Spray and Minnie Erskine of Peterborough. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Joseph Mortimer.

The bride was attired in a gown of Swiss muslin, trimmed with ribbon and chiffon, the bridesmaid being also gowned in a suit of the same material. The maids of honour wore Swiss muslin as well, and carried bouquets of flowers.

The magnificent display of costly presents showed the high esteem in which the young couple were held by their many friends and acquaintances.

After supper the pleasures and amusements of the evening were so fascinating as to keep the guests from dispersing until a late hour. The young couple take with them to their home in Minden the best wishes of a numerous circle of friends and relatives and their hearty congratulations.

PLENTY OF WORK.

In Peterborough for Mechanics—Orders Received.

In the last issue of the Canadian Engineering Journal the following items of interest to Peterborough appear:

The Canadian General Electric Company has received an order from the Montreal Street Railway Company for 60 motors of the C.G.E. 1,000-type.

The Montreal Cotton Co. has ordered from the Canadian General Electric Co., for their mills at Valleyfield, Que., a second 600-horse-power, three-phase generator and motors, making a total capacity of 1,200 horse power in generators and over 1,000-horse-power in motors installed to date. The motors are largely of the inverted induction type, suspended from the ceiling and direct connected to the line shaft to be run.

The Toronto Electric Light Co. has ordered another 600 horse-power generator from the Canadian General Electric Co.—identical in type with the one recently installed for them by the same company, being belt driven, and running at 300 revolutions per minute.

PERSONAL.

The Misses Bowman, Coldsprings, are visiting friends in town.

Mrs. G. H. Davis and Miss Davis have returned from Clifton Springs.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum has returned from Toronto where he was getting pointers on electric power.

Miss Jennie Crossley, Hunter street, has returned home after spending a very pleasant three weeks in Toronto.

Dr. and Mrs. Carmichael have returned from their wedding trip, and are residing at the corner of Water and Brock streets.

Dr. Clarke left this afternoon for Clifton Springs, where he will spend a couple of weeks recuperating, after a severe attack of muscular rheumatism and la grippe. As the doctor has not permitted himself to take a holiday for the last ten years he is somewhat run down, and the EXAMINER joins with his many friends in wishing him a quick return to robust health.

That he has admirably succeeded is demonstrated in the laughter and applause of their audiences. The supporting company is well selected, everyone fitting into the part with neatness and ability. Prices—25, 35 and 50c.; box seats, 75c.

"Where Doctors Disagree."

There has been a great deal of disagreement from time to time about the therapeutic value of sarsaparilla. In the main, authorities deny any particular medical value to the plant. "It's just an old wife's remedy," they say. And in the main they are right. There are about a dozen varieties of sarsaparilla, scattered through various countries, and of this dozen only one has any real curative power. So a man whose experience might be confined to the eleven other varieties might honestly say there was little value in them. The one valuable sarsaparilla is found in Honduras. C. A. Menardes, a physician of Seville, records the introduction of sarsaparilla into Spain as a result of the Spanish discoveries of the New World, between 1536 and 1545. But he adds, "a better sort soon after came from Honduras." It is this "better sort" that is exclusively in Ayer's Sarsaparilla. And it is the use of this "better sort" that has given Ayer's Sarsaparilla prominence over all other varieties by reason of its wonderful cures of blood diseases. Send for the Curebook, a "story of cures told by the cured." Free. Address J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

ST. PAUL'S CHOIR CONCERT.

The Members Drove to Norwood Yesterday Afternoon.

The members of St. Paul's choir, to the number of about thirty, drove down to Norwood yesterday afternoon and gave a sacred concert in the Presbyterian church.

The annual trip to Norwood has become an established institution with St. Paul's choir, which is always well received by the music loving public of that town. The invitation, therefore, to go to Norwood is always looked forward to with pleasure. Last year the members were entertained at the residence of Mr. Roxburgh, but yesterday supper was served at the church after the visitors had been most cordially welcomed by Rev. Mr. Somerville, and the leading members of the congregation.

HOCKEY.

Last night the Greenies took the following team to Keene for a game: Goal, Arthur McClelland; point, Austin; cover, R. Bradburn; forwards, R. Thorne, F. W. Logan, Bert. Bellegham, Geo. Lewis. Mr. D. Kennealy made a "corking" referee. The score was 5—2. At the conclusion of the match the Peterborough boys were banquetted and shown a royal good time by the Keenites. The Greenies challenge the Printers to a game.

The Toronto Star says: There may be trouble over the action taken by Peterborough in defaulting to Queen's. The latter went to Peterborough and that club received the benefit of the gate money, besides winning. Then, instead of playing the return match, they defaulted at the last minute, after allowing Queen's to go to the expense of advertising the game. The Peterboroughs are subject to penalty of $25 for not giving five days' notice, and it is to be hoped that it will be imposed.

The Globe publishes almost a two-column account of the Berlin-Frontenac hockey match which took place in Toronto last night. The following synopsis will be of interest to local enthusiasts:

And the boys from the region of unlimited beer and sauer kraut have won the intermediate championship, the pride of Kingston being unable to withstand their might. Before the game it is doubtful whether there were more than a handful in the vast crowd in the Mutual street rink who really thought that the western champions would win, and had the courage to back their convictions. The reputation of whirl-wind skating, lightning stick-handling and machine-like combination which had floated up from the Limestone City made the Frontenacs overwhelming favourites, and their backers went down the line trying in vain to get their money covered. Except in a few isolated cases they were unsuccessful, as it was the concensus of opinion that the Kingston team would win, even though the condition of the ice was totally inimical to their style of play. But, sad to relate, they were not in it for a moment, the green-shirted Berliners playing them to a stand-still. Stamina and strength won the struggle for Seagram's seven, who fairly revelled in the rough going and playing the every-man-for-himself game, secured a victory by 3 to 0.

It was a desperate struggle, probably the hardest fought hockey battle that has ever taken place in Toronto. At half time neither team had scored, although the play had been confined to the Frontenacs' end, and only the best kind of work on the part of their defence had despoiled the attacks of their opponents of danger. Only once did they get the puck up within shooting distance of the goal during the half hour's play, and the subsequent shot, if it could be called such, as the rubber did little more than roll in, was easily cleared by Gibson. Inability to adapt themselves to the exigencies of the situation lost the game to the Frontenacs in a measure. They tried to get in some of their pretty combined rushes, but they were so closely checked by their hardy antagonists that they found it impossible to break away. Reynar, who is considered to be the swiftest stick-handler in the profession, seemed only able to move in a circle. A times he would barely move, but with his back hunched up like a tom-cat on the warpath he would nurse the puck by quick motions of his stick until the Berliners clustered around him, making dabs at him. This looked very pretty, but it was dreadfully ineffective. He was so closely looked after and received such hard usuage that in the final part of the game he did not mix in the festivities to any great extent. The strong individual play of the 17th of March aggregation, combined with their superior condition, made it only a question of time before they would score. Just as constant dropping of water will wear away a stone, so did the persistent attacks of the Berliners weaken the Frontenacs defence, and, though it took 30 minutes of the hardest kind of rushing to achieve this result when the defence was finally penetrated and the first point notched, all heart seemed to have been taken out of the eastern men, and two other games were rushed through in rapid succession. Every man on the winning team checked hard, and in this respect they excelled the Limestone City septette, who handled themselves in a very namby-pamby sort of way, and generally pushed their way through the slush in a fashion that would lead one to believe that they were afraid of being hurt.

Of course it was not good hockey that was played, but something that closely resembled a mixture of Rugby football and shinney of the catch-as-catch-can kind, but it caught the fancy of the crowd, which was largely composed of enthusiasts from Berlin and Waterloo, including not a few ladies. The green and white was everywhere, and the blue and white of the Frontenacs was completely buried out of sight. Nearly all of the prominent people of the two towns came down to cheer their representatives on to victory, over 250 being in the party which travelled in a special train. The teams lined up as follows:

Berlin goal.
F G Boehmer.
J Gibson.
Jos Seagram.
E Seagram, MacDonald, Dixon, Livingstone, Cunningham, Rayner, Harty, Murray, McDowell.
E guey.

CURLIANA.

No arrangement has yet been made regarding the date or place of the finals in the Midland Colts Association draw.

Isn't it about time for the curlers to begin to talk of their annual excursion to Toronto.

Last night at the rink another draw was played off in the LeBrun medal series with the following result:

Dr Greer,	H Snowden,
W J Thompson,	A Blade,
J Staeger,	C Rutherford,
Jno McKee, sk....12	A McNeil, sk.....16

A scratch match resulted as follows:

O B Shortly,	Herb Hall,
W H Meredith,	Geo Giroux,
Geo Edmison,	Jno McClelland,
Judge Weller, sk.... 8	D Bellegham, sk..... 8

In the afternoon Messrs. H. LeBrun and R. H. Fortye played a challenge match for 100 loaves of bread for the poor. The result was as is appended:

A McNeil,	H Snowden,
Ed Brown,	J D Baptie,
R S Davidson,	T Rutherford,
H LeBrun, sk..... 7	R H Fortye, sk.....15

Unless Skip LeBrun makes up the eight points in the next match the poor of the town will benefit at his expense.

Mr. Jas. Vance, president of the Ingersoll Curling Club, has been fined $50 and costs by Police Magistrate Morrison for allowing liquor to be given to the members of a visiting club while playing on the Ingersoll rink. The case has excited considerable interest in the district. It commenced with a newspaper correspondence started by the Rev. W. W. Hutt, and then, at the match in question, several of the members of the Ingersoll team retired from the rink. A similar action is now proceeding against Mr. M. T. Buchanan, a member of the Oxford county council for the Ingersoll division.

THE TURF.

Henderson, recently owned in town, won the "free for all" at Aylmer yesterday. Harry Nesbitt now owns his half brother, which is reported to be even speedier than Henderson and is a fine open-gaited fellow with great knee action.

COURT KINMOUNT.

DIED.

CORBETT.—At 16 Parnell street, Peterborough, on Wednesday, Feb. 17, 1897, the wife of Mr. P. Corbett, aged 39 years. Funeral on Friday, Feb. 19th, at 9 o'clock, to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Sour

Stomach, sometimes called waterbrash, and burning pain, distress, nausea, dyspepsia, are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. This it accomplishes because with its wonderful power as a blood purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla gently tones and strengthens the stomach and digestive organs, invigorates the liver, creates an appetite, gives refreshing sleep, and raises the health tone. In cases of dyspepsia and indigestion it seems to have "a magic touch."

"For over 12 years I suffered from sour with severe pains across my shoulders, and great distress. I had violent nausea which would leave me very weak and faint, difficult to get my breath. These spells came oftener and more severe. I did not receive any lasting benefit from physicians, but found such happy effects from a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I took several bottles and mean to always keep it in the house. I am now able to do all my own work, which for six years I have been unable to do. My husband and son have also been greatly benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla—for pains in the back, and after the grip. I gladly recommend this grand blood medicine." MRS. PETER BURBY, Leominster, Mass.

"GRANDMA HASKELL."

She is Now a Hundred and Six Years Old.

The Globe contains the following reference to Mrs. Timothy Haskell, of Port Hope, who is the grandmother of Messrs. Fred. and Al. Haskell, of town:—

"Port Hope is noted for the longevity of many of its inhabitants, as shown by records in possession of its local antiquary, and now being tabulated for publication. Mrs. Timothy Haskell, whose portrait is here given, was born in Dorset, in the State of Vermont, on Jan. 1, 1791, her maiden name being Electa Newcombe Johnson. Her father fought under General Washington in the Revolutuary War. She came to Cochingomink, now named Port Hope, in March, 1803, being then between 11 and 12 years of age. "In the year 1800," to use her own words, "we lived at Johnsbargh, New York, being then in my ninth year, and I well remember an old veteran of the war of 1776 playing the fife for a dance at our house; one of the party fired a pistol up the chimney, bringing down a cloud of soot. We came by sleighs, touching at Wolfe Island, thence via Kingston and Belleville, were we spent one winter, and then to Port Hope. There were only five families living here at the time, Mr. Heywood, Mr. Ward, sr., Peter Smith, Mynd hert Harris, and our family. At a party given on Christmas eve we numbered seven; all the then available white inhabitants of this place. There was one house up on the hill, and Indian wigwams lined the river banks. There were then in the neighbourhood wolves, bears, deer and fish in abundance. I have seen Indian war dances, and by compulsion have taken part with the squaws in their dances to a chant that was something like this: "Cui cuing cuway, etc." (imitating the weird dance music of the aborigines of the time.) The Indians sold us clothes of deer skin, which we then remodelled for our own use. The first meeting house I went to was old St. John's, now St. Marks, over 65 years ago. Bishop Stewart being the pastor. My father was 89 years of age when he died. I lived 49 years on our farm, near the town, and 45 years in Port Hope. Parmelia Soper was the first white girl born in this section. My children were two sons and a daughter. My husband, Timothy C. Haskell, died Nov. 24th, 1867, aged 80 years. I helped him to clear the farm, cutting down trees, rolling the logs in to heaps and gathering brush to help burn them; we had a very primitive shanty at first to live in. Our house was open to all travellers, and we had constant callers. I have cooked as many as 80 pies in one day, to have them all cleared off by visitors before night."

To record all of Mrs. Haskell's experiences would occupy considerable space. Her hearing is good and her memory marvellously perfect, her vision of late has become impaired. She has a number of family relics of bygone days, among them almanacs dated back to 1818, a quilt and needle 76 years old, a spread made of flax grown and spun by herself, the old "Grandfather clock" brought from England, whose tick took has told of a century of time, and numerous other relics of the past. Until very very recently she did did considerable knitting of the best order; samples of which were exhibited at different fairs in the Dominion. She is waited upon by her daughter, who is 80 years of age.

Mrs. Haskell is a good conversationalist. The old lady, in answer to questions, stated "I never experienced much trouble in my life, sunshine and shadow were the same to me, never worrying over reverses or rejoicing exuberantly over successes. I have worked hard all my life, and was always of a contented mind."

THE CHARLOTTE STREET CHOIR

Spends a Pleasant Evening Down in Otonabee.

The members of the Charlotte street Methodist church choir will long cherish pleasant recollections of the enjoyable evening which they spent at the residence of Mr. Dawson Kennedy, Otonabee, last night.

The party drove down in a couple of 'buses, at the invitation of Mrs. Kennedy, and were most hospitably entertained.

Various forms of amusement were furnished for the entertainment of the guests and during the evening refreshments were served. Before leaving the visitors passed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy for their kindness in remembering the choir.

W. F. M. S.

A Meeting Held Last Night in the George Street Church.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society held a meeting in the George street Methodist Sunday school room last evening. There was a good attendance. Rev. W. R. Young occupied the chair. After a short service of prayer and song the following excellent programme was rendered:

Solo.....Mrs Seward
Reading, "The man that died for me".....Miss L Pascoe
Vocal duet.....Misses L Pascoe and Mrs Seward
Reading, "Is Life Worth Living".....Miss Sherlock, of Charlotte street church
Address.....Mrs Hunter, of Murray street Baptist church
Male quartette.....Messrs Harvey, Johnson, Maybee and Goldie

Mrs. Hunter based her interesting address upon the following heads:

1. The call for service. "I have appeared unto thee; I send thee."
2. The foundation of holy service—holy living and holy praying.
3. The demand for personal holiness. "Be thou what thou prayest to be made."
4. The Christian home—the greatest missionary field.
5. The Auxiliary an educational organization.

The Spring Blouses are coming in at Turnbull's. Some pretty dark shades now in.

NEWS NUGGETS.

Paragraphs Picked Up and Pencilled for Public Perusal.

—Cashmere Gloves with Cuffs for 15c a pair at Turnbull's, worth 50c.

—The young men's Bible Class will meet in Y.M.C.A. parlour to-night at 8 o'clock. Introduction—The Minor Prophets. Scriptural lesson—Mark XI. Elements of the Greek Language at 9 o'clock. Everybody welcome.

—The Trenton police have notified the police of the district to be on the lookout for and arrest a man about five feet ten, dark clothes, dark shirt and cap, light moustache, charged with stealing a watch. —Cobourg Post. Tall man that.

—They are discussing the curfew business in Hamilton, and the Times suggests that instead of ringing the bell at night to send the boys home, it should be rung early in the morning to make them get up and do the chores. The idea is an excellent one, but like the curfew it might fail carrying out.

—Father, may I go out to vote?
No, my darling daughter,
Unless you wear my pants and coat
And vote as men folks oughter.

—For variety in staple articles go to Turnbull's. For instance they have six different kinds of Towelling at 5c.

—Recently a carrier pigeon was found among other pigeons on a barn near Campbellford with a tin case attached to one of its legs in which was found a message apparently from a patient to a Dr. Haviland, which read: "Rested well during the night. Pulse at daylight 114," and was signed S. H. Wright. There was nothing to show where the bird came from and so far as can be ascertained no doctor of that name is practising in Ontario.

—The attraction at Bradburn's Opera House Friday and Saturday nights, with a good family matinee on Saturday afternoon, will be Stowe & Co.'s monster Uncle Tom's Cabin. This is the biggest and best Uncle Tom's Cabin Company that ever came into Canada. The company numbers fifty people, and no expense has been spared to make it the grandest attraction the road. Saturday afternoon, at 2.30, a grand ladies' and children's matinee will be given, the prices of admission being 15c. for children and 25c. for adults. Evening prices are 25, 35 and 50 cents. At noon to-morrow a grand street parade will be given. Watch for it. Seats now on sale.

RAILWAY NOTES.

Sparks From the Wheels—Cinders for the Eye.

The Grand Trunk is experimenting with a view to protecting railway crossings with electric bells, which will begin to ring half a mile before the approach of a train.

A party of Grand Trunk officials, comprising Mr. W. R. Tiffin, of Allandale, superintendent of the Northern and Midland divisions; Mr. Arthur White, Toronto, district freight agent, and Mr. W. P. Chapman, Allandale, assistant engineer, came through yesterday afternoon from Toronto to Peterborough on a special train. They returned to Lindsay, and after a short stay at the station there went north to Haliburton. We understand that the question of freight rates, among other things, will be carefully looked into with a view of promoting the shipment of forest produce on a larger scale.

Hamilton Spectator: The Grand Trunk half-yearly statement, just made, must be as gratifying to the stockholders of that company as it is creditable to the new management. Although the statement covers a period of time in which—owing to the uncertainty caused by the failure of the government to announce its policy—people did as little business as possible, the figures for the half year show a surplus of $180,000 as compared with a deficit of $185,006 for the same period of the previous year. The fact that the Chicago and Grand Trunk and the Detroit and Grand Haven parts of the system fall short of paying expenses to the amount of about $400,000—a deficiency, which the Canadian part of the system made up and produced, besides $190,000 to the good, seems to show among other things, that business has been much better in Canada than in the United States. The railways are good indicators of the general condition of business.

WARSAW.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Miss Lavina Crowe, of White Lake, is the guest of Miss Maud Morgan.

A public ball and supper under the auspices of the football club, will be given in the town hall on Friday (to-morrow evening.)

A number of our young men intend leaving for the Northwest about March 1st.

The Baptist tea meeting was a success, both financially and otherwise. The receipts were in the neighbourhood of $80.

While the services in connection with the tea meeting were in progress, some person or persons broke into the hall and carried off a good share of the "grub."

Although no clouds were visible on Tuesday evening, yet the stars didn't shine. Can anyone explain this?

Mrs. J. Doughty, of Norwood, spent a few days this week, visiting her sister, Mrs. John Doughty.

Some of the farmers around here haven't got through thrashing yet.

Despite the unfavourable weather an unusually large crowd attended the Foresters' concert given in their hall on Friday evening last. The following programme was successfully carried out:

Chairman's address.....Mr F Jury
Song.....Prof Teesdale
Recitation.....Wallace Anderson
Song.....Prof Teesdale
Instrumental.....R F Choate
Song.....Prof Teesdale

Intermission.

Speech, "Forestry".....Mr Snider
Clog.....Prof Teesdale

Comic song.....Rollie Doughty
Song.....Prof Tees-dale
Instrumental duet.....R Choate and Jas Kidd
Instrumental.....Bluets and Lumsdin
Song.....Prof Teesdale

God Save the Queen.

Over a hundred spectators watched with eager interest the final hockey match between the town teams on Tuesday evening. The teams lined up as follows:—

Stars.		Mohawks.
Choate	goal	Kidd
Nash	point	Kidd
Kidd	cover point	Kidd
Doughty, Choate	forwards	Lynn, Doughty
Snider, Watts	forwards	Tully, Conway

The puck was faced at 7 p.m. and for a few minutes play was about even, the score at half-time being 3—4 in favour of the Stars. The combination plays of Tully and Lynn during the next few minutes moved the score to 6—4in favour of the Mohawks. Doughty secured the puck, made a brilliant rush and scored twice before he realised that he was off-side. Just having ten minutes left the Mohawks settled down to business, and when the whistle blew the score stood 9—6 in favour of the Mohawks.

It is with feelings of deep regret we chronicle the death of Annie Lowry, the second youngest daughter of John and Eliza Lowry, which occurred at Mimico on Feb. 9th. The remains were brought to Peterborough, via G. T. R., reaching here the same evening. The funeral took place from the family residence at 2 o'clock on Wednesday to the Warsaw cemetery. The sorrowing parents have the sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

A consumptive hopes and hopes, but a time comes when hope ends, and the black shadow of despair forecasts the coming of death. Thousands of doctors say that consumption is incurable. Thousands of consumptives believe that there is "nothing much the trouble and that there is no need to bother with medicine." Both are wrong. Consumption is the most deadly of diseases but it is distinctly curable. It has its inception, like all other wasting diseases, in disorders of the digestive organs, and the first step towards its cure must be the relief of these disorders.

Ninety-eight per cent. of all cases of consumption are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Thousands of consumptives have testified to their complete and permanent recovery through its use, after they were given up by the doctors and all hope was gone. It corrects all disorders of the digestion, makes assimilation perfect, fills the blood with the life-giving elements that build up new, firm and healthy tissues, and acting directly upon the lungs drives out all disease-germs. It is a specific for all lingering, bronchial, throat and lung affections.

"I have been troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia" writes Geo. H. Slater, Esq., of Yates City, Knox Co., Ills., "for the last two years. I got a bottle of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and took it as you directed. It did me so much good I am going to get another bottle and take it. It is the best medicine in the world for those who have stomach trouble. I have recommended it to several already."

The best medical book ever published in any language is Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. Over 680,000 copies of this book have been sold for $1.50 each. It contains 1,008 pages and 300 illustrations. It gives suggestions for treatment of all ailments. There are also prescriptions. This valuable book, in paper binding, may now be had FREE for the asking. Send 21 one-cent stamps to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., to pay the cost of customs and mailing only. If fine cloth binding is desired, send 50 one-cent stamps.

THAT MANDEMENT

Is to be Launched From Quebec Pulpits Feb 18 With a Papal Letter Attached.

Montreal, Feb. 16.—(Special.)—Roma locuta est. The other day your correspondent asked a high ecclesiastical dignity why the collective mandement was not shot off, since it had been signed for many weeks past. He replied as follows: "Don't you think it better for the little guns to await the discharge of the big cannon? Well, the big gun has been heard from, and the small calibre will now rattle forth a fierce discharge. In other words, Pope Leo XIII. has spoken, and conscious of being supported by the head of the Church the Roman Catholic prelates will now be heard from without much delay. On Sunday week the long-delayed collective mandement will be read from the Catholic pulpits, condemning the Laurier-Greenway school settlement, and attached to the mandement in question will be a papal brief or encyclical letter enjoining the faithful to listen to the voice of their natural and legitimate pastors, the bishops."

There is naturally not a little jubilation in ecclesiastical circles because of the fact that the document is to be read on the 28th of the month.

Big teeth and square jaws are always found with low foreheads and small craniums.

The substitution of porcelain filling for gold or amalgam is the dream of the dental scientist.

A Montana dentist's outfit consisted of stout twine, perforated bullets and a single-barrelled pistol.

Wetting a tooth brush and dipping it in salt will be found very effective in the removal of tartar.

The implantation of teeth is not yet a success. Not over one tooth in fifteen takes root and flourishes.

Imperfect teeth are a sure sign of civilisation. Perfect teeth are found, as a rule, only among savages.

George Washington wore false teeth, and two sets of them are owned in Baltimore as valuable heirlooms.

The Talmud allowed Jewish women "to go abroad on the Sabbath with their false golden or silver teeth."

Dental science was utterly lost to the world 1000 years, or during the Dark Ages, and only revived in 1700.

Dr. Younger, of San Francisco, was the first dentist to successfully implant a human tooth into a patient's jaw.

Hosmer says that Aesculaphus in 2100 B.C., used a narcotic when performing such painful operations as tooth drawing.

Out of 100 teeth of adults that twenty-five years ago would have been ruthlessly extracted, 99 are now saved by science.

Women dentists have ceased to attract attention as a novelty, there being now over 400 of the sex engaged in the profession.

The Talmudical folk lore says: If a man dreams that his false teeth have fallen out it is an omen that his children will soon die.

Modern dentists can remedy crooked or projecting jaws by special appliances that gradually train the jaws into their normal position.

In China, while the dentist pulls the tooth an assistant stands by and drowns the lamentation of the victim in the noise of a large gong.

The American and European belle must have her teeth as white as pearls. The "pearls of the Orient" stain their molars a deep black with the betel nut.

The famous Mastral, who lived in the first century B.C., speaks of a Roman dentist, Calcellius, as "in the habit of fastening as well as extracting teeth."

The ancient Greeks used false teeth of sycamore wood, fastened to the adjacent sound teeth by ligatures of silver or gold in like manner to the bridge work of to-day.

Filled teeth, crown and bridge work exhumed in various parts of Italy, Greece and Egypt, with ancient instruments, were shown in large numbers at the Columbian Exposition.

Women detectives or "spotters" with decayed teeth were several years ago employed in New York to make cases against tooth-drawing barbers, who were practising dentistry against the law.

Under the Mosaic regime the law of an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, was literally enforced, and the Lord High Executioner numbered the forceps among his official instruments.

A New York dentist, who puts gold fringes to the molars of the 400, follows his wealthy clientele to Newport during the season, where he opens parlors and is prepared to fill or extract teeth while his patrons wait.

Electricity in motor form has robbed teeth filling of much of its former terror. The work is done, in one-fourth of the time. The mallet, driven at a high rate of speed, is comparatively painless, when compared to the old hand or foot treadle process.

In ancient Egypt the art and practice of medicine and surgery were confined to the priesthood. Each priest adopted a specialty. Evidences of ancient dentistry revealed in the opened tombs indicate that a high proficiency had been attained in at least one branch of dental art.

INJURY AND NEGLECT.

He Failed in Health and Strength—His Kidneys Ached and he Took Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Deseronto, Feb. 8. — (Special). — Among business people here, and especially by his fellow-workmen, great interest has been taken in the case of Mr. James Stokes, who for the past fifteen years has been shipper for the Rathbun Company.

Lately he has run down in health and strength to the point of being compelled to quit work, and his recovery now as the result of using Dodd's Kidney Pills is the talk of the town. On seeing Mr. Stokes he said:

"From overlifting and strain I suffered greatly from Kidney trouble, being advised after all else had failed to use Dodd's Kidney Pills; from the first dose I got relief, and hundreds of people here can vouch for my cure."

Christina Rossetti's Conscientiousness.

Edmund Grosse, in an essay on Christina Rossetti, says that in middle life, at least, she was almost morbidly conscientious. Her scruples were not only delicate, but exceedingly far-reaching. In 1874 a scheme arose in England which would lead to the destruction of a part of the New Forest and influential people started a petition to defeat it.

Swinburne promised his signature, on condition that Christina Rossetti's could be procured; and he hinted rather mischievously that the latter feat would not be easy to accomplish. So Mr. Grosse sought the lady, and found, indeed, that much persuasion was required to convince her that the protest was an innocent and legitimate one.

At last she took up the pen, and began writing her name. Having gone so far as to inscribe "Chr," she stopped, laid down the pen, and inquired earnestly:

"Are you sure they do not propose to build churches on the land?"

After long effort, he succeeded in convincing her that no such scheme was in anybody's mind, and she went so far as to write "istina G. Ros." Then she halted again.

"Nor schoolhouses?" she asked.

But at length the halting signature was finished.

After Acute Bronchitis

CURED BY USING

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

A PREACHER'S EXPERIENCE.

"Three months ago, I took a violent cold which resulted in an attack of acute bronchitis. I put myself under medical treatment, and at the end of two months was no better. I found it very difficult to preach, and concluded to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The first bottle gave me great relief; the second, which I am now taking, has relieved me almost entirely of all unpleasant symptoms, and I feel sure that one or two bottles more will effect a permanent cure. To all ministers suffering from throat troubles, I recommend Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—E. M. BRAWLEY, D. D., Dist. Secretary, Am. Bapt. Publication Society, Petersburg, Va.

FABRICS IN GAY HUES

A GOSSIPY CHAT ABOUT THE COSTLINESS OF FASHION.

How the Best of the Parisian Dressmakers Make the Evening Dresses of Their Fashionable Patrons—What French Women Are Wearing This Winter.

(Special Correspondence.)

Paris.—(Special.)—It is vile weather in Paris, chilly and snowy, and so one can be the better content to forget the grey clouds and biting winds without, in cosy study of gay, bright frocks within. I have been looking at evening dresses for the midwinter fetes for a day or two, and have found many things new in detail, but no more such revolutionary changes in prospect for the immediate future as the last six months have seen.

The best dressmakers here set the seal of their approval on the moderately full skirt without godets. They use much less stiffening than in the days of greater amplitude of draperies, but discourage the effort to get along without any interlining whatever. The drift toward the double skirt shows more plainly in house dresses and in evening frocks than in street costume. The evening gown particularly has grown so used to such arrangement of its flouces as best simulates an overskirt that the overskirt itself, in light transparent materials, is taken as no novelty but matter of course when used. That, however, is not too frequently. The sleeveless evening gown ushered in with flourish of trumpets not long ago has not pushed its popularity very far. One of fashion's sternest edicts this winter is that no section of arm must show between glove and gown. Set up this decree against the decree of no sleeves, and one or the other must yield, else you have anarchy. The glovemakers have done their best to restore peace and harmony by offering longer gloves than ever were seen before, but their good offices count for little, since even with the best intentions possible a glove and shoulder strap cannot for any length of time cohere. They make the effort sometimes; at other times the strap expands, perforce, into sleeve.

There doesn't seem to be very much the matter with your child. He doesn't actually lose weight, but there is no gain. He belongs to that large class of children that don't seem to prosper. You look at him a little more thoughtfully than you do at the rest and say "He is not doing well." Failure to gain in weight in a child is a danger signal. Scott's Emulsion should be taken at once. It puts on fat where health demands it, strengthening the digestion.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Belleville, Ont.

The square-cut evening corsage appears oftener than any other form. It is framed with ribbons often, with flowers or a simple edge of lace, sometimes a double or tripe ruche, falling down upon the shoulders in flounces, stands prime favorite as finish for the rounded bodice, though the folded bertha makes strong claim to that position. The V corsage, with draped bertha, is used on some very pretty new costumes, but the front is apt to be filled in with lace, leaving the decolletage really square, or nearly so. The butterfly bow, with its buckle, big, lace-edged wings and long streaming ends at the back of the waist, is as pretty as any of the belt finishes. Young girls, instead of jewels, wear at the throat ribbons matching the dress garnitures. They effect against the white skin above the decolletage is usually good, though if the neck be pretty any ornament is superfluous. But for such like conceits it is time one turned to examples.

Models For Evening Gowns.

Louis XVI gowns have precedence. Out of a score or more seen here are a couple of the freshest. A dainty combination of rose color and white is for a girl of 18 or 19. The skirt of white silk is striped perpendicularly with pale green, and figured with bouquets of roses. Above the hem is a very wide flounce of white mousseline de soie, with a puffed heading. Opening upon this skirt is another of rose pink silk, making the back and side draperies, and seemingly held away from the front by rows of rose colored ribbon, which catch it to the figured silk below. The square bodice is of rose satin, entirely covered with a blouse of white mousseline de soie, which is fitted to the figure with rows of puffings. The corsage finish is of narrow puffing, below which is set a full ruche of pink satin on either side to form an epaulet for the shoulder. There is a bow of pink ribbon at the bosom and a folded belt at the waist of pink velvet. The short, full sleeves are of pink satin, and the gloves, of ivory-white suede, are more than long enough to meet them. A pink ribbon is worn at the throat and another in the hair.

A much simpler dress, with the general effect of the Marie Antionette style and extremely pretty when worn is of white silk, delicately figured with small flowers in pink and blue. The skirt has two full, narrow ruffles of white silk at the bottom, above which at intervals are set bows of pink velvet. The low square bodice of the same material has a blouse front, gathered into a pink ribbon belt, with a rosette of pink velvet on one side. The shoulders are set in a square frame of pink velvet ribbon, with bows above the arms. Full ruffles of silk make a cross between epaulets and sleeves. White gloves are worn to the shoulders.

Princesse Cut in Black Moire.

Of an altogether different style is a princesse gown of black moire velvet, for a young married woman. The very low bodice has a rich vest of gold guipure, which is quite short and opens upon a front of pleated black tulle, the folds of which fall to the hem of the gown, making the front panel of the skirt. For the rest, the skirt is of black moire velvet, cut straight, narrow and demi-train, giving a tall, stately effect to the figure. But I didn't finish with the bodice. This is sleeveless; narrow bretelles of geranium colored velvet cross the shoulders, are fastened by gold buttons at the waist and fall down upon the skirt quite a distance. The result of dispensing with sleeves has been well calculated in this instance. The absence of puffs upon the shoulders and the long lines of the bretelles harmonizing with the low curves of the princesse robe contribute to the general effect of slenderness and height aimed at in the design. The only detail at variance with the scheme is the waist flounce of gold guipure, with which the vest is finished. If a woman is too slender, the gown would go well with this addition; otherwise, the dress could be made simpler, more elegant and more harmonious by its omission.

Green Silk Ball Dress.

A ball dress of pale green silk, just finished for one of the Russian grand duchesses, may prove interesting. The silk is of solid color, but of so beautiful a weave that the play of color upon its surface would be marred by any figure or design. The skirt is moderately full, rather short and made with godets. A full, narrow ruffle of white mousseline de soie, headed with gold cord, crosses the front in two long, shallow scallops a little above the hem. In the back this trimming drops to the edge of the gown. It is caught up in front and on the sides with bows of white ribbon. The bodice is of the same silk, and is close fitting. A bertha of white mousseline de soie, with gold cord edging its fold, is drawn about the shoulders and crossed in front, making a low V-shaped decolletage. The ends of the bertha are tucked under a waist belt of white ribbon. Large wing-shaped epaulets of knife-pleated silk are perched upon the shoulders, and up under them the long, white gloves are drawn.

A rich gown of white gros-grain silk has been ordered by one of New York's moneyed matrons. The skirt is fuller than is usual at present, and is made stiff by the weight of its sumptuous material. Three ruffles of white chiffon are laid about in deep points, simulating a long over-dress, caught up with bows of dark-green velvet ribbon. The bodice has a square decolletage with a narrow heading of chiffon gathered to a cord of pearls. The front is of handkerchiefs of exquisite lace sewn with pearls. The belt of green velvet has bows arranged in an original fashion among the lace well up on the left side. Very short puffs of white silk caught from below to the shoulder by velvet bows make the sleeves. Pearls are not much in favor for evening wear, because their whiteness dulls the skin; but with the green of this particular gown they are most beautiful. A dress which is to be worn by a New York girl in Paris must be tucked in somewhere before I have forgotten it. It is of silk, with a silvery-blue ground figured with bouquets in pink and green. The skirt has the merest edge of lace at the bottom. The low bodice is cut with a point in front and behind, a thread of lace like that upon the skirt softening the decolletage. The fullness of the blouse is gathered under a belt of torquoise-blue velvet, which fastens at the back with a big butterfly bow and sash ends to the ground. The sleeve puffs are of turquoise velvet clasped on the shoulders with roses.

But enough of dresses. I must tell you of a pretty cape I saw last evening at the Theatre des Nouveaute. It was worn by a rather sallow brunette, and helped her dull skin famously. Its foundation was ruby velvet. At the level of the shoulders it was lengthened by a deep border of ermine. At the throat it had a great flaring Medici collar, covered on the outside with heavy guipure and lined within with sable.

Another theatre cape, combining two sorts of fur, velvet and lace in a fashion almost as sumptuous, was of chinchilla marten, sapphire-blue velvet and guipure. But the sun is coming out, and so I must come to a period abruptly.

ELLEN OSBORN.

A Neat and Cheap Storm Costume.

Now that spring is coming every woman needs a rainy weather costume. English brilliantine possesses just the quality to make one. It is wiry, of light weight and very durable. It does not absorb the wet and get heavy and sag and cling to the angles as serge does. Black or brown and even navy blue is very pretty in brilliantine. Nine yards will make a very pretty, stylish suit—a five-gored skirt, reaching a little below the shoe tops, made very full around the bottom and fitting plainly over the hips, with a narrow facing of haircloth to keep it in shape, lined with porcelaine and finished with velveteen in the usual way, a plain or blouse front waist and a medium length loose front coat with high collar. The coat should be lined with taffeta silk with an interlining of tailor's flannel to make it warm and comfortable for the chilly spring storms. A small toque made of the material with a soft band of velvet round it, to make it becoming to the face, and a stiff wing at the side, leggings to match and good stout shoes make a costume that every sensible woman ought to have.

Facts About Furs and Bankrupt Stocks.

Some dealers in Furs believe in selling Bankrupt Stocks but others there are who do not; yet, at the same time have offered several bankrupt stocks for sale within a short time, while claiming also to sell nothing in Furs but of their own manufacture. We certainly must stand away ahead of our competitors as we do not require the aid of such stocks but stand on the merits of our own manufactured goods, which we can always guarantee as such. Our reputation of 36 years standing without a failure is the best proof that customers believe in us and support us so well. We do not require to make any bombastic statements regarding the size or quality of our stock; both are only too well known in the town as well as in many other places at great distances. We wish to thank our customers for their patronage through the late season.

BUILT UP THE SYSTEM IN A WONDERFUL MANNER.

James A. Bell, of Beaverton, Ont., brother of the Rev. John Wesley Bell, B.D., prostrated by nervous headaches

A victim of the trouble for several years.

South American Nervine effected a complete cure.

In their own particular field few men are beter known than the Rev. John Wesley Bell, B.D., and his brother Mr. James A. Bell. The former will be recognised by his thousands of friends all over the country as the popular and able missionary superintendent of the Royal Templars of Temperance. Among the 20,000 members of this order in Ontario his counsel is sought on all sorts of occasions. On the public platform he is one of the strong men of the day, battling against the evils of intemperance. Equally well known is Mr. Bell in other provinces of the Dominion, having been for years a member of the Manitoba Methodist Conference and part of this time was stationed in Winnipeg. His brother, Mr. James A. Bell, is a highly respected resident of Beaverton, where his influence, though perhaps more circumscribed than that of his eminent brother, is none the less effective and productive of good. Of recent years, however, the working ability of Mr. James A. Bell has been sadly marred by severe attacks of nervous headache, accompanied by indigestion. Who can do fit work when this trouble takes hold of them and especially when it becomes chronic, as was, seemingly, the case with Mr. Bell? The trouble reached such intensity that last June he was completely prostrated. In this condition a friend recommended South American Nervine. Ready to try anything and everything, though he thought he had covered the list of proprietary medicines, he secured a bottle of this great discovery. A second bottle of the medicine was taken and the work was done. Employing his own language: "Two bottles of South American Nervine immediately relieved my headaches and have built up my system in a wonderful manner." Let us not deprecate the good our clergymen and social reformers are doing in the world, but how ill-fitted they would be for their work were it not the relief that South American Nervine brings to them when physical ills overtake them, and when the system, as a result of hard, earnest and continuous work, breaks down. Nervine treats the system as the wise reformer treats the evils he is battling against. It strikes at the root of the trouble. All disease comes from disorganization of the nerve centers. This is a scientific fact. Nervine at once works on these nerve centers; gives to them health and vigor; and then there courses through the system strong, healthy, life-maintaining blood, and nervous troubles of every variety are things of the past.

THE MURDER TRIAL.

leave, but I persuaded him to remain until Kate came back. Think it was about an hour from she went out last until her body was brought in.

I had a conversation with prisoner while standing near the body. He said he had not seen her that day. Told him that he must know what happened, as Kate was his wife. He said she was not his wife, but that she was married to a man named James. The prisoner asked if the deceased had been taking medicine and if there were any bottles in her room or any poison. I had heard of the marriage previously from friends. Parties had called to congratulate Kate. I knew nothing of bottles in her room until told of them by Frank. Gave bottles to Dr. Grant. A cup was found on the window in her room, with something in the bottom of it.

Here Mr. Osler asked the witness to step around and examine the contents of the trunk, which she did, and, as she handled the articles belonging to her dead daughter, the poor woman wept bitterly.

The witness said the articles in the trunk belonged to the deceased. She also identified the letters found in Kate's room.

Mr. Johnston subjected her to a severe cross-examination, but she stuck to her story, only varying a little in the time given by her now and that given at the inquest.

To Mr. Osler: Kate was nearly three years older than the prisoner, who will be 23 years old next month. I sent over $30 to the deceased while she was in Toronto. Kate only laughed when I asked her about her marriage to the prisoner.

The court here adjourned for lunch.

On the court resuming after lunch Mr. Osler put in a couple of letters from Hammond to the deceased, asking her to make an appointment with him in Gravenhurst. These letters were dated Feb. 28 and March 3, 1896, and signed by W. T. James. They were written from Toronto and addressed to the deceased at Gravenhurst.

Dr. A. J. Campbell was the first witness after luncheon. He said: I live in Gravenhurst; keep a drug store. About 11 o'clock on the morning of March 6 the prisoner came into the store and asked for an ounce of hydricyanic acid (prussic acid), saying he wanted to kill cats. I gave it to him in the original bottle as I get it from the wholesale house. (Bottle exhibited, and witness said it looked like the one he sold the prisoner.) I cautioned him as to its use, and gave him examples of its rapid action. He did not sign for it at the time. I saw the prisoner again on the Saturday after Miss Tough's death at his father's home, and asked him what he did with the bottle. He said that after he saw what happened to the young woman he threw it away without opening it. The bottle was a sealed one, securely tied. I told him that as people were talking it was a pity he had thrown it away. He said he did not think that he could find it.

In the afternoon I sent for him, and he signed the poison book. (Book produced with Hammond's signature.) Prisoner said that he knew Kate Tough. He said she was married, but not to him; that she was married to a man named James. He also spoke of her having taken poison on a former occasion. Less than a teaspoonful of prussic acid is a fatal dose. I am a coroner; held the preliminary examination, but found I would be a witness, and sent word to the coroner at Bracebridge to take the case.

Cross-examined by Mr. Johnston: The prisoner never denied having purchased the poison. He voluntarily signed the book when asked to do so. One of the bottles found in the deceased's room had been examined by me, and I pronounced its contents as hydrocyanic acid. My opinion at the coroner's inquest was that the deceased was poisoned.

Here Mr. Johnston referred to the fact that the prisoner's father was now left alone, his wife having died about three weeks ago, and with his only child in jail it was an awful ordeal for the poor man.

The prisoner, who up to this time had sat with his left hand in his pant pocket, his right elbow resting on the back of his chair, and shading his eyes with his right hand, lost control of his feelings and for a few moments wept bitterly.

Mrs. Emily Bailey told of having smelt the bottle found by McNabb, but could detect no smell from it.

It being necessary to argue a point of law the jury was sent out for ten minutes. On returning, the evidence of Constable William Sloan was taken. He told of the arrest, and how, while conveying the prisoner to Bracebridge, that he (prisoner) had said, "That the evidence given by Miss Rosina Russell at the preliminary trial was true." This witness also told of taking bottles, etc., to Prof. Ellis in Toronto.

Miss Rosina Russell said she saw a couple on Sarah-street about 8 o'clock on the night of the alleged murder. Could not recognise them. They turned into Hammond's gate and immediately came out again. The girl wore a cape.

John Skitch gave evidence as to conversation with prisoner about his marriage. Prisoner denied being married to deceased.

Mrs. Tough was recalled, and said there was no truth in the report that on a previous occasion Kate had taken poison.

Mrs. Lee of Toronto, where the deceased last worked, told how she had employed the girl on Jan. 4; that she left about six weeks after in response to a telegram supposed to be from Gravenhurst; that the girl left her purse at her house and prisoner came for it. The trunk was taken away the following Tuesday after the girl left. Mrs. Lee also identified an insurance paper which she had signed for the deceased for insurance in the Provincial Provident Company.

Mrs. Bryan of 35 Beverley-street, Toronto, where Hammond boarded, identified the trunk as the one brought to her house by the prisoner. The trunk was called for by prisoner's father after the death of Kate Tough.

Charles Duggan, an expressman, from Toronto, told of having, in company with prisoner's father removed the trunk from 35 Beverley-street to the Union Station.

Detective Burrows had been instructed by the superintendent to hunt up the trunk; got the check from Aylesworth (of Hyams fame) at the Union Station; got the trunk from the Union on the afternoon of March 13. Handed it over to Archie Sloan, who opened it.

Mr. Cormaly, Superintendent of the Union Station, said two men came to him on the morning of the 12th of March and asked him to recall the trunk, which had previously been shipped to Atherly. The trunk was returned by a late train.

Constable Archie Sloan was then called, but as it was necessary to argue the point of law in reference to the admission of the letters that passed between the prisoner and Mr. Moore of New York, re the electric light scheme, and in which the prisoner says he now hands the matter over to his friend James, who will go into it if his wife gets the insurance, and also reference to the telegram sent by the prisoner to his wife in Gravenhurst, telling her: "Stop taking the medicine as the directions were wrong," and signed "W. T. J."

This witness' evidence was not proceeded with.

The jury was relieved for the rest of the day, and the argument commenced. Mr. Osler contended that the letters and telegram should go in, as they had a direct bearing on the case. Mr Johnston opposed their admission on the ground that the negotiations which the letters referred to were commenced months before the crime was committed; also that the telegram was a privileged communication between husband and wife.

His Lordship reserved his decision until morning. In the meantime he will peruse the commission evidence. If these letters and telegram are ruled out it will materially weaken the Crown's case.

It now looks as if a verdict will not be reached until Friday night or Saturday morning.

A CASE OF DIABETES.

No Help From Medical Men—Suffered for Many Years—Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

North Bruce, Feb. 15 (Special)—An old and well known settler in this Township, named Thomas Brooks, who lives on lots 7 and 8 in the 14th concession is rejoicing with his neighbours over his recent recovery, and he said:

"I was cured by using twenty-four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and as nothing else ever helped me I say they saved my life."

"I had tried all the doctors of this locality and was treated for Diabetes, hoping and suffering for years."

"From reading of cures I determined to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I must say that after using the first box I would have considered them reasonable at ten dollars a box."

Penological.

They broke the news to the convict as gently as possible, but he was nevertheless quite overcome.

"Pardon?" he shrieked, "surely you jest. You shock me. Pardon? For me? After I have been habituated to every luxury? It will kill me. Mercy! I implore you, mercy!"

But there was no mercy. The will of the law was inexorable.—Detroit Tribune.

The Cruel Truth Forced Home.

"Ah, Henry," she sighed, "it is very kind of you to tell me that I am still beautiful and that I look as youthful as I did ten years ago, but you are wrong. I have had proof of it."

"Why, my darling, what do you mean?" he asked.

"To-day when I got aboard the car," she bitterly replied, "not a solitary man offered to give me his seat."

FOUND A JEWEL.

An Important Find by a Brockville Jeweller.

Mr. Joseph Lane, the well-known jeweller of Brockville, says: "For some years I have suffered with severe pains in my back and sides and flashes of heat between my shoulders. I had a tired, wornout feeling.

"The numerous medicines that I took gave me very little relief. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills I thought I would try a box, and got one at Curry's drugstore.

"After the first two or three doses I felt much relieved, and the longer I took them the greater the change for the better in my condition. I am much better in every respect and recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all sufferers from kidney trouble as the best remedy I know of."

Sold by James Lynch, druggist, 168 Hunter street, Peterborough.

Mr. Chas. Smith, Dawn Mills, Ont., says: "For several years I was troubled with pains in my limbs, which continued getting worse until I thought I would have to quit work. In fact the pains were so bad that I could not rest nights. I took one box of Miller's Compound Iron Pills and am perfectly cured." Although it is nearly a year since Mr. S. took the Pills he has had no return of the pains, and feels splendid. Sold in Peterborough by Wm. Madill, druggist.

CARD FROM MR. R. M. ROY TO THE PUBLIC!

Having purchased Mr. P. H. Green's complete Photograph Studio on Hunter street, I take this opportunity of inviting a continuance of the favours of the numerous patrons of this Studio and solicit from my own friends, as well as the public generally, a liberal share of their orders.

Mr. Green will remain with me for a few weeks to personally assist and introduce me to his customers, as well as to complete all work under contract by him.

I have arranged to carry out within a reasonable time any of Mr. Green's unfinished orders, after his removal from Peterborough, and will do all in my power to meet the wishes of my patrons.

This popular studio has been so well known and has enjoyed so large and valuable a patronage ever since its establishment, that it only remains for me to state that it will be my constant aim to continue the high standard of superior photography which it has deservedly maintained.

Miss Dawson will still be in charge of the retouching and finishing department.

Please bear in mind that all Photographs taken by P. H. Green while in business in Peterborough, the negatives of which are in perfect order, are now in my possession, and copies can be had at any time on application.

SHUTTING DOWN —ON— LONG-WINDED CREDIT

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 10th, 1897.

NOTICE—From and after this date, Messrs. H. LeBRUN & CO. have decided to shorten the Term of Credit heretofore given, and, in future, no goods will be sold except for Cash, or on such limited time as may be mutually arranged.

We believe the safest way to do business in these days is to sell for Cash. The next best way is to sell on short dates. Many of our customers who have regularly paid their bills after a reasonable term of credit, would perhaps feel the "Spot Cash" system a hardship, especially while times are so hard and money so scarce. We regard these customers as among the best we have, and are quite satisfied to continue to extend to them the same terms of limited credit they have been accustomed to enjoy.

Our chief complaint is with the "long-winded" customer, who compels us to say that he makes business-life a down-right worry. It makes no difference to us whether a man is worth a million if he won't pay his account. When we need money for our business and are repeatedly put off with "promises to pay" by those who are well able to pay, we have no use for such trade. If every customer treated us in that way we could not carry on business at all. Besides, it is very disagreeable to us to have to "dun" a customer half a dozen times, or spend the profits in postage stamps, and wearing out shoe-leather to boot. We are compelled, therefore, to shut down at once on long credits. Those who can't pay within a reasonable time, we don't want their account in future.

There is a resolution all over the country in favour of Cash or shorter Credits. Cash is a more powerful friend now than ever, and if we must compete with the Cash Stores, who save their discounts, we can't afford to give long credit. Wholesale houses are now offering such big baits in the way of Cash Discounts that we must be prepared to take advantage of them or be handicapped.

All past due Accounts must be settled by the 1st of March; after that date they will be placed in Court for collection. All parties having centra accounts against us are requested to hand them in for settlement at once.

THIS STORE

Is keeping right up-to-date—never missing the new things as they appear, or the chances to buy bargains in your favour.

Stock-taking is all over now, with the balance in our favour. That means something! There's more to this business than brag and bluster. When we say a thing we mean it, and when we mean it we stick to it. It's a satisfaction to know that shoppers are in love with the kind of store we keep, the kind of goods we sell, and the terms on which we sell them.

You Can't do Better Than Talk It Over With Your Wife.

Every woman knows how to economize to pay for clothing the family. Few men succeed in saving money without a wife's help.

You need'nt wait to order your Suit for yourself or boy till you can save money enough to pay the whole amount down. The man who can only save small amounts can pay weekly, and get good honest clothes to wear when our prices are so very low.

If every man waited until he could save large amounts, there would be very little saving done and very little business done either. Comfort, prosperity and savings come in little bits.

ONTARIO'S FINANCES

Annual Statement of the Provincial Treasurer.

A HEALTHY STATE OF AFFAIRS

Substantial Increase in the Casual Revenue—Receipts From Law Stamps Fell Off—Expenditure Kept Well Within the Mark—Increased Expenditure for Education.

Toronto, Feb. 19.

The preliminary business of the Legislature was speedily disposed of yesterday afternoon and the galleries were crowded when Hon. Mr. Harcourt rose to move the House into Committee of Supply.

Hon. R. Harcourt, on rising to present his financial statement, was received with applause from the Government benches. In opening he referred to the fact that if his aim were merely to interest or hold the attention of the audience for an hour or more the topic upon which he was about to address the House was the very last subject which he would select. Yet, said the speaker, the question of our finances, the exact condition of our balance sheet, and everything in fact relating to our expenditure and receipts prove of perennial interest and always command the closest attention.

I have nothing to announce out of the usual or ordinary concerning the finances of 1896, neither as regards our receipts or expenditures. Our receipts for the year, whether taken in the aggregate or having regard to the main heads of revenue taken one by one, are alike satisfactory. I estimated, for instance, last February that we would receive during the year upon which we were then entering $3,122,000. As a fact we did actually receive, excluding the annuities, $3,312,940. This proves that we are always careful to state as our estimate of revenue an amount well within what we can reasonably hope to receive.

Our subsidy receipt was of course the same as last year. It will be noticed that our receipts for the year under the head of "Interest on capital and debts due by the Dominion to Ontario" are less than they were in former years. For several years prior to 1894 we received as interest from the Dominion on moneys held for us a round sum of $300,000 a year; this sum was an approximate amount, the real and actual amount not being as yet exactly ascertained. In 1894 we received $310,020. The Dominion holds in trust for the province the Upper Canada Grammar School Fund $312,769, the Upper Canada Building Fund $1,472,391, and the Land Improvement Fund $124,685, the three aggregating $1,909,845. Last year the Dominion had withheld from the province two payments amounting to $95,493, being 5 per cent. upon that amount. In my last statement, I roughly estimated the unascertained balance due the Dominion on the open accounts at $2,000,000, and the Dominion contended that the amount due from the province, being about equal to the trust funds I have referred to, the payment of interest should be withheld pending a final and complete settlement. Having regard to the recent decisions of the arbitrators this unascertained balance is less than estimated by at least $250,000.

Crown Lands affords the largest source of revenue aside from the subsidy, the amount being $129,009 in excess of the estimate, a satisfactory result in view of the unfavorable year for the lumber industry. Year by year the aggregate revenue from liquor licenses is declining, and will continue to decline, of course, owing to the steady diminution in the number of licenses issued. Of the revenue received from this source last year $112,261 came from the city municipalities and $156,551 from other municipalities. The various municipalities received $267,073 as their share of the fees. In addition to this amount $18,250 was received from 65 brewers and 8 distillers. Litigation which has been decided by the judgment of the Privy Council on 6th February declares that a license fee imposed upon a person carrying on the trade of brewer and wholesale vendor of ale is not indirect taxation; that it is ultra vires provincial legislation, and it affirms our powers to impose a direct tax upon a bank or other commercial corporation carrying on business within the province.

Local option bylaws are in force in Essex town, South Norwich, West Garafraxa, Mariposa, Parry Sound (town), Pickering, Gainsboro, Lobo, Maxville (village), Storrington, Lanark, Tilbury East, Amaranth, East Garafraxa and East Luther. These bylaws cut off 36 taverns and 3 shop licenses.

From succession duties of estimated $200,000 revenue, we received $152,000. One estate in 1895 yielded $134,000, so that the receipts for that year were abnormal. The total receipts from this source since 1892 have been $648,000 from 235 estates, out of 20,530 estates reported to us. The revenue of 1896 was derived from 99 estates, of which 24 were from York county, 9 from Wentworth and 6 each from Brant, Middlesex, Northumberland and Durham. From Haldimand, Halton, Norfolk, Peterborough, Prince Edward and Prescott and Russell no revenue was derived during the year. The proportion of estates upon which duty was paid was one in eighty-six. The largest receipt of duties came from the County of York, which contributed $48,000, and the next largest, $32,000, was from Carleton. After these came Wentworth and Northumberland and Durham. In all these save six collateral heirs inherited considerable portions of the estate and contributed accordingly to our revenue, and in only 12 did direct heirs, such as wife or child, pay anything, and three of these 12 were valued at over $400,000 each.

Since the passage of the Act authorizing the collection of this duty, the counties of York and Carleton (and this for the most part means the cities of Toronto and Ottawa) have contributed 60 per cent. of the total revenue, the former having paid $152,570 and the latter $231,217. Haldimand, Prescott and Russell have not yet appealed a single estate as liable to duty.

From the sale of annuities we realised $177,730, in selling which we have not added to our liabilities, but have substituted terminable annuities for railway aid certificates. We are, on the occasion of each sale, postponing, it is true, a part of the liability which was by common consent of all parties in the Legislature at the time created in the pioneer days of the province. We have expended $6,449,000 for railways, and no one disputes either the wisdom of incurring the liability or the justice and reasonableness of now spreading it over a long term of years. The payment for railway aid in 1896 was $270,057, being the largest since 1891. In 1897 $240,250 will be required for this purpose; in 1898, $211,733; 1899, $197,305; 1900, $191,233; 1901, $159,426, and 1902, $143,269, or a reduction of nearly $100,000 in five years.

The increase of $41,000 in revenue from public institutions is mainly due to closer collections of arrears on maintenance account, rendered possible by an improved method in keeping the accounts. The Central Prison shows a falling off as compared with the previous year. The number of paying patients was 904, or less than one out of five. Of this number 286 were in the Toronto, 218 in the London and 173 in the Hamilton asylums.

Our casual revenue has grown from $76,090 in 1893 to $98,000 in 1896, a considerably larger sum than formerly being received by way of percentages from fees of officials.

The receipts from law stamps were the smallest for many years and $20,000 less than in 1894, which must mean less litigation, a less volume of work in our Surrogate and other offices, and some will argue an approach to that extent to the days of the millennium. The large increased receipts from shooting and fishing licenses, viz., $3208, nearly five times as large as those of last year is noticeable.

I need not speak at great length of our expenditures. They will later on in the session be examined closely and with care by the Public Accounts Committee. We succeeded in keeping well within the sums voted by the House. The over expenditure for stationery of $14,267 was largely caused by the public demand for departmental reports, requiring 12,000 additional copies to be printed.

Our expenditure for education keeps growing apace. We spent last year $712,569, or more than one-fifth of our total revenue. No one suggests that we can, consistently with growth, progress and improvement, curtail in this direction.

We expended a little less than the educational vote of last year. The over expenditures were for departmental examinations and superannuated teachers. The cost of examinations increases as the number of candidates increase. The fees paid by candidates amounted to $34,661.

The expenditure for the maintenance of our public institutions represents an amount equal to about one-fourth of the total annual revenue, and was $40,000 greater than in 1895. The over-expenditure on the Brockville Asylum is accounted for by the fact that the number of inmates is small and the cost per capita greater than in larger institutions. The cost per capita of maintenance of patients in the asylums was $124.85, as compared with $142.65 in 1895, $127.22 in 1894 and $135.71 in 1893.

The expenditure for hospitals and charities was the largest the Province has yet incurred. The grants amounted to $194,615. Up to the present time assistance had been given to fourteen counties for County Houses of Refuge, amounting to $52,750. In concluding my remarks on the annual expenditures I wish especially to call attention to the fact that we are year by year reducing our expenses, a reduction of $455,000 having been made in five years.

At this point the speaker passed a eulogy upon Sir Oliver Mowat for his administration of the affairs of this Province, in the course of which he gave a brief history of the progress made by the Province during his regime.

Taking up the question of the accounts in dispute between the Province and Dominion, Hon. Mr. Harcourt, referring to the judgment of the Privy Council exonerating Ontario from liability for the Indian claims, intimated that the Dominion intends formulating a new claim against Ontario and Quebec jointly. The result of the accountant's report and arbitrators' award on the Common School Fund has been to transform the debit balance of $6,561.76 on July 1, 1873, to a credit balance estimated at $187,984.

My estimate of the expenditure of this year is $3,516,063. This is only an estimate. We will, as hon. gentlemen well know, keep within this estimate. We ask this year larger votes

THE HAMMOND TRIAL

Case for the Crown Concluded Yesterday.

PRISONER WAS MORE CHEERFUL

Than on Previous Days, Though the Evidence Was Strong Against Him—The Father Stands by His Son—Insurance Phase of the Case Gone Into.

Bracebridge, Ont., Feb. 18.—(Special.)—"That's the case, My Lord, for the Crown," said Mr. Osler, at five minutes to 6 o'clock this evening, as Dr. Arthur Jukes Johnson of Toronto stepped from the witness box, after forging the last link in a strong chain of circumstantial evidence around the prisoner, William James Hammond, for the alleged murder of his wife, Katie Tough-Hammond. The Crown has thus taken three days to present its side of this now famous case, and if the defence does not call too many witnesses in the morning the chances are that the prisoner will know his fate late to-morrow night.

The prisoner looked more cheerful to-day than he has at any time since the opening of the trial, although the evidence to-day was much stronger against him than that given yesterday. He takes considerable interest in the trial, and sometimes gives his counsel a few useful hints. This afternoon, however, he seemed to forget his surroundings and for a few minutes contentedly perused a copy of one of the daily papers containing a report of the trial.

The unfortunate youth's father listened carefully to every word dropped by the witnesses and the court. He is one of the first to reach the court room in the morning, and does not leave again except for lunch, until the prisoner is removed to the jail at night. His loyalty to his son is noted by all, and many expressions of sympathy are heard for him.

Court opened promptly at 9.30 a.m., and immediately after the formality of calling the roll of jurors had been completed, Mr. Osler called to the stand his first witness on the insurance branch of the case.

Isaac Armbrust, sworn, said: "I am in charge of the office of the Provincial Provident Life Insurance Company in Toronto. Recognise policy No. 14086 produced as one issued on the life of Catherine E. James. It was issued on Feb. 4, 1896, payable to her husband, W. T. James. The amount is $3000. The premium payments were, membership $18, dues $24.30; total $51.30 for first year. After the first year it would cost $33.30 per year. Recognise the application (produced) dated Jan. 9, 1896. Recognise the photo produced (that of the deceased) as the applicant for the insurance. Recognise letter re insurance dated Jan. 13, and I answered it on Jan. 17 and addressed it to Mrs. C. E. James, Bathurst, City."

To Mr. Johnston: "Never saw the husband (the prisoner) in connection with this insurance transaction."

Dr. W. M. Long: "I am cashier of the New York Life Insurance Company at Buffalo, N.Y. A young woman applied to me for insurance on her life. (Photo of deceased produced and recognised as that of the person he referred to). She called first on Nov. 21, 1895, and enquired about the different forms of insurance. She called again next day and applied for a $5000 policy on her life, payable to her husband. I told her my company never made policies payable to the husband, and made her application to read payable to her estate. The application was refused by the company. The cost of premiums on $5000 would be $160 per year."

To Mr. Johnston: Never saw the husband in connection with this transaction. The company would advance no money on policies until the end of the third year, then only a small amount. Had heard of first year policies being used as security for money borrowed from outside parties."

To Mr. Osler: "Policies at the end of the third year would only have a small surrender value."

Ernest W. Burgoyne: "I am assistant superintendent of the Metropolitan Life Assurance Company at Buffalo, N.Y. I identify policy No. 86236A, for the sum of $2000 on the life of Mrs. C. E. James, payable to her husband, W. T. James. I identify the photo as that of the woman who applied for the insurance. The cost of this insurance would be $87.44 per year, payable quarterly. The receipt (produced and identified) paid the policy up to March 18, 1896. The document, dated Buffalo, Nov. 21, was signed by the beneficiary (the prisoner at the bar) in my presence. The prisoner also applied for a similar policy on his own life, but it was refused, as he did not pass the doctor's examination. This policy was to be made payable to his wife. The first application was for $5000 on the wife's life, but it was refused, and the $2000 policy subsequently issued."

The cross-examination by Mr. Johnston did not change the witness' evidence.

After some discussion between Mr. Osler and Mr. Johnston, the following letters, found on the person of prisoner when arrested, were admitted as evidence, and read to the jury. The two principal letters were read at Mr. Johnston's request. They are not important, except as showing the prisoner's desire to effect the insurance on his wife's life, and his apparent determination to retain his wife Katie's trunk after she had left Toronto and gone home to Gravenhurst. The letters are in rather pretty hand-writing, and are worth publishing, as an indication of the condition of her mind during this period.

The first letter was from Buffalo, just after Hammond had gone to New York, whither she was to follow him in a few days. She was remaining over to complete negotiations for the life insurance. Although married, she was living under the assumed name of Katie Harrington, and this name is endorsed on the back of the letter:

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 20, 1895.

Dearest Will,—You have no idea how lonely it is here without you, and just think you have only been away a few hours. I don't know what I will do before the week is up. I have attended to all business this morning. Everything will be all right, except the Equitable. They are going to send the policy by express, as they think it will be safe, to 1200 Broadway, so you will have to see about it there. They gave me a receipt, which I will enclose in this letter. The New York Life is all right. You can get it by calling at the home office in New York. You will receive a line from them telling you when to call, and I hope everything will be all right. You will hardly get it before the end of next week. I guess the people here thought it strange I should send my trunk, and not intending to go myself, for Olive said at the table she supposed they would be losing me to-day, as I had sent my trunk. She looked surprised when I told her I was not. Now, Willie, be sure and write just as soon as you get this, for I will be very anxious about the receipt, also to hear how you are getting along, and how you like New York. I will pray every night for success in all your undertakings and trust my prayers will be answered. I think this is all at present, so good bye, my darling, my sweet love, and write soon. I remain your loving Catharine.

The next is a brief note, after they had returned from New York to Toronto. Katie had taken a position as domestic at Mrs. Lee's, 450 Bathurst-street, from which house the next is written:

450 Bathurst-street, Toronto, Jan. 16.

Dearest Willie,—As I have to keep house

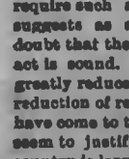
THE NEW COUNTY COUNCIL SYSTEM.

The new County Council Act of course has its enemies. There are people in no small abundance in this world, whose normal condition is a state of opposition to everything—not proposed by themselves—on general principles, and it is no surprise that there is hostility, in some quarters, to the County Councils Act of 1896. But there is evidence, which is accumulating every day, to show that the Act is beneficial to a very gratifying degree. This county's experience the last session was in favour of its greater economy over the old system, with an equal, if not greater degree of efficiency. In Perth county there was a vigourous protest against the Act before it came into operation, but the experience of a session has worked a change of feeling and the county councillors are quite reconciled to the change, and Mr. Mentieth, the Warden, by the way a strong Conservative, speaks of it in high terms of commendation. And no doubt the general experience is similar. There are of course—as there is sure to be in the working of any new system—some details, especially in the reference to the election of county council representatives that may require such amendments as experience suggests as advisable, but there is no doubt that the principle of the amended act is sound. The expense under it is greatly reduced as is inevitable under a reduction of representatives. The people have come to the decision—and the facts seem to justify their attitude—that the country is largely over governed—that the ship of state is too heavily manned, fore and aft—that we have too many municipal representatives, as well as parliamentary representatives. The number of elected representatives in the various legislative bodies of the several provinces is 588. That is, a population of a little under five millions requires nearly six hundred elected representatives to administer their affairs, while Great Britain with a population of nearly thirty-eight millions, has only six hundred and seventy elected representatives. If Great Britain were as liberally governed in proportion to her population, as Canada is, she would have a parliament of something like 4,200 members. It can hardly be said that if, like the county councils, our legislative bodies were reduced one half that we should not be adequately represented, or that our public affairs would not be well managed. The bill introduced at the present session of the Local Legislature, looking to a reduction in the number of councillors in towns and villages, is another response to a common-sense demand for diminution of the evident over-government existing in all branches of our representative institutions, excepting county councils, at the present time.

Cook's Cotton Root Compound



Is the only safe, reliable monthly medicine on which ladies can depend in the hour and time of need. Is prepared in two degrees of strength.

No. 1 for ordinary cases is by far the best dollar medicine known—sold by druggists, one Dollar per box.

No. 2 for special cases—10 degrees stronger—sold by druggists. One box, Three Dollars; two boxes, Five Dollars. No. 1, or No. 2, mailed on receipt of price and two 2-cent stamps.

The Cook Company, Windsor, Ontario.

Sold in Peterborough and everywhere in Canada by all respectable druggists.

THE Mail and Empire seems very anxious to impress upon the taxpayers of Ontario that the present administration is running the province behind at the rate of $32,500 a month, $7,500 per week, $1,240 per working day. This is a terrible indictment. Because there happened to be a discrepancy between receipts and expenditures, to the amount mentioned, in one year's operations, owing to the receipts falling short, in some respects, of the estimates, the Mail and Empire seeks to create the impression that the people are to be crushed from taxes. Will the organ kindly specify to what extent the people are now taxed to furnish a provincial revenue, and what the probable burden of increased taxation is likely to be? As a matter of fact the expenditure is less last year than in 1895—a decrease of $11,986; and the estimates brought down on Wednesday showed a decrease in expenditure for the current year of nearly fifty thousand dollars—$49,441 as compared with 1896, or $61,427 less than in 1895—not a very serious indication of reckless extravagance and a crushing of the ratepayers. At the same time there is an increase in the grants for specially important purposes—for public and separate schools, $15,778; the vote asked for poor and district schools is increased $5,000, and for the encouragement of mining—whose great possibilities justify liberal expenditure—an increase of $13,070 is proposed, the estimate being $29,100 for mining development as against $16,030 last year, and $25,000 for constructing mining roads. A fair consideration of the government's administration of its trust, will show that all round economy is exercised while liberal expenditure is made where the circumstances demand it.

REDUCING THE NUMBER OF TOWN COUNCILLORS.

A bill has been introduced in the Legislature which has for its purpose the lessening of the number of town councillors. The bill provides that in towns of over four thousand inhabitants the council shall consist of a mayor and two councillors to be elected by general vote, and two councillors for each ward. The council of towns of four thousand and under is to consist of a mayor and six councillors to be elected by general vote, and the council of every incorporated village of a reeve and four councillors to be elected by a general vote, and the council of every township is to consist of a reeve and four councillors who shall be elected by general vote where the township is not divided into wards, and where the township is divided into wards, of a reeve who shall be elected by general vote, and one councillor to be elected from each ward.

HAULTAIN.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The annual tea meeting and literary entertainment, held by the Methodist church on Friday the 12th inst., was in spite of the stormy weather a very gratifying success. A committee of ladies presided over the beautifully spread tea tables at Mr. Lafayette Reid's house, and afterwards the following literary and musical programme was rendered at the school house, our esteemed pastor Rev. H. S. Spence, B.A., acting as chairman.

Mr. Wm. Batten, of Dummer, kindly brought over an organ for the evening for a very trifling charge, Mrs. Batten acting as organist. Messrs. Batten, F. Payne, T. Payne, and J. Batten, Mrs. Carveth and Misses Carveth and Hanlon, formed the choir, and by their choice selections of music added very much to the pleasure of the evening.

A pleasant break in the programme was the contest for a large iced fruit cake presented by Mr. Will Crary, in which about $5 was collected, and the cake then distributed amongst the audience. The young ladies in the contest were the Misses Laughlin and Sanderson and the gentlemen Messrs. Bronson and McCauley, Mrs. Laughlin and Mr. McCauley getting one vote of a majority. The proceeds of the evening amounted to $25.05, and after deducting a small amount for expenses the balance was given to our pastor, R. H. S. Spence, B.A. After a vote of thanks to those who helped to make the evening pass so pleasantly, the entertainment closed.

ODD FACTS ABOUT PINS.

Millions of All Kinds, But Where Do They All Go To?

There is a rush in pin patents—not ordinary pins, be it understood, but hatpins and safety pins. Applications for exclusive rights in new styles of hatpins average fifteen a week; yet there is not a satisfactory pattern on the market. That is why inventors are still trying to suit the women folks on this point. There is nothing the matter with the conventional safety pin, though ingenious persons are continually trying to improve on it. It was just what it is now twenty-five hundred years ago. Plenty of specimens, with the familiar spring and catch, have been dug up out of the ruins of old Rome, and still more ancient Etruscan cities. Patents, by the way, are often granted by mistake for things contrived in times well nigh prehistoric. That is bound to occur now and then, but not long ago one of the examiners turned down an improvement on a thrashing machine on account of a description of something similar in the book of Job.

The hairpin is another puzzle. The contrivance in its present state is unsatisfactory; it does not hold the hair. So long ago as 1867 the spiral pin was devised for this purpose; the wavy hairpin is still older. Neither of them does the work to please the women. Some hairpins have been made rough and others wriggly in various ways; but they are inefficient.

The latest hairpin, patented last year, has its points covered with a peculiar woolly fibre, to keep it from slipping.

The factories of Birmingham, England, produce thirty-five million pins daily. Each machine turns out two hundred finished pins a minute, cutting the sections of wire, flattening the ends for heads by means of little hammers, and inserting them into the papers, which are to hold exactly so many apiece, in a given number of rows. What becomes of all the pins is a mystery.

During the reign of Henry VIII. there was a law to the effect that "no pins should be put on sale which were not double-headed, soldered fast to the shank, well smoothed, filed and sharpened." Under Charles, the pinmakers' corporation was founded in London. In those primitive days an average workman might not turn out more than a dozen pins in a day.

In 1824 an American, L. W. Wright, contrived a machine that would make a perfect pin by a single revolution of a wheel. Within the last quarter of a century the progress of invention in this line has been very rapid, and to-day a pound of pins, representing sixteen thousand pins, is sold for from thirty to seventy-five cents, according to quality.

There are many queer kinds of pins. Entomological pins are expressly made for the use of bug hunters, professional and amateur, who employ them for sticking insects in boxes with cork bottoms. They are japanned, to prevent them from rusting, and they cost $1.75 an ounce. One ounce represents only four thousand pins, so it will be seen that they are pretty costly. All of them are manufactured in Germany.

Perhaps the most remarkable of recently patented pins is one that fastens a boutonniere and at the same time furnishes a water-filled receptacle for the flower, which is thus kept fresh. There are ever so many contrivances to prevent scarfpins from getting away, and one of these is a safety pin whose sheath is a wheel, revolving and looking.

A CASE OF DIABETES.

No Help From Medical Men—Suffered for Many Years—Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

North Bruce, Feb. 15 (Special)—An old and well known settler in this Township, named Thomas Brooks, who lives on lots 7 and 8 in the 14th concession is rejoicing with his neighbours over his recent recovery, and he said:

"I was cured by using twenty-four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and as nothing else ever helped me I say they saved my life."

"I had tried all the doctors of this locality and was treated for Diabetes, hoping and suffering for years."

"From reading of cures I determined to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I must say that after using the first box I would have considered them reasonable at ten dollars a box."

MUNYON.

Druggists Testify to the Success of His Improved Homœopathic Remedies.

FACTS THAT CANNOT BE DENIED.

The Sale of Munyon's Remedies Exceeds That of all Other Medicines.

Popular With the People Because They Furnish a Remedy for Every Disease. Cure Promptly and Permanently, and are Only 25 Cents a Bottle.

The sale of Munyon's Remedies all through Ontario is simply phenomenal. Druggists are quietly sold out, and it is not unusual for them to make a daily order for some of the remedies. Better than all, that the people come back and tell of the great benefits they have received. Thousands of bottles are sold each week, and each week adds thousands of names to the list of friends of the Munyon system. Read what the druggists say.

Mr. G. Marshall, 268 Queen street, says: "We have a steady sale for nearly all the Munyon Remedies. We have sold large quantities since they were placed in Toronto.

Mr. E. Colling, druggist, 282 College street, Toronto, says: "We have sold large quantities of Munyon's Remedies since they were introduced here and the sales still continue to be good."

Mr. A. E. Kennedy, 221 Queen street, west, Toronto, says: "We have sold a great number of Munyon's Remedies, and must admit that they have given good satisfaction."

Mr. H. S. Young, Gladstone Pharmacy, Toronto, says: "The demand for Munyon's Remedies have been very large. Have sold a great quantity of each. We are compelled to renew our orders nearly every day."

Mr. H. B. Lander, manager of Johnson's drug store, 703 Queen street, west, Toronto, says: "We have had splendid results from Munyon's Remedies. The sales have exceeded our expectations."

Mr. B. B. Cornwall, of W. H. Rutledge's drug store, 1691 Queen street west, Toronto, says: "The sale of Munyon's Remedies has been extremely large. We sell a great many patent medicines, but we believe that Munyon's have been the most in demand. The sales are increasing daily."

Munyon's Rheumatism Cure never fails to relieve in 1 to 3 hours, and cures in a few days. Price 25c.

Munyon's Dyspepsia Cure positively cures all forms of indigestion and stomach troubles. Price 25c.

Munyon's Cold Cure prevents pneumonia and breaks up a cold in a few hours. Price 25c.

ONTARIO'S FINANCES.

for agriculture, for education and for maintenance of our public institutions.

In conclusion, the speaker expressed the belief that we are on the eve of better times, that the period of depression, widespread and severe, is about spent. The steady and prudent development of our mineral resources would certainly prolong and hold a period of prosperity should it come. The work of developing our rich and inexhaustible mineral wealth has attracted world-wide attention to our mineral fields. There were 29 mining companies incorporated during the last year. Only 24 such companies were incorporated during the four preceding years.

To maintain the highest possible efficiency in every department is at the same time an equally important consideration. That our critics in this House and out of it are not candid in their avowed desire to curtail expenditure I do not for a single moment contend. I do not say that their criticism has not at times been of some assistance to the Government, but I ask them to accompany their criticism with suggestions looking toward a practicable diminishing of the expenditure for the development of the resources of the Province and for the increasing, if possible, of its revenues. After challenging the Opposition to show wherever one dollar of the public money had been improperly expended, he resumed his seat amid loud applause from the Government supporters.

It being half-past 5 o'clock Col. Matheson moved the adjournment of the debate, and the House rose.

MR. MATHESON'S CRITICISM.

Expenditures Increasing, But the Revenue at a Standstill.

Lieut.-Col. Matheson, upon resuming, after recess to criticise the budget address, began by congratulating Mr. Harcourt on his concluding allusions to the wonderful resources of the province. Such a thing should always be done in a budget speech, but he was also obliged to condole with the Treasurer upon the deplorable state of affairs he was forced to defend. The expenditures were above the receipts constantly, and, while the former were increasing year by year, the revenue stood at a standstill. Year by year they had to face the same old story of unaltered receipts in the different departments. It could not be expected, therefore, that the criticism of the conduct of the financial affairs should vary to any great degree. There had always existed a great temptation on the part of Ministers to magnify their own importance by increasing expenditure by means of extended patronage, etc., in their several departments. It should be the duty of a strong Premier to hold such colleagues in check. The late Premier, Sir O. Mowat, while he deserved credit in many ways, had no proper conception of the financial condition of the province.

Turning his attention to the demolition of the timber limits, the Opposition financier claimed that at the present rate of cutting the supply would be exhausted in four or five years. The timber limits were now paying scarcely anything. There was no such resource of pine timber as the Government claimed. Before the Minister of Education spent such large sums on new Technical and Normal Schools, he should know where the money was coming from. The receipts from timber limits should be used only for such capital expenditure as public buildings, colonization roads, etc. The statement that the Government was not spending as much as in former years was no test of the financial management. They were not building Parliament Buildings or asylums every year.

Ordinary yearly expenditure had increased by $689,546 during the past ten years. It was natural that there should be a small increase, but the host of 7000 officials who were eating the life out of the province were responsible for such a large increase as $700,000. The $195,000 appropriated for agriculture might be greatly reduced. The same results could be obtained with much less money. The previous speaker had said nothing about the Central Prison. It was said to be self-supporting, but such was not the case. The accounts were so mixed up with those of previous years that it was very difficult to say whether the ordinary receipts exceeded the ordinary expenditure in connection with the industries alone.

The succession duty rate was also much too high. A large amount of revenue was lost for the reason that people who anticipated death arranged their estate in such a manner as to avoid it. If the duty were fixed at as low a rate as it was in many of the United States he thought that testators would not strive so strenuously to avoid the payment of it.

Commenting upon the item of receipts and expenditure from students' fees, he claimed that the Education Department was one vast machine, of which the Minister of Education was the soul, frame and centre. It was not right that the Government should control all education from the commonschool up to the University. Such management was not in accordance with the liberty of the people, and he quoted John Stuart Mill's essay on "Liberty" to prove what he said. There was no diversity in the education as afforded by the Department. Continuing the subject of higher education, the speaker deplored the fact that it was under the control of the Minister. Why should a land grant be given to Toronto University? It would only mean the placing of land forever in the hands of a corporation. The University would never expand, never do itself justice until it was free from Government control.

Mr. Stratton conveyed his congratulations to the Attorney-General, Provincial Secretary, Mr. Speaker and Mr. Whitney. He justified the expenditures of the Government as being judicious, in the best interests of the Province, and challenged the hon. gentlemen opposite to show where one single dollar of the public money had been misappropriated or had been applied for any other purpose than that for which it had been authorized. Would the Opposition object to the expenditure upon the educational institutions, the institutions for the deaf, the blind, the institutions for the care of those unfortunates who are mentally afflicted? Where would they apply the pruning knife? He regretted that the Provincial Treasurer has seen fit to reduce the estimates for colonization roads, and hoped that the hon. gentleman would take the matter into his consideration and restore the grant to the same amount as last year. The hardy settlers had, he thought, enough difficulties to contend against without the addition of poor roads. In reference to the surplus, he did not care whether there was a million dollars of deficit (he would of course rather have a balance at the bank), so long as the Province obtained full value for the money. As proof of the economical administration of the Government he quoted from statistics to show that the City of Toronto expended annually a sum equal to that required for the whole Province. Speaking wholly for himself, he expressed the opinion that the Government should at the earliest possible moment place the pine, of which it was estimated that there are fifty-one thousand million feet matured and fit for lumbering, now standing, upon the market. It is better to sell it now than to allow it to remain to be destroyed by fire, as it most assuredly will unless cut down.

Dr. Ryerson moved the adjournment of the debate.

THE WAR NEWS CONDENSED.

Sir William Harcourt Hopes Britain Will Not Prevent the Liberation of Crete —Greece Stands Firm.

London, Feb. 18.—Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the leader of the Liberal party, has sent a telegram to the Liverpool Reform Club, in which he says: "I earnestly trust that the Government will not employ the forces of the Crown to prevent the liberation of Crete. Such a proceeding would be universally condemned by the British nation."

The Earl of Kimberly, who was secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in Lord Rosebery's Cabinet, sent a despatch of similar tenor to the club.

The Athens correspondent of The Standard telegraphs that the Greek Cabinet held a meeting to-day and after a full discussion of the Cretan question decided to persist in the policy regarding the island that it had before agreed upon.

Despatches from Athens declare that the war feeling is increasing hourly, and that Macedonians are flocking to join Greece in war against the Turks, 1000 volunteers crossing the border in a body.

FOUND A JEWEL.

An Important Find by a Brockville Jeweller.

Mr. Joseph Lane, the well-known jeweller of Brockville, says: "For some years I have suffered with severe pains in my back and sides and flashes of heat between my shoulders. I had a tired, wornout feeling.

"The numerous medicines that I took gave me very little relief. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills I thought I would try a box, and got one at Curry's drugstore.

"After the first two or three doses I felt myself relieved, and the longer I took them the greater the change for the better in my condition. I am much better in every respect and recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all sufferers from kidney trouble as the best remedy I knew of."

FROCK FOR YOUNG GIRL.

This frock is suitable for a girlish wearer. It is the favorite French mixture of a blue ground with white spots, the bodice having a box-plait down the centre and bishop's sleeves. A dark blue silk belt swathes the waist, and a charming touch is given by the white cloth collar embroidered in gold, and shaped into points over the shoulder. The cuffs are white cloth to match, and white silk muslin frills form a high collar above the blue silk neckband.

SHUTTING DOWN

—ON—

LONG-WINDED CREDIT

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 10th, 1897.

NOTICE—From and after this date, Messrs. H. LeBRUN & CO. have decided to shorten the Term of Credit heretofore given, and, in future, no goods will be sold except for Cash, or on such limited time as may be mutually arranged.

We believe the safest way to do business in these days is to sell for Cash. The next best way is to sell on short dates. Many of our customers who have regularly paid their bills after a reasonable term of credit, would perhaps feel the "Spot Cash" system a hardship, especially while times are so hard and money so scarce. We regard these customers as among the best we have, and are quite satisfied to continue to extend to them the same terms of limited credit they have been accustomed to enjoy.

Our chief complaint is with the "long-winded" customer, who compels us to say that he makes business-life a down-right worry. It makes no difference to us whether a man is worth a million if he won't pay his account. When we need money for our business and are repeatedly put off with "promises to pay" by those who are well able to pay, we have no use for such trade. If every customer treated us in that way we could not carry on business at all. Besides, it is very disagreeable to us to have to "dun" a customer half a dozen times, or spend the profits in postage stamps, and wearing out shoe-leather to boot. We are compelled, therefore, to shut down at once on long credits. Those who can't pay within a reasonable time, we don't want their account in future.

There is a resolution all over the country in favour of Cash or shorter Credits. Cash is a more powerful friend now than ever, and if we must compete with the Cash Stores, who save their discounts, we can't afford to give long credit. Wholesale houses are now offering such big baits in the way of Cash Discounts that we must be prepared to take advantage of them or be handicapped.

All past due Accounts must be settled by the 1st of March; after that date they will be placed in Court for collection. All parties having contra accounts against us are requested to hand them in for settlement at once.

Trent River Fish.

Some time ago strong representations were received from the anglers living in the counties of Northumberland and Hastings that the bass in the Trent river were being seriously injured by netting. Accordingly an order-in-council was passed prohibiting the use of nets. A petition has now been received at the fisheries department, asking for the restoration of netting privileges. Hundreds of names are attached to the petition. The ground upon which netting is requested is that inferior kinds of fish are increasing very rapidly.

Saturday Bargains in Music.

The following songs and instrumental music will be sold all day Saturday for 5 and 10 cents per copy at Mulligan & Potter's music store: Cuddle Down Hooney, The Clang of the Forge, Fernclift, Alabama Two-step, Black America, King Cotton, Yale Two-step, Sweet Tilly Taylor, Fallen by the Wayside, Pride of Washington, Bean Ideal and many others as good. Our instruments are the very best in the market. Just see our $6 banjos and guitars. There never was such bargains. Repairing all string instruments a specialty. MULLIGAN & POTTER, 416 George street.

German Bros.' Attraction.

The attraction at Bradburn's Opera House on Monday night, Feb. 22nd, will be the Gormans, in their up-to-date musical comedy, "The Gilhooly's Abroad." The Gormans are well known in Peterborough, having travelled with Haverly's Minstrels, and later with a first-class company of their own. George and John Gorman, the former as Owen Gilhooly, and the latter as Jonathan Tubbs, are the bright particular stars of the present company, and their acting, singing and specialties carry the audience by storm. They are ably supported by an excellent company of artists. Prices—25, 35 and 50c.; box seats, 75c. Seats now on sale.

Y. W. C. A. BOARDING HOME.

It is Now Opened for the Purpose for Which It is Intended.

The boarding house established in connection with the local branch of the Young Women's Christian Association is now open for the purpose for which it has been established and yesterday a large number of visitors were shown through the apartments.

The house is that formerly occupied by Mrs. Fawcett, next to the office of Dr. Clarke, on Brock street, and being commodious, and in every way suitably adapted for the purpose which it is now intended to serve, it is to be hoped that its nine large bedrooms will soon each have an occupant.

The object in starting the Y.W.C.A. boarding house is to provide a home for girls going to school or employed in the town. Here they will be surrounded with good influences, and be as carefully guarded as in their own homes. For the present the residence is under the charge of Mrs. (Rev.) Roger, who, it is understood, has volunteered her services for a year to help the scheme along.

The local headquarters of the Y.W.C.A. have now been moved to the boarding house and the reception room and parlour lie just to the left on entering the front door. Divided from this by folding doors is the board-room, where meetings of the Executive, as well as lectures, etc., are to be held. The parlour is most comfortably fitted up with easy chairs, etc., and piano and a large number of periodicals, etc., are kept on file. Miss Roger has also engaged apartments on this floor, which she will use as a studio for her classes in music.

In the dining room are four small tables, at which the boarders can arrange themselves in little coteries. The idea is a more pleasing one than the usual big boarding house table.

The kitchen is all that can be desired and boasts a fine new range. The laundry is in the basement. Upstairs Mrs. Roger has her private apartments, and four of the other bedrooms have already been neatly furnished by the King's Daughters of St. John's church, the Baptist Young People, St. Paul's ladies and the Young People's Guild, of St. John's. All of these bedrooms are most comfortably fitted up and reflect the greatest credit on the generous donors. The remaining five bedrooms will be fitted up by the Association unless the task is immediately undertaken by some society which wishes to be identified with the work.

Each boarder is expected to look after the room which she occupies, and the board has been reduced to a figure at which, to the inexperienced eye it appears impossible to keep up such an establishment. The amount charged is graded according to the rooms occupied on the different flats, of which there are three, and the prices range from as low as two to three and a half and four dollars a week.

The residence is fitted up throughout in a most home-like manner, and yesterday the carpenters were busy making a most inviting "cosy corner" in the hall at the top of the stairs.

This evening Miss Botterell, travelling secretary in connection with the Y.W.C.A. work, will give an address in the parlour in which she will explain the nature of the work of the Association and the good which it is hoped will be accomplished through the establishment of these boarding houses.

LAST NIGHT'S SOCIAL.

It was a Great Success—The Attendance was Very Large.

A social under the auspices of the Charlotte street Methodist church, took place last evening at the residence of Mr. Geo. May, North Monaghan, and 'busses plied between there and church during the early part of the evening.

A pleasing programme was furnished by Miss Deland, Miss Stevens, Miss Florence Hall and Miss Stanley, assisted by Messrs. J. Steers and W. J. Squires.

A number of games were provided for the occasion and refreshments were served during the evening. The affair was a great success, it is understood, in every way. The attendance was almost too large and the receipts of the evening were most satisfactory.

PERSONAL.

Mr. T. B. Brooks was in Toronto yesterday.

Mr. J. T. Stenson is confined to his room with illness.

Miss Kate Henderson, Park street, is visiting friends in Galt.

Mr. James Kendry, M.P., was registered at the Rossin House, Toronto, yesterday.

Miss Minnie Neill, of Brantford, is visiting at the residence of Mrs. Robt. Neill, Hunter street.

Prof. Newton, of Toronto, has arrived in town, and is registered at the Oriental Hotel.

Mr. Garman Humber, who has been spending the past week with friends in Peterborough, has returned to his home in Bowmanville.

Mrs. Brandon, of Fenelon Falls, and Mrs. English, of Uxbridge, are the guests of the former's daughter, Mrs. W. H. Robertson, corner of McDonel and Harvey streets.

Mr. Geo. E. Elliott of Smith was elected a member of the Executive Committee of the Association of Fairs and Exhibitions held in Toronto on Wednesday, at which Peterborough was represented by Mr. J.R. Stratton, M.P.P., Thos. Blezard, M. P. P., Geo. E. Elliott, D. Kennedy and F. Birdsall.

Mr. Eustace Grabbe, of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, has just received notice of his transfer to Regina. Eustace is a general favourite in both business and society circles, and his departure from town is to be regretted. It is understood he leaves here to assume his new duties almost immediately. He will be replaced here by Mr. Wurtell of Brockville.

Omission was made in yesterday's issue of the fact Miss Vair had assisted in the programme given by St. Paul's church choir in Norwood on Wednesday. With Mr. Crane, Miss Vair sang in the duett "Love Divine," from Steiner, "The Daughter of Jarius," and also gave as a solo Mendelssohn's "O for the Wings of a Dove." The Norwood audience was delighted with Miss Vair's full clear notes.

LADIES AT HOCKEY.

An Hour's Practice at the Rink Yesterday Afternoon.

Another game of hockey took place amongst the young ladies at the hockey rink yesterday afternoon, and the improvement gained through a few practices is wonderful. If Peterborough boys cannot win a championship, the young ladies would doubtless redeem them if an opportunity arose, as the intricacies of the game are being so rapidly acquired that a challenge should be issued to the young ladies of Millbrook or Lindsay in the near future.

As will be seen by the appended list of yesterday's players, the married ladies are not allowing their younger sisters to have the fun all to themselves:

Mrs F Campbell	goal	G Meade
Miss Boucher	point	M McGill
Linda Hall	cover point	G Kendry
L Hall	forwards	P Lundy
Mrs Aylmer	forwards	H Boucher
Miss Lundy	forwards	A Hall
A Hall	forwards	M Bradburn

A referee was dispensed with for the occasion, but with so many available young fellows who are posted on the rules this really shouldn't be allowed to occur again.

The only game scored during the hour's play was one which was shot by Miss Pearl Lundy, who succeeded in rushing the puck from one end of the rink to the other just as the bell rang.

The sport is a glorious one for man, woman or child to indulge in, and with proper care that cold is not taken after such violent exercise, the rosy cheeks of the players are abundant evidence of the health giving properties of the game.

Rink Talk and Items of Local and General Interest to Sportsmen.

CURLIANA.

Millbrook challenged the Thistles to a match by telephone yesterday, and two rinks came up from that village. As it was Granite night at the rink the Thistles could not make arrangements to play the match as spoken of, but had to allow a rink of Thistles to be supplanted by Granites. The result was as follows:

Granites.		Millbrook.
R M Waddell,		C Needler,
W G Morrow,		Winslow,
G M Roger,		Edmunds,
E B Edwards, skip	24	Collins, skip 14
Thistles		Millbrook.
Knapman,		R J Doak,
Belleghem,		A A Smith,
Geo Brown		W T Wood,
Kells, skip	18	J A Vance, skip 16

A return game has been arranged to take place in Millbrook next week.

The annual excursion of the Peterborough curlers to Toronto will take place week after next, and arrangements are already being made to that end. It is a case of "everybody come along."

An interesting curling match took place at the rink last night when Inspector Hodgson, of Toronto, who is in town for a day or so, skipped a rink against Mr. R. S. Davidson with the following result:—

Col Rogers,		C Fessenden,
W Manson,		J Jeffries,
G E Whiten,		Dr Boucher,
R S Davidson, skip	10	Insp. Hodgson, skip 17

HOCKEY.

The Toronto Telegram is responsible for the following: "George Horkine says he would like to arrange a game here with some team, just to show the people what sort of team Peterborough has."

Don't you think, Horkie, that Peterborough has already shown the people just what kind of a team she has? Peterborough took down to Kingston a far stronger team than could be sent to Toronto. They played against the Frontenacs, who didn't even win the Intermediate Championship, and were licked by twelve goals to five. After that it would be absurd to run them up against a senior team, unless it was on the home ice.

Challenges are beginning to pour in on the printers. Last evening arrangements were made for a match with a team from the Electric Works, which will probably take place some night next week at the rink between the hours of ten and eleven. The Hardware Men are also anxious for a crack at the Printers and have challenged them, as well as Bombadier Ames and his cohorts of rat trap fame.

THE WHEEL.

The Toronto Telegram says:—"George Horkine says Peterborough will never again try for the C.W.A. meet."

You are wrong, "Jockey." Just about as wrong as when you gave the Telegram such information as led them to say:—"There will be a lot of Peterborough and Frontenac money to bet on to-night's game. George Horkins, president of the O.H.A. picks the Frontenacs to win. He ought to know."

Peterborough is after that meet for 1898, and will probably get it without a struggle.

BOBCAYGEON BROUGHT TO BOOK.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—The Bobcaygeon Independent reports the recent carnival held there "a decided success in every particular," the part depicting the character of the Princess de Chimay no doubt included—whose name is synonimous of all that is degrading and impure. Your many readers will note that Bobcaygeon has done itself proud in portraying the character of one so void of the moral virtue that is so prized by all respectable persons. The Princess may be having a high old time in Europe, but for goodness sake do not flaunt her tarnished virtues before an audience in the midst of our young people. Comment is superfluous. The character speaks for itself.

MATRIMONIAL.

Wedding Bells in Manvers Last Week.

A very interesting event took place on Tuesday afternoon of last week, Feb. 9th, at the residence of Mrs. John Morgan, of Manvers, near Pontypool, when her daughter Theresa, was united in marriage to Mr. Albert McGill, of Burton, Rev. W. V. Sexsmith being the officiating clergyman.

When the hour appointed for the performance of the ceremony had arrived, the house was well filled with relatives and friends invited to do honour to the occasion.

At 2 o'clock the bridal party entered the parlour to the strains of the wedding march, and took their position under a beautiful arch erected for the purpose. Immediately after the ceremony and congratulations, the company went to the dining room where the table was laden with tempting viands, to which the guests did ample justice.

About forty were present, besides the members of the home circle.

The bride was very tastefully gowned in cream cashmere with veil and orange blossoms. Miss Annie Morgan supported the bride, while Mr. Norman McGill, of Cavanville, nephew of the bridegroom, acted as groomsman. There was a large collection of beautiful wedding presents worthy of a bride so highly esteemed. Mr. and Mrs. McGill took the evening train for the west, where they will spend their honeymoon. On their return they will receive the best wishes of their friends for a long and happy life.

ASHBURNHAM BRIEFS.

Interesting Bits of News From Across the River.

The S. O. E. Band, of town, have very kindly consented to play at the blind Willie Mitchell benefit concert, in the new town hall, Ashburnham, to-night. This will be a pleasing addition to the already excellent programme and the attendance should be large.

There will be a short musical programme in connection with Rev. J. J. Rae's lecture, "Marriage—a Success or a Failure," in Mark street church on Friday, February 26th. The proceeds are in aid of the Peterborough Y.W.C.A.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

Don't forget the formal opening of the Y.W.C.A. Home at 168 Brock street. A good programme has been provided. Miss Botterel, who is in town, will also give an address on the aim and objects of the Y.W.C.A. work here and elsewhere. All are cordially invited.

The Arabians Again

The gang of Arabians who passed through Peterborough last fall are now stranded just outside the limits of the city of London. They were half starved and almost naked, and could not move on as their horses had either been stolen or had strayed away. Their only protection from the bitter cold weather was their rude camps, consisting of pieces of matting thrown over frames. Public sympathy was aroused, and piles of clothing and plenty of food was contributed. Great interest was taken in the colony when it was learned that one of the women had given birth to a child, the little one being ushered into the world when the mercury was 5 below zero.

Musical Toronto.

The EXAMINER acknowledges with thanks a beautifully printed and illustrated "Souvenir of Musical Toronto." It contains brightly written sketches of the leading working musicians of Toronto, with portraits; particularly flattering mention being made of the musical capabilities of Mr. and Mrs. Klingenfeld, well known in Peterborough; mention of the chief music halls, with pictures of the chief pipe organs, and a directory of the leading musicians of the city, and of the general use of the noted Mason & Risch pianos. The little souvenir adds to the strength of Toronto's claim to being "pre-eminently a musical centre." Price, 25 cents; address, Editor Musical Toronto, 32 King street west, Toronto.

—The snow is rapidly going and the sleighing is very poor around town. Between here and Norwood, however, there is a stretch of about fifteen miles where there is plenty of snow yet.

—Some of the young ladies of Morven, near the town of Napanee, have pledged themselves not to keep company with young men who use tobacco, in consequence of an eloquent sermon preached by the Rev. M. Pope on the evil effects of the weed.

—Advertising does not consist in keeping a fine assortment of goods on your shelves, but in letting people know the goods are there. Of course people who voluntarily come in your store see them. The idea is to get people to come in who never were in. That's what increases trade.

—Last month was an exceptionally mild January, the temperature being about 4 degrees above the average in this town for the past quarter of a century. If February continues, however, to the end as mild as it has heretofore been, it will probably be a record-breaker. Three weeks almost of the month have passed, and only once has the temperature been below zero.

Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin Company are in town, the guests of the Grand Central. For a man that has been killed a million or more times, Uncle Tom is very much alive; he never even grows old, neither does Little Eva, who should be old enough by this time to be a grandmother, and Aunt Ophelia seems destined to remain an old maid always. They will all be at the Opera House to-night evergreen and entertaining as ever.

LUMBERING IN THE NORTH.

Very Little Timber has Been Cut This Season.

The lumber operations in the district north of Bobcaygeon, during the season now drawing to a close, have been of a very limited character, and the production will probably be the smallest for many years. This must be attributed to various causes. The pine throughout the district is greatly reduced in quantity, and what is left is being carefully husbanded by its owners. The small demand for lumber, the absence of snow, and the presence of large stocks on hand in the various mill yards, have contributed to the general reduction in operations, but among the lumbermen a feeling prevails that we are on the eve of a revival in the lumber trade, and that within a year there will be a renewal of the old time prosperity.

There cannot, of course, be any large production of pine logs, but the demand for other woods is steadily developing, and there are inquiries for birch, maple, black ash, rock elm and cedar. Various estimates have been formed of the quantity of birch and maple in the north country that could be obtained, and those who are most competent to form an opinion state their belief that birch and maple, fit for sawing into lumber, is now growing in the woods in as large a quantity as there was of pine thirty years ago. The indications all point to the birch of our back country steadily increasing in value. A considerable quantity has been taken out this season in the shape of squared logs, with a waney edge, and it is now piled along the line of the Victoria railway, for export to England. The price paid to the settler selling the trees from which the logs were made appears to have been about $40 per 1,000 cubic feet. Mr. Doody, of Cobourg, has about a thousand pieces at Gelert, Ingoldsby and Haliburton stations, ready for shipment, and better timber was never taken out of our northern woods.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Canada Lumberman, which is a reliable authority on such matters, makes the following statement:

"A compilation of the production of lumber and shingles in the northern pine districts of the United States shows that in 1896 the cut of lumber was 5,636,112,743 feet, against 7,093,396,778 in 1895. In shingles there was a falling off in 1896 of 600,000,000 shingles. The stock of lumber at the mills is less than the previous year by something over 500,000,000 feet."

In a short speech he asked the boys which was a better thing to have, a half or a whole, the answer being unanimous, the "whole" was of course granted. After inspecting the school building and grounds, Sir Henri took tea with the boys and left shortly afterwards, having won the enthusiastic admiration of the whole school.

A BELLEVILLE DEPUTATION

Wants Provincial Help to Develop Hastings Mines.

A deputation from Belleville waited upon the Government on Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of urging upon the Government the necessity of establishing and assay office at Belleville, in order that the ores of North Hastings may be properly tested. It was pointed out that Belleville had already spent $150,000 in bonusing railroads for the purpose of assisting the opening up of the mines in Hastings, but that the great draw back now in the way of the mining boom was that the ores cannot be properly tested. The deputation, which was introduced by the three members for Hastings, Messrs. Biggar, McLaren and Haggerty, was composed of the following gentlemen:—Mayor Johnston, J. M. Hurley, M.P., D. R. Lavan, John G. Frost, T. S. Carman, N. E. Thompson, Joseph James, John McFee, Harry Corby, M. P., Matthew Thompson and B. Burdette, M.P. The Government will consider the matter.

INSTRUCTORS APPOINTED.

The local committee of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association of E. J. Madden of Newburg; Thos. B. Carlaw of Warkworth; and Jas. Whitton of Wellman's Corners, met in the Anglo-American Hotel in Belleville, on Tuesday afternoon. The object of the meeting was to appoint instructors for the western district—from Kingston to Toronto—of the Association. The following were appointed:

No. 1 Division, Napanee and Kingston section—Geo. Bensley, Warkworth.

No. 2 Division, Tweed, Belleville and Prince Edward section—Hugh Howie, Newburgh.

No. 3 Division, Colborne, Brighton, Stirling, Madoc and Campbellford — J. B. Lowery, Frankford.

No. 4 Division, Peterborough, Hastings, Lindsay and Barrie.—J. A. Kerr, Stirling.

Love's young dream is one that fills the heart with intensest joy. Sometimes the happy dream is realized. Frequently, it is not. In many cases loving young couples fall short of true married happiness because of the ill-health of the young wife. A woman who is tortured by pains due to weakness and disease of the organs that are distinctly feminine, cannot be an amiable and helpful wife. Troubles of this nature rack the nerves with pain and sap the strength. Under their malign influence the most amiable and helpful disposition will become soured. The wife that promised to be a cheerful, capable and willing helpmate surprises her husband by proving a sickly, nervous, fretful and helpless invalid. This unfortunate outcome of "Love's young dream" may be prevented or remedied by resorting to the right medicine for troubles of this nature.

The right medicine is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Over 90,000 women have said so in unsolicited letters to its discoverer Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. The "Favorite Prescription" acts directly upon the organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible. It makes them strong and healthy. It allays inflammation and soothes pain. It relieves the strain upon the nerves. It prepares for motherhood and insures the health of the child. All medicine dealers sell it.

"I take pleasure," writes Mrs. Jessie Fuller, of Quiney, Bosque Co., Texas, "in writing you again. I am in better health than I have been in six years. I think your medicine is the best in the world. I hope every woman who is afflicted as I was will take it. Your 'Favorite Prescription' has saved my life. I was not able to get up when I was sick until I began to take your medicine. I cannot thank you enough for what you have done for me. You can use my statement as you like."

Constipation is the all-embracing cause of ill-health. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe.

OTTAWA BUDGET.

The Warrimoo's Big Cargo Methodist Delegation to See Mr. Sifton—Mr. Ryder's Request—Notes.

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—(Special.)—The Department of Trade and Commerce has been advised that the R.M.S. Warrimoo on her last trip from Vancouver, took out a very large cargo for Australia, 2200 tons, being all the vessel could carry, and 250 tons were left on the C.P.R. dock. The Warrimoo's cargo consisted of 1500 tons of flour for Sydney, 60 tons of Massey-Harris bicycles for Sydney, 150 tons of Massey-Harris machinery for various Australian points, and 50 tons of Seattle beer for Honolulu, besides a lot of general merchandise, typewriters, bicycles, boots and shoes, etc.

A deputation of representative Methodists, including Revs. Dr. Carman, general superintendent; Dr. Sutherland, missionary secretary; Dr. Saunders, of the Dominion Methodist Church, Ottawa, and Mr. John J. Maclaren, had an interview with Mr. Sifton to-day in regard to payments to Indian industrial schools in the Northwest, which are under charge of the Methodist Church. In some of the Methodist schools there are double the number of Indian pupils that the department is paying for, and it is contended that a re-adjustment of the financial relations between the Indian Department and the Methodist Church for maintenance of these pupils ought to be made. Arrangements are being made by the Methodist Church to take over the Indian school at Brandon. The deputation also strongly urged that measures be taken to suppress the liquor traffic in Cassiar District, B.C. At one point, where the population numbers ten whites and 40 Chinese, there are six grog shops in full blast, with demoralising effects on the Indian population.

Mr. Ryder, ex-M.P. for Stanstead County, had an interview with Mr. Fisher, at which he asked that American horses sent over to Canadian farmers for feed during the winter, might be brought in in bond. At present a large number of horses owned in the New England States, where in winter there is neither sleighing nor wheeling, are sent over to Canadian farmers for livery during the winter, but they have to be subject to the full duty on being brought in, of which a rebate of 90 per cent. is made on their return. Mr. Ryder wants the 10 per cent. at present retained, done away with, and bond substituted for the payment of any duty. He contends that if this were done the present number of horses sent over for winter bait, would be greatly increased, and that it would immensely increase the value of the Eastern Townships farmers' hay, oats and fodder by using these articles at home, and doing away with all necessity of sending them to market. Mr. Fisher expressed himself as favorable to the scheme and promised to consult his colleagues.

INJURY AND NEGLECT.

He Failed in Health and Strength—His Kidneys Ached and he Took Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Deseronto, Feb. 8. — (Special). — Among business people here, and especially by his fellow-workmen, great interest has been taken in the case of Mr. James Stokes, who for the past fifteen years has been shipper for the Rathbun Company.

Lately he has run down in health and strength to the point of being compelled to quit work, and his recovery now as the result of using Dodd's Kidney Pills is the talk of the town. On seeing Mr. Stokes he said:

"From overlifting and strain I suffered greatly from Kidney trouble, being advised after all else had failed to use Dodd's Kidney Pills; from the first dose I got relief, and hundreds of people here can vouch for my cure."

Constipation Cured.

Gents,—I was in very poor health for over four years; the doctor said it was constipation. Not wanting to spend too much cash I got three bottles of B.B.B. and took it regularly, I can certify that I am now in the very best of health and feel very grateful to B.B.B.

THE LATEST WAR NEWS.

Will the Powers Permit Greece to Annex Crete?—Fleet Cruising Near the Bosphorus.

Constantinople, Feb. 17.—The Ministry of Marine has asked the Government for a credit of £250,000 (Turkish) to defray the expenses incurred in preparing and mobilising the Turkish fleet. The two squadrons are now being prepared. The first, which will comprise four warships and ten torpedo boats, will sail within five days under command of Vice-Admiral Falk. The second will be commanded by Vice--Admiral Hassan, and will consist of five warships and ten torpedo boats. Fifty thousand naval reserves have been summoned for service in addition to the Redifs of the Third Army corps, now at Salonica, and the Redifs of Trebisond, have also been ordered to join their colors, making altogether 76,800 men who will be concentrated near the Greek frontier.

More Marines Landed

Athens, Feb. 17.—Later advices from Crete confirm the rumors that detachments of marines have been landed from the foreign warships at Heraklion, Retimo and Sitia. The officer in comamnd of the French marines, who compose the force of occupation at Retimo, the advices say, has issued a proclamation to the inhabitants of that place.

No Fighting Will be Allowed.

Canea, Feb. 17.—Vice-Admiral Canevaro, commanding the allied naval forces of the powers in Cretan waters, has written a note to the Greek Consul at this place, informing that official that it is the purpose of he powers of their occupancy of various cities of the island to promote a bloodless settlement of the Cretan difficulty, and that, therefore, any attack upon the towns occupied, whether made by Turks or Christians, will be repelled by the united forces of the powers. He also urges the insurgents and the Greeks to abstain from military action in other parts of Crete.

Will They Wink at It?

London, Feb. 17.—The Daily News will say to-morrow: It is reported in the lobby among the Unionist members of the House of Commons that it is not likely that the powers will seriously attempt to dislodge the Greeks from the Island of Crete, but that their presence will, after a decent interval, be acquiesced in with a view to the ultimate annexation of the island to the Greek Kingdom. It is whispered that King George was made aware beforehand that the action taken by Greece would not be resisted desperately.

Greek Captures a Tower.

The Daily News will print to-morrow a despatch from Athens, saying it is reported there that a part of the corps of occupation commanded by Col. Vassos, to-day attacked the tower of Roncolion, he Turkish garrison, after a brief resistance, yielded and the Greek force took possession.

WHAT DOES RUSSIA MEAN?

Black Sea Fleet Ready for Action and Southern Troops Mobilized.

London, Feb. 17.—The Times to-morrow will print a despatch from its St. Petersburg correspondent, crystalizing and confirming the rumors of preparations for war by the Russian Govrenment. These preparations, the despatch says, do not imply any intention on the part of Russia of declaring war, but simply that she is doing everything possible to place herself in readiness for possible warlike action in the vicinity of Constantinople. The Black Sea fleet is constantly ready for action and a large number of troops in the south have been mobilized.

Nut Raising in California.

"Do you know," said a South Water street commission man, who has just returned from a health-seeking trip through the west, "that the great bulk of the people is not aware of the great magnitude of the almond-raising industry in California? When I was out there not long ago I was very much surprised to find so much attention, ground and time given to the culture of the nuts. Something like 25,000 acres of land are devoted to the raising of almonds, and the industry in all its phases represents an outlay of $10,000,000. I really did not think there was such a demand for the nuts. As it is, a large percentage of those used in this country are imported from Malaga and Valencia."

The almond is a native of southern Asia, and has been before the public from the time of the writing of the scripture, in which it is frequently mentioned. There are two kinds of almonds, the sweet and the bitter varieties. Te sweet one's kernel contains a fixed oil and emulsion; while the latter has in addition a nitrogenous substance called amygdalin, which, by combination with emulsion, produces a volatile oil and prussic acid.

The essential oil or essence of almonds, so much used these days in the flavoring of dishes, requires to be used with caution, as it possesses marked poisonous qualities. In some cases the oil, even when taken in small quantities, produces nettlerash.—Chicago Record.

What are you wearing On your feet this weather?

There is style in footwear as there is in hats. Each year the Granby Rubbers and Overshoes are modelled to fit all the fashionable shapes of boots. They are thin so as to prevent clumsy appearance and feeling and to make them so necessitates the use of the finest quality of rubber. While Granby Rubbers and Overshoes are up to date in Style, Fit and Finish, they retain their old enduring quality.

Granby Rubbers wear like Iron.

There is Such a Thing

As wearing Glasses when you shouldn't, and not wearing them when you should.

It is a mistake to do either.

We only give Glasses when they will be beneficial to the wearer.

THE BEST

FAMILY MEDICINE

She Has Ever Known. Words of Praise from a New York Lady for

AYER'S PILLS

"I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have taken them for many years, and always derived the best results from their use. For stomach and liver troubles, and for the cure of headache caused by these derangements, Ayer's Pills cannot be equaled.

When my friends ask me what is the best remedy for disorders of the stomach, liver, or bowels, my invariable answer is, Ayer's Pills. Taken in season, they will break up a cold, prevent la grippe, check fever, and regulate the digestive organs. They are easy to take, and are, indeed, the best all-round family medicine I have ever known."—Mrs. May Johnson, 368 Rider Avenue, New York City.

SOME CURIOUS TALES OF REAL LIFE IN THIS COUNTRY.

A Woman Who Wants to Buy the Husband of Another—A Curious Offset Bill—A Novel Cure For Rheumatism.

Mrs. Frank Harris of Terre Haute, Ind., is being considerably annoyed at present by the calls of a mysterious woman in black, who says she wants to buy Mrs. Harris' husband for herself. She offers to pay a good price, but her offers have been refused, and she says she "will have him anyway." She told Mrs. Harris that fifteen years ago Harris and she were sweethearts, but that she married another man, whom she did not love. The latter died recently and now she wants her old sweetheart back again.

Some thirteen years ago a well-to-do family at Athens, Mich., removed to a farm near Union City. The two younger children disliked to leave behind a family kitten to which they had become greatly attached, and on a subsequent visit to the old home succeeded in smuggling the felines to their new location. In a very few days the father discovered the kittens and commenced a process of extermination. The younger of the children did not like this, and picking up one of the kittens, went to a neighbor's where he contracted for its care at two cents per week. The matter was forgotten until just recently, when the neighbor contracted with the boy—now almost a man grown—for some pigs. The pigs were delivered and then the young man was staggered by the presentation of a bill for $14 for cat pasture in payment. The feline is still alive and well and the neighbor says she has been such an excellent mouser that he will let the board bill go and pay the boy for the pigs.

The conscience of Carrie Dixon is responsible for getting that person and her employer, Mrs. C. L. Porter, into jail on a serious charge. Carrie has confessed that she and Mrs. Porter murdered the latter's husband. Mrs. Porter wanted to get rid of her husband, and when she spoke about it to Carrie, the latter suggested a divorce. This did not meet the approval of Mrs. Porter, however, as she wanted to get her husband's $1000 life insurance. She offered Carrie $50 to help her get rid of him, and the two together boiled some poisoned fly paper and put the decoction in his tea and coffee. This made him take to his bed, and they then sprinkled the mattress with water in an effort to produce pneumonia. This failing, they took the sheets, soaked them in water, and hung them outdoors until they froze. Then they were brought in and the dying man placed between them. When death appeared certain, they called in a doctor, who pronounced the man ill of spinal paralysis, and soon afterward he died. Arsenical poisoning produces this disease. Mrs. Porter got the insurance all right, but Carrie's conscience compelled her to confess, and both of them are under arrest.

Complete fasting for ten days is the cure which John Lynch of Oregon, took for rheumatism, and it worked to a charm. Lynch suffered greatly for years, and doctors could do nothing for him. Finally he stopped eating altogether, and the only thing he took into his stomach each day was about a quart of cold water, which he sipped slowly. After the sixth day he had no desire whatever to eat, and not until ten days had passed did he again take solid food. The cure has worked well, the rheumatism having left his system.

In a theatre in Arad, Hungary a play was being presented in which a man has to pretend to shoot himself after a wasted life. Koloman Balla, a young actor, was playing this part, and when this scene came he fired the fatal shot into his heart. Blood trickled along the boards after he fell, and the audience applauded his acting. When the curtain went down, however, it was found that he had committed suicide, having fired a real bullet instead of a blank cartridge. He had been disappointed in love, and had invited all his friends to come to the play that night, declaring that he expected to play better than ever before.

There is a new danger for women who reject proposals of marriage, if a story which comes from Denver is true. Stella Randolph, of that city, rejected Harry Smith, and shortly after when she met Smith he hypnotized her so that she cannot open her eyes. Oculists have examined her, but her eyes cannot be made to open, and the doctors are at a loss to explain the cause.

Thomas Lowe, of Durant, I.T., is only 26 years old, but his youth hasn't prevented him from marrying sixteen women, all of them in the past eight years. All of the wives are undivorced, and it is this fact which is making Thomas trouble. He is under arrest for bigamy, and if each of his sixteen victims should take it into her head to prosecute him, his chances for spending any of the rest of his life out of prison would probably be small.

A suit called before the Supreme Court of Georgia tells a queer story of accident insurance. A. R. Fowler, while a theological student, preparing to enter the university as a Presbyterian preacher, went to the office of the Preferred Accident Insurance Co. and took out a policy, which gave $2500 for the loss of a hand. The next day he went out hunting and lost a hand by accidental shooting. When he applied for his insurance the company contested it on the ground that the whole action was suspicious. After his first trouble Fowler thought it prudent to still carry a similar policy in the Aetna. October 22, last, while out hunting near Union, Tenn., Fowler lost his other hand, for which the Aetna immediately remunerated him in the sum of $1,666.66. It seems that in both cases he applied for even higher grades of insurance. He is now without hands, but the agents suggest that he has two feet which would make good collateral for future policies.

William Boler of Atchison, Kan., was very much in love with Mrs. Bryant, his neighbor, who was a widow with grown-up children. As Boler was deaf and dumb, as well as legless, his limbs having been lost in a railway accident, he was not a person one would fall in love with at first sight. He knew this, and after waiting seven years for Mrs. Bryant to learn to love him, which she failed to do, he decided that he had no chance of ever winning her and committed suicide by taking poison.

The Shepherd Bird.

Yakamiks are very readily tamed and prove valuable servants to the Indians, who domesticate them, and, as they are courageous and will protect animals intrusted to their care at every risk to themselves, even dogs are obliged to yield to their authority. They may be trusted with the care of a flock of sheep or domestic fowls, and every morning they will drive the ducks and poultry to their feeding places, and carefully collecting any stragglers bring them home at night.

A yakamik soon learns to know and obey the voice of its master, follows him, when permitted, wherever he goes, and appears delighted at receiving caresses. It pines at his absence and welcomes his return and is extremely jealous of any rival. Should any dog or cat approach, it flies at it with the utmost fury, and, attacking it with wings and beak, drives it away.

It presents itself regularly during meals, from which it chases all domestic animals and even the negroes who wait on the table if it be not well acquainted with them, and asks for a share of the eatables only after it has driven away all who might aspire to a favorable notice from the family. —Popular Science.

A Valuable Note.

An honest old blacksmith down in Texas, despairing of ever getting cash out of a delinquent debtor, agreed to take his note for the amount due. The debtor wished to go to a lawyer and have the document drawn up, but the knight of the anvil, who had been a sheriff in days gone by, felt fully competent to draw it up himself. This he proceeded to do with the following result:

"On the first day of June I promise to pay Jeems Nite the sum of eleving dollars, and if said note be not paid on the date aforesaid, then this instrument is to be null and void and of no effect. Witness my hand," etc.—Green Bag.

LAC A LA TORTUE.

A Curious Canadian Iron Mine and Its History.

Lake ores are abundant in Northern Europe, but, so far as the writer's knowledge extends, Lac a la Tortue and a neighboring lake are the only instances of the kind in North America. The ore is extracted from our lake mine by hand and by power. The shallow margin is divided into sections who may desire to work them and who may desire to work them and who are paid at a specified rate per ton of ore raised. Two men generally work in company. Their implements are a shovel, a strong circular sieve and a rough hand barrow. When work is to be begun the workmen remove shoes and stockings and use their feet in searching for ore, which lies imbedded in the soft sand, nothing coarser than sand, except ore cakes, being found in the lake. Guided by their feet, the workmen put down their shovels and bring to the surface a quantity of ore and sand, which they throw into their circular sieve. This is then held below the surface of the water and made to rotate to and fro until the soft sand is washed away from the ore, which is then thrown on a scow provided for the purpose or carried to shore. When a sufficient quantity has been collected it is carted to the railway near at hand and loaded on cars.

From the deeper parts of the lake the ore is raised by means of a steam dredge. The captain of the dredge moves over the lake, and, putting down a pole and working it about on the bottom, can easily learn where there is a body of ore suitable for dredging. The dredge is then moved to the desired spot and work is begun. The ore and sand and brought up in buckets on an endless chain and thrown into a long, revolving screen, adjusted and inclined so as to deliver it upon scows moored to the dredge. In its course down the screen the mixture of ore and mud is acted upon by water which is thrown upon it with considerable force.

By this means the mud and sand are washed out of the screen and the clean ore is deposited on the scows.—J. T. Donald, in Popular Science Monthly.

The full intensity of living is reached only by the perfectly healthy. Sickness discounts the capacity for enjoyment. If his body is all out of order and run-down, he will not be able to enjoy anything, no matter how full of enjoyment it may be for other people. If he is just a little bit out of order, if he "is not sick, but doesn't feel just right," he will only be able to enjoy things in a half-hearted sort of way. The nearer he is to being perfectly well, the nearer will his capacity for enjoyment be perfect. If this condition doesn't exist, something ought to be done. That means nine cases in ten the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It works directly on the digestive organs, and on the blood and through these on every tissue of the body. It makes the appetite good, digestion and nutrition perfect and supplies rich, red blood to all tissues, building up solid, healthful flesh.

Send 31 cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated.

Facts About Furs and Bankrupt Stocks.

Some dealers in Furs believe in selling Bankrupt Stocks but others there are who do not; yet, at the same time have offered several bankrupt stocks for sale within a short time, while claiming also to sell nothing in Furs but of their own manufacture. We certainly must stand away ahead of our competitors as we do not require the aid of such stocks but stand on the merits of our own manufactured goods, which we can always guarantee as such. Our reputation of 36 years standing without a failure is the best proof that customers believe in us and support us so well. We do not require to make any bombastic statements regarding the size or quality of our stock; both are only too well known in the town as well as in many other places at great distances. We wish to thank our customers for their patronage through the late season.

THE MURDER TRIAL.

this evening, I will not be able to go to Beverley-street. Would be pleased if you will call about half past seven. Yours in haste,

Kate.

The other two letters are written after Katie had gone home to Gravenhurst and before Hammond had left Toronto. They explain themselves:

Gravenhurst, Feb. 18.

Dear Will,—I have waited for my trunk till I am tired. I have to tell one lie after another, till I don't know what I will say next, so you must send my trunk at once, for how in Heaven's name do you expect me to get along without my things, besides pa is going to see Mr. Torrey about it, so for Heaven's sake send it by express or freight! But I am afraid you will have to pay it. I think the least you might have done was to send me word you were not coming when you said, for I have walked the streets for two evenings in the storm. Now remember, I wish you to send my trunk at once. I don't care what excuse you have, I must have it at once. I remain your loving Kate.

Gravenhurst, Feb. 27.

Dear Willie,—This is the fourth time I have written to you and I have only received one card from you since I came home. I have not got my trunk yet. I don't know what to think about it; whether you sent it or not. If you have, it must be lost. I don't know what the people think. They never say anything about it now, but at first I had quite a time, for, as I thought I would surely get the check from you Monday evening, as you said, I told them I had given it to the bus driver. Of course, when it didn't come they were anxious. I told them not to bother, for it was all right. Frank seen the fellow up town and asked him about it. The fellow knew nothing of it, and I got into a terrible fuss. They think it is kept for my board. Think of it! You don't know how ashamed I feel. I got a setting out from pa last night. He told me it was a shame for me to stay away as I did, working for my board, for, as far as he could see, I had made nothing. I had a trunk full when I went away; I came home with nothing but a few rags on my back, not fit to be seen. What does your father say to you about being married, for I suppose he has heard all about it? For it is no secret here. Everyone I see ask me about it, but I give them no satisfaction, so they are in the dark as ever. Annie Scott heard it from Mrs. John Cockburn. She said she thought it was quite true and that we had been seen together in New York. Well, that is bad, for it would not look very well for us to be there unless we were married. I wish I knew who saw us. I told Annie she must have made a mistake, so she thought it must be a mistake altogether. Now, will you please write as soon as you get this. Don't send a card, for I may not get it myself. I can't imagine why I don't hear from you. I watch the office like a cat watching a mouse. If I don't hear from you before next Tuesday I am going down to Toronto, so be sure and write. I remain ever your loving Kate.

Archie Sloan, sworn: "I am head constable at Gravenhurst. The prisoner was arrested by my brother. Found the following documents on prisoner when I searched him: A letter from Armbrust to Mrs. James, re policy in the Provincial Provident Company; a letter from the head office of the same company re the annulling of the policy issued in Buffalo; a post-card from W.T.J. to Miss Tough at Gravenhurst; postcard to Mrs. C. E. Tough; a letter directing that a registered letter addressed to W. J. Hammond be delivered to W. T. James, and endorsed on the back of it "$200; policy 2380"; another letter re annulling of insurance; on the reverse of this letter was a draft of the same letter; also found keys on prisoner; trunk came into my possession on March 13; opened trunk with key found on prisoner; in the trunk found insurance policies, also partly torn letter; two men's shirts and collars, initialed, "W.J.H." were also found in trunk besides the dead girl's clothes; an empty bottle was handed to me by Allan McNabb, after it was found by him; saw the place where the bottle was found, an indentation in the snow; the coroner placed the contents of the cup found in a bottle. The marriage certificate was found in the trunk."

Mrs. H. A. Chamberlain, an old lady from Buffalo, was the next witness. She said: "James (the prisoner) boarded at our house in Buffalo, also a young lady named Harrington. They came there about Nov. 1, 1895. James left a week before Miss Harrington. They did not live as man and wife. Recognize photo produced (that of deceased) as Miss Harrington."

Mrs. Amanda Lecompe, who keeps a private hotel at 321 West 32nd-street, New York, said the prisoner came to her house about three weeks before Christmas, 1895. He gave the name of James. A woman came five days after and she knew her as Mrs. James. The two lived as man and wife. The woman left a few days before James did. He left Christmas Eve. Letters came to her house addressed W. J. Hammond, care of W. T. James.

Dr. A. J. Grant: Live in Gravenhurst; called to see deceased on the night of March 6, 1896, at 11 o'clock. She was dead. The pupils of the eyes were dilated and somewhat unequal; hands not clinched; undue fulness of chest. At that time could not discover any cause of death; held a post-mortem examination with Dr. Cornell and made a report to the coroner.

The report, which was here read, showed several signs of prussic acid poisoning, but it concluded by saying that they could not discern the cause of death. The witness said he was not positive that she came to her death by prussic acid poison. The fourth bottle found was handed him by Bowes on April 1. It contained prussic acid poison. The body was that of a very healthy woman.

Court adjourned for luncheon.

When court resumed Mr. Osler asked to tender the application made by Mrs. James to the Equitable Life. This he did in view of what Morse had said about it in the commission evidence, re James placing insurance on his wife in this company. It was admitted and marked exhibit 16. The application was then read, showing that she wanted a $5000 policy on her own life, payable to her husband, the premiums to cost $27.10 every three months.

Dr. Bridgeland (coroner): Held inquest on the body of the deceased; poured the contents of cup found in her room in a bottle and kept it in my possession until I handed it to William Sloan, who took it to Prof. Ellis in Toronto.

The jury were here taken out of the room while a point of law re the admission of the prisoner's evidence at the inquest was discussed. Coroner Bridgeland told how the prisoner had asked for no privileges, and expressed himself as desirous of giving evidence. The coroner further said that he cautioned the prisoner that what he might say would be used against him. Mr. Osler tendered the prisoner's evidence at the inquest as evidence against him now. Mr. Justice MacMahon said that he would follow the precedent of Sir W. R. Meredith in the Hendershott trial, and rule out the evidence given by Hammond at the inquest, but would grant a reserve case so that it could, if necessary, be finally determined before the Court of Criminal Appeal.

The jury returned, and Mr. Johnston proceeded with the cross-examination of Dr. Grant, and for the remainder of the day the court listened to lectures on prussic acid poisoning. Dr. Grant admitted, under cross-examination, that many of the symptoms of prussic acid poison, as laid down in the authorised text books, were absent in this case, while many were present.

The grand jury here filed into court and returned a true bill against John Gray, for rape; also two true bills against Isaac Rittenberg for larceny.

Mr. Johnston stated that statistics showed that prussic acid was largely used by suicides, but seldom for murder.

On re-examination by Mr. Osler, Dr. Grant said that, in face of the authorities quoted by Mr. Johnston, he was still positive that Kate Tough came to her death by prussic acid poisoning.

Dr. Cornell corroborated Dr. Grant's evidence and was subjected to the same rigid cross-examination, at the end of which he still said the deceased died from the effects of prussic acid poison. There was present in the deceased no latent brain or heart trouble.

A flutter of excitement passed over the room when the name of the next witness, Prof. Ellis, of Toronto, was called. He testified to having analyzed the contents of the deceased's stomach, and three bottles. Submitted the contents of the stomach to the usual recognised tests; made six or seven tests; ten per cent. of the quantity of prussic acid taken is a high percentage to find at any post-mortem examination; found one-third of a grain of prussic acid in the stomach, also about three and a half grains phosphoric acid. The minimum dose known to kill is six-tenths of a grain; found in unlabeled bottle half an ounce of liquid, one-sixteenth grain of prussic acid, and 22 grains phosphoric acid; in the other bottle half an ounce of the phosphoric acid; in the contents of the cup a little phosphoric acid. A fatal dose of prussic acid will cause unconsciousness in from ten seconds to two minutes.

This witness was closely cross-examined by Mr. Johnston, and admitted that the amount he found in the stomach was not sufficient to cause death. He was, however, sure death was caused by prussic acid, the balance of the acid having evaporated. Phosphoric acid is not poisonous.

Dr. Arthur Jukes Johnson of Toronto was called and said, taking into consideration the post-mortem report, Prof. Ellis' report, and all the evidence he heard, he was sure death in this case was caused by prussic acid.

This finished the case for the Crown and the Court adjourned until morning.

A slight mistake occurred in last night's report. It was there stated that the check for Miss Tough's trunk was given by the prisoner's father to Aylesworth. It should have read: "The key of the trunk was given by the expressman to Aylesworth."

IT IS ALL TALK.

Yes, but it is Norwood Talk—The Kind That Tells in Norwood.

Talk that tells.
Talk that is endorsed.
Every day talk by people that know.
City talk.
Kidney talk.
Do the kidneys talk?
Well, yes, both loud and long.
You are learning the kidney language.
Backache in kidney language means kidney ache.
Lame back means weak kidneys.
Weak back means weak kidneys.
The kidneys are talking trouble.
Here is some Norwood talk:

Mr. George Taylor, well known in Norwood, has this to say about Doan's Kidney Pills:—

"For a great many years I have been a sufferer from kidney disease. Terrible pain in my side and back made my life a burden. The urine was a dark wine colour, and I was greatly troubled with frequent urination. My sleep was destroyed because of this annoying trouble.

"I have taken scores of medicines, but could get no relief, and thought that I would never be cured. Happily I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills, and got a box at J. C. Moffatt's drug store, and have continued their use for one month.

"I am thankful to say as a result that they have fixed me up. I feel like another person. I do not now have to get up at night, and in fact am entirely cured.

"I think they are the grandest medicine ever placed before the public, and I heartily recommend them to all sufferers from kidney disorder of any kind."

CARD FROM

MR. R. M. ROY

TO THE PUBLIC!

Having purchased Mr. P. H. Green's complete Photograph Studio on Hunter street, I take this opportunity of inviting a continuance of the favours of the numerous patrons of this Studio and solicit from my own friends, as well as the public generally, a liberal share of their orders.

Mr. Green will remain with me for a few weeks to personally assist and introduce me to his customers, as well as to complete all work under contract by him.

I have arranged to carry out within a reasonable time any of Mr. Green's unfinished orders after his removal from Peterborough, and will do all in my power to meet the wishes of my patrons.

This popular studio has been so well known and has enjoyed so large and valuable a patronage ever since its establishment, that it only remains for me to state that it will be my constant aim to continue the high standard of superior photography which it has deservedly maintained.

Miss Dawson will still be in charge of the retouching and finishing department.

Please bear in mind that all Photographs taken by P. H. Green while in business in Peterborough, the negatives of which are in perfect order, are now in my possession, and copies can be had at any time on application.

Too Good To Miss!

No Time To Lose!

GOUGH'S Winter Wind-Up.

These are WIND-UP DAYS, and GOUGH BROS' Slashing Cut in Clothing, Cloths, Boots and Shoes, Gentlemen's Furnishings, &c., to Wind-up the Winter Selling Season, is an extraordinary event too important to miss. Never since the days of Adam has good Clothing and Boots and Shoes been sold so cheap as we're selling them now. A colossal stock of Clothing and Boots and Shoes for Men, Women and Children at prices that revoulutionizes the trade, and emphasizes the possibilities of this great emporium for clothing the people.

THE STOCK MUST MELT!

The sudden thaw in prices must dissolve the Bargain Lots on Tables, Counters and Shelves, and the flood of bargains will lend spirit and snap to bargain lovers while they last. Our plan of campaign demands that all Winter Goods must be out of the way for Spring arrivals. Besides we want to do our share in alleviating present distress by helping the farmer, the mechanic, the business man, the women and the youth, and at the same time keeping our tailors and salesmen busy.

New Spring Goods are rushing in upon us faster than we can place them, so we have decided to let the "hide go with the hair" until our two big stores are clear of Winter lines.

More gigantic selling, forced on by tremendous buying, has never been planned, for we dump everything into this Colossal Sale at an average reduction all round of 20 Per Cent. Below Manufacturer's Prices!

These bargains now stare you in the face, and what is worth emphasizing is that in all the lines we show a large variety of patterns and sizes, both in Clothing and Boots and Shoes. It is not our policy to select two or three catch lines. You get the choice of the whole stock. You merely choose what you need—no question about the goodness of the material or workmanship.

THE JURY DISAGREED

And Young Hammond Has Gone Back to Jail.

DEFENCE CALLED NO WITNESSES

Mr. Johnston Presented His Arguments to the Jurors on the Evidence for the Crown—He Impressed the Suicide Theory Very Strongly—The Jurors Discharged.

Bracebridge, Ont., Feb. 19.—10.50 p.m.—(Special.)—The great Hammond-Tough murder trial is ended for the present, and the mystery surrounding the death of Katie Tough-Hammond is unsolved. The jury have just returned to the court, after being out nearly five hours, and announce that they cannot agree on a verdict. The jury, it is understood, stood five for conviction and seven for acquittal.

Mr. Justice McMahon returned to the court room at 9.45, and a few minutes after took his seat on the bench. The sheriff came up from the jury room and whispered something to His Lordship. Then followed a wait of a few minutes, which seemed hours. The room was as still as death.

The prisoner's counsel here entered and put on his gown and took his seat at the table. Another wait amid deathly silence followed, broken only by the whispers of the reporters.

Then a noise on the stairs was heard, and the jury entered, the foreman handing His Lordship a piece of paper on which was written several questions re the admission of Constable William Sloan's evidence.

His Lordship briefly explained the matter, saying that he had ruled that this evidence should go before them, as the prisoner had made the statement voluntarily.

All this time the prisoner had sat in his favorite position, shading his eyes with his right hand. His poor old father sat at his side, but not a word passed between them. Both seemed in deep meditation.

The jury retired again and remained out for forty-five minutes, and then returned. The time was exactly 10.45, having been out nearly five hours. The usual formalities were complied with. Then the Clerk asked if they had agreed on a verdict, and the foreman stood up and replied that they had not.

The jury was then dismissed, and the prisoner returned to the jail to await another trial in June next.

THE DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Mr. Johnston's Address Was on the Line of the Suicide Theory.

Bracebridge, Ont., Feb. 19.—(Special.)—The court room has been crowded all day, and many were unable to gain admittance. A peculiar feature of the trial has been the number of women in attendance, and to-day one-half of the audience is made up of ladies.

The addresses of the learned counsel and that of His Lordship were listened to with the closest attention, evincing the great interest which has been taken in the trial.

The prisoner, on being brought in after tea, looked deathly pale, and while waiting for His Lordship to return spent part of the time in reading a newspaper.

As the defence called no witnesses, some discussion took place as to which of the counsel had a right to speak first. His Lordship ruled that the Crown counsel should speak first, and then have the right of replying. Mr. Johnston, counsel for the prisoner, preferred under this ruling to address the jury first. This was agreed to, and he rose to commence what proved to be one of the greatest addresses ever delivered in Ontario.

Mr. Johnston said: "May it please Your Lordship and gentlemen of the jury: The charge is that of murder. No middle course is open to the jury. The verdict is guilty or innocent. The lad is charged with the most serious crime, and if found guilty must pay for it with his life. If it was not a case of murder, it would not make so much difference. If the prisoner is not guilty and convicted we take a life which we have no right to. Theft in time can be remedied, but in this case no remedy can be given. A mistake will be made which time cannot erase. Thus, you see how it is that juries will not convict as readily in murder cases as in other cases.

"Great responsibilities rest on you 12 men. Whatever verdict a jury may see fit to bring in, they are individually responsible to the laws and to their God. I am here to do my duty, no matter what my inward feelings may be, but to go by the evidence. A duty devolves upon me, as well as you. Perhaps this is the first great responsibility that has fallen to you in this district. Look at the responsibility of a verdict of guilty—hanging by the neck until dead—no recalling the consequence. The Crown must bring before you evidence beyond all reasonable doubt. The man who does his duty, exacting his pound of flesh, may make a step which, though not wrong, may not always be just.

"The judge has no alternative but to pronounce the solemn sentence of death if found guilty. Perhaps there is no higher object than to plead for the life of a fellow being. The Crown counsel is not alone here to see that justice is done to the people, but to the prisoner.

"On the other hand, the counsel for the prisoner is here to plead for the life of the prisoner, and no greater prize can be given an advocate than a verdict of acquittal. I am alone in this fight. My client is a poor, sickly youth, without the consolation of a mother. The Crown has everything at its disposal, and raked up evidence from all over, with the Ontario Government at its back. The Sloans, working on the case; also Detective Burrows of Toronto; Detective Greer, paid by the Ontario Government, working on the case for months. Dr. Johnston and Dr. Ellis brought here, both standing witnesses for the Government. Then the oldest counsel in Ontario, specially employed on this case.

"Look at that and see the awful odds against me. Then, would you not be doing your duty by giving me a helping hand? I have here to struggle alone against a conspiracy of the Tough family and their friends to hang Hammond. I don't care whether a witness against me tells the truth or not, but I do care when witnesses come here with a feeling so strong that they are prepared to perjure their souls. When you find this feeling so strong, then you have the key to the situation, to all the manipulations of the bottles. You see, therefore, all these terrible difficulties I have to contend against. The only hope I have after the learned counsel for the Crown is through is that His Lordship will hold the scales of justice so that the weight of a hair will not change it. Then, when it passes to you, you will do equal justice.

"In this case, we start with the prisoner as innocent until proven guilty beyond all reasonable doubt. This is the difference between the way the law and the detectives and press try a man. Suspicions are not evidence of guilt, because in the lives of all of us there is a time when, if we were called upon to explain, we could not do it."

Here the counsel drew a word picture of a fellow-being. The law says no man shall hang where any jury has the slightest doubt as to his guilt. A juror who has a doubt and convicts a prisoner of this kind is almost equally as guilty with the man who commits the crime charged in the indictment. There is doubt thrown on this case by the perjured witnesses of the Crown. If witnesses, as in this case, band together to put a rope around a prisoner's neck, then there is no necessity of a trial by judge or jury in Muskoka. No evidence of guilt is in the telegram from New York telling the deceased to stop taking the medicine prescribed.

"The Crown has not proven that the prisoner and deceased were in Hammond's house—no proof but that there was some vessel near where the body was found; nothing but evidence manufactured by McNabb and young Tough. No one denied that the prisoner had bought poison at Campbell's drug store; no one denied the prisoner's connection with the insurance. If we had wanted to do this, we could have wiped out all evidence bearing thereon, and no man would be the wiser. Men are not hanged to satisfy the measure of the Tough family or to rectify the mistakes of Dr. Campbell. Out of 800 cases of murder in France, only four were caused by this drug; but it is the favorite drug for suicides. Although the prisoner had all the letters, keys, documents, etc., yet he does not destroy them. Is that the act of the guilty man? Hang a man on such evidence as the Crown has produced, and no man is safe. A man to do what the Crown alleges must have the mental and physical force of a giant and the soul of a fiend incarnate. Do you think that physical wreck before you is capable of doing it? Can you believe that a man could handle the body of his victim, the wife of his bosom, after he had committed the crime? Yet this man helped to carry the body into the house.

"Then the tears of sorrow shed by him. Is that the evidence of guilt? Take the girl, loved by all who knew her, honest and good, the pet of many, that was Katie Tough; yet, at the time of her death, owing to her first false step, her life and fate of the prisoner a living lie; married under a false name; once Katie Tough, the pride of the town; now, by her false marriage to this man, the cowering, shrinking girl, afraid to meet her friends, being chained down by that fatal marriage step; life not worth living. Couple that with the fact that she had poison in her room, and you have the key to the whole situation. Seeing no hope for the future, is it not that the woman who commits suicide? In this case it may not have been suicide, but an accidental dose. What had she those bottles in her room for? What had she poison in one of them for? The Crown has failed to connect the prisoner with the poison in her room—does not connect the prisoner in many branches of the case."

His Lordship commenced his address at exactly 4.30. He said every prisoner at the bar stood in the eyes of the law as innocent until clearly proven guilty before twelve of his peers. He urged the jury to keep their minds free from anything they had heard or read, and unbiased. Give your verdict on the evidence submitted and according to your own conscience and you will have done all your country requires or demands. With the result the jurors have nothing to do; their responsibility ends when they give their verdict. The charge here is that the prisoner at the bar caused the death of his wife by prussic acid poison. In this case there is no proof direct of the prisoner administering the poison. This is always the case in murders of this kind.

Here His Lordship gave a lengthy description between direct and circumstantial evidence. Did Kate Hammond die from prussic acid poison? If you are satified on this point, you can pass on to the next step. Where did she get the poison? The counsel for the defence did not seriously contend that death did not occur from prussic acid poison. If she took the dose either by design or accident, then the prisoner at the bar is not responsible for her acts.

A brief outline of the circumstances connected with this case was here given.

His Lordship concluded by telling the jury that the prisoner is entitled to the benefit of the doubt, if doubt there is, in the evidence. He spoke one hour and forty minutes.

The jury then retired to consider their verdict.

Mr. Johnston took some objection to Mr. Osler's remarks, and asked for a reserve case, also a reserve case on the admission of some of the evidence.

The trial of Daniel Tobin for housebreaking was then proceeded with, and the prisoner having pleaded guilty was let go on suspended sentence.

WEST INDIAN TRADE

A Report From the Canadian Government Agent

WHO HOLDS FORTH AT ST. KITT'S

Some Anxiety Over Reports That the Subsidized Steamships Were to be Withdrawn—Tariff Commissioners Will Take More Evidence—News From the Capital.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 19.—(Special.)—In his latest report to the Minister of Trade and Commerce, the Canadian commercial agent at St. Kitts, British West Indies, Mr. S. L. Horsford, says: "Some anxiety has been felt lately owing to a rumor that the subsidized steamers would be withdrawn from the service, but as I have not been able to trace the rumor to any reliable source, I trust there may be no foundation for it. In this connection I think it right to state that the regular and punctual service of these steamers has done much to promote a strong community of interest between the West Indies and Canada, and the growing trade which is being done each year in sugar, and which has been brought about solely by the facilities of shipment afforded by these boats, bids fair to be a very important branch of trade. Imports of Canadian products are also by this means kept up regularly, and the demand for certain goods is all the while increasing."

The Deputy Minister, writing in acknowledgment of the report, was able to relieve any apprehension that might exist as to the continuance of the service. The existing steamship contracts have considerable time to run at any rate.

Tariff Committee of the Government will hold a sitting here on Tuesday and Wednesday next, the purpose being to afford a hearing to several outside interests, which have expressed a desire to be heard, and yet did not appear at any of the former sittings of the committee.

Petitions have been in circulation for some time back favoring the commutation of the death sentence passed on Sullivan of Moncton, for the murder of Mrs. Dutcher, and the list, which is said to reach something like two thousand signatures, has been sent to His Excellency the Governor-General.

Capt. McElhinney, nautical adviser to the Marine Department, has returned from P.E. Island. Steamer Petrel, which was chartered from the Collins' Bay Rafting Company to maintain the winter service between Capes Tormentine and Traverse, has been idle for a fortnight back on account of her propeller being broken. She has just been repaired and will resume trips at once to keep up the service with the Island, which would be shut off entirely now that the Stanley is off. Capt. McElhinney returns to the Island in a few days.

In spite of the extremely severe weather on the prairies in November and December, which threatened to carry off a large proportion of the stock on the ranches, the conditions have since changed so favorably that reports received from the West are to the effect that the number of cattle ready for shipment from the western ranches this season will be 50 per cent. larger than last year.

Commander Wakeham has returned from Gaspe, and will be engaged at the Fishery Department for the next two or three months preparing for the Hudson Bay expedition. The vessel chartered by the Government is a Dundee steam whaler of very substantial build and just the class of vessels for ice work. Although chartered in Newfoundland, she is owned by a Scotch firm. It is the intention to despatch the vessel to Hudson Bay about May 24. It is questionable whether she will be able to get to Hudson Straits early in June, but Capt. Wakeham is anxious to ascertain the earliest day the Straits are open and the last day of the season when it is possible to leave the Bay.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries has given permission for the use of nets for catching coarse fish on Trent River, near Marysburgh. It is said that coarse fish are very plentiful in that vicinity.

The Hamilton civil delegation had an interview with Mr. Tarte to-day and asked for a portion of the canal reserve near Burlington Beach to be transferred to the city for public purposes, the city undertaking to return the property if ever needed by the Public Works Department.

The bell which Earl and Countess of Aberdeen decided to donate to Gatineau Point Church, in recognition of the marvelous escape from drowning of the latter and the kindness of the residents of the Point, has arrived in Ottawa and will shortly be put into position in the steeple. The bell bears the words, "Gratias Domino, Aberdeen, Ishbel Aberdeen, John Sinclair, April 22, 1896." It was cast by Means & Stainbank of London, and weighs 1400 pounds.

Twenty-one new companies gave notice of incorporation in the last issue of The British Columbia Gazette. The aggregate capital is over $19,000,000. The majority of the companies are organized to acquire and develop provincial mines.

Dr. Orton, ex-M.P., has lost his official head. Dr. Steep of Winnipeg has ben appointed medical attendant to the Indians of Clandeboye Agency, Manitoba, in succession to Dr. Orton.

W. R. Aylesworth of Belleville has been appointed a commissioner to report upon the state and management of business of the Mohawk Board of the Bay of Quinte.

Mr. Raymond Prefontaine, M.P., of Montreal, is said to be undertaking the floating of the big $5,000,000 bridge scheme at Quebec before Old Country capitalists.

Assistant Clerk Rouleau of the House of Commons has been superannuated.

David Hill, an Indian of the Six Nations, has ben appointed clerk in the Indian office at Brantford, vice A. G. Smith, dismissed.

Mothers

Anxiously watch declining health of their daughters. So many are cut off by consumption in early years that there is real cause for anxiety. In the early stages, when not beyond the reach of medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla will restore the quality and quantity of the blood and thus give good health. Read the following letter:

"It is but just to write about my daughter Cora, aged 19. She was completely run down, declining, had that tired feeling, and friends said she would not live over three months. She had a bad and nothing seemed to do her any good. I happened to read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and had her give it a trial. From the very first dose she began to get better. After taking a few bottles she was completely cured and her health has been the best ever since." MRS. ADDIE PECK, 12 Railroad Place, Amsterdam, N. Y.

"I will say that my mother has not stated my case in as strong words as I would have done. Hood's Sarsaparilla has truly cured me and I am now well." CORA PECK, Amsterdam, N. Y.

OUR IMPREGNABLE FINANCES.

THE finances of Ontario are a perennial source of sorrow to the Opposition in the House. They have been hammering away at them with their guns of biggest bore for the past twenty-five years, and with about as much effect as a volley of snipe shot would have on Cape Diamond. One hardly knows which to admire most, the evergreen hopefulness of the Opposition critics or their fidelity to their financial delusions. For the past score of years the Province has, according to these critics, been rushing on to bankruptcy at express train speed, and year after year the same homilies on extravagance have been preached from the rostrum of the "cold shades." But, nevertheless, the Provincial Treasurer has invariably come up smiling and reduced the carefully compiled figures and the dismal croakings of financial evil to cooked-hat conditions. The handsome little hoard of the late Sandfield Macdonald had been dissipated time after time till not a stiver was left, but again it crops up in a greatly diminished form and is again threatened by the Opposition critics with speedy extinction. The Mail and Empire recalls the often reiterated statement that in 1871, when the Liberal party came into office they found in the treasury nearly seven million dollars of cash and trust funds. This was all accumulated in four years, and on the same principle a man with moderate income could become wealthy—if he made no outlay such as the circumstances of his condition demanded. But the Liberal Government found use for the money—they did not waste it any more than a farmer can be accused of wasting his money in the improvement of his farm. The Opposition talk as if the money in question was squandered and irretrievably wasted. They have not the fairness to state in connection with the Macdonald surplus that since its accumulation the province had expended that and nearly another seven million in ways of which no one will be hardy enough to question the wisdom. The policy of the Liberal Government has always been to lighten in all possible ways the burdens of the people, and instead of taxing them on government account to even go further and relieve them of taxation for services directly benefitting the people at large. Therefore instead of allowing the surplus to lie unused like a miser's hoard, we have the sum of over three and a half millions—$3,238,007—by the municipal loan fund plan, distributed or remitted to municipalities, a course that is as unique in the history of the government as it was helpful to the municipalities made the beneficiaries of the government's scheme. Then in aid to railways, a sum about equal to the Macdonald deposit has been expended in increasing our provincial railway system, the three railways in existence in 1871, the Grand Trunk, the Great Western and the Northern—to about a score of railways giving Ontario nearly a third of the railway mileage of the Dominion, and giving this Province a splendid system of communication—second to few countries of the world. Again, in the past twenty-five years a sum of about forty million dollars has been distributed in half a dozen services directly tending to relieve the taxes of the people, twenty millions more than would have been so returned had the same scale of parsimonious expenditure of '71 and preceding years been continued. Governments exist for the benefit of the people, and when that benefit is arrived at by the judicious and economical expenditure of money that expenditure is justifiable, and the people, who are the beneficiaries, are too wise not to appreciate the value of it. And when croaking over the Macdonald accumulation of cash, the Opposition organs and critics should have the fairness to state the circumstances, that to any fair minded person amply justified its expenditure in the public interest. The present Government in its long career may have made mistakes and errors of judgment—it wouldn't be human if it hadn't done so—but there is no eluding the fact that the general administration of their trust has been marked by a broad, liberal and progressive spirit that has conduced to making the Province the most prosperous and thriving political community upon the continent.

A Good Moral From a Short Story.

A Reliable G. T. R. Engineer.

How He Saved Himself.

Used Paine's Celery Compound.

He is Now Regularly and Steadily at Work.

Engineer R. G. Morris, of the Grand Trunk Railway, resides in Brockville. No other engineer working for the great railway corporation is better known or has a more favourable record for skill, care and attention to duty.

Mr. Morris had two foes that contributed to make his life miserable—foes that at times even threatened his life. These enemies were neuralgia in the head and chronic dyspepsia.

Failing with doctors, advertised medicines, and electrical appliances, he wisely decided to give Paine's Celery Compound a thorough testing. After the use of a few bottles of earth's best and surest medicine he found himself a well and cured man. Mr. Morris, with a strong desire to benefit others, writes as follows:

"Having suffered with neuralgia in the head for two years, I tested the skill of doctors and made use of many kinds of medicines, as well the electric battery, but got no relief from any of these sources. I decided to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial, as I noticed by the press that it was highly recommended for my troubles. I used several bottles, and it cured the neuralgia as well as the dyspepsia from which I suffered.

"Now I am able to work all winter. In the past I had to lay off several months in the cold weather. I am happy to say the neuralgia has not troubled me for over a year. I recommend Paine's Celery Compound to all those suffering as I did with terrible neuralgia and dyspepsia. I trust you will insert this letter in the press so that others may be benefitted.

FOUND A JEWEL.

An Important Find by a Brockville Jeweller.

Mr. Joseph Lane, the well-known jeweller of Brockville, says: "For some years I have suffered with severe pains in my back and sides and flashes of heat between my shoulders. I had a tired, wornout feeling.

"The numerous medicines that I took gave me very little relief. Hearing of Dodd's Kidney Pills I thought I would try a box, and got one at Curry's drugstore.

"After the first two or three doses I felt much relieved, and the longer I took them the greater the change for the better in my condition. I am much better in every respect and recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all sufferers from kidney trouble as the best remedy I know of."

BIG FIRE AT POTTERSBURG.

Glass Bros.' Pottery Works Destroyed Early This Morning.

Pottersburg, Ont., Feb. 20, 2.30 a.m.—The extensive pottery works of Glass Bros. & Co. here was discovered to be on fire this morning about 1 o'clock. Nothing could be done to save it and nothing remains now out the warehouse. The loss will probably be about $35,000, said to be fully insured; cause cannot be ascertained at present, but it is known that employes were working late last night at the furnaces.

HIGHER TELEPHONE RATES.

The Bell Telephone Co. Petitioned the Government to Allow an Increase.

Ottawa, Feb. 19.—(Special.)—An important request has been preferred to the Government by the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, a request in which nearly every city and town in the Dominion is interested. Under date of Jan. 30, a petition was forwarded to the Governor-General-in-Council by the Bell Telephone Company, asking for permission to increase their rates.

TERRORS OF RHEUMATISM.

A Remedy which is Instantaneous and Permanent in Effect - A Calgary Resident, Crippled for Years, Becomes Strong as an Athlete.

No subtle or mysterious force could be more miraculous in its effects than is South American Cure in all cases of rheumatism. James A. Anderson of Calgary, N. W. T., says that seven or eight years ago, he became afflicted with rheumatism, and for three years it made him a cripple, so that he had to use a stick to get about. In his own words: "I suffered untold misery, and though treated by the best physicians in the country, and I spent a term in the hospital, recovery seemed as hopeless as ever. A friend recommended South American Rheumatic Cure. It gave help immediately and after the second bottle I threw away my stick. To-day I am as strong as an athlete." Price 75 cents. Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

Mr. Chas. Smith, Dawn Mills, Ont., says: "For several years I was troubled with pains in my limbs, which continued getting worse until I thought I would have to quit work. In fact the pains were so bad that I could not rest nights. I took one box of Miller's Compound Iron Pills and am perfectly cured." Although it is nearly a year since Mr. S. took the Pills he has had no return of the pains, and feels splendid. Sold in Peterborough by Wm. Madill, druggist.

Mrs. T. S. Hawkins, Chattanooga, Tenn says: "Shiloh's Vitaliser Saved my Life. I consider it the best remedy for a debilitated system I ever used. For dyspepsia, liver or kidney trouble it excels. Price 75c. Sold by John Nugent 389 George Street.

RAILWAY CARRIAGE MURDER.

Funeral of the Victim in London—Police Think They Will Yet Discover the Murderer.

London, Feb. 19.—The railway carriage murder in a London suburban train continues to be the chief topic of local interest. The young woman whose body was found crowded under the seat in a second-class compartment was buried to-day and there was a great public demonstration.

The police are now making some progress, apparently, toward a solution of the mystery. They have been able to ascertain by the process of elimination that the murder was committed between Putney and Wandsworth Stations, where the running time of the train was only four minutes. They arrested yesterday Thomas Stone, a rejected lover of Miss Camp, the victim, on the charge of murder. Stone was traced to Hounslow, where the girl took the train on the evening of the tragedy. The police learned that Stone had ascertained only that day that Miss Camp was going to marry his rival, and he had threatened to prevent the marriage. Stone has been able to establish an alibi and the police have released him.

Some of the effects of the tragedy upon the London public are amusing. A gentleman noticed on a suburban train to-day two adjoining compartments, in one of which 11 women were closely crowded, and in the next an inoffensive-looking lad sat alone. Protests in the newspapers against the compartment system are becoming panicky, even to frenzy.

A MINISTER'S STORY.

THE PAINFUL EXPERIENCE OF REV. C. H. BACKHUS.

For Five Months he Was Helpless and Endured Agonizing Pains—Could Neither Rise up nor Sit Down Without Aid—He Tells How he Found a Cure.

From the Tilsonburg Observer.

The Rev. C. H. Backhus, is a resident of Bayham township, Elgin County, Ont., and there is probably no person in the county who is better known or more highly esteemed. He is a member of the United Brethren Church. He also farms quite extensively, superintending the work and doing quite a share of it himself despite his advanced age. But he was not always able to exert himself as he can to-day, as a few years ago he underwent an illness that many feared would terminate his life. To a reporter who recently had a conversation with him, the rev. gentleman gave the particulars of his illness and cure, with permission to make the statement public. The story as told by Rev. Mr. Backhus is substantially as follows: About three years ago he was taken ill, and the doctor who was called in pronounced his trouble an attack of la grippe. He did not appear to get any better, and a second doctor was called in but with no more satisfactory results, so far as a renewal of health was concerned. Following the la grippe pains of an excruciating nature located themselves in his body. He grew weaker and weaker until at last he was perfectly helpless. He could not sit down or rise from a sitting posture without assistance and when with this assistance he gained his feet he could hobble but a few steps when he was obliged to be put in a chair again. For five months these agonizing pains were endured. But at last relief so long delayed came. A friend urged him to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He yielded to the advice and had not been taking them long when the longed for relief was noticed coming. He could move more easily, and the stiffness and pains began to leave his joints. He continued the use of the pills for some time longer and the cure was complete. Stating Mr. Backhus now it would be difficult to think of him as the crippled and helpless man of those painful days. Mr. Backhus is now past his 80th year, but as he said, "by the aid of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I am as able as those ten years younger. You can readily judge of this when I tell you I laid forty rods of rail fence this year. I am glad to add to my testimony in favour of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills strike at the root of the disease, driving it from the system and restoring the patient to health and strength. In cases of paralysis, spinal troubles, locomotor ataxia, sciatica, rheumatism, erysipelas, scrofulous troubles, etc., these pills are superior to all other treatment. They are also a specific for the troubles which make the lives of so many women a burden, and speedily restore the rich glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. Men broken down by overwork, worry or excesses, will find in Pink Pills a certain cure. Sold by all dealers or sent by mail postpaid, at 50c. a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N.Y. Beware of imitations and substitutes alleged to be "just as good."

A SHORT SESSION.

Ontario Legislature Asked a Few Questions, Read a Few Bills and Then Adjourned.

Toronto, Feb. 20.

Fifteen minutes was sufficient to enable the Ontario Legislature to transact its business yesterday afternoon. Beyond the usual number of petitions, the only item of interest was the answer to the following enquiry by Mr. Miscampbell: "Was the furnishing of flour to the Orillia Asylum for the years 1896 and 1897 let by tender? If so, who tendered, and what was the amount of the tenders per barrel? Did the lowest tenderers receive the contract?"

Hon. E. J. Davis, in reply, gave the following information:

The flour purchased for the Orillia Asylum for the years 1896 and 1897 was by tender. The samples called for and submitted by tenderers were tested by an expert, both as to color and strength. In 1896 the following persons tendered at the prices stated per barrel, in bags: Wm. Ryan, Toronto, $3.60; M. McLaughlin, Toronto, $3.82½; Samuel Lukes, Bradford, $3.60; A. Moyes & Co., Listowel, $4.20; P. McIntosh & Son, Toronto, $3.60; D. C. Thompson, Orillia, $3.23; George Vick, Orillia, $3.07; W. H. MacDougall, Alliston, $4.32. The tender of D. C. Thompson was accepted, the expert test showing it was the lowest tender, strength and color considered.

In 1897 the following persons tendered, at the prices stated per barrel, in bags: George Vick & Sons, Orillia, $4.55; D. C. Thompson, Orillia, $4.33; Hunt Bros., London, $4.62; W. H. MacDougall, Alliston, $4.70. D. C. Thompson's tender was accepted, being the lowest tender, strength and color considered, as well as the lowest upon the face of the tender.

In reply to Mr. Whitney, the Attorney-General replied that a return of the amounts paid by the Government in connection with the Dominion arbitration from year to year, and to whom paid, is being prepared.

Before adjournment, Dr. Willoughby asked in what position the report of the commissioner to investigate into the affairs of the East Northumberland Registry Office is.

The Attorney-General replied that the report had, he understood, been handed in yesterday, but he had not yet seen it.

The House then adjourned.

Petitions were presented, as follows:

By Mr. St. John—From the Georgian Bay Ship Canal & Power Aqueduct Company, for an act to extend the borrowing and other powers of the company; also to change the name to "The Ontario Aqueduct & General Construction Company."

By Mr. Paton—From the Simcoe County Council, praying that the Victoria Industrial School be placed on the same footing as the Ontario Reformatory for Boys.

By Mr. Conmee—From Edward Spencer Jenison, for an act empowering him to improve the water privilege at the Scarte Itapida and Kakabeka Falls.

By Mr. Preston—From the Lanark County Council, for amendments to the General Road Companies Act.

The following bills were introduced and given first readings:

Respecting the incorporation and regulation of joint stock companies, introduced by Mr. Gibson, Hamilton, amends and consolidates the Joint Stock Companies Letters Patent Act, and makes uniform provisions for companies incorporated under special acts, or under other acts, as well as for those incorporated under the Joint Stock Companies Letters Patent Act.

To amend the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1892, introduced by Mr. Garrow, amends section 342 of the Municipal Act, to enable municipalities to pass bylaws for the construction of electric light works, making the debt contracted therefor payable in 30 years, and confirming such bylaws where heretofore passed, it otherwise valid. It enables municipalities by the same bylaw to provide for constructing gas, electric lights and waterworks.

Mr. Dryden introduced a bill to further improve the act respecting the Department of Agriculture, which provides for enforcing the penalties requiring municipalities to make returns to the Bureau of Industries, by providing that the person designated by the Minister may go into the municipality and make the necessary searches and returns, if the municipal officers make default.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Dryden, in which the various trade unions are deeply interested. It is entitled "An act to further improve the Trades Disputes Act," and provides that if either side to a dispute fails to nominate a member of the Council of Arbitration, the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may fill the vacancy. It imposes the duty upon the Mayors of cities and towns of informing the Registrar under the Trades Disputes Act of any strikes or lock-outs, as they occur, or when they are anticipated, and provides that the Council of Arbitration shall thereupon place themselves in communication with both parties, with a view to amicable settlement.

Mr. Smith—Bill respecting roads laid out along side-lines in certain townships.

Mr. Beatty (Leeds)—Enquiry of the Ministry: "Has the return showing the estimated quantity of pine timber now standing on the Crown domain of the Province, ordered by the House on 11th March, 1896, been prepared, and, if so, when will such return be brought down?"

The Committees on Standing Orders, Printing and Private Bills met for organization yesterday morning. Hon. J. M. Gibson is again chairman of the Private Bills Committee, and Messrs. Stratton and D. McKay (Oxford) of the Printing and Standing Orders.

The Public Accounts Committee meets for organization on Tuesday next. Mr. William Charlton has the call for the chairmanship, which will be relinquished by Hon. E. J. Davis, who is now Provincial Secretary.

The budget debate will be resumed on Tuesday.

The Opposition members are awaiting with impatience the report of the commission to enquire into the affairs of the Registry Office of East Northumberland.

The feeling among the members is one of universal sympathy with Mr. Hiscott of Lincoln in the bereavement which he has sustained by the loss of his daughter. The circumstances surrounding the case are such as appeal to every member, and much attention has been directed by the event to the matter of inspection and regulation of the gas fixtures, and other matters relating to hotels. A deputation composed of Col. Kerns, Messrs. Bush, Carnegie, Brower, Little and Reid, representing the colleagues of Mr. Hiscott, accompanied the remains of the deceased to St. Catharines yesterday.

The Attorney-General yesterday had the pleasure of conducting his younger brother, A. D. Hardy of Brantford, through the Parliament buildings. It was the first time that he had been in those corridors in which his elder brother has for so many years been a prominent figure. It was noticed as the pair passed that there was a very strong family likeness, and many were under the impression that they were father and son.

AWFUL HEART DISEASE.

Death Charmed Away Under the Spell of Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart—More Wonderful Than a Fairy Tale is the Story of Mrs. Roadhouse, of Willscroft Ont.

Where disease has affected the heart the remedy to be applied must be speedy in its effects, or all may be lost. Mrs. Roadhouse, of Willscroft, Ont., says: "Cold sweat would stand out in great beads upon my face, because of the intense suffering from heart disease. I often felt that the death struggle was near at hand. No medicine gave me help until I used Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. In thirty minutes the severe pain was removed, and after taking little more than one bottle the trouble had vanished. I know nothing of it to-day." Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry cures Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic, Cramps, Cholera, Cholera Infantum, Cholera Morbus and all summer complaints and fluxes of the bowels in children or adults.

STILL IN HIS PRIME.

North Hastings' Oldest Inhabitant Hale and Hearty.

Josias Moore, of Bancroft, Ont., one of the oldest and best-known residents of Hastings County, can boast of wonderful health and vigor for his age.

"Although I am over 84 years of age," he says, "I feel as young as ever I did."

Mr. Moore, however had a narrow escape from death about a year ago. "I was so bad with indigestion," he writes, "that the doctors gave me up. I tried various alleged remedies but found them no good. One day our popular druggist, F. C. Humphries, sent me a sample of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to try. The result was marvellous. After taking two I was able to get up. Then I sent for a box. I could soon eat anything. In a short time I was able to walk two miles, to Bancroft and back, with ease."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will, without fail, cure all kidney, liver, stomach and blood troubles. For sale by all dealers. Price 25 cents. One pill a dose: one cent a dose. Edmanson, Bates & Co., manufacturers, Toronto.

Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is the latest discovery for coughs asthma and consumption. It is pleasant, quick and certain. 25 cents.

A Turn in the Conversation.

"I see," remarked Mr. Snaggs, as he laid down his newspaper, "that Melba's throat is very sore, and therefore her voice can't—"

"Her voice can't what?" asked Mrs. Snaggs.

"Soar."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Conflicting Emotions.

She—"Why, do you appear so pleasantly surprised?"

He—"Because you appear so surprisingly pleasant."

Old Gentleman—"And now I appear, unsurprised but unpleasant. Break away and take your corners."

Had Better Learn.

"Going skatin' 'fore long?" asked little Jimmie of his sister's beau, who was waiting in the parlor.

"I don't skate, my boy. Why?"

"I heard Jennie say if you wanted her you better be gettin' your skates on, 'cause they was others."

PENTWATER, MICH., the Crescent Drug Store. "We find your "77" for Grip and Colds 'a wonder.' Every package more than satisfies."

LINCOLN, NEB., O. J. WILCOX, ESQ., of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Company, writes: "I have been using your "77" for Grip with such success, that I want to have your other Specifics at hand. Kindly send me Manual of Diseases.

RICHMOND, VA., JOHN MITCHELL, JR., Editor and Proprietor of the Planet: "We are much pleased with the Specifics; they act quickly and without any disagreeable results. "77" is 'electrical' in its action. A friend of mine, W. H. Isham, 809 N. 5th St., suffering with a Cold of a year's duration, although under the treatment of a physician, was cured by "77."

Too Good To Miss!

No Time To Lose!

GOUGH'S Winter Wind-Up.

These are WIND-UP DAYS, and GOUGH BROS' Slashing Cut in Clothing, Cloths, Boots and Shoes, Gentlemen's Furnishings, &c., to Wind-up the Winter Selling Season, is an extraordinary event too important to miss. Never since the days of Adam has good Clothing and Boots and Shoes been sold so cheap as we're selling them now. A colossal stock of Clothing and Boots and Shoes for Men, Women and Children at prices that revoulutionizes the trade, and emphasizes the possibilities of this great emporium for clothing the people.

THE STOCK MUST MELT!

The sudden thaw in prices must dissolve the Bargain Lots on Tables, Counters and Shelves, and the flood of bargains will lend spirit and snap to bargain lovers while they last. Our plan of campaign demands that all Winter Goods must be out of the way for Spring arrivals. Besides we want to do our share in alleviating present distress by helping the farmer, the mechanic, the business man, the women and the youth, and at the same time keeping our tailors and salesmen busy.

New Spring Goods are rushing in upon us faster than we can place them, so we have decided to let the "hide go with the hair" until our two big stores are clear of Winter lines.

More gigantic selling, forced on by tremendous buying, has never been planned, for we dump everything into this Colossal Sale at an average reduction all round of 20 Per Cent. Below Manufacturer's Prices!

These bargains now stare you in the face, and what is worth emphasizing is that in all the lines we show a large variety of patterns and sizes, both in Clothing and Boots and Shoes. It is not our policy to select two or three catch lines. You get the choice of the whole stock. You merely choose what you need—no question about the goodness of the material or workmanship.

Will Lose the Sight of an Eye.

Dr. Charles McKee, of Bailliboro, son of Mr. John McKee, of town, was thrown from his buggy last week, through the wheels coming suddenly in contact with a hard snowdrift. No serious injury was apprehended at the time, although a blow received on the eye proved very painful. The condition of the optic not improving Dr. McKee visited Toronto yesterday and consulted a specialist, with the result that he learned that it would be impossible to save the sight of the injured eye. The sympathy of his many friends in town will be extended to him in his misfortune.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Uncle Tom's Cabin occupied the boards at the Bradburn's Opera House, last night and as Harriet Beecher Stowe's grand story never loses its interest, the dramatization still continues to be most popular and always attracts large audiences. The present company (Stowe's) is without doubt the best on the road and last night's performance was thoroughly enjoyed. A large number of coloured artists are attached to the troup and their presence lends a reality to the play which greatly increases the interest. The singing is something especially fine, the old darkey songs being given in a manner to call for the most enthusiastic encores. The company gave a matinee this afternoon also performs this evening.

THE BENEFIT CONCERT.

It was Patronized by the Citizens of the Town and Village.

A very large crowd assembled in the Ashburnham town hall, last night, at the Willie Mitchell benefit concert, which was a complete success in every way. The hall was crowded, the order was good, and the programme excellent. The different numbers were as follows:—

Shipping Another Gold Mill.

An order has just been placed with the Wm. Hamilton M'fg. Co. by W. R. Macdonald, of Toronto, representing a wealthy syndicate, for a ten stamp gold mill complete, similar in all respects to that just shipped to the Golden Cache Mining Co. Ltd. of Lillooet, B.C. This mill is to be shipped and used on the Folger-Hammond mine, situated on Saw Bill Lake in the Rat Portage District and near the celebrated Saw Bill Lake Gold Mine.

World Coming to an End.

It has been predicted by prominent students of nature and such like that the world is nearer the close now than it has been for some time and it will eventually come to an end, still however it is to be hoped that thoughts of this kind will not cause the people to forget that the place to get the very choicest and best groceries at reasonable prices, is at E. BROWN & Co's, Wholesale and Retail Grocers, 304 George street.

A Mammoth Order.

The enormous pile of wallpaper in front of A. H. Stratton & Co's. store on George street, attracted unusual attention this morning. It is the first half of a total shipment to him of an order for 37,000 rolls. This is sufficient paper to cover the walls of 125,500 average sized rooms and premises that the Peterborough Bookstore expects to do a rushing business in wallpapers this season. Buying such a quantity in one order enables the firm to offer prices far below all competitors.

Death of a Crimean and Indian Mutiny Veteran.

The Liverpool Weekly Post of 30th of January announces the death of Private Charles Bigger, who belonged to the 90th Regiment of Light Infantry. He served in the Crimea and the Indian Mutiny, and received the Turkish, Crimea, Indian Mutiny and good conduct medals. Deceased was a brother of Mrs. Isaac Richardson, No. 495 Rubidge street, town, who has learned that his death occurred on the 25th of January. Deceased had seen 21 years of active service and during that time had never received a scar.

Return of the Prince of Lecturers.

Few lecturers are accorded so many return dates when once heard as John R. Clarke. In Peterborough he is always a "drawing" attraction, and our citizens will be glad to have another opportunity of listening to this sunny-souled and silver-tongued orator in two of his most brilliant lectures in the Charlotte street Methodist church. On Monday evening, Feb. 22nd, he will adeliver his "Abraham Lincoln" lecture, so full of wit, humour and drollery. On Tuesday evening, Feb. 23rd, he gives his well-known Chautauqua success, "To and Fro in London." Tickets for one lecture, 25c. or the two for 40c.

An Evening of Fun.

Read what the Peterborough Daily EXAMINER of April 27, 1896, said: The Gorman's production of "the Gilhooly's Abroad" was one of the best things, in the variety line, which has ever occupied the boards at the opera house. The fun was fast and furious from start to finish, and the audience was delighted with the performance. The spontaneity of the wit which flowed so freely, the pretty girls, the clever song and dance artists, all combined to keep the audience in a good humour from the rise to the fall of the curtain. The Gorman's and their Gilhoolys should should draw a big house on a return date. This attraction occupies the boards at the opera house Monday night, February 22. Price 25, 35 and 50c.

THE SECRETARY'S REPORT

was read by Miss Bertha Hunt, secretary of the school, as follows:

The year just closed has been the most prosperous in the school's history. We can truly say "The hand of God has been with us," and with deep gratitude record His dealings with us.

Last year we reported an enrollment of 231, with an average attendance of 155; to-day we number 255, with an average attendance of 168.

Along spiritual lines great blessings have attended our way. A large number from our school have been brought to Christ, and twenty-eight have been baptized and added to the church. The officers and teachers have been fully alive to the work. Out of nineteen they have showed an average attendance of eighteen

Our library has undergone a thorough renovation, and some 75 new books added, making a total of about 350 volumes.

Death this year has entered our school and taken one from us Norman Eggleson, one of our scholars, God, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to take to Himself, and though we mourn the loss, we rejoice that now his eyes behold the King in His beauty.

Our responsibilities are great, but our trust is in Him from whom cometh our help, and we enter another year with the assurance that we shall reap if we faint not.

A collection was taken up at the door which amounted to about $9.

THE DOOR TO GOOD HEALTH

Is Through the Kidneys—Like a Well Planned Sanitary System They Keep the Body Human Healthy—Interesting Story From Quebec.

The kidneys have very appropriately been described as the sanitary system of the human body. Let them become inoperating and disease will quickly follow, and unless the obstructions are removed, death will be the result. Mr. D. J. Locke, of Sherbrooke, P. Q., suffered for years from complicated kidney trouble, and spent over $100 in efforts to secure relief; but no relief came until he used South American Kidney Cure. His statement is that four bottles completely cured him, and to-day he is in the enjoyment of sound health. In the most distressing cases this remedy gives relief in six hours. Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

HOCKEY.

Arrangements are being made to take the Hockey Team up to Toronto on Friday next, and a big excursion will be run from town to the Queen City on both the Grand Trunk and C. P. R. The boys have a full week before them for practice, and if the team is picked at once in order that the forwards may perfect their combination, a very strong team could doubtless be picked, as no better defence exists in the country than that possessed by the Peterboroughs. The material is here for a fast team, if the committee profit by recent experience and allow their forwards to practice together, as was done in the olden days, when the name of Peterborough was always coupled with the fact that its hockey team was well nigh invincible. Give our boys a chance, Mr. Executive, and they may make a stir in Canadian hockey circles yet, before the winter is over, and, above all things, don't make a change in the forward line at the last moment.

At the Riverside Park yesterday afternoon the Collegiate Institute seven won from the Business College by the score of four goals to one. Since their last match Collegiates have been putting in lots of practice.

At the rink yesterday afternoon the girls enjoyed another fast practice, the following teams representative of the Biffs and Niffs lining up:

G King	forwards	G Keedry
Madge McGill		P Lundy

It is amusing to witness how fast the girls are getting into the tricks of the game, and are able to take and give a "body" as well as the boys.

A CHAPTER OF THE BUDGET DEBATE.

SPEECH OF MR. J. E. STRATTON, M.P.P., ON THE SUBJECT.

A Vigorous Defence of the Government's Administration—Reply to Opposition Criticisms.

The following is a more extended report than appeared in the city papers of the speech of Mr. Stratton, delivered during the budget debate on Thursday night:

Mr. Speaker, before addressing myself to the matter of making a few remarks on the subject under consideration of the House—the financial position of the province for the past year and future prospects—I wish to take this, the first opportunity that has been afforded me in my representative capacity, of offering my most cordial congratulations to the hon. the Attorney General, upon his being advanced to the high and responsible position of Premier of the premier Province of Confederation. My congratulations are all the more earnest from the fact that he has well deserved the promotion by virtue of over a score of years of distinguished service in the capacity of both a member of this House and as a Minister of the Crown, during which time he has given evidence of the possession of administrative capacity of the most practical and comprehensive character, coupled with industrious and energetic devotion to the duties of his office. (Applause.) We all have had in this chamber experience of his persuasive eloquence, of his effective contributions to the debates of the house. (Hear, hear.) We all have had pleasant experience of his agreeable personal demeanor, and the records of this House and the statutes of this province bear witness to the important and large part he has played in the successful government which Ontario has enjoyed since the Hon. Attorney General's entrance to the House, nearly a quarter of a century ago. There are many reasons for the confident hope that he will successfully occupy his new position. For the past ten years he has administered the most important department in the government with a thoroughness, prudence and conspicuous success that have resulted in the promotion of the interests of the Province and brought credit to the incumbent, and though we all miss the presence of the late leader in this House, and deplore the absence of the distinguished statesman who has been called to a higher sphere of usefulness, yet we can all feel that he has a worthy successor in the present premier of Ontario, who will, we believe, maintain the traditions and continue the record of wise, economical and efficient Government that has made this Province a model, and, at the same time, an envy to the most advanced political communities of the world. (Applause.)

While I am offering congratulations, it affords me much pleasure to include the Honourable Provincial Secretary, who has been elevated to that position since the House last met. I have no doubt that he will make a capable and efficient administrator of this department. (Hear, hear.) I would also beg to offer my congratulations to yourself, Mr. Speaker, on the occasion of the recognition of your services and abilities, involved in your elevation to the high and responsible position you at present occupy. (Applause.)

While changes have marked the government side of the house since the last session, the opposition has suffered changes which show that this is a world of change and there is occasion for both congratulation and regret. Since the house last met that gallant band has changed leaders. The now member for North Toronto has for some reason which I am not possessed of, seen fit to retire from the position he had filled with so much credit considering the long continued lowness of temperature that prevails on that side of the house. He was making good speeches and with a good deal of energy was presenting a "stout heart to a steep brae," but whether the dawning of a brighter day seemed too distant, he saw fit to resign the position. Perhaps it may have been that the temperance views of the late leader were not in line with those of the rank and file of his following (hear, hear); perhaps it may have been that he was not in accord with his followers in the matter of separate schools; perhaps it was because the promised land—the treasury benches—was too far distant; but from whatever reason I personally regret his resignation, and while so doing, without any reflections, wish to congratulate the new leader upon his promotion. His military experience will no doubt make him a chivalrous opponent, and while he may be able to improve the paces of his gallant little squad of followers, and be able to marshall them to some Pisgah height, by which he he may be able to get a dim or distant view of the promised land—the treasury benches—yet the prospects are, from the present condition of affairs that his hopes will never be realized. (Applause.) I have the greatest respect and good feeling towards the Opposition. The history of Canada does not afford a single example of such a persistent and persevering opposition. For the past quarter of a century they have stood to their guns with a grim determination that all must admire. The fact is that they have had so much experience in opposition, have become so accustomed to the duties of opposition, have shown such admirable capacity for opposition, that it would be a pity to make any change, and I would therefore couple with my congratulations to the new leader the wish that he may long be spared to lead the little band that now acknowledges his supremacy. (Applause.) Though it is hard to remain in opposition, though it is hard to see the sweets of office so near and yet so far, yet in relation to the seeming probability of our friends remaining in opposition in perpetuity, we can solace ourselves with the conditions justifying the aptness of the Shaksperian sentiment,—"Sweet are the uses of adversity." (hear, hear.)

THE FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

To come to the discussion of the subject under consideration, the financial situation of the Province, I desire to congratulate the Treasurer on the plain, clear, concise and intelligible statement presented to the House this afternoon in relation to the financial condition of the province for the past fiscal year. While it is a matter of congratulation, it is not a matter of surprise. This House has become accustomed to similar statements, not only admirable as literary and financial presentations, but also furnishing the most satisfactory evidence of the wisdom with which he has administered the department of which he has charge, as of the efficient administration the other departments of the Government has received. (Applause.) As may be seen by honourable gentlemen, the completness and clearness of the statement make the task of criticism very difficult, as we know, for the financial censors of the Opposition, and proportionately lightens the task of the supporters of the Government in defending the Administration. The hon. member for South Lanark has addressed the House with his usual vigour of speech and recklessness of statement and conclusion. He has indulged in vague charges of extravagance and has accused the government with recklessness of expenditure and corruption, contenting himself with merely stating what he did not undertake to prove. During the term that the present government has been in power they have in trust for the people of this province expended between seventy and eighty millions of dollars and no honourable gentleman can rise in his seat at the present moment and place his finger upon one dollar that has been improperly expended or diverted from its legitimate use, (hear, hear). On the other hand the expenditure that has been provided from year to year by this house, with care and judicious energy, has kept this Province in the front place and has enabled the people to receive the full advantages of the application of that would not have been possible under different conditions. Hon. gentleman opposite must remember that wild statements, unsupported by proof, and a condemnation of expenditures, without giving credit for the purposes to which they were devoted, cannot be regarded as legitimate or fair criticism, and certainly not statesmanship. And to charge the Government with extravagance and annually increasing expenditure, without first looking into the reasons for and the justification of such increase, is certainly a novel way of criticising the financial administration of a Government. But when it is known that the hon. gentleman takes flights of fancy, and when it is known that his flights into the realms of prophecy judged by the results of fulfilment, are not very brilliant, he may be permitted the benefit of a large share of the mantle of charity. It will be remembered that in his discussion of the financial statement last year the hon. gentleman said, "There will be for the current year a deficit of between six and seven hundred thousand dollars." Let us look for a moment and see how closely his prophecy was verified. We find upon turning to the public accounts that the actual receipts for 1896 were $3,492,619 37; that we had cash on hand Jan. 31st, 1896, $437,580.89, making the total available cash for expenditure, $3 930,200 26. The payments for the year amounted to $3,703,379.73, and from this is properly to be deducted, $200,000, expended upon public buildings from current revenue, and should be charged to capital. Deducting this $200,000 from the expenditure just stated would leave the cash on hand at the end of the year practically the same as that with which we began the year, and leaving a deficit in the predictions of the hon. gentleman of about $700,000, and to that extent, impairing

HIS REPUTATION AS A PROPHET.

It is a fact which everybody knows that during the years 1891, 1892, 1893 and 1894 the expenditures of this province reached the highest figures, and that it was not brought about by any waste or extravagant expenditure, but was due to a demand of circumstances that new public buildings should be erected, and what has been done in Ontario—the erection of all her public buildings out of current revenue—has not been done by any other province of the Confederation; and while hon. gentlemen charge us with increased expenditure year by year, they have not the fairness nor manliness to point out the very proper reasons that necessitated the increase, nor have they the fairness, now that these magnificent Parliament buildings and the asylums have been practically completed and paid for as we went, to state that since the extra-ordinary expenditure has ceased the ordinary expenditure is decreasing year by year. As has been stated the highest point of provincial expenditure was reached in 1891, when it was $4,138,159, and it has steadily decreased year by year till it is for the current year $3,516,068 a difference of nearly three quarters of a million less than when the public buildings were being erected. (Hear, hear.)

While Ontario has constructed its public buildings out of current revenue, let us for a moment look at what other provinces have done. British Columbia borrowed money to erect her buildings, Quebec borrowed money for the same purpose, the Dominion erected for Manitoba her public buildings, and those of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick were built before the Dominion was built, and hon. gentleman give no credit to the government for the fact that we have millions of dollars standing to our credit as assets in the shape of public buildings built and paid for without a dollar of borrowed money. One cannot walk half a dozen blocks in the city of Toronto without finding of this government. Our Parliament buildings, Normal school, asylums for the insane, Central prison, Mercer reformatory, Upper Canada college, and other government buildings, all necessitating increased expenditure, and our position in this respect is not only gratifying to the people of the province but a splendid credit to the administrative capacity and solicitude for the provincial welfare, of the present government which has so long, faithfully and efficiently served the province. (Applause).

In relation to the years of increase of expenditure and its causes, to which I referred, I may be permitted to present a few figures which will show the matter in a different light. In 1873 the total expenditure under the supply bill was $2,460,312. In 1896—twenty years later, it had increased to $3,371,748, or an increase in twenty years of $911,586, or an average yearly increase of $45,776. The Hon. member for South Lanark said he was not opposed to increased expenditure—"it was natural that there should be some." If, as all reasonable men must admit, an increase was justifiable, then in view of the great and substantial advantages the Province has received from an enlarged expenditure is not the increase mentioned a most reasonable one? To further illustrate, if we take the expenditure of 1873—$2,460,312, and the expenditure for '96, $3,371,748, we find that the expenditure has increased from '73 to '96, $955,062, which divided by the number of years the Government has been responsible for the expenditure, gives an average yearly increase of $39,794, or only one and one quarter per cent. Is not this a reasonable increase, considering the growth and development of the Province, considering the responsibilities which, as I will show later, rightly belong to the municipalities, that the Government has assumed, and the great growth and development of the Province, and an increase of population of over three-quarters of a million, is not this increase a most paltry one? And when we add to it that for all the benefits the Province has received there is not one dollar of debt, that we have valuable assets in our old parliament buildings, in our asylum lands, in our Crown and mineral lands, in our forest growth, that we have a clear surplus of $4,782,580.64, with not a dollar of indebtedness, it is the wonder of all that the increase has not been ten times that mentioned. On the other hand the Province of Quebec realizes annually, (and last year $1,319,000,) from sources which involve practically direct taxation, and sources of revenue which this government has not learned to avail itself of. Yet it has increased its annual debt about seven millions of dollars between the years 1891 and 1895—the latest figures available. It is needless with a fact like this before us to point out that during this period Quebec was under Conservative rule, and also that, as I shall presently show, the expenditures of Ontario for the several services directly benefitting the people were far in excess of the expenditures made by our sister provinces for similar services. (Applause.)

The widow appeals to the sympathy of even the most callous-hearted. Here is a woman still in the springtime of life, deprived of the stay and support upon which she had every right to depend, and her future overshadowed by the loss of the one man in all the world upon whom she had centered her love and affection. A man has no right to sacrifice his life in the mad race for money, by neglecting his bodily health. A man owes it to himself and to his wife and children to live a long and helpful life. If a man would live he must keep health.

Health is a matter of a little patch here and there. Look after the little ailments and the big ailments will take care of themselves. They will never come. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery keeps the body in perfect health. It promptly eradicates the little ailments that bring serious illness. If the serious malady has already arrived it promptly cures it by removing the cause. It corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver and makes the appetite keen and hearty. It makes the assimilation of food perfect and supplies the blood with the life-giving elements that build new and healthy tissue and firm muscles. It tones and builds up the nerves. It drives impurities and disease germs from every organ of the body. It cures all diseases due to overwork and worry and faulty nutrition. It is an unfailing remedy for weak lungs, spitting of blood, shortness of breath, severe cough, bronchitis, asthma and kindred affections. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption.

Mr. Isaac E. Downs, of Spring Valley, Rockland Co., N. Y., writes: "For three years I had suffered from that terrible disease, consumption, and heart-disease. Before taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I had wasted away to a skeleton; could not sleep nor rest, and many times wished to die to be out of my misery. Step by step, the signs and realities of returning health slowly but surely developed themselves while taking the 'Discovery.' Today I tip the scales at 187, and am well and strong. The 'Golden Medical Discovery' has also cured my daughter of a very bad ulcer located on the thigh."

THE OTTAWA BUDGET

Commission to Look After the Crow's Nest Railway.

SIR OLIVER MOWAT IS A MEMBER

Messrs. Blair and Sifton are With Him—Dr. Borden Had a Very Bad Shaking Up—Archives Removed to Safe Quarters—Letter From Premier Hardy.

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—Special.)—Sir Oliver Mowat and Hon. Messrs. Blair and Sifton have been appointed a subcommittee of council to grapple with the question of construction of the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, and held their first meeting to-day in Mr. Sifton's office. The subject assigned to them is one of the most important the Government has had to consider of late years. The Ministers recognise the desirability of the Kootenay country being tapped by railways from the east and west, but a difficulty arises over the desire of the people of British Columbia for an independent line from Vancouver and the further desire, in which the Territories join, for Government construction and operation.

Mr. A. L. Jarvis, Secretary of the Department of Agriculture, left for London to-night to attend the examination of verterinary surgeons for positions as departmental inspectors under the recent cattle quarantine regulations with the United States. The examining board will be Professor McEachran of Montreal and Dr. Andrew Smith of Toronto. The examiners will be in Toronto on Saturday and in Kingston on Monday. Any veterinary surgeon may present himself for examination and appointment.

The Minister of Militia got a bad shaking up in the railway accident near Dorchester, worse, unfortunately, than at first thought. Since he arrived here Dr. Borden has not been out of his bed, and his medical attendant has ordered absolute rest, so that he will not undertake office work for some time, and will probably go south for two or three weeks. Indeed, some people go so far as to say that the hon. gentleman may have to retire from politics altogether.

All the volumes of the Dominion archives, which were in the west block, under the Customs Department, have been safely removed from the burned building to the Langevin block, without the loss of a single volume. The ten thousand volumes were removed in eight hours, and it was found that only about a dozen books had been touched by water.

A new point respecting the condition of things prevailing in the Departmental buildings as regards water supply was brought out to-day. When the Parliament building and east and west blocks were constructed cast-iron pipes were used for carrying water through the buildings. It is said that with the exception of the Mackenzie wing there is no lead pipe in these buildings, and as the cast-iron pipe was not coated inside or out with the preparation which has been put upon it of late years, the present pipe is almost closed up by the accumulation of rust. This may well be understood, when it is pointed out that the pipes have been in use nearly 35 years. It is claimed by the city Waterworks Department that this is the cause of the poor streams of water from the hydrants within the buildings. That there is much in this contention was evidenced by what transpired in the House of Commons building two weeks ago. Down the wall in one corner of room 16, there runs a fresh water pipe. Some days ago the water burst through the pipe, and when the pipe came to be examined it was found to be choked up with oxide of iron, the result of corrosion of 30 years or more. New pipes had to be put in, and Mr. Tarte will probably have to cause the same to be done in the Departmental buildings. That this will not be a very easy job may be realized, when it is stated that there actually does not exist in the possession of the Government a plan of the location of water pipes in the Government buildings. The only man who is said to have one is Mr. J. R. Arnoldi, former mechanical engineer, but who was dismissed in 1891 at the instance of the Liberals.

Additional watchmen have been put on duty in all the Government buildings. They are employes of the Public Works Department. Now the question arises, if the late fire was caused by the carelessness of one of the departmental employes, as Mr. Tarte thinks, who is going to watch the watchmen?

Some of the models in the patents branch are being bundled out to make way for documents from the Interior Department.

Premier Hardy has written the following letter to Mr. Charles Murphy of this city, President of the Ontario Federal Young Liberal Club: "I learn with pleasure that the officers of the Ontario Federation of Liberal Clubs are taking action towards the perfecting and widening of the organization, and towards securing a careful and thorough revision of the provincial voters' lists. I quite recognise the great activity of the Young Liberal Clubs during the recent election and their powerful aid in securing the recent triumph of the Liberal principles throughout Canada. I know of no better agency for the extension of these principles throughout the province than the Liberal Clubs. Their action has been in the past powerful for good, and I venture to hope that the same activity may prevail within their ranks in relation to provincial public matters as that shown in the recent Dominion elections. It will greaty gratify the older members of the Liberal party and the Reform leaders of the Dominion and Province to learn of their renewed activity. They cannot throw too much energy into the work of the revision of the voters' lists, or into organization, as upon their efforts and the efforts of kindred associations in these directions very largely depend the results of the elections in doubtful places."

The steamer Stanley, which maintains the passenger and mail service between Pictou, N.S., and Prince Edward Island, was reported to the Department this morning as frozen in an ice floe out in the Straits and maybe lost for a fortnight. She has six months' provisions aboard and the accommodation is of the best, so passengers will not suffer any privations.

One of the Toronto members will next session introduce a bill in Parliament to compel railway companies to carry bicycles free of any extra charge aboard passenger trains.

"Amo, Amas, Amat."

Mr. Cumrox's son was studying his Latin lesson. There was the tremolo of discouragement in his voice as he remarked:

"I don't seem to get along with this lesson very well, fa her."

"Can't you say any of it?"

"Yes; I can say 'amo, amas, amat,' and then I always forget what comes next."

"What does those words mean, Johnny?" asked Mr. Cumrox, who deserves credit for being always ready to add to a somewhat deficient early education.

"They mean 'I love, thou lovest, he loves.'"

"It does seem too bad to see you starting in so soon," the old gentleman mused, "with the difficulties that has always surrounded that verb. But you might as well commence young to learn that them words in one way or another cause two-thirds of the botheration that occurs in this life."

"Please, can I quit school, then?"

"No; it wouldn't be any use. You couldn't dodge 'em and you might as well go right along and get as familiar with them as possible. You'll find that learnin' 'em ain't half the worry that handlin' 'em is after ye know 'em Cheer up, Johnny, and remember that most of your trouble is still ahead of you."—Washington Star.

INJURY AND NEGLECT.

He Failed in Health and Strength—His Kidneys Ached and he Took Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Deseronto, Feb. 8. — (Special). — Among business people here, and especially by his fellow-workmen, great interest has been taken in the case of Mr. James Stokes, who for the past fifteen years has been shipper for the Rathbun Company.

Lately he has run down in health and strength to the point of being compelled to quit work, and his recovery now as the result of using Dodd's Kidney Pills is the talk of the town. On seeing Mr. Stokes he said:

"From overstiffing and strain I suffered greatly from Kidney trouble, being advised after all else had failed to use Dodd's Kidney Pills; from the first dose I got relief, and hundreds of people here can vouch for my cure."

One Every Night.

One Laxa-Liver Pill taken each night during 30 days will cure Constipation, oft-returning Headaches and irregular action of the bowels. Laxa-Liver Pills leave no unpleasant after-effect.

A Passing Glimpse of Family Comfort.

Modern housekeeping is fast losing sight of the fact that the beauty of home depends largely upon the individual comfort of the family. Our elaborate furnishings and handsome decorations leave no room for the indulgence of that homely, easy comfort to which the family of long standing has become used.

"It cost a pile of money to educate Caroline," said the father. "It wasn't booklarnin' alone. She can paint and embroider; all these fixin's here she done. Look at that slipper holder on the wall over in the corner; that was my Christmas present, and there was a pair of the neatest slippers in it you ever see. And she says: 'Now, papa, throw those old ones away, and put these on every evening, for I shall have calls, you know, and you must look nice.' I didn't throw them very fur you mind, for I knew that them fancy ones would pinch, and I have got used to these old things. They're stubbed at the toes and busted out on the sides, but my! they're mighty comfitable when I git ready to set down nights!"

In My Lady's Dressingroom.

Small round tables that look at first glance like those intended for smokers' use serve a valuable purpose in a lady's dressing-room. They have, attached to their polished tops all paraphernalia needed to crimp the hair, including safety match box, alcohol lamp, with tongs standard; hair-pin tray and bandoline jar. The tables are in oak or mahogany finish and the attachments in various metals, brass, nickel or silver.

The full intensity of living is reached only by the perfectly healthy. Sickness discounts the capacity for enjoyment. If his body is all out of order and run-down, he will not be able to enjoy anything, no matter how full of enjoyment it may be for other people. If he is just a little bit out of order, if he "is not sick, but doesn't feel just right," he will only be able to enjoy things in a half-hearted sort of way. The nearer he is to being perfectly well, the nearer will his capacity for enjoyment be perfect. If this condition doesn't exist, something ought to be done. That means nine cases in ten the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It works directly on the digestive organs, and on the blood and through these on every tissue of the body. It makes the appetite good, digestion and nutrition perfect and supplies rich, red blood to all tissues, building up solid, healthful flesh.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ALWAYS CURE

AFTER TEN YEARS SUFFERING

Two Box Cure

MELVERTON, 20TH JULY, 1895.

Gentlemen,—For the last ten years I had been troubled with kidney disease, being so bad at intervals that I could not lie in bed at night nor stoop to the ground.

I had tried all the remedies I could find without effect, but heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills and procured a box.

I am most happy to say it for my own sake as well as for others that I am perfectly cured after using four boxes.

CLAPPERTON'S THREAD . . . . .

THE VIOLIN'S FORM.

HISTORY SHOWS IT HAS REMAINED THE SAME THRO' CENTURIES.

Modern Ingenuity Has Failed to Improve It—The Masters of Its Mechanical Shape—Paganini, Its Unequalled Master in Another Way.

And at the spot where they appear he hears,
Surprised at the unwonted sights of idling,
He hears, alas, no music of the spheres,
But an unhallowed, earthly sound of fiddling.

—Byron's Don Juan.

The violin consists of three parts, the neck, the table and the sounding board. The strings are tuned in fifths, the compass of the instrument exceeding three octaves. The violin assumed its present shape in the beginning of the seventeenth century. Many attempts have been made to improve upon the original idea, but it is significant that the oldest violins are ever regarded as the best. The instruments manufactured by the Amati, Stradivarius and Guarnerius families of Cremona are especially celebrated.

Stradivarius, or more properly, Antonio Stradivari, the great violinmaker, was born in 1649 and died in 1737. Almost the whole of his life was passed in Cremona, Italy, where, in his gloomy workshop, he spent his days and most of his nights. He was in early life a workman in the violin factory of Amati, also a famous violinmaker, and there learned his trade. Evidence of his workmanship is thought to appear in many of the Amati violins, which become the more valuable from that circumstance. The violins made by Stradivarius in his prime differ in many particulars from those of previous makers. Though the differences, in themselves, seem trifling, the sum was sufficient to bring the violins of this celebrated maker into the highest repute, even in his own time, and no subsequent maker has been able to effect any improvement in the manufacture of this delicate instrument. The secret of the superior excellence of a genuine Stradivarius violin is believed to be partly in the wood employed, partly in the outlines and partly in the finish, said to be a secret composition. The greatest improvements he effected were in the bridge, which, before his time, was made almost at haphazard, and in fixing the exact shape of the sound holes and their position in the instrument. His violins, in his own time, were sold for four louis d'or, in England for £4. Nearly a thousand violins from his factory are known to exist, and he made a great many kits, lyres, mandolins, theorbos, lutes and guitars. His instruments are very unequal, some being too weak to bear the pressure of the bow in playing, but a genuine Stradivarius of good quality has been known to change hands at from $2000 to $3000.

The name of Amati was borne by a large family of violinmakers at Cremona, in Italy, during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Cremona was at that time the heart of a rich agricultural district and had many wealthy churches and monasteries. It was, therefore, a greate musical and artistic center, and for two centuries enjoyed almost a monopoly of the manufacture not only of violins but of violas, violoncellos, basses, mandolins, guitars and other stringed instruments. The Amatis were the founders of violinmaking in Cremona, and one of the most famous of the family was Nicola, or Nicolo. Cremona continued to be famous for its violins till about 1760, the names of Stradivari, Guarneri, Landolfi and Serafin being almost as famous as that of Amati. The value of the violin depends altogether on its qualities and in no degree on the name of the maker, nor on ornamentation. There is a common superstition that every violin bearing the name of one of the great Cremona makers is a treasure from that circumstance alone, but the fact is that the violins of Cremona are very unequal, and while some are practically priceless, others are worthless save as curios; not a few, even of those made by Amati and Stradivari, being too weak to bear the strain incident upon the high pitch of the present day.

Why, it may be asked, was the violin called a fiddle? The violin is said to be the modern form of the viola da braccio, a small viol supported on the arm. It differed from the true viol in having the back as well as the front arched, in the number of strings and in various technical points. Earlier than the viol were the troubadour's instruments known variously as gieges, crowds, rebecks and fidels. They were rested on the shoulder and played with deeply curved bows, and were much smaller than the modern violin. Originally they were so small that they produced only shrill notes, fit to accompany boys' voices; to get deeper tones for men's voices larger instruments were used, and from them came the viola, and from the viola the violin was refined. The name fiddle, though now used almost always contemptuously or humorously, is the proper English name for the violin. The word comes from the middle Latin vitula, a fiddle, and it is found also in the Teutonic languages in various forms.

Paganini was the most remarkable genius with the violin that the world ever knew. His technique was something wonderful, but mere technique would never have accomplished the results he obtained, nor would it have thrown the musical world into spasms of admiration as he did. The accounts of his playing seem almost incredible. With the first note the audience was spell-bound and remained so to the last. From the violin he drew tones which were unsurpected to exist, and invented and played passages believed to be impossible. Moore said: "Paganini can play divinely, and does so for a minute or so, then come his tricks and surprises, his bow in convulsions, his enharmonics like the mewing of an expiring cat." The main technical features of Paganini's playing were his unfailing intonations, his wonderful rapidity and a command never equalled of harmonics. He was wonderfuly tricky, however, and often accomplished effects not understood even by experts, by tuning his violin in a different manner from that usually employed. A certain trick passage running up two octaves while holding B flat seems to be impossible to the ordinary violinist, but, it is said, by tuning a semi-tone higher the passage presents no unusual difficulty. He never allowed anyone to hear him tune his violin, and when professional people attempted to solve the problem of his playing by requesting him to play in private he invariably contrived, in some way or other, to disappoint their expectations. The secret of his execution died with him, and he has never been equalled as a violinist.

Of all the nerve-tonics—bromos, celeries or nervines—your doctor will tell you that the Hypophosphites are best understood. So thoroughly related is the nervous system to disease that some physicians prescribe Hypophosphites alone in the early stages of Consumption. Scott's Emulsion is Cod-liver Oil, emulsified, with the Hypophosphites, happily blended. The result of its use is greater strength and activity of the brain, the spinal cord and the nerves.

FANCY WAISTS.

Very High Embroidered and Furred Collars.

EMBROIDERY says Le Bon Ton, is lavishly used on evening bodices and quantities of lace. Both black and colored silk or velvet skirts are suitable with the separate waist, but too violent contrasts of color are to be avoided. Marvelously high collars embroidered in jewels and edged with fur and ruffled chiffon are used. The bolero of Russian or duchess lace enhances the richness of this elaborate garment. Besides there are crushed satin girdles, peasant girdles of velvet or beaded or jeweled girdles, which all add a touch of elegance to the bodice.

In neck dressing the variety is enormous, for no matetr how plain the gown, the neck has some kind of fancy finish. The velvet bound ribbon frills sewed on to a band are durable and becoming. Then there are lengths of mull or chiffon with lace edged turrets or Venetian points, plisses of ribbon, mull or silk, and a number of other styles. There are even stock collars made of fur with upstanding pleatings of silk or mousseline.

Collars made of artificial flowers are a fitting finish for an evening gown. Many of them are finished with wide lace.

Collarettes of changeable coq feathers are very stylish to put on either over a waist, jacket or cape. Gray or black ostrich collarettes are softer but not as durable as those of fur.

A Bridesmaid in Green.

A bridesmaid's dress seen recently was of pale-green silk made with full skirt, relieved only by a twist of mousseline de soie around the foot. The waist was a round one of the green silk, entirely veiled with green mousseline de soie. This gave a very fairy-like look to the dress. A long silken sash of green was wound around the waist and tied at the side with small loops and long ends. The throat, which was cut square, was finished with a twist of the same silk. The sleeve puffs were of green silk and were quite full. They were put on to look like small balloons or the mythical wings of a goddess. The floating ends of the sash, the sleeve puffs and the lightness of the mousseline de soie gave this dress a particularly airy appearance.

AYER'S PILLS

"I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have taken them for many years, and always derived the best results from their use. For stomach and liver troubles, and for the cure of headache caused by these derangements, Ayer's Pills cannot be equaled.

When my friends ask me what is the best remedy for disorders of the stomach, liver, or bowels, my invariable answer is, Ayer's Pills. Taken in season, they will break up a cold, prevent la grippe, check fever, and regulate the digestive organs. They are easy to take, and are, indeed, the best all-round family medicine I have ever known."—Mrs. May Johnson, 368 Elder Avenue, New York City.

A CHAPTER OF THE BUDGET DEBATE.

and have it, and if we have some current responsibilities in the shape of railway annuities, they are being gradually and surely reduced and cannot be regarded as a serious burden. They are on the high road to extinction, a goal that will be reached long before the Opposition of the House will be charged with any administrative responsibility in respect of them. (hear, hear.) Hon. gentleman, give no credit for the retirement from current revenue of $206,000 of railway certificates in 1893 and 1894, and we have had for all these years the advantages of the railway way facilities which had they not been assisted we would not have enjoyed.

The financial standing of individuals, states and countries, is one of always prime importance, and if I occupy a little time in making a few comparisons it will be employing the only means of forming a just estimation of the relative ability (and success) devoted to the administration of financial affairs. Under the head Civil Government comes the general administration of the affairs of the province, and the province, like other increasing and expanding business enterprises, has found it necessary to increase the expenditure. The hon. gentleman has not shown that under this head there has been any waste, has not shown that the service has been inefficient, and has not disproved what every business man knows, that no business man can set a fixed standard of outlay—variations in business conditions must be met. Now, for a little comparison, or rather contrast. Ontario expended under Civil Government in 1895, $344,700; Quebec expended in the same year $351,356, a difference in favour of the larger province—Ontario—of $6,500. Under legislation—and Ontario laws are of as good quality and the eloquence and its extent in this House are certainly not inferior to Quebec—yet for legislation the Province of Quebec paid $48,500 more than this Province in the same year. No person has been found to cast any discredit upon the quality of Ontario justice, (hear, hear), yet the cost of the administration of justice in Ontario, the larger province by far, in the year under review, was $68,000 less than the smaller province—Quebec, and unless we agree that that Province supplies a better brand of justice than this Province, the difference in cost is significant.

A COMPARISON.

The next item upon which I wish to invite comparison, is one that also significantly reverses the order of the figures, and while I have shown that Quebec is much in excess of Ontario in the cost of the spending departments, I shall show that this Province is greatly ahead of Quebec in the expenditure of departments whose function is to relieve the people from the burden of taxation. Ontario expended for the purposes of education in 1895 the large sum of $700,000, while Quebec's contribution to educational improvement was only $371,000 a difference of $328,000, a notable excess of over 100 per cent., and while the opposition is condemning the expenditure in this province, Quebec is clamouring for increased expenditure under this head. As this subject is one of the greatest moment to the people of the country I may be held excused if I refer to it more fully. It is generally admitted except by the most pronounced partizans among the opponents of the government, that the present Minister of Education has most exceptional gifts for the position he occupies, and while he has always been persistently attacked by political pea shooters he has been successful in making this province distinguished, if not, indeed, celebrated for its superior system of education. And, not satisfied with present achievements and successes, he is still anxious to proceed in the direction of perfection. It is admitted on all sides that it is important to teach a boy or girl that which they require to practice in adult life, and that it is essential, in harmony with our free institutions that the facilities of education should be extended as freely to the son of the poor man as to the heir of the rich. Statistics have shown that two-thirds of the criminal classes of the Empire are uneducated, and if we, in Ontario, wish to we must see to it that there be no relaxation of effort in giving financial or administrative attention to our educational service, in the interest of the youth of our country who are to be our active citizens. We, of Ontario are blessed by nature, with most lavish gifts, we are encircled by a zone of great lakes and rivers, we have a soil of unsurpassed fertility that fills the barns and granaries of the land. We have mineral wealth whose extent and richness are only beginning to be suspected. We have forests still standing in primeval grandeur only equalled by the excellence of our mineral wealth. We have a people descended from heroic ancestry, and in every material regard, we are justly entitled to rank as the leading province of Canada. But notwithstanding all these various advantages, the mental as well as the material welfare of the Province must be a subject of solicitude to a Government, for with all the material advantages we possess, we shall fall behind if the thought, the intellectual power, by neglect become stunted and dwarfed. How is the required development to be attained? Assuredly by means of our educational institutions. A nation may very easily have too many intellectual nobodies and incompetents, but it is impossible for it to have too many men of thought, culture and mental training. We are a nation of workers, and the better the workman is equipped for his calling, the better his success. While it is important to train the mind, the training of the hand should not be neglected, and the proposal for the establishment of a system of technical education as a much to be desired complement of our mental system is designed to meet the demand for a symmetrical development of both the intellectual and physical sides of the natures of our children.

The hon. gentleman may call these things "educational fads" and he may condemn with great invective the expenditure on our Collegiate Institutes, and High Schools, on our Public and Separate Schools, on our Public Libraries, on our Teachers' Institutes, on our Training schools for teachers, but if he is opposed to the large expenditure in this respect, why does he not specify what special expenditure is excessive, and, at the proper time, move for its reduction? During the incumbency of the present Minister of Education the department has been more economically administered than ever before, and at the same time with greater efficiency. In 1872 the cost of administering the department was $22,705, as against $20,160 in 1896; that is, with an increase of population of the province in 25 years of over a million, an increase in the number of schools, pupils and teachers, the cost last year was $2,500 less than it was in the days of a government that is always held up as a model of economy not to say, parsimony.

Hon. gentlemen opposite complain of increased expenditure. The natural inference is therefore that they want it cut down. In 1872 this province paid the Public and Separate schools $204,758, but that amount has increased till the estimates of 1897 propose an expenditure of $455,079, or an increase of $251,321 per year. Will hon. gentleman specify just on which branch of this service the pruning knife is to be used? There has been an increase in the grant to poor schools this year to $50,000, an increase of $5,000. Do they wish cut down the

GRANT TO PIONEER SCHOOLS?

This year the appropriation for Public schools is $455,077.98. Do they advocate a reduction of this amount, and thus throw a heavy burden of increased taxation on the school sections? I need hardly ask the leader of the Opposition if he wishes the appropriation for Separate schools cut down. He seems to have had a change of heart, to have learned the lesson of defeat, which the attacks on Separate schools has taught. He has become broader in his sympathies, as shown by the very greatly changed attitude set forth in his first address to the House this session. Therefore we may reason that since he is not prepared to maintain the demand of himself and his party for the abolition of Separate schools, he does not desire the appropriation of this House for these schools to be reduced. During the twenty-four years the present Government has been in power there has been given back to the people for the purpose of Public school education the enormous sum of $370,000 per annum—or over $1000 a day. Perhaps the hon. gentleman will propose a reduction in the grant to High Schools and Collegiate Institutes, which amounts this year to $114,450, or an increase of $87,589 over what the annual appropriation was when this Government came into power. Does the Opposition wish that the $7,000 of increase this year for continuation classes in the Public Schools be wiped from the appropriation slate? Does the Opposition wish that the $750,000 paid the superannuated teachers during the past ten years discontinued? Are they anxious that the grants for technical education and to public libraries, which has increased in twenty years four and a half fold, abolished? This item was in 1876, $13,707, and in 1896, $64,374, an increase of $52,667. Does the Opposition desire the grant for the training of teachers, to prepare them for their work and which has increased in twenty four years from $25,851 to $88,765, an increase of over 100 per cent.—does he wish this to be cut off, or reduced? Does the Opposition know that one dollar in every five that comes into the Provincial Treasury finds its way to the people of the Province to lessen directly the taxes to be paid by ratepayers? The people take pride in their schools and are equally anxious with the Government that every child should have a fair degree of education. This is shown by the fact that the people directly tax themselves for the maintenance of schools to a very great extent. For instance, in 1894, the latest return at hand—the people raised by taxes $4,265,131 for school purposes, being an increase $2,774,942, over the figures of 1867. With all the great expenditure for education made by this Province, the cost per pupil is less than that of any state of the Republic to the south of us, and that the results of our excellent system are superior is testified to by the undoubted results. A few years ago the attack was concentrated upon Separate Schools, now the Collegiate Institutes are under fire, and the latter assault is as certain to result disastrously as the former has done. The poor man's university is our Collegiate Institute. (Applause.)

A PLEA FOR THE AFFLICTED.

If the Government is to keep in touch with the requirements of the people, expenditures, necessary to meet these requirements must be made. Does the hon. gentleman wish the $34,000 devoted to purposes of the institution of the blind at Brantford discontinued or decreased? This class of unfortunates should excite unusual sympathy. The sun that shines for all, shines not for them. They are shut out from the ordinary forms of enjoyment, and by a mysterious dispensation of Providence the afflicted of this class are nearly always poor, and therefore the more needy of help. (Hear, hear.) Will it be seriously proposed that an appropriation intended to help the helpless, to make them in a certain way self-sustaining, should be substantially decreased? The Deaf and Dumb Institution at Belleville receives $43,936 per year. Can we imagine a class of unfortunates more deserving of practical sympathy than those who never hear, nor can ever use the voice of love? Shall we revert to the condition of barbarism and throw these afflicted upon the cold mercy of the world?

To this question the answer is emphatically no! The people of this province do not desire for the sake of saving a few dollars to return to a condition of barbarism, where the motto is every man for himself. Governments are founded upon the Divine law, and the Divine law inculcates the doctrine of the brotherhood of man, of help and sympathy. Before concluding this subject I am reminded of the references made by the hon. member for South Lanark to the cost of the examination of candidates. Here is another chance for comparison, and, as is invariably the case, the comparison is in favour of this province. If we take the cost of the medical examinations we find that they average $3.06 per pupil; we find that the Dominion civil service examinations cost $2.97, and the Ontario Education departmental examinations only cost $2.41. To carry the comparison further we find that it costs the Ontario department for reading papers 31 cents per pupil, and it costs the Dominion civil service 63 cents per pupil, and if payment in both cases were made according to the amount of papers read, the cost of the Ontario reading would be 12 cents and that of the Dominion 63 cents.

BEAUTY AND HEALTH TO FAIR WOMEN.

Miss Annie Patterson, of Sackville, N.B., Once the Victim of Nervousness and General Debility, Takes on the Health of Early Years.

Some remedies are nothing more than a temporary stimulant, and the reaction aggravates the disease. Where the system has become run down, and nervous debility in its worst forms have shown themselves, South American Nervine will cure. It strikes at the nerve centres and builds up the system by removing the real cause of trouble. Miss Annie Patterson, of Sackville, N.B., a lady well known in the Maritime Provinces, suffered terribly from indigestion and nervousness, and her case seemed incurable. She accepted South American Nervine without hope that it was any different to other remedies, but her words are: "I had taken only one bottle when my system began to take on the health of earlier years, and after taking three bottles I was completely cured." A CASE OF DIABETES.

No Help From Medical Men—Suffered for Many Years—Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

North Bruce, Feb. 15 (Special)—An old and well known settler in this Township, named Thomas Brooks, who lives on lots 7 and 8 in the 14th concession is rejoicing with his neighbours over his recent recovery, and he said:

"I was cured by using twenty-four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and as nothing else ever helped me I say they saved my life."

"I had tried all the doctors of this locality and was treated for Diabetes, hoping and suffering for years."

"From reading of cures I determined to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I must say that after using the first box I would have considered them reasonable at ten dollars a box."

MR. R. M. ROY

TO THE PUBLIC!

Having purchased Mr. P. H. Green's complete Photograph Studio on Hunter street, I take this opportunity of inviting a continuance of the favours of the numerous patrons of this Studio and solicit from my own friends, as well as the public generally, a liberal share of their orders.

Mr. Green will remain with me for a few weeks to personally assist and introduce me to his customers, as well as to complete all work under contract by him.

I have arranged to carry out within a reasonable time any of Mr. Green's unfinished orders, after his removal from Peterborough, and will do all in my power to meet the wishes of my patrons.

This popular studio has been so well known and has enjoyed so large and valuable a patronage ever since its establishment, that it only remains for me to state that it will be my constant aim to continue the high standard of superior photography which it has deservedly maintained.

Miss Dawson will still be in charge of the retouching and finishing department.

Please bear in mind that all Photographs taken by P. H. Green while in business in Peterborough, the negatives of which are in perfect order, are now in my possession, and copies can be had at any time on application.

SHUTTING DOWN

—ON—

LONG-WINDED CREDIT

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 10th, 1897.

NOTICE—From and after this date, Messrs. H. LeBRUN & CO. have decided to shorten the Term of Credit heretofore given, and, in future, no goods will be sold except for Cash, or on such limited time as may be mutually arranged.

We believe the safest way to do business in these days is to sell for Cash. The next best way is to sell on short dates. Many of our customers who have regularly paid their bills after a reasonable term of credit, would perhaps feel the "Spot Cash" system a hardship, especially while times are so hard and money so scarce. We regard these customers as among the best we have, and are quite satisfied to continue to extend to them the same terms of limited credit they have been accustomed to enjoy.

Our chief complaint is with the "long-winded" customer, who compels us to say that he makes business-life a down-right worry. It makes no difference to us whether a man is worth a million if he won't pay his account. When we need money for our business and are repeatedly put off with "promises to pay" by those who are well able to pay, we have no use for such trade. If every customer treated us in that way we could not carry on business at all. Besides, it is very disagreeable to us to have to "dun" a customer half a dozen times, or spend the profits in postage stamps, and wearing out shoe-leather to boot. We are compelled, therefore, to shut down at once on long credits. Those who can't pay within a reasonable time, we don't want their account in future.

There is a resolution all over the country in favour of Cash or shorter Credits. Cash is a more powerful friend now than ever, and if we must compete with the Cash Stores, who save their discounts, we can't afford to give long credit. Wholesale houses are now offering such big baits in the way of Cash Discounts that we must be prepared to take advantage of them or be handicapped.

All past due Accounts must be settled by the 1st of March; after that date they will be placed in Court for collection. All parties having contra accounts against us are requested to hand them in for settlement at once.

FIRED ON THE GREEKS

Gunboats of the Great Powers Attack Canea.

THE GREEK FLAG HAULED DOWN

When Shells From the Big Warships Began to Fall Amongst the Soldiers—Details of the Fighting Which Took Place at Fort Voukolis—Latest War News.

Canea, Feb. 21.—The admirals commanding the foreign fleets here yesterday visited Col. Vassos, the commander of the Greek army of occupation at his camp at Aghia. What transpired there has not been made public, but upon the return of the admirals they invited the commanders of the Greek warship Navarchos Miaouli's to visit them. The invitation was accepted, and when the commander met the admirals he was informed that an attack would be made upon the Greek troops and the Greek warship if Col. Vassos advanced into the interior.

Subsequent to the interview, the commander, accompanied by Rear Admiral Harris, commanding the British fleet, proceeded to the camp of Col. Vassos, who was informed as to the decision that had been arrived at by the commanding officers of the foreign fleets.

This morning the insurgents in the vicinity of Canea began firing on the town, despite the warnings that had been given. The firing continued for some time, whereupon the admirals of the foreign fleets ordered their vessels cleared for action, and soon the guns of the fleet were throwing shells into the insurgents' camp. A British cruiser was the first of the warships to open fire, vessels of the other nations following in succession. Forty shells were fired.

The forts fired blank cartridges at the Greek despatch boat Peineloa, which had exchanged shots with a Turkish frigate. After shots had been fired by both vessels the frigate withdrew.

The German warship Kaiserin Augusta has arrived here and landed marines, who will share in the foreign occupation of the town.

Later—It has been learned that the ultimatum of the admirals to Col. Vassos was against his attacking Canea. It apparently did not forbid him from marching into the interior of the island, where Col. Vassos purposes to occupy several strategic points. One report states that the ultimatum declared that if the Greek troops or the insurgents approached any nearer to Canea than they were, the fleets would shell them, but if they were quiet they would be permitted to land food. Col. Vassos replied that he did not intend to attack Canea or the flags of the powers. He would remain on the defensive unless he was attacked.

Notwithstanding this assurance, fighting took place to-day on the hills to the east of the town. The combatants, who were Cretan Christians and Mussulmans only, were in plain view from the ships in the harbor. The reply of the Mussulmans to the fire of the Christians was very feeble, and it could easily be seen that they would be compelled to abandon their position if the Christians pressed them. Their gun practice was so very poor that it excited ridicule on board the ships.

The main position of the Christians was in a hamlet on the ridge of the hills where they had hoisted the flag of Greece. This position was about 4000 yards from the war ships.

At 4.30 o'clock the flagship displayed signals for the Dryad, Harrier and Revenge, and one vessel each of the Italian, German and Russian squadrons to open fire on the Cretan position. The order was quickly complied with. The British vessels fired 40 shells, and the other vessels about 30. The aim of the gunners was very good, and it was soon seen that the position of the insurgents was becoming untenable. In about ten minutes the Greek flag was hauled down and as soon as it disappeared the order "Cease firing" was given, and the guns of the fleet immediately became silent. Thereupon the flag was again hoisted on its staff. The rocks in the vicinity were crowded with Cretans. The Musulmans, encouraged and emboldened by the assistance that had been given to them by the fleets of Christian Europe, now began a lively fusilade on the Cretans, who were engaged in removing their wounded. The Christians were evidently dispirited by the action of the fleets and made no attempt to return the fire.

The action of the foreign war ships has caused the deepest indignation here, and the supporters of the Sultan are bitterly denounced on all sides. It is declared that the powers, in upholding the Moslem rule by force of arms, have made a melancholy and degrading spectacle that Greece will never forget.

DETAILS OF THE FIGHTING

Which Resulted in the Abandonment of Fort Voukoulis.

London, Feb. 21.—The Daily News correspondent at Canea telegraphs a detailed account of the fighting at, and the abonment of Fort Voukoulis, which the Christians subsequently blew up with dynamite. The Moslems lost 50 killed in the fighting.

After the main body of Greek troops had returned to Platania from Voukoulis, news arrived that 500 Turks and 500 Bashi Bazouks were attempting to advance from Canea, and that they were held in check in a defile by a force of 200 Cretans. Col. Vassos sent a battalion of infantry and a company of Chasseurs to assist the Cretans. The country was difficult to traverse, being heavily wooded, but the Greeks managed to get through.

The Turks, when they learned of the approach of reinforcements, took positions on the heights, and for three hours made a desperate defence. The Greek troops were all young men who had never seen service, but they fought with admirable courage. They drove the Turks from one position to another, and captured the towers of Ayah and Monkundra and the barracks at Livadia; which they burned.

The Moslems retreated, taking with them three cannons. The Greeks pursued them to within a mile of Canea, and then retired to Platania. The Turkish loss is unknown, but numbers of wounded were taken into Canea.

The Greeks suffered severely. Three officers were killed and one officer was severely wounded. The Athenian students' corps fought beside the troops.

King George Going to Crete.

Berlin, Feb. 21.—The Lokal Anzeiger has a despatch from Copenhagen saying that King George of Greece has telegraphed to his father, the King of Denmark, that he is going to Crete to command in person the Greek troops there.

Riot in Constantinople.

Constantinople, Feb. 21.—The Cretan troubles led to a serious fight here to-day between a number of Greek and Turkish potters. Knives were freely used, and some of the combatants were dangerously wounded. All those who took part in the fight were arrested.

British Attending Turk.

Athens, Feb. 21.—It is reported here that a Turkish transport, escorted by a British torpedo boat, is conveying 1500 soldiers to Herkalion and Canea.

WILL LAND GUNS.

The Powers Will Compel Greece to Abandon Her Plans.

London, Feb. 21.—The Times has a despatch from Canea saying that the admirals of the several fleets there have decided to land guns to defend the town in the event of the Greek troops or the insurgents advancing.

The despatch adds that wounded Moslems in the hospital declare that the victims of the Sarakimos massacre were offered a safe conduct to Selino, where they would be exchanged for hostages. The offer was accepted, but on the march to Selino the Christian escort and other Christians attacked and massacred them. It is further said that it is believed that the report of the massacre of 2000 Mussulmans at Sitia is greatly exaggerated.

The Berlin correspondent of The Times telegraphs that there is reason to believe that the powers have given in various degrees provisional approval of the German proposal to blockade the Greek ports in order to compel Greece to obey the orders of the powers relative to Crete. The adoption of the German proposal in some form, if Greece remains recalcitrant, is becoming increasingly probable.

J. P. SHAW MURDERED

Shot Down in Cold Blood by James Fry.

THE FIEND FIRED THREE SHOTS

Fry is Barricaded and Says He Will Not be Taken Alive—A Dispute Over Tan Bark the Cause of the Assassination—Great Excitement in the Neighborhood.

Emsdale, Ont., Feb. 20.—Word was received to-day of the murder of J. P. Shaw, a prominent citizen of this place, about 16 miles east of here. Deceased had trouble with a man by the name of Fry over tan-bark and was shot dead by him at Ravensworth, a flag station on the O. A. & P. S. Railway, where the tan-bark was being loaded.

Fry has so far resisted all attempts at arrest and maintains that he will not be taken alive.

Coroner Dr. Barber is proceeding to the scene of the tragedy. The wildest excitement prevails in this village.

Details of the Tragedy.

Emsdale, Feb. 21.—News is continually arriving in town about the shooting tragedy east of here, and as piece by piece the tale is made complete, people are induced to classify the shooting of J. P. Shaw as being among the most cold blooded and dastardly murders ever committed. That the crime was premeditated is seen from the fact that on the evening previous to the tragedy, when a dispute arose between deceased and James Fry, the latter significantly remarked that he would settle it without resorting to law. On the following morning, Feb. 20, he proceeded to the woods where Mr. Shaw was at work, and found him alone cutting roads to the pulp wood piles. No one was present to see the first shot fired, but apparently deceased was facing his murderer and received the first shot from a 32-calibre revolver in the breast. He turned to escape, when he was again shot in the side. Still keeping his feet, he made a dash to get behind a tree, and catching hold of it was carried on by the force of the effort he had put forth and in swinging completely around it, was shot by his ruthless assassin in the face, causing instant death.

Four of Mr. Shaw's men, hearing shooting, arrived on the scene in time to see him fall. The murderer, having completed his work, coolly walked away and no one knowing the desperate character of the man, cared to interfere with him. He remarked to some whom he met that he had settled with Shaw and the pulp wood. Throwing the empty shells out of his revolver as he went along, he reloaded it and betook himself to his house, where he has so far defied all attempts at arrest.

Serious trouble is anticipated at his capture, as he is well known to be a desperate character, having served in the Texas Rangers and gone through the American Civil War, and he is a crack shot, and places no value on a human life. He has spent about 17 years hunting and trapping in the woods east of here, and knows about every acre of the forest wilderness between here and Ottawa River. Should he once escape into the woods and his trail become covered by snow he could easily elude pursuit. Occasionally, he used to come into Emsdale armed with revolvers and knives, and the restless glitter of his eye betokens him to be a man of more than usual energy.

James Fry answers to the following description. About 54 years of age, six feet in height, slightly stooped, iron-grey whiskers, dark eyes, one slightly crossed, no front teeth and usually wears a Cardigan jacket.

The victim of the murder was left lying where he had fallen until the arrival of the Coroner, Dr. Barber, of this place, when his body was brought to town. Deceased is well-known in this vicinity, and he and his wife were much respected. He came to Emsdale about seven years ago, and for some time was a successful merchant. Getting into business difficulties, he disposed of his store and has since been dealing in timber produce. Formerly he had been a school teacher and was hardly in the prime of life, being about 36 years old, and carried life insurance to the amount of $3000, one thousand in the I.O.F. and two thousand in the K.O.T.M. He leaves a wife and three small children to mourn his loss.

The sad news was last night sent to his brother, H. P. Shaw, manager of the Trans-Atlantic Transportation Company, Vancouver, B.C., and Duncan Shaw, of Sunnidale Township, in the vicinity of Stayner, Ont.

The Coroner's inquest was commenced late last night, but was adjourned until Monday evening at 7 o'clock, sufficient evidence being taken to warrant the removal of the body.

NIAGARA FALLS POWER

Mr. Hardy's Commissioners Looking Over the Ground—Extension Likely to be Granted.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 20.—J. W. Langmuir of Toronto, B. E. Charlton of Hamilton and George Wilkes of Brantford, commissioners of the Niagara Falls Queen Victoria Park, came here to-day to investigate the development power on the American side of the river, and ascertain is the claim of the Niagara Falls Power Company that the transmission of electric energy long distances is still an experiment, is justified, and to form an opinion from their findings as to whether the time for the commencement of work on the Canadian power plant should be extended 18 months by the Ontario Government. They are to report to the Government without delay. Commissioner Langmuir said to-night that a decision had been arrived at, but nothing could be given out for publication. It is believed the report will favor an extension.

Toilette of Animals.

Cats, large and small, make the most careful toilet of any class of animals, excepting some of the opossums. The lions and tigers wash themselves in exactly the same manner as the cat, wetting the dark, india rubber-like ball of the forefoot, and the toe, and passing it over the face and behind the ears. The foot is thus at the same time a face sponge and a brush, and the rough tongue combs the rest of the body. Hares also use their feet to wash their faces, and the hare's foot is so suitable for a brush that it is generally used to apply the "paint" to the face for the stage.

MR. DAVID BOYLE'S ARCHÆOLOGIGRAPH.

HIS REPORT TO THE MINISTER OF EDUCATION.

Specially Interesting to Peterborough —The Important Material Furnished by the Rice Lake District—The Serpent Mound at Minaag's Point, Otonabee — The Most Important "Find" of the Year or of Our History.

The annual report for 1896-7 of Mr. David Boyle, curator of the Ontario Archæological Museum, and a most enthusiastic archæologist, besides, is a document of more than ordinary interest to the people of Peterborough and vicinity, since the bulk of its contents, in interest and importance at least, are relating to notable archæological discoveries in the southern part of this county. About a third of the ninety odd pages that comprise the report proper are devoted to a description of explorations and discoveries in the Rice Lake District. The EXAMINER last September contained extended references to Mr. Boyle's work in this region, but the report contains fuller details, and of a more, so to speak, technical character than come within the province of the newspaper's function. With a becoming spirit of gratitude Mr. Boyle acknowledges courtesies in connection with his visit to this county, and donations received from the following gentlemen: Messrs. H.T. Strickland and G. W. Hatton, Peterborough; "Dan" Whetung, Chemong, Indian Village; Dr. J. M. Shaw and Dr. W. T. Harrison, and Messrs. James Miller, Robt. Borland, Thos. Wallace, J. A. McIntyre, Archibald Weir and Mrs. W. Foley, Keene; Messrs. F. Birdsall and Adam Humphrey, Birdsall; Messrs. J. H. Scriver, John Preston and Dr. Coughlin, Hastings; Mr. Thos. Blezard, M.P.P., Villiers; Pashagueshik, Alderville; Mrs. James Houghtalling, Alnwick; Squire Thompson, Hiawatha; and Mr. Geo. Braithwaite, Gore's Landing.

In demonstration of the importance of Mr. Boyle's visit to the Rice Lake region it may be mentioned that in addition to the archæological and historic or prehistoric value of his discoveries the additions to the museum were very numerous and many of them of unique importance. Of the 2,500 specimens added to the museum this year, over eighteen hundred were contributed by the Rice Lake district.

But the most important discovery described by Mr. Boyle in his report of is the discovery and identification of the unique (so far as the archæology of Canada is concerned) serpent and egg mound, at Roach's Point. This point, which is well known locally, lies on lot 7 in the 7th concession of Otonabee, on property owned by Messrs. G. W. Hatton and H. T. Strickland, Peterborough and Ashburnham, respectively. This point is also known as Quinn's Point and De Zang's Point, but the indefatigable Mr. Boyle has unearthed, so to speak, a more romantic and appropriate title, Minaag's Point, but on the occupancy of Pashagueshik, of Alderville, an educated Indian of the Mississauga tribe, the name altered to "Minaay," who was the father of the late Chief Pandush, of the Mississauga band.

What adds additional interest to the Serpent Mound is that it will in all probability be responsible for a visit by the Archæological section of the British Association, which meets in Toronto next summer. A movement inspired by Mr. Boyle is on foot to induce the town of Peterborough to extend an invitation to the Archæological Section to pay a visit to this mound. The Rice Lake region has a beauty of its own in summer that would justify us in taking pride in bringing strangers to the spot, especially when we have as an additional inducement to the distinguished scientists a view to offer of one of the most, if not the most, perfect and unique egg and serpent mounds in existence.

Mr. Boyle devotes a paragraph to the very obvious desirability of preserving this important relic of a prehistoric Canadian age. On sentimental, on historical and scientific grounds, the steps suggested by Mr. Boyle should receive the attention of the Government. This country is just beginning to see the importance of giving greater attention to the collection of historic data, and that awakening should not fall short of including an interest in the preservation of prehistoric remains of the last archæological importance.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

The "Bob Ind." will Stand up for Man's Rights Hereafter.

At the close of an article mentioning the various business avocations now engaged in by women, the Bobcaygeon Independent says:—"There are many other instances in which improper preference and superiority is granted to the female sex, but only one need be specially alluded to. If there is to be perfect equality between the sexes why should one sex possess the right to legally sue the other sex for betrayal? Why should the father of children be under greater legal obligation to support these children than the mother? Why should a man be legally bound to support his wife and the wife not bound to support her husband? Let us have equality. There is no sound reason why Miss Clara Martin should not be a barrister, and other misses, doctors and teachers and editors and forswomen, and so on, but there would be gross injustice in giving them legal superiority, and therefore all such laws as those respecting "dower" for females, or those respecting betrayal, or those compelling a man to maintain his wife or children, should be repealed, or at least should be made to apply equally to both sexes. What is good for the goose is equally good for the gander, and the time has arrived for the gander to stand up on his hind legs and insist upon the ganders's rights. And this journal means to do so, and lady barristers and the other female suffragists, and women's rights advocates, and the 'new women' generally can govern themselves accordingly."

The entering wedge of a fatal complaint is often a slight cold, which a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. Therefore, it is advisable to have this prompt and sure remedy always at hand to meet an emergency.

WONDERFUL ESCAPES

One Man Was Buried Under a Snow Slide for Days and Still Lives—Over a Precipice.

Denver, Feb. 21.—Snow slides have wrought much damage, and at least two lives have been lost in the past 24 hours. Mail-carrier E. J. Bell, who was supposed to be dead, has saved himself, and about the only damage apparent, excepting his very weak condition, in a few frozen toes. Bell was caught in a slide under about 25 feet of snow Rescuing parties took off 15 feet directly over him and then gave him up for dead. He lay unconscious until about 8 o'clock this morning. When his senses returned he heard water trickling down. This water had brought him air and saved his life. He dug to the stream and then to the surface. Then he walked three miles to the nearest house and fell unconscious as soon as he realized that he was saved.

James Petty was carried over a precipice with a pack train yesterday, most of the burros being killed and himself only slightly injured.

A snow slide caught the cabin of the Cleopatra mine near Pitkin, killing Martin Mertley and injuring his three partners.

At Ophir, Col., a snow slide demolished the railroad station and 12 freight cars. The station agent and his wife were in the building at the time eating dinner. The timbers fell in such shape that the man was but slightly injured, and his wife did not receive a single bruise.

A PROHIBITION BILL

Has Been Introduced in the Nova Scotia Legislature—Its Provisions.

Halifax, N.S., Feb. 21.—A bill prohibiting the retailing of liquor in Nova Scotia has been introduced in the Legislature, and is said to stand a good chance of becoming law. It does not attempt to prohibit the manufacturing or wholesale business, as such has been adjudged beyond the province of the Local Legislatures, but it restricts the quantities which may be sold by wholesale dealers. The measure will be debated next week.

INJURY AND NEGLECT.

He Failed in Health and Strength—His Kidneys Ached and he Took Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Deseronto, Feb. 8. — (Special). — Among business people here, and especially by his fellow-workmen, great interest has been taken in the case of Mr. James Stokes, who for the past fifteen years has been shipper for the Rathbun Company.

Lately he has run down in health and strength to the point of being compelled to quit work, and his recovery now as the result of using Dodd's Kidney Pills is the talk of the town. On seeing Mr. Stokes he said:

"From overlifting and strain I suffered greatly from Kidney trouble, being advised after all else had failed to use Dodd's Kidney Pills; from the first dose I got relief, and hundreds of people here can vouch for my cure."

FRANCE HAS A REVOLT, TOO.

The Natives of the Marshall Islands Break Loose and Fling Defiance at the Governor.

San Francisco, Feb. 21.—The arrival of the Gallilee from Tahita shows that another country is involved in an insurrection. The islanders of the Marshall group have thrown open defiance at France, and all the forces at the command of the Governor of the islands have proved of no avail against the natives. The villages of the latter have been destroyed, the crops burned, their strongholds in the hills shelled, and many people killed. According to the story told by the passengers on the Gallilee the natives had been grumbling for a long time past. They asserted that the taxes were too high, and finally refused to pay when called upon. These on the main group were soon brought to terms, but the natives of Raiatea and the adjacent islands held out, and when the Gallilee sailed from Papeete the men, women and children had retired to the hills and were keeping up a desultory warfare. The transport Aube with several companies of volunteers, and the frigate Duguay-Iremin were on the scene and a proclamation was sent to all the rebel chiefs, demanding their surrender within four days. No satisfactory replies were returned to this proclamation.

THE OTTAWA BUDGET

Mr. Joseph Bourke of Hull Gets the Contract

FOR ROOF FOR THE WESTERN BLOCK

Position of the Pulp Industry Discussed—Canadians Will be Employed by the Bank Note Printers—Steps to Stop Smuggling The Quarters at Bisley—Notes.

Ottawa, Feb. 21.—(Special.)—Mr. Joseph Bourke of Hull has been awarded the contract for placing a temporary roof over the Western block.

No decision has yet been reached in the matter of the nature of the new roof, or as regards a new Records building.

Another question which the Government will have to face is as to the disposition of the laboratory branch of the Inland Revenue Department. This is at present located on the first floor of the Mackenzie wing, and is filled with dangerous compounds and inflammable material. At any moment the Mackenzie wing may be in a blaze by an explosion of some of these combustibles. The Government have already had a warning by the total destruction of the laboratory at the Central Experimental farm last summer, and the suggestion has now been made to the Ministers to put up a special building to accommodate the analysts of the Inland Revenue, the chemists of the Experimental Farm, and the chemists of the Geological Survey. Although each is a separate branch of the public service, yet it is obvious that a single Dominion laboratory would be of great advantage. If the three branches are united under one roof there need be no clashing of interests. Each has its separate sphere of labor, but many of the appliances could be used in common, so that to that extent there would be saving in public expenditure. The matter is one deserving of prompt consideration by the Government.

Dr. Drewsen, a leading chemist of New York and an expert in the manufacture of wood pulp for paper making, was here yesterday, advising the E. B. Eddy Co. in regard to certain matters affecting their business. Dr. Drewsen, who is a Norwegian by birth, takes great interest in matters affecting the United States and Canada, and in conversation freely discussed the present position of the pulp industry. He admits that the supply of pulp wood is falling in the United States, and that the manufacturers there are now looking to Canada to keep their mills going. If an export duty were placed on pulp wood Dr. Drewsen sees no other alternative open to American manufacturers than that they must come and manufacture their pulp in this country.

T. H. Freeland, Vice-President, and T. Robertson, Secretary, of the American Bank Note Engraving Company of New York are in the city in connection with the contract which has been awarded the company by the Government for engraving Dominion notes, stamps, etc. The contract is now being engrossed. It permits the company to import their dies so that the engraving will be done in New York.

Messrs. Robertson and Freeland were asked as to their intentions about employing Canadian labor. They replied that they did not intend to bring over any Americans to Ottawa. On the contrary, it was their intention to bring some young Canadians to New York to teach them the American Bank Note Company's methods of business.

"We can get all the men we require in Ottawa," said Mr. Freeland, "and we don't therefore intend to employ anything but Canadian labor. Why should we bring men to Ottawa, when we can get them here?"

Sir Charles Tupper, who arrived here last night, expresses himself as strongly opposed to the postponement of the date of the meeting of Parliament, not that he desires to hamper the Government in its work, but because he is anxious to see the premier colony represented at the Queen's Diamond Jubilee, and he is afraid Mr. Laurier will not be able to get away to attend if the meeting of the House is postponed. Mr. Laurier called at Sir Charles Tupper's house to-day to discuss the matter with him, but unfortunately Sir Charles did not happen to be at home.

Mr. Lount, M.P., was here yesterday and had an interview with Mr. Fielding regarding the trouble between the Massachusetts Benefit Life Association and its Canadian policy holders. Seeing that no satisfaction or information regarding the methods of the association can be got at the Canadian office, Mr. Lount asks that Mr. Fitzgerald, Superintendent of Insurance, be sent to the head office at Boston to look into the company's books, and that if the company refuse him access to them then that the Minister should suspend the company's operations in this Dominion.

The Government of Canada will cooperate in the application which the Newfoundlanders are now making in London for the appointment of a British Consul to look after Imperial interests in the Islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. These islands have been the headquarters of the contraband liquor trade for years, and if a reliable man were sent there he might be of great service to the Government in stopping this traffic.

The council of the Dominion Rifle Association will meet on the 23rd of March to consider the question of expenditure in connection with the erection of permanent Canadian quarters at Bisley. With the handsome offers of assistance which have come from various Canadian interests, it is felt that the D.R.A. will be able to keep well within its appropriation from Parliament in the erection of the edifice.

City Clerk Henderson has received word from New Zealand that the Government of that colony aids the capital city of Wellington by paying the entire cost of the police force, and grants the city £4500 per annum in lieu of taxation.

In the Supreme Court yesterday argument was continued in the appeal case of Mackenzie v. Mackenzie, and on conclusion of the argument of counsel for the appellant the appeal was dismissed. The court then adjourned, owing to a slight indisposition of one of the judges, until to-morrow. When the Maritime Provinces list has been disposed of it is probable the court will adjourn for a few days before taking up the list of appeals from Quebec.

Invitations to the Governor-General's state dinner at Rideau Hall on the night of the opening of Parliament, the 11th of March, were issued yesterday, and an intimation of the drawing room in the evening following. The functions will, however, have to be postponed on account of the session being delayed.

The Canada Gazette has another application for a big railway scheme. It is for a road from Chesterfield Inlet, on the Hudson Bay, to Great Slave Lake, and from a point on the Mackenzie River to a point on the Porcupine and Yukon Rivers.

Special sittings of the Exchequer Court have been fixed to take place in the court houses of the following cities on the dates named: Ottawa, March 29; Toronto, April 6; Montreal, April 13; Quebec, April 20; Ottawa, April 26; St. John, N.B., May 20; Halifax, May 25; Ottawa, June 7.

Levi Thompson of Wolseley and Alex. D. Cameron of Brandon have been appointed commissioners to investigate charges against various officers at Moosomin, N.W.T.

The return of Messrs. Heyd of Brantford and Graham of North Ontario was gazetted yesterday.

Capt. Bloomfield Douglas has just concluded a hearing at Digby, N.S., where six parties summoned to appear put in no appearance and a seventh acknowledged the charge.

Mr. Sidney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, gives a dance next Tuesday evening at the racquet court.

The residence of Mr. Klock, M.P. for Nipissing, at Klock's Mills, was totally destroyed by fire on Friday.

D. C. Fraser, M.P., is here. He says this will be the best lumber year Nova Scotia has had for a long time, the output this year amounting to fifty million feet.

Mr. Mcregor, M.P., was in town yesterday on departmental business.

Mr. W. R. Riddell, Q.C., was here yesterday, and saw Mr. Blair to urge a subsidy to the Cobourg, Northumberland and Pacific Railway.

Mr. Fraser, M.P., has been invited to deliver an address at Quebec under the auspices of St. Patrick's Society on March 17.

Sir Richard Cartwright left for Avon Springs, New York, yesterday. The Minister of Trade and Commerce is again suffering from rheumatism.

PINKERTONS FOR McKINLEY.

A Guard of Forty Detectives Has Been Provided for the Inaugural Ceremonies on the Fourth of March.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Like Lincoln, McKinley will be guarded by Pinkertons during his inauguration. William A. Pinkerton, a son of Allan Pinkerton, Lincoln's personal bodyguard, will have forty detectives in Washington during the inaugural ceremonies. They will be clothed in raiment of the latest cut, and it will devolve upon them to see that the amenities of society do not go so far as the taking from associates by thoughtless guests of diamond brooches, gold watches, and the like.

They will also take care that no one is shot or assassinated. The forty Pinkertons will not all guard the same spot. Half a dozen or more will be stationed at the Executive Mansion. Others will frequent the hotel lobbies, and the Capitol, while the rest will be in the parade to intercept any and all bombs that may be hurled at the Chief Executive. Mrs. McKinley's gowns will be watched by female detectives.

HER 100TH BIRTHDAY

Celebrated by Madam Raymond at Montreal Yesterday—A Daughter Aged 81—The Numerous Progeny.

Montreal, Feb. 21.—(Special.) — One hundred years ago to-day an infant daughter was born to Laurent and Esther Le Roux, who then resided at L'Assomption, P.Q., and, wonderful to relate, she celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of her birth today at the Hotel Dieu Hospital in the City of Montreal. The story of this lady's life reads like a romance. Few men or women now living can remember as far back as the day on which the battle of Waterloo was fought, yet about the time Napoleon Bonaparte was preparing a supreme effort for his dynasty Miss Le Roux had reached the age of 18 and became the wife of J. M. Reaymond in French Canada, in the year of our Lord, 1815. In other words, she came into the world while Bonaparte was with the victorious army of Italy and became a bride a few days before Wellington and Blucher crushed the empire at Mont St. Jean. The old lady became a widow in 1843 and some years later one of her daughters entered the religious order of the Hotel Dieu. Madame Reaymond was much attached to the young nun and, entering the hospital, she has been a boarder at that institution for almost 40 years. Her health is good, her faculties unimpaired, and she can read print and see quite as well as many who have only half the number of years to their credit. Her memory is excellent, and while surrounded to-day by loving friends and relatives she recalled many incidents that took place during her early girlhood, and spoke of the pleasure she yet obtained from life.

Madame Reaymond has five sons and daughters, 30 grandchildren, 140 great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren, making five generations in this life.

Her children are as follows:

Madame Vaurin of Laprairie, aged 81.

Madame Fanteux, aged 76, who resides with her son, the agent for the London and North British Insurance Company.

Madame Savagreau, 74, residing in St. Louis, Mo.

Madame Magloire Lanciot, 66, living at St. Hyacinth, while the fifth is Mr. Gustave A. Reaymond, aged 63, agent for the Seminary of St. Sulpice, in this city.

The wife of Hon. L. J. Forget of the Canadian Senate is a granddaughter of this remarkable old lady.

MISS KISSICK'S CASE.

The Young Woman Charged With Incendiarism at Ottawa is Now at Liberty on Bail.

Ottawa, Feb. 21.—(Special.)—The charges of arson against Miss Kissick, a domestic at the Harmon school, were called yesterday in the Police Court, but the police were unable to proceed with their case. Miss Harmon, Miss Lee and half a dozen other witnesses from the school, who were summoned, failed to put in an appearance. The Magistrate adjourned the case until Monday and issued warrants for the witnesses. The detectives who have been working on the case at the earnest solicitation of Miss Harmon, are considerably annoyed at the action of the Principal and staff in failing to put in an appearance. Mr. Latchford, who represented Miss Kissick, protested against the young woman being detained longer. She was liberated on bail.

BEN'S NEW BABY.

It is a Girl and Weighs Eight and a Half Pounds—Arrived Yesterday Morning.

Indianapolis, Feb. 21.—A daughter was born to General and Mrs. Benjamin Harrison to-day. The young miss arrived at 5 o'clock this morning and weighs eight and one-half pounds. Both mother and child are doing nicely. Many telegrams of congratulation were received at the Harrison home to-day.

SKIN DISEASES!

One Remedy Which has Never Failed—Tried and Tested Ointment.

Because other alleged remedies for piles, scrofula, eczematic eruptions, scald head, chafing, black heads, salt rheum and skin diseases generally have proved useless, don't condemn Dr. Chase's Ointment. It has never been known to fail. For instance, Nelson Simmons, Maysesburg, Ont., writes:

"I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for Itching Piles, and can recommend it highly. Since using it I have had perfect freedom from the disease."

Peter Vanallen, L'Amable, Que., had the eczema for three years. He tried three doctors, but received no benefit. One box of Dr. Chase's Ointment and three boxes of Dr. Chase's Pills cured him completely. Large scales covered his legs and body, but the Ointment soon removed them. He will swear to these facts.

Chase's Ointment may be had from any dealer or from the manufacturers Edmanson, Bates & Co., 45 Lombard street, Toronto. Price 60 cents.

Mother's greatest remedy for coughs, colds, bronchicial and lung affections is Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. The medicinal taste is wholly disguised making it pleasant to take. Large bottle 25 cents.

Constipation Cured.

Gents,—I was in very poor health for over four years; the doctor said it was constipation. Not wanting to spend too much cash I got three bottles of B.B.B. and took it regularly, I can certify that I am now in the very best of health and feel very grateful to B.B.B.

SHUTTING DOWN
—ON—
LONG-WINDED CREDIT

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 16th, 1897.

NOTICE—From and after this date, Messrs. H. LeBRUN & CO. have decided to shorten the Term of Credit heretofore given, and, in future, no goods will be sold except for Cash, or on such limited time as may be mutually arranged.

We believe the safest way to do business in these days is to sell for Cash. The next best way is to sell on short dates. Many of our customers who have regularly paid their bills after a reasonable term of credit, would perhaps feel the "Spot Cash" system a hardship, especially while times are so hard and money so scarce. We regard these customers as among the best we have, and are quite satisfied to continue to extend to them the same terms of limited credit they have been accustomed to enjoy.

Our chief complaint is with the "long-winded" customer, who compels us to say that he makes business-life a down-right worry. It makes no difference to us whether a man is worth a million if he won't pay his account. When we need money for our business and are repeatedly put off with "promises to pay" by those who are well able to pay, we have no use for such trade. If every customer treated us in that way we could not carry on business at all. Besides, it is very disagreeable to us to have to "dun" a customer half a dozen times, or spend the profits in postage stamps, and wearing out shoe-leather to boot. We are compelled, therefore, to shut down at once on long credits. Those who can't pay within a reasonable time, we don't want their account in future.

There is a resolution all over the country in favour of Cash or shorter Credits. Cash is a more powerful friend now than ever, and if we must compete with the Cash Stores, who save their discounts, we can't afford to give long credit. Wholesale houses are now offering such big baits in the way of Cash Discounts that we must be prepared to take advantage of them or be handicapped.

All past due Accounts must be settled by the 1st of March; after that date they will be placed in Court for collection. All parties having contra accounts against us are requested to hand them in for settlement at once.

Mr. G. E. Whiten's Photographs.

The following is a copy of a letter received from a prominent lady of Fowler's Corners by Mr. G. E. Whiten, Photographer, of 188 Hunter street, town.

Fowler's Corner's, Feb. 12, '97

DEAR SIR,—I received my Photos on Monday; think they are indeed very good; will know where to go next time; that will be to G. E. Whiten's Studio. Yours etc., ——

An Expensive Load of Fuel.

A lady living on the lake-shore, Ashburnham, purchased a load of wood on the market Saturday morning last. The price asked was $3.50. The lady in paying the farmer after the load had been delivered, gave a "tenner" in mistake for a one. The farmer is known, and if he isn't honest enough to return the money, means will be at once taken to bring him to justice.

Under the Auspices of the R. E. A.

Mr. R. M. Roy has been especially engaged to give his magnificent coloured stereopticon plates of "The Jameson Raid in South Africa," comprising over sixty thrilling views, under the auspices of the R. E. A., in the opera house, on March 17th. This is the only set of views on this subject on this side of the Atlantic, and the treat will be a rich one. No one should miss it. The best local instrumental and vocal talent will also contribute to the programme, making this one of the finest entertainments of the season. tf

Opera House, To-night!

The Germans in the musical farce comedy, "The Gilhooly's Abroad," is the attraction offered to the patrons of the Opera House to-night. The Germans are adepts in the art of dancing, and invent all the steps which they introduce in their numerous specialties—wedding the movements to the music, which results in perfect harmony. This season they are introducing many novelties in this line, possibly the most notable and taking of which is the G. A. R., which fairly lifts the audience from its seat. Their "Up and Down Broadway" is prettily arranged and effectively executed. "The Gilhoolys Abroad" is no doubt the best vehicle of fun the Germans have ever appeared in. The prices are 25, 35 and 50 cents. Don't miss the fun. 1d

WAS HE A BURGLAR OR ONLY AN ORDINARY TRAMP?

Strange Actions of a Man Who Attempts to Force his way into a Number of Houses.

Quite a commotion was caused in the residental portion of the town on Friday night by the peculiar actions of a tramp, whose movements were most suspicious.

He called at the residence of Mr. R. S. Davidson, Dalhousie street, asking for something to eat. As it was then about eleven o'clock, he was warned off the premises, but refused to go until a call for the police was threatened. He then crossed over to Mr. D. Lundy's residence on the corner of Aylmer street and endeavoured to get into the house, but was scared away by the dog. From there he proceeded to Mr. Frank Matthew's house, where he obtained an entrance through a door which had been left unlocked for the admittance of the servant, and actually walked into a bedroom. Seeing his face in the doorway, Mrs. Matthews called her husband's attention to it and as the entire house can be illuminated with the incandescent light by touching a single button, the intruder was soon the centre of a blaze of light. On being captured and questioned he excused himself by stating that he must have made a mistake in the house. Mr. Matthews then gave him his marching orders.

A little later on in the night the same individual was discovered trying to force in a door at the residence of Mr. Ullyott on Brock street, and he had almost succeeded when he was noticed.

How many other attempts were made to enter houses is not known, but this is quite enough to show the enterprise of one man. All of the attempts were made between the hours of eleven and midnight, which seems strangely early for a burglary to be committed, and although the fellow acted very strangely, he did not appear to be under the influence of liquor.

The police can be furnished with his description quite easily, and a capture should result.

OBITUARY.

Death of Mrs. Richard Guy, on Saturday, in Ashburnham.

The death of Mrs. Elizabeth Guy, widow of the late Richard Guy, took place at the residence of her son, Mr. Walter Guy, Sophia street, Ashburnham, on Saturday evening last.

The deceased was born in Campbellford, Devonshire, England, in 1843. Coming to Canada she resided in Port Hope for a number of years and afterwards moved to Millbrook, where she was married, her maiden name being Elizabeth Hanley. The family resided in Millbrook for 23 years, and from there came to Peterborough in 1886. Four sons and two daughters survive the deceased, viz: Walter, Willie, Charles, Bert and Misses Jennie and Gertie.

The funeral will take place from Sophia street, Ashburnham, on Tuesday morning, at ten o'clock, and proceeds to the Front church, Millbrook, where interment will take place.

THE GEORGE STREET CHURCH.

Improvements Now Completed—Open for Service Yesterday.

The interior of the George street Methodist church has been entirely renovated, repainted and tinted, and the work has made a wonderful improvement in the appearance of the woodwork, ceiling and walls.

The ceiling has been tinted a nine-grey, and is relieved by straw coloured ribs. The walls are now blocked out and are a light sandstone in colour. The woodwork has all been retouched and reoiled and the iron work prettily bronzed. The pillars are shaded in a dark crimson, and the whole effect reflects great credit on the workmen who have had charge of the different portions of the job of renovation, the church positively presenting an even more handsome appearance than when new.

The arms of the pews have been handsomely reupholstered and some of the cushions have also been renewed. Handsome quartered oak chairs replace the old sofa in the pulpit, and over all the Auer light sheds its bright reflection.

An interesting fact in connection with the George street church is that, although its erection cost in the neighbourhood of $60,000, yet the insurance companies refuse to place risks on it to a larger amount than $24,000, on the ground that the structure is so well built that damage to a greater amount than this could not be received through fire. The walls, being buttressed, are particularly strong.

Remember the "At Home" in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, this evening under the auspices of the Girls' Guild of St. Luke's church. Tea served from 6 to 7.15.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

The Y.W.C.A. Home wish to acknowledge the following donation for the past week:—Mrs. McPherson, kitchen knives and forks; Mrs. Dunlop, glass and china for table; Mrs. Walsh, mantel ornaments, table linen, fancy table and screens; Miss M. Brown, $2.00; Mr. Butcher, kneading pan; Mrs. Davidson, one chair, one lamp and one water pitcher; Mrs. W. H. Moore, jelly, apples and oatmeal; members of Association, spreads for bed.

The Board of Managers of the Y.W.C.A. wish to meet with all members of the Association at a social given by them at the Home, 168 Brock street, on Feb. 25th, from 8 till 10 o'clock, when the work of the Association will be fully discussed. Light refreshments will be served. The following donations were omitted on Saturday: Mrs. A. L. Davis, linoleum for hall; Mrs. Rich. Hall, carpet for stairs; Mr. Hutchison, granite kettle coal sifter, two baking pans.

We take this opportunity to thank all those who so ably assisted in the programme at the opening of our Home.

World Coming to an End.

It has been predicted by prominent students of nature and such like that the world is nearer the close now than it has been for some time and it will eventually come to an end, still however it is to be hoped that thoughts of this kind will not cause the people to forget that the place to get the very choicest and best groceries at reasonable prices is at H. BROWN & Co's, Wholesale and Retail Grocers, 394 George street.

PROHIBITION CONVENTION.

It Will Assemble on Tuesday in the Y. M. C. A. Hall.

It is earnestly hoped that there will be a large turnout at the Prohibition Convention on Tuesday next, the 23rd inst., at 2 p.m., in the Y.M.C.A. Hall.

Prominent temperance workers will be in attendance from different parts of the county, and all friends of the cause are considered delegates.

In the evening there will be a mass meeting, to be addressed by the Revs. Mr. Dykeman, (Baptist), W. R. Young, (Methodist), and others that will be announced later.

Mr. Geo. Schneider will preside at the organ, and with the assistance of the choir a good time may be expected. Mayor Yelland has promised to preside. Come one and all and show your interest in the cause. Chair taken at 8 p.m. Collection to defray expenses.

PERSONAL.

Mr. John Lang, M.P., was in town to-day.

Mrs. W. H. Wrighton is confined to her room by illness.

Miss Susie Guerin is the guest of Mrs. S. Beckett, Cow Island, Rice Lake.

Miss Lyle McMillan, of Toronto, is in town for a few days, visiting her sister, Mrs. Stanger, No. 502 George street.

Misses Aggie and Nellie Bowman, of Cold Springs, are the guests of the Misses Swanston, Elizabeth street, Ashburnham.

Mr. Semon was in town to-day making arrangements for the appearance here of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show next June.

Miss Minnie Young, of Young's Point, has returned home after an extended visit with her aunt, Mrs. Edward Chrowe, Campbellford.

Mr. Wm. Craig, foreman of the Rathbun Co., Bobcaygeon, was in town over Sunday renewing old acquaintances. The boys were pleased to see Billy again.

Mrs. Wm. Joy, Mark street, Ashburnham, and family, returned to their home to-day, after spending several weeks visiting friends in London, Ont.

The many friends of Mr. E. B. Stone will be pleased to learn that his condition is somewhat improved to day and he expects to be able to be back in his office in the course of a week.

Mr. E. J. Hartley left for the west this morning. He skates on exhibition in Gravenhurst this evening. He is engaged to give exhibitions throughout that district every night this week.

Dr. Charles McKee returned to town to-day from Bailleboro, after consulting in Toronto a specialist in respect to his eye, as stated in Saturday's EXAMINER. Dr. McKee will place himself in care of Dr. McCullough and will have to remain in a darkened room for several weeks. His friends will be pleased to learn that a hope of saving the sight of both eyes is yet held out.

CHURCH CHIMES.

Rev. Mr. Elliott, of McMaster University, conducted the services at the Park street Baptist church yesterday.

Last night in the George street Methodist church the anthem "Christian Soldiers" was admirably rendered by a male chorus of sixteen voices.

Much interest having been shown in the special meetings held last week in the Murray street Baptist church, they will be continued for a week or two longer. Services will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. T. Dykeman, on Monday, Thursday and Friday evenings, and a prayer meeting Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All are cordially invited to come to these services.

RAILWAY NOTES.

Sparks From the Wheels—Cinders for the Eye.

Detectives are acting as spotters on the Grand Trunk conductors these days.

It is rumoured that a new syndicate will take over from the Grand Trunk the charter of the Nipissing and James' Bay railway and construct the road.

The C. P. R. is also feeling the dull times. At Toronto six engineers have been reduced to the rank of firemen, and the same number of firemen to be wipers in the roundhouse.

The timbers for the new trestle bridge near the L B. & O. R. R., on the Haliburton line, have been prepared by a gang of men under Bridge Foreman Moses, of Barrie, and will be placed in position without interfering with the traffic. The new structure will be 186 feet long, and 50 feet high in places.

A CHAPTER OF THE BUDGET DEBATE.

SPEECH OF MR. J. R. STRATTON, M.P.P., ON THE SUBJECT.

A Vigorous Defence of the Government's Administration—Reply to Opposition Criticisms.

Below is a continuation of the extended report of the address delivered by Mr. Stratton, during the budget debate in the Ontario Legislature on Thursday night, Feb. 18th.:

PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS AND PUBLIC CHARITIES.

The next series of items of our Provincial expenditure is an important one, and again to emphasize the excellent record of this province, I will invite the House to follow me while I make further comparison with the neighbouring province of Quebec. There is, however, some difficulty in instituting a strict comparison, for some of the items appearing in our financial statement have no separate counterparts in that of Quebec. For instance, provincial charities in Ontario are under two distinct heads—Public Institutions Maintenance and Hospitals and Charities, while in Quebec both come under the head of Hospitals and Charities. For Public Institutions maintenance we expended in Ontario in 1896, the large sum of $796,567.62, and for Hospitals and Charities $194,615.64, or for both $991,183.26, or at the rate of $3,150 per day, which is chequed out to provide relief, not only of the suffering, but also from municipal taxation. I do not think that the public of this province are in a position to fully appreciate the responsibility which the government have taken upon themselves in providing relief for the inmates of the following institutions: The Toronto, London, Kingston, Hamilton, Mimico and Brockville Asylums, the Orillia asylum for Idiots, the Penetanguishene Reformatory for boys, the Mercer Reformatory for Women, and Refuge for girls, the institutions for the Deaf and Dumb, Belleville, and for the Blind, Brantford, not to speak of the Central Prison in Toronto. This means that about is expended in services that represent relief from local taxation and relief of the suffering that are thus placed under the paternal care of the government. If we look at the increase in the asylum population and the corresponding expenditure, we find that in 1876 there were 1,774 of a daily average population in our asylums, costing for maintenance $260,239.14. At the end of the next ten years the population of this class of institutions was 2,940, costing for maintenance $387,182.37, and if we take the next decade, including 1896, we find that the population had almost doubled—4709—and the expenditure reached the sum of $600,691.36. To accommodate an increasing population it was necessary to erect two new asylums, at Mimico and Brockville. And who will say that the Government have not supplied these unfortunates with every possible care and at a cost less per head than that of any similar institution in the United States? Hospitals and charities have also been conspicuous for the liberal grants made in support of these institutions, and the increased cost has necessarily kept pace with the increased number of inmates, and both have about been doubled during the past ten years. The number of inmates in the hospitals in 1886 was 570; in 1895, the latest report to hand, the number was 1,306. In charitable institutions in 1886, 2940 was the number of inmates, while in 1895 it was 3,893. In 1886 the total inmates in both was 3,510, as against 5,101 in 1895.

THE GOVERNMENT GRANT

to these institutions in 1886 was $103,416.19, and this had grown in 1896 to $190,231.08. Thus it is shown that the number of inmates and the expenditure have steadily increased, and yet the Government is charged with annually increasing the expenditure of the Province in connection with these institutions, which is an increase demanded by circumstances. But to be consistent the Government's critics should also blame the Government for increase of a class of unfortunates that has made additional expenditure imperative. The Reformatory for Boys, which cost for maintenance in 1895 $36,874, must be maintained. The Mercer Reformatory, which costs $21,459.70 a year, is an institution that cannot be dispensed with any more than the Central Prison, which costs annually about $63,777.77. These institutions create an uncontrollable and, at the same time, increasing expenditure, and if hon. gentlemen opposite desire to have these institutions abolished and the work they do and the cost of that work thrown on the municipalities, they should definitely announce that policy in reference to these important institutions. Quebec pays for all these purposes only $323,047. Would it be thought wise, would it be thought worthy of this great province to reduce the expenditure upon the maintenance of our unfortunate and criminal classes to the figure expended by Quebec. It is necessary that wrong doing be punished and suffering relieved and it is an obligation upon the government to the people to see that both are properly attended to. If we failed in that we should much more justly incur the criticisms of the Opposition than we do in respect of the annual expenditure of nearly a million dollars a year in the noble name of charity.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS.

The next important item of expenditure which indicates the progressive character of the province is that of agriculture. Ten years ago I had the pleasure, in moving the adoption of the address, of congratulating the Government upon adding to the Cabinet a member who would be charged with the duty of administering a special department in the interests of the farming community; and I then ventured to predict the great benefits that would accrue to the farmers of the country if this department were properly and carefully administered, and if there is one thing more than another upon which the Government can found a claim to credit, it is their successful administration of the department that is concerned with the promotion of, by all odds, the most important interest of this province—the agricultural interest. The broad and liberal policy that has been pursued in the matter of advancing agriculture is, and has been, as conspicuous for its successful as its energetic character, and I take it that to the progressive and liberal policy of the Government of Ontario is due the fact that avenues of profitable occupation have been opened to the farmers that have, to a very large extent, rendered their income independent of the yield of the crops. While I give this credit to the Ontario Government, I am free to admit that the Dominion Government has also done a good work for the benefit of the farmer. But in the matter of encouragement of farming the province of Ontario is pioneer, with a much larger record of systematic operations. But we may expect better things since the Dominion Government, taking a leaf out of Ontario's book has

MADE A PRACTICAL FARMER

Minister of Agriculture instead of a lawyer, who was not supposed to "know beans"—to distinguish them from, say, turnips. Not only has the Dominion Government profited by Ontario's example in the matter of its Minister of Agriculture, but it has done better in this respect. There are two other members of the Cabinet who are practical farmers or take a direct interest in the promotion of interests allied to the farming industry—these are Hon. Mr. Mulock, Postmaster General, and Sir Henri Joly de Lotbiniere, Controller of Inland Revenue, who are both farmers in the broad sense of the word.

Very large sums have in the aggregate been devoted (the advancement of the agricultural interest and I have yet to find any person who will seriously contend that that expenditure has not been attended with the most beneficial and practical results. Almost every department of industry relating to the soil has felt a stimulus from the encouragement of the government. The most notable results have been achieved in the dairying industry, which as an alternative to grain raising has been, it is perhaps not too much to say, the salvation of the farming community. It has been a benefit in a double sense—a source of decided profit, as well as relief to the soil of the country which was on the high way to sterility through the drain of over-cropping. Through the Bureau of Industries, an admirable record of most useful knowledge, we are able to note specific advances. Within the past ten years our cheese factories have increased nearly 50 per cent. in number, while the output and cash value have increased in nearly the same ratio. A large percentage of this increase has taken place the past year, the number of factories having increased by 158. In 1895 there were exported from Montreal 1,710,715 boxes of cheese of the value of $10,692,000. Last year the number of boxes was 1,726,228, which were worth at Montreal $12,083,000, an increase of nearly a million and a quarter of dollars. It has been thought by some that there was danger of over-production of cheese, and a consequent reduction of price below the profit point. But it appears that there is a prospect of better to inflation our cheese production. Our supply of butter to the British market has, for various reasons, been absurdly disproportionate to our possibilities; but a very great improvement, under the fostering care of the Government, is observable. Canadian creamery butter has gained a foothold in the British market which is hard to get, but easy to hold, if only the right kind of goods is supplied. In 1894 our exports of butter amounted to only 32,055, packages of the value of $302,790. The following year they more than doubled both in quantity and value, and the past year's record more than doubled that of the preceding year. At this astonishing and very gratifying rate of increase, it will only be a few years till we reach the limit of our butter production, and there is no danger that with first class goods, such as we are now producing, we shall not find an ample market for all our produce at good figures. There is no reason why we should not supply the lion's share of the forty million dollars' worth of of butter that Great Britain annually consumes. Through the fostering care of the Government we are steadily and rapidly improving. The farmers, thanks to the help afforded them by the Government, through various sources of instruction, are learning rapidly to make their cows more productive, and to produce a longer time each season. I do not believe that any person will seriously argue that the great advances that has been made in the dairy industries that give this province a record beyond that of any other country would have been possible by any amount of individual effort on the part of the farmers of this country, as intelligent and progressive as they are. It was the help, the stimulus and the encouragement of the Government that directed them on the lines that have brought success. But it is not only dairying that has felt the benefit of this help; every other industry has felt its influence. We all know the tremendous yield of fruit in Ontario the past year and the wonderful possibilities of which the country is capable. Here the Government has been of assistance in, of course, a practical way. The success of the experimental instruction in the spraying of fruit trees the past two seasons points to adopted for coping with the insect and other pests that tend to reduce and, if unchecked, destroy the profit of fruit raising. The Western Peninsula is rapidly taking a most satisfactory place in the production of the smaller fruits, and the benefit of this condition to the western farmer is two-fold, namely increased value of his fruit product and increased value of his farms. The northern part of the province has the reputation of producing the best qualities of apples on this continent—that command the highest price in the English market, and everything that the government can do to increase the value of the fruit crop is a benefit to the farmer directly and reacts beneficially on the community generally. I think therefore that the grant for all these agricultural interests should be increased rather then diminished and I believe that the $199,853 expended last year in this direction was among the best spent money in the public service. If the hon. gentlemen opposite desire that the expense of this department should be lessened they should point out where it is desirable that reductions should be made. This expenditure touches every interest of the farmer. Do the Opposition wish the only institution that the farmer can call his own, the Agricultural College at Guelph, closed, and the sons of the farmers deprived of the benefits which it so abundantly bestows? Last year there were

ACTING AS A SAFETY VALVE

THE WISDOM OF THE PLAN

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY STUDENTS

who availed themselves of its advantages—one hundred of these taking a special dairy course. Forty-one counties were represented by students in the general course—thirty-one counties availed themselves of the advantages of the special dairy course, and there were thirty from abroad. The students of this institution improve the standing of farming in the districts they come from or settle in. Certainly no mistaken economy that would impair its efficiency would be tolerated by the community it is specifically intended to benefit. Any reduction under the head of agriculture should be specified. Are we to lessen the grants to agricultural societies when they are clamoring for increased grants? Will the fruit growers, the dairymen, the sheep-breeders, the swine, poultry and cattle interests, Farmers' Institutes, and other allied industries submit to be crippled in the good work they are performing in the several branches of agriculture by a reduced dole of public funds, altogether insufficient for the needs of these several interests? There were invested in farm lands in 1894, $527,246,117, in farm buildings, $204,071,566; in implements, $31,530,172; in live stock, $111,547,653, or a total of $954,395,501—

A THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS

invested in this great industry as against one hundred and seventy five millions in manufacturing. It is easily seen that the agricultural branch of industry in this Province is of paramount importance; whatever effects it prejudicially or beneficially affects directly all other employments. Its products constitute one-quarter of the freightage of the railways, one-third that of the canals and our mercantile marine depends very largely upon the products of the farm for freights. During the past ten years live stock increased in value in this province about eight and a half millions of dollars or 16 per cent. While, if we look across the border, we find that the increase has only been about 9 per cent., and while farm lands have decreased in value much more rapidly in the States of the Union, in Ontario the ratio of decrease is much less. These results must be attributed to the superiority of our farming methods and this superiority in turn must be attributed very largely to the assistance extended the industry of agriculture by the government of this province, by the dissemination of information supplied at the command of the Government. I might, if I were not desirous to avoid taking up too much of the time of the House, refer to many other things that evidence the solicitude of the government for the advancement of the Agricultural interests of the province. I might refer to the development of settlement at Dryden, on Lake Wabigoon, in the Algoma district, a venture that derives new interest from the recent development of gold mining prospects in that vicinity; I might refer to the work of the Provincial Road Inspector, Mr. Campbell, who is very cleverly and successfully pushing the crusade in favour of improved highways, a matter of the most vital importance to farmers in the matter of reaching their market towns and their cheese factories. I might refer to the arrangements made by Messrs. Fisher and Dryden in co-operation with the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States (Morton), with a view of developing our live stock trade with the United States. I might go on indefinitely but I submit that there is abundant evidence to justify the expenditure made in the interests of agriculture. I, for one, would be greatly disappointed if the most careful investigation should show that one cent of the amount expended of the $200,000 voted last season for agriculture, had been unnecessarily or unwisely expended.

THROUGH THE DIFFERENT SOURCES

COLONIZATION ROADS.

Under the heading of colonization roads comes the expenditure devoted to the excellent purpose of improving the means of communication in the newer sections of the province, and giving the settlers, who have enough other hardships incident to their position to contend with—to permit them to reach the markets and enjoy to a greater degree the advantages possessed by their more favoured neighbours. The money expended on colonization roads—to assist the pioneers in opening up the country, is money well expended—and money that these settlers have a right to have thus expended, and for this reason I very much regret that the Government has seen fit to decrease the appropriation for this service. The districts of Muskoka and Nipissing, Victoria, Peterborough, Hastings and Haliburton require considerable assistance in this direction, and I certainly would find no fault if the appropriation under the head of Colonization roads had been increased as much as it has been diminished. Complaints are constantly made of this expenditure, but when we consider the merits of these districts to a liberal recognition at the hands of the Government, I feel that, were the means available, no appropriation, within reasonable limits, could be too great for so important a service. Pioneers in colonization districts, from the nature of things, are not in a position to take advantage of the liberal expenditures made by the Government in the interests of agriculture generally, and on this account are more deserving of a share of the public funds to construct highways, the very first steps in the development of a new country and new districts.

SUCCESSION DUTIES.

The Hon. gentleman from Lanark complains, as he did last year, of the excessive character of the succession duties. In this I do not agree with him. The practice has long since been recognized in England. It is a recognized principle that all persons who inherit wealth without helping to create it, must in fairness be asked to assist in paying for the Government protection that permitted the accumulation of such wealth, and as the amount collected from this source is used in the maintenance of our charitable institutions, it is an impost that can be defended with a clear conscience. If the duties are excessive—which has not been proven—it is an error on the right side, and though there is a falling off this year, these duties promise to be a permanent and considerable source of revenue. There are few members of this House that it will reach, and there are not many farmers who are anxious over the possibility of their heirs being charged succession duties on an estate of over $100,000, which is the lowest limit on which the duties can be levied, when an estate is devised to direct heirs. The honourable gentleman complains of the province deriving a revenue from this source. He and his followers complain if money derived from our Crown lands is used for charitable purposes. No matter from what source revenue is got they complain all the same, and if the Government does expend from year to year a portion of the revenue obtained from our 127 millions worth of pine lands, not to consider the immense value of our poplar, spruce and hemlock, it is what the people desire.

THE PEOPLE DEMAND THIS EXPENDITURE, and the Government as trustees of the people are justified in administering the property of the people in the interests of the people. It is true that the expenses of the Province have increased, but so have the expenses of every other Government or municipality. The people require improvements and advantages that cost money and necessitate increased expense, and so long as the Province receives the full advantages of the expenditure authorized by this House, and so long as the Opposition are unable to specify any wrong-doing, which up to the present they have been unable to do, so long shall we have confidence in the gentlemen who have for so many years successfully administered our financial affairs. There would be more point in the complaint of hon. gentlemen opposite if the Province of Ontario were a solitary example. But wherever one may look we find increased expenditure necessitated by circumstances. And while we expend about three and a half millions for the various services I have recited and in the interests of two and a quarter million people in the province, we find Toronto with a population of say 200,000, expending in the years 1892, '90, '91, '92 and '93 an average of over four and three-quarter millions of dollars for the improvement and development of the city alone.

Objection is also taken to the grant of six townships of our unbroken domain for the benefit of the Provincial University. While a cash subsidy might be objectionable to the people, this land grant has on the face of it much

TO RECOMMEND IT.

It renders assistance in a direction much needed, without making a direct drain upon the public treasury. The province is in need of population and the University authorities, as well as the alumni, should make energetic immigration agents in respect of the lands so set aside for their benefit, and if this land is set aside for the University subject to proper settlement conditions, there can be no reasonable objection taken to the grant.

While the financial standing of the province is strong and satisfactory and while our forest wealth, our Crown lands, our resources and other assets, will suffice to meet the ordinary demands of expenditure and supply the funds of the province for many years to come and keep the venerable Opposition bogey of direct taxation at arms length for many, many years, yet it is desirable on the part of the government as it would be on the part of any prudent business management to look about and see, in case of unforseen calamities in the shape of extensive forest fires coming upon our forests, from what other source revenues might be available without direct taxation; and speaking for myself alone and not for the government, I think that a considerable revenue might legitimately be gained from issuing licenses for foreign corporations who do business in Ontario and pay nothing for the privileges they enjoy and the protection afforded them to make money out of the people of this province. When Ontario financial corporations step across the border they are to the province or state in which they open an account, and I can see no good reason why outside business corporations should not also pay for the privileges they enjoy in this province, and I would submit that the suggestion I have ventured to make is worthy of serious consideration. (Hear, hear.)

Now, Mr. Speaker, after a careful study of the financial situation, as shown by the statement presented to this House; after giving due weight to the criticisms from the Opposition side of the House, I submit that the situation is of a very satisfactory character, and that the hon., the Provincial Treasurer's statement, has a gratifying family resemblance to the splendid statements which the Provincial Treasurer has for the past quarter of a century been able to submit to the House, and of such a character as to fully justify the congratulations I had the pleasure of making in my opening remarks.

Not only is the honourable the Provincial Treasurer to be congratulated, but also this House and the province at large, upon another annual contribution to the evidence that the province is not only wisely and thriftily governed in its financial department, but in all other departments—efficient expenditure for efficient service without being lavish or wasteful; a broad and progressive policy in keeping with the progressive character of the people of Ontario, whose spirit is reflected in the character of its representatives and of its Government, the capable and vigilant guardian of the rights, privileges and interests of the best governed, most favoured and most prosperous country on the face the globe. (Applause.

The wise doctor when he is called in to attend a pain-tortured woman, knows that she could avoid the agony that she endures by taking proper care of her womanly-self. No woman can long retain her general health who neglects the health of the organs that constitute her womanhood. She may suffer only locally for a time. Eventually the nerves are ruined by the constant wear and tear of pain. They cease to impart the necessary nervous activity to the various organs of the body. A general and serious break-down follows.

A wonderful medicine for weak, nervous women, who through local troubles are threatened with a general break-down is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly on the delicate organs that are distinctly feminine. It restores them to vigor and health. It allays inflammation and soothes pain. It gives the tortured nerves a rest and permits them to resume their natural function of directing a healthy activity of all the organs. It prepares a woman for wifehood and motherhood. It makes baby's advent easy and almost painless and insures the child's health. It is the best woman's medicine and more than 90,000 women have said so over their signatures. Druggists sell it.

"I cannot say too much for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Miss Clara Baird, of Bridgeport, Montgomery Co., Pa. "I feel it my duty to say to all women who may be suffering from any weakness or disease of the distinctly feminine organism that it is the best medicine on earth for them to use. I cannot praise it too highly for the good it did me. If any one doubts this give them my name and address."

EASTERN EMBROGLIO

What Will the Outcome be in Regard to Crete?

SALISBURY MAY BE SHAMMING

But the German Emperor is Very Much in Earnest Because Little Greece Insulted His Dignity—No Serious Complications Unless the Powers Quarrel.

New York, Feb. 19.—Mr. H. R. Chamberlain cables from London to The Sun: It is still impossible to say positively whether the great drama, which the nations are playing in the East is tragedy or comedy, melodrama or farce. The number of persons who believe it is the latter is increasing. The question then arises, for whose benefit is the farce being played, and none of the answers are wholly satisfactory.

The commonest suggestion is that the powers, or certain of them, have taken this means to deliver over Crete to Greece, in order to avoid an anti-Christian uprising among the Moslems generally, which might be excited by the powers openly despoiling the Sultan of the island. Lord Salisbury and one or two others of the actors in the piece may be playing with their tongues in their cheeks, but the German Emperor is not. He is terribly in earnest. He feels his dignity insulted by the defiance which little Greece flung back in reply to the protest of the powers, and he is stalking from one embassy to another in Berlin, seeking consent to a blockade of the Greek ports.

There is no likelihood that any such step will be taken. On the contrary, it is strongly probable that Greece will secure undisputed possession of Crete when the matter is finally settled. It is impossible to name any definite authority for this view. It is simply the impression created by a great variety of information from the East and from European capitals. It is the idea now generally held in diplomatic circles. It is the confident belief, and here I do speak with authority, of the Greek Government.

But the great mystery is what the Turk will do. It is persistently reported to-day that two or three battalions of Turkish troops, bound for Crete, have already left the Dardanelles. It is doubtful if this will prove true. Such a move would quickly precipitate open war, for there is no doubt that the Greek fleet would attack the troopships if necessary to prevent the landing of Turkish troops. Nobody now believes that the foreign fleet would protect the Turk under such circumstances. Certainly no British ship would dare to fire a shot. A British broadside fire by Lord Salisbury's consent against the Greek flag at the present moment would cause the most ignominious downfall any British Ministry ever suffered. Lord Salisbury has learned something of the British temper in this matter during the past few days, and he knows now, if he did not before, that his own party would not tolerate for a moment the burning of British powder in defence of the Turkish flag.

The position and policy of Greece are therefore much stronger than appears. Public opinion in France and Italy also is now virtually unanimous in support of King George and his subjects. It is impossible to believe that Russia with the strong ties of relationship between the two royal houses, will seriously embarrass or humiliate Greece. All Europe is puzzled to-day by the telegram of sympathy and support reported to have been sent to King George by the Dowager Empress of Russia. Few believe that this message is genuine, but if it is it means much. There is another point of great significance. It is no longer possible to deny that Russia has been energetically preparing for war for more than a month past. In fact, this is virtually admitted in St. Petersburg, and the news censor there yesterday permitted a despatch plainly asserting this fact to be telegraphed to the London newspapers. This by no means implies that war is imminent. It signifies simply that Russia, having agreed to join in coercive measures against the Sultan, which at best, involves serious danger to the peace of Europe, wishes to be prepared for all contingencies.

It is admitted on all hands that the present deadlock in Crete between Greece and the powers cannot continue many days. It is folly to attempt to prophesy which way events will turn. The best thing that can be said is that there is still no indication of any disagreement between the powers, and no other eventuality need seriously alarm the world outside of the East itself.

Chief Justice Beasley died yesterday morning at Trenton, N.J.

Daniel McCarthy was hanged at Chicago yesterday for the murder of his wife.

James Quinn was yesterday convicted at Guelph of barn-burning. Sentence was deferred.

The United States Senate again discussed the Arbitration Treaty yesterday, but took no action.

The explosion of a cartridge in the canal at Lockport, N.Y., yesterday, killed Wm. Grogan and injured five other people.

William Conboy's general store and G. Ramsden's hardware store at Erin, Ont., were burned yesterday. Both were well insured.

The Lake Shore Elevator at Toledo took fire last midnight and it was thought would be entirely destroyed, entailing a loss of $300,0000.

It is now reported that Col. John J. McCook of New York will be Mr. McKinley's Attorney-General, and James A. Gary of Baltimore will be Postmaster-General.

Prof. W. Wallace, M.A., professor of moral philosophy in the University of Oxford, was killed yesterday by a fall from his bicycle, which fractured his skull.

The large barns of W. J. Marshall, London Township, were destroyed by fire on Thursday afternoon, with implements and produce. Loss about $2000, partly insured.

At New York last night John Nilsson outskated Joe Donoghue in the second of the series of races for the world's championship. Time 5.42, for two miles, beating all indoor records.

A despatch from Manila, capital of the Philippine Islands states that the Spaniards have won a brilliant victory over the insurgents and inflicted a crushing blow upon the rebellion.

Thomas Wallis was hanged at Newcastle, Delaware, yesterday, for the murder of his 18 months' old daughter. He placed the little one in a bag and held it under water in a creek until life was extinct. He said he could not support the child.

Ferdinand Day of Strasburg, Germany, was arrested at New York yesterday on an order in a Supreme Court suit brought against him by a German bank, which involves $[illegible] Willow-street Jail, in default of $100,000 bail.

CARRIED BOTH BYLAWS.

Owen Sound Decides to Have the Big Elevator and Extension of the Waterworks.

Owen Sound, Feb. 19.—(Special.)—To-day the bylaw granting a bonus of $40,000 to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, was voted on and carried by the large majority of 617. A bylaw for the appropriation of $8000 for the extension of the waterworks system, so as to take in residents on the hills, was also carried. It has been a lively day here, the supporters of the bylaws exerting themselves to the utmost to ensure their sanction by the ratepayers. Almost every available vote was polled. The $40,000 bylaw was the most important, and, of course, the chief interest centred in it. It provides for the erection here by the railway company of a grain elevator of 800,000 bushels capacity, the building of flour sheds to hold 30,000 barrels of flour, and the enlargement and extension generally of the shipping facilities here. The work is to be commenced at once, so as to be completed by the first of October, in time to accommodate the heavy fall traffic, and will necessitate an expenditure of upwards of $125,000. General Superintendent Leonard, Assistant Superintendent Williams and other officials of the company are in town making arrangements for the commencement of the work.

THE WOMEN TOO.

Back Talk Not Man's Monopoly.

Mrs. Jemima Cole, Havelock, told the following wonderful story:—"For a great many years I have suffered from disease of the kidneys. The pains in my back and side were sometimes excruciating.

"My limbs were so swollen that I could scarcely lift my feet from the floor, and I was in great agony nearly all the time. I thought that I would surely die from the pain.

"I have taken dozens of advertised remedies, but got no better during their use. I was also treated by several doctors, but am sorry to say they did me little or no good. In fact they stated that they could do me no good, which made me despair of ever getting better.

"When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised I sent to W. H. Jeff & Co's. drugstore and got a box thinking I would try them as a last resort.

"The change from the start was very great and now after one month I am free from all pain. The swelling has gone down and I feel quite strong and healthy.

"I was also troubled with rheumatism and neuralgia which have completely disappeared, thanks to the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. In fact I do not think there is a medicine in the world that in such a short time could have taken me from the almost dying condition in which I was to the healthy and vigorous state that I am in now.

"I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for their wonderful virtues in curing kidney troubles."

Suggestions to Housekeepers.

In making mayonnaise the first point is to have everything cold as possible. Have the eggs and oil chilled, and all the dishes used also cold. The excellence of a mayonnaise is directly proportionate to the amount of stirring given it. Lemon juice instead of vinegar is advised by many teachers of the new school of cookery, the reasons for its preference being that more acid can be used without thinning the mayonnaise, and that a fruit acid is more healthful than a manufactured one.

Cranberries that have been kept in a dry place are apt to look shriveled. Put them in cold water for a few hours and they will plump up considerably. Sugar should not be added to cranberry sauce until the fruit has cracked open; then put in the sugar and boil for ten minutes. A nice way is to put the stewed fruit through a colander which enables you to reject the tough and undigestible skins, then add the sugar to the residue, which will be a delicious, half jelly-like mass.

That the blood should perform its vital functions, it is absolutely necessary it should not only be pure but rich and life-giving elements. These results are best effected by the use of that well-known standard blood-purifier, Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

AYER'S PILLS

"I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have taken them for many years, and always derived the best results from their use. For stomach and liver troubles, and for the cure of headache caused by these derangements, Ayer's Pills cannot be equaled.

When my friends ask me what is the best remedy for disorders of the stomach, liver, or bowels, my invariable answer is, Ayer's Pills. Taken in season, they will break up a cold, prevent la grippe, check fever, and regulate the digestive organs. They are easy to take, and are, indeed, the best all-round family medicine I have ever known."—Mrs. May Johnson, 363 Elder Avenue, New York City.

A FREAK AMONG FLOWERS.

Venus' Fly Trap and Its Almost Human Action.

Now and again, in exploring American woods and swamps, botanists have come across floral curiosities, that almost bridge over the great gulf that divides the animal and vegetable kingdoms, says the Designer. One of these, to be met with nowhere in the world save in North Carolina, is scientifically classified as dionoea muscipula, but is colloquially known as "Venus' fly trap."

In appearance the extraordinary plant is prettily but unassumingly the leafless flower stem, running from six to eight inches in height and surmounted by a cluster of five petalled blossoms, rising erect like a rosette-like bed of leaves. It is in the edge of the leaves that the death dealing apparatus is set—for this modest little plant, which is so delicate that it dies of the slightest injury to root or stem, sustains its life by feeding upon the unwary insects that chance to alight upon its leaves, enticing them to their destruction by exuding from the edges of its fatal traps a viscous fluid, somewhat resembling honey.

The traps consist of two soft, velvety leaves, fringed with delicate bristles and hinged together on one side. The unsuspecting fly, lured by the honey, alights on these bristles in anticipation of a feast, but at the first touch of its feet the hinges close, the two leaves come together, the bristles interlock, and the hapless insect is imprisoned in a cell from which escape is impossible.

Under the stimulus of the victim's struggles the tiny glands with which the inner walls of the trap are furnished pour forth a secretion which Darwin analyzed as a vegetable gastric juice, resembling that which insures digestion in animal life. Under the influence of this curious fluid the fly is actually digested alive, and its juices being extracted the trap doors are reopened and the skeleton is flung out.

The scientists declare that the plant unquestionably lives upon the juices of its victims, but one or two expert florists take exception to this statement. It is worthy of note that, although the habit of the plant is carnivorous, experiments have proved that it lives longer and thrives better when so inclosed that no insects can reach it—a superabundance of its favorite diet apparently rendering it even more delicate than it is by nature. The set of muscles controlling its leaves are said to resemble those of the human eyelids.

The full intensity of living is reached only by the perfectly healthy. Sickness discounts the capacity for enjoyment. If his body is all out of order and run-down, he will not be able to enjoy anything, no matter how full of enjoyment it may be for other people. If he is just a little bit out of order, if he "is not sick, but doesn't feel just right," he will only be able to enjoy things in a half-hearted sort of way. The nearer he is to being perfectly well, the nearer will his capacity for enjoyment be perfect. If this condition doesn't exist, something ought to be done. That means nine cases in ten the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It works directly on the digestive organs, and on the blood and through these on every tissue of the body. It makes the appetite good, digestion and nutrition perfect and supplies rich, red blood to all tissues, building up solid, healthful flesh.

Send 21 cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated.

SALISBURY FAVORS AUTONOMY.

The British Premier Wants Crete to be Free. With a Prince of the Hellenes as Administrator.

Constantinople, Feb. 19.—The report that Lord Salisbury, the British Prime Minister, had sent a circular note to the powers favoring the granting of autonomy to Crete with a Prince of Greece to administer the affairs of the island is confirmed.

They are Fighting.

Canea, Feb. 19.—Moslems have abandoned Voucoulia and have retreated to Alikianos, where they are now surrounded. Fighting is now going on there. A crowd of Moslems marched to-day to the military headquarters here and demanded that they be furnished with arms in order to relieve their comrades. Martini rifles and ammunition were given to them and they marched out of the city. Later fighting occurred on the hills near the city, with no decisive results on either side.

The Thunderer's Warning.

London, Feb. 19.—In its issue tomorrow The Times will condemn Col Vassis, the commander of the Greek corps of occupation in Crete, for taking the offensive and attacking the Turkish outposts at Platania. It says that if King George and the Greek Government encourage Col. Vassos they will have to reckon with the powers, which are demanding the adoption of energetic measures against Greece. To resist the warning that has been given by these powers would be sheer folly.

THE LATEST REPORTS

Showing the Progress of Events in the Disturbed Island.

London, Feb. 19.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. George N. Curzon, Under Foreign Secretary, said, in answer to questions, that the Porte had not announced any intention to send troops to Crete. The general advice of the powers to Turkey was to abstain from precipitate action. Detachments of marines from the foreign warships, Mr. Curzon said, were now occupying Canea, Sitia and Retimo, and it was probable that they would soon occupy the other Cretan ports. In addition to this the British, Russian and Italian Consuls had gone to Selino for the purpose of preventing further outrages there and to relieve the sufferi..g Moslem families.

Mr. James Lowther, Conservative member for the Thanet Division of Kent, asked what steps had been taken to relieve the interior. Mr. Curzon replied the powers were doing all they could to relieve them.

Attack on England.

Berlin, Feb. 19.—The Neustre Christian makes a violent attack upon Great Britain because of her reported refusal to join Germany and the other acquiescing powers in the proposal to blockade the Piraeus. The attitude assumed by England, the paper declared, has been the subject of a heated conversation between Count Von Hatzfeldt, the German Ambassador to Great Britain, and Lord Salisbury.

The National Zeitung says: "Great Britain is again pursuing a separate policy in opposition to the common interests of the powers. Whether England throws off her disguise and openly sides with Greece, or pursues her underhand policy, the powers in either case ought to follow their own course, opposing with united front any attempt to embroil Europe."

French Tars Ordered to Duty.

Brest, Feb. 19.—All of the officers and men of the French navy who are absent on leave from this station, have been ordered to rejoin their vessels without delay.

A detachment of men will leave the naval station to-morrow to reinforce the crews of the ships forming the Mediterranean fleet.

RHODES AGAIN TESTIFIES.

The Transvaal Trouble Further Investigated in London.

London, Feb. 19.—The South African committee, appointed by the House of Commons, to enquire into the troubles in the Transvaal, and particularly into the raid made by Dr. Jameson and his followers into the Boer territory, resumed its sittings in Westminster Hall to-day, after a two-days' recess. The hall was crowded with distinguished spectators. Mr. Cecil Rhodes, formerly Premier of the Cape Colony, who was under examination by the committee at the time of the adjournment on Tuesday, was again called to the witness stand. Mr. Rhodes was examined as to the cypher despatches which passed between numerous capitalists of the South African States and others prior to the Jameson raid, and were later entered as evidence at the trial of the members of the Johannesburg Reform Committee at Pretoria.

In the course of the examination of Mr. Rhodes the chairman of the committee referred to the British High Commissioner, Sir Hercules Robinson, (now Lord Rosemead). Mr. Rhodes said that he had advised the Commissioner that if any rising should occur he (the Commissioner) would better mediate between the revolting party and President Kruger, with the obect of securing to the people their civil rights. Witness had gathered from what the Commissioner said that he intended to act as mediator, in accordance with his suggestion, and therefore gave his personal pledge to the people of Johannesburg that the Commissioner would go to that place if an insurrection should take place. Mr. Rhodes admitted in answer to a direct question that he had not told the High Commissioner that he was actively engaged in promoting an insurrection. The object of the rising, Mr. Rhodes said, was to obtain a plebiscite to ascertain whether the people were in favor of a union of the whole of South Africa, or whether the administration of local affairs should be left to the Transvaal Government. Mr. Rhodes added: "You may be sure that I was not going to risk my position by changing President Krugr for President Rhodes."

A CASE OF DIABETES.

No Help From Medical Men—Suffered for Many Years—Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

North Bruce, Feb. 15 (Special)—An old and well known settler in this Township, named Thomas Brooke, who lives on lots 7 and 8 in the 14th concession is rejoicing with his neighbours over his recent recovery, and he said:

"I was cured by using twenty-four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and as nothing else ever helped me I say they saved my life."

"I had tried all the doctors of this locality and was treated for Diabetes, hoping and suffering for years."

"From reading of cures I determined to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I must say that after using the first box I would have considered them reasonable at ten dollars a box."

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ALWAYS CURE

AFTER TEN YEARS SUFFERING

Two Box Cure

Milverton, 9th July, 1895.

Gentlemen,—For the last ten years I had been troubled with kidney disease, being so bad at intervals that I could not lie in bed at night nor stoop to the ground.

I had tried all the remedies I could find without effect, but heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills and procured a box.

I am most happy to say it for my own sake as well as for others that I am positively cured after using four boxes.

A change of Expression

But Quickcure did its work.

Children's teeth are often sacrificed by neglect—too often extracted before their successors appear—too often cause needless suffering. Every mother should have in the house

"Quickcure"

Dr. S. J. Andres, Montreal, says; "'Quickcure' overcomes the pain quickly; gives relief for a long time; is especially valuable for children's teeth which should not be extracted until their successors appear. It is perfectly safe to use at all ages, and does not injure the teeth as many other remedies used for toothache do." Ask your druggist for it.

THE OPENING OF THE NEW Y.M.C.A. HOME.

A CHRISTIAN BOARDING HOUSE FOR YOUNG WOMEN.

Where They Will be Surrounded With all the Influences of Home —Address by Miss Botterell, Travelling Secretary.

The formal opening of the Young Women's Christian Association boarding house took place on Friday evening in the parlours of that institution. The attendance was very large, even the stairs being crowded, and almost every room in the house filled with those who had come to witness the opening of this much-talked of boarding house. The following local ministers were present: Rev. Dr. E. F. Torrance, Rev. J. G. Potter, Rev. W. R. Young, and Rev. W. E. Armitage.

Dr. Fife occupied the chair. The meeting was opened by the singing of "Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty," after which the dedicatory prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Torrance.

Miss Botterell, of Toronto, was then introduced, and gave a very interesting address concerning the benefits of Y.W.C.A. homes. She said she was very glad to be present and see such a large number in attendance. She thought that a boarding house like the one she was making the opening address in served to bring young girls together, and they thus learned how to sympathize with one another in their afflictions. The aim of the boarding house was to be the means of converting the inmates to a knowledge of the saving power of Jesus Christ, and then when one was converted she was to try and lead others to Christ. There were so many Y. W. C. Associations in Canada that they formed a chain which extended from Victoria to Halifax. So it is really

A NATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

There are five hundred thousand girls who gather together to pray every Saturday night for the salvation of souls. This is a power for good in every city, town or village in which it is done. I will try and tell you, said the speaker, about the work in other countries than our own. In Switzerland a national convention was held for two days, at which there was a turn-out of thirty workers. You must remember that it means more in Switzerland to get out to a meeting than it does here. So that it was a good turn out considering the circumstances and most of those delegates walked eight miles to attend the convention, which means a great deal more than our eight miles, as their miles are a good deal longer than ours.

The work in Norway, which I shall consider now, is very strong. Among the association members the Queen herself of this country is included.

Some noble girls of the Association were sent to Spain to spy out the land and report what good points there were in favour of starting a Y. W. C. A. there. They reported that there was a good opening, with a subsequent consequence that an Association was formed there. In that country only one girl out of every ten receives an education. The management saw where their chance lay and immediately said "we will do our best to educate these poor girls," and started in the work of winning them over to the Lord Jesus Christ's side.

Armenia is also very strong in this work. "I don't know when I ever received anything so touching," said Miss Botterell, "as the letter I received from one of the head missionaries in that place." The writer said that the natives knew the trouble was coming and it was considered unsafe to hold meetings in public, so they gathered together in one of the native houses for their meetings.

The work in India is also prospering. Reports of success come from Madras, Calcutta and Bombay. We sent out a grand and noble Armenian girl to Madras. In this place the girls live very much to themselves, and it was very hard to induce them but by hard work she succeeded in winning them over and induced 400 of them to have their names put on the roll. Then there is a class in India where the English have married native women and induced them to become Christians. The Y.W.C. A. is doing a good work among this class. All are familiar with the work in Canada. We have associations in all large town and cities—two or three in some places, and I have been in as many as four in Toronto. The chief aim of the Association is to carry on the good work for the extension of God's kingdom. This work is comprehensive, and is fulfilling a commandment given by God himself.

TO LIVE FOR OTHERS,

Miss Botterell attended a meeting held by the match factory girls in London, and which was addressed by a royal princess, who spoke on "By love serve one another." She pointed out the good each derives from helping another thus, and how pleasant it was to know that we are all one in Christ Jesus.

The College Association is very useful in bringing college students to turn over a new leaf. The Association has got some of its best workers from the colleges. All the large and small colleges have associations in England and Canada in connection with the college. The Association's aim is to win all girls to Christ. These college and shop girls have a very wide influence. One girl, whom the speaker knew, had such an influence that if an Association meeting was to be held all this girl had to do was to just mention the fact to her companions and there would be a large attendance, and if she did not mention it there would be an exceedingly small attendance. She was the cause of bringing thousands to a knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

"I shall consider next the need of the Association," continued Miss Botterill. You all know that there are who rush into large towns or cities, and whose characters are very weak. They go to the first boarding house that is offered to them. Perhaps it is a house where all are good Christian people. Perhaps it is not. The Y.W.C.A. will do away with all uncertainty in this respect, and it will be more than a mere boarding house—it will be a real home, where they can enjoy themselves the same as if they were at home, and they will not be preached at here. They will have a good example set to follow, and they they can see for themselves the happiness there is in Christianity. Girls away from home need the joys of a home much more than all others. These girls when they are converted join the church and become a great help to the ministers of the various churches. There are four branches in the Y.W.C.A., intellectual, physical, social and spiritual. We contrive to combine all four. We try to find out the need and meet it. The gymnasium and cooking school is patronized. Everything is done to make the girls feel at home. These are all avenues to lead to Christ.

Miss Botterell concluded her very interesting address by thanking all for the good attention given her while speaking and wishing the new enterprise every success in the future.

Mr. Crane, of St. Paul's church, then contributed a solo with excellent effect Miss Roger, followed with a much appreciated instrumental solo. Rev. Mr. Potter gave a brief and very interesting address in which he set forth the high merits of the undertaking, assuring the Y.W.C.A. that they would have the hearty co-operation of all the local ministers. Rev. W. L. Armitage also gave a short address and wished success to the new enterprise.

SMITH COUNCIL MEETING.

The council met pursuant to adjournment on Feb 1st, all the members present and the reeve in the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. A bylaw to confirm the appointment of township officers passed its several readings, also a bylaw to annul bylaw No. 422, regulating the salary of clerk and treasurer. The Reeve and Councillor Elliott were appointed to examine the road on the 7th con. line, across lots 13 and 14, with power to arrange for gravelling the same if they think it necessary. The clerk was instructed to notify Jas. E. and Thos. J. Cullen to remove fence off road allowance on 17th con. line; also to notify Andrew and Jas. Miller to remove fence off road allowance between lots 30 and 31 in 10th con. The following claims were ordered to be paid: R. Heard, building culvert, $3; Hugh McIlmoyl, aid to Mrs. Smith, $10; Wm. Davis, aid to Wm. Freeborn, $25. After verbally appointing overseers of highways, poundkeepers and fence viewers for 1897, council adjourned to meet Tuesday, 2nd March.

THEY WORKED WONDERS.

Two Years of Bladder Torment—Had Attacks of Inflammation—Cured by a few Boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Owen Sound, Feb. 22, (Special)—The people of this town are talking again of another cure credited to Dodd's Kidney Pills. This is the case of Mr. W. Cruse, caretaker of town buildings, who, when seen had this to say of the matter:

"For over two years I have been an intense sufferer from kidney disease with occasional acute attacks of inflammation of the bladder.

"Was under doctors' treatment and have been compelled to resort to instrumental relief many times.

"I have taken eighteen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am satisfied with results being perfectly relieved of all suffering."

THE TREATY IS SAFE.

Senator Sherman Says it Will Have the Necessary Two Thirds Majority When the Vote is Taken.

New York, Feb. 21.—The Herald to-day prints the following special despatch from Washington under last night's date: Senator Sherman intimates that the influence of the McKinley administration will be exerted in favor of the general arbitration treaty, and he is positive the treaty will be ratified by the Senate.

"I have not the slightest doubt that the treaty will receive the votes of the necessary two-thirds of the Senate when a vote is reached," the Senator said to-night. "We have two-thirds now, and the friends of the treaty will be stronger after March 4. The vote taken in executive session, about which I am not permitted to speak in detail, shows that the treaty is safe. Some of the strongest friends of the compact voted for postponement."

Mrs. Homier on Trial.

Ottawa, Feb. 21.—(Special.)—The preliminary trial of Mrs. Homier for the murder of her husband was in progress in Hull yesterday before Magistrate Champaigne. Mrs. Homier did not display the slightest sign of agitation at being placed in jail yesterday. During the night she seemed to sleep as composedly and soundly as if she were at her own home.

Too Good To Miss!

No Time To Lose!

GOUGH'S Winter Wind-Up.

These are WIND-UP DAYS, and GOUGH BROS' Slashing Cut in Clothing, Cloths, Boots and Shoes, Gentlemen's Furnishings, &c., to Wind-up the Winter Selling Season, is an extraordinary event too important to miss. Never since the days of Adam has good Clothing and Boots and Shoes been sold so cheap as we're selling them now. A colossal stock of Clothing and Boots and Shoes for Men, Women and Children at prices that revoulutionizes the trade, and emphasizes the possibilities of this great emporium for clothing the people.

THE STOCK MUST MELT!

The sudden thaw in prices must dissolve the Bargain Lots on Tables, Counters and Shelves, and the flood of bargains will lend spirit and snap to bargain lovers while they last. Our plan of campaign demands that all Winter Goods must be out of the way for Spring arrivals. Besides we want to do our share in alleviating present distress by helping the farmer, the mechanic, the business man, the women and the youth, and at the same time keeping our tailors and salesmen busy.

New Spring Goods are rushing in upon us faster than we can place them, so we have decided to let the "hide go with the hair" until our two big stores are clear of Winter lines.

More gigantic selling, forced on by tremendous buying, has never been planned, for we dump everything into this Colossal Sale at an average reduction all round of 20 Per Cent. Below Manufacturer's Prices!

These bargains now stare you in the face, and what is worth emphasizing is that in all the lines we show a large variety of patterns and sizes, both in Clothing and Boots and Shoes. It is not our policy to select two or three catch lines. You get the choice of the whole stock. You merely choose what you need—no question about the goodness of the material or workmanship.

TO THE PUBLIC!

Having purchased Mr. P. H. Green's complete Photograph Studio on Hunter street, I take this opportunity of inviting a continuance of the favours of the numerous patrons of this Studio and solicit from my own friends, as well as the public generally, a liberal share of their orders.

Mr. Green will remain with me for a few weeks to personally assist and introduce me to his customers, as well as to complete all work under contract by him.

I have arranged to carry out within a reasonable time any of Mr. Green's unfinished orders, after his removal from Peterborough, and will do all in my power to meet the wishes of my patrons.

This popular studio has been so well known and has enjoyed so large and valuable a patronage ever since its establishment, that it only remains for me to state that it will be my constant aim to continue the high standard of superior photography which it has deservedly maintained.

Miss Dawson will still be in charge of the retouching and finishing department.

Please bear in mind that all Photographs taken by P. H. Green while in business in Peterborough, the negatives of which are in perfect order, are now in my possession, and copies can be had at any time on application.

An Act to Regulate the Keeping of Books

WAS INTRODUCED BY THE PREMIER.

Auditors to be Employed Who Will Have Power to Summon Witnesses and Compel the Production of Books - Notices of Motion and Petitions Presented.

Toronto, Feb. 22.

The Attorney-General proposes to introduce an Act to make better Provision for the Keeping and Auditing of Municipal and School Board Accounts," and authorizes the Lieutenant-Governor to appoint an officer to be known as the provincial municipal auditor, and confers power upon that officer to frame rules, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor, to regulate the form or books of account to be kept by treasurers and the system of bookkeeping to be adopted and the manner in which securities and moneys of municipalities and school boards are to be kept and the auditing of said documents, that the auditor shall prepare sets of books for use by the various classes of municipalities, except cities, and when approved by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council these books are to be procured and used in these municipalities.

The auditor may also, if directed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, prepare books of account for the use of school boards. The auditor may at any time on his own motion, when requested by a member of the municipal council, if directed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, or if required by requisition in writing, signed by 30 ratepayers, make a full audit and inspection of the books and moneys in the hands of the treasurer or collector, or the auditor may authorise the work to be done by some person to be approved by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council. The auditor is to have full power to summon witnesses and to compel the production of books and documents in the same manner as in court, and municipal treasurers within five days from their appointment to office are to inform the auditor of their appointment, giving him their full name and postoffice address, and the auditor is to report to the municipality and to make such recommendations as may seem to him to be necessary for the due carrying out of the law. It is to be the duty of the members to see that the Act is duly carried out. The expenses of an inquiry made by the auditor are to be paid by the municipality to the Provincial Treasurer when the auditor personally conducts the inquiry or to the person deputed by him in other cases.

The auditor is to be paid by salary. He is to report annually upon the number and character of the investigations made by him and as to any changes in the rules or law which he may consider advisable. Every bank or company in which the treasurer of a municipality or school board has deposited moneys as such treasurer is to state the balance in the hands of the bank or company at any time when requested to do so by a member of the council or school board, and shall, quarterly, on the first days of January, April, July and October in each year, deliver to the head of the municipality or chairman of the school board a statement showing the balance of such treasurer's account at the close of business on the last day of the preceding month, and the statement is to be read at the next regular meeting of the council or school board.

Every mortgagor or other person liable for the payment of moneys secured by mortgage by or held by municipalities, on the 31st day of December, is to deliver to the head of the municipality a statement of the amount remaining unpaid upon each mortgage on that date, and such statement is to be laid before the council at its next regular meeting.

The treasurers of municipalities and school boards are to keep all moneys held by them as such entirely separate from their own moneys, and are to deposit the same to a separate account, which shall show that the money so deposited is the money of such municipality or school board.

Other bills received their first reading as follows:

Mr. Hardy—An Act to amend and consolidate the Acts relating to the administration of justice in those portions of the province which are outside of county organization. This Act regulates the sittings of the courts, the powers of District Courts and judges, the legal officers, Division Courts and other matters connected with the administration of justice in the districts.

Mr. Gibson of Huron—An Act to amend the Municipal Act.

Mr. Ryerson—Bill to amend the Municipal Act. Bill respecting the liabilities of hospital trustees.

Mr. Ryerson—Order of the House for a return showing (1) any instructions issued to the Provincial Auditor by the Government or Provincial Treasurer regarding his duties; (2) copies of his reports to the Executive Council; (3) copies of reports to the House, the number of witnesses examined by him in the years 1894-95-96 and expense attendant on such examinations.

Mr. Ryerson—Inquiry of Ministry. Is it the intention of the Government to dismiss on the grounds of offensive partisanship, or neglect of Government business, any of its officials who took an active part in the late Dominion election?

Mr. W. B. Beatty—From the municipality of Sundridge, for amendments to the law relating to the collection of back taxes.

Mr. Dynes—From Dufferin County Council, re the emoluments to registrars and also to amend the County Councils Act.

Mr. Maclean—From the Town Council of Napanee, asking that before a provincial grant be given any railway it shall be made a condition of such grant that all rolling stock be made in Canada.

Mr. St. John—From John Mallon and others of the City of Toronto, for an Act to incorporate the Township of Humber.

Mr. Kidd—From the Carleton County Council, for amendments to the General Road Companies Act.

Mr. Miscampbell—From the corporation of Penetanguishene, for an Act to authorize the payment of debentures amounting to $3000 of the Protestant Separate School Board.

Mr. Pardo—From the Chatham City and Suburban Railway, for amendments to their Act of Incorporation.

Mr. Richardson—From the Council of North Toronto, asking for legislation to empower them: (1) To reduce the number of councillors; (2) to receive from the County of York $500 per annum towards the maintenance of that portion of Yonge-street within the town; (3) to extend the waterworks system, to aid any Street Railway Company running to and from Toronto, to receive an assignment from York County Council of all their rights over the Metropolitan Street Railway Co. in so far as the same is operated in said town, to authorize the chief constable to collect dog taxes.

Mr. Farwell—From Rinaldo McConnell and others of Nipissing, for an Act to incorporate the Mineral and Timber Electric Railway.

Mr. Kerns—From the County Council of Halton, for amendments to the General Road Companies Act.

Dr. Ryerson—From the corporation of Toronto, representing that application was made last session on behalf of certain property owners on Hamilton-street or North Gladstone-avenue, to amend the Act which had validated among other debenture bylaws the one for the extension of Gladstone-avenue. The clause which was drawn up in the city's private bill was more extensive than had been asked for, as it gave all persons upon Gladstone-avenue the right to bring an action against the city in respect of the rates for this street extension. The petitioners ask that the Act be amended to grant relief only to such persons on Gladstone-avenue as applied for it. Also to relieve the residents on Hamilton-street of one-half the rates for street extension. Also to confirm and validate any agreement which may be arrived at between the Mayor of Toronto and the Toronto Railway looking to the extension of the present street railway service to the Island. Also for leave to use the revenue derived from the Street Railway Company to build such bridge or bridges as are necessary to complete this service. Also to confirm and validate any agreement which may be arrived at as to the character and extent of a Sunday service of street cars in the city of Toronto, in the event of the persons authorized by the said Act to vote thereon approving of the operation of street cars upon the Lord's Day.

The city also asks permission to charge for the use of areas or openings from buildings adjoining public highways to give air and light to the basements. Also for permission to widen the Queen-street subway either for its whole length or by permitting the walls on the south side of Queen-street west of Dufferin-street, and on Dufferin-street south of Queen-street to remain. Authority is also asked for proceeding with the assessment of part of the cost of straightening and improving the Don River, without obtaining a certificate, as though a certificate from a City Engineer or other city officer had been obtained.

In response to an order of the House made on March 18, 1896, Hon. E. J. Davis laid a return on the table showing the amount obtained from timber limits and timber dues in the township of Oakley, and all the expenditure of the Government in the township, and also for the District of Muskoka. The total revenue from the timber in the township was $134,295, and the expenditure $179,900. For Muskoka the respective amounts were $1,168,282 and $1,189,911.

THE KING OF BENIN FLED.

When He Got Whipped He Took to the Woods, as He Promised He Would Do.

Bras, Niger Coast Protectorate, Feb. 22.—The expedition which was formed to punish Drunami, King of Benin, for the murder of the members of a peaceable British expedition which was attempting to reach Benin City, has been entirely successful. The expedition has captured Benin City and the King is a fugitive. He fled northward, but a part of the expedition is in pursuit of him, and it is expected that he will be taken prisoner.

When the expedition entered the town it was found that it well deserved its name of "City of Blood." Many victims of the Ju Ju, or Fetish priests, were found crucified, they having been sacrificed to the various gods. The Ju Ju houses and their compounds were reeking with the blood of those who had recently been beheaded in the religious ceremonies.

GREECE IS WRATHY

And Threatens to Declare War on Turkey.

THE EASTERN QUESTION DISCUSSED

In the Parliaments of Great Britain, France and Germany—Indignation Meeting at Athens—No Further Fighting Reported — Mussulmans Badly Frightened Latest War News.

London, Feb. 22.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Labouchere (Radical) moved to adjourn, with a view of discussing the situation in Crete, and the motion was seconded by John Dillon, the leader of the Irish National party.

A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Treasury, and the Government leader in the House, opposed the motion, and said there was absolute unanimity among the powers to avoid war. When they saw the masters of the colossal armies of Europe moved with the deepest anxiety lest war should be declared, surely it was not for authorities upon international affairs like Mr. Labouchere and Mr. Dillon to say that such fears were illusory. [Cries of "Oh, Oh!"] The united forces were responsible for peace, and the naval action they took at Canea yesterday was forced upon them in the interests of peace. Mr. Balfour expressed hope that debate on Mr. Labouchere's motion would stop where it was, as it would not serve the interests of Europe, nor would it benefit Greece or Crete.

Sir William Harcourt, leader of the Opposition, said that the country ought to know whether the Government were acting upon their old formula, the integrity of the Ottoman Empire, and, if they were not doing so, protested against it. To detach Crete from the rule of the Turk was the only policy worthy of Great Britain, and he hoped that such a policy would be pursued. To take up arms against a people who were rightly fighting for their freedom would not be tolerated by the country.

Prior to the introduction of Mr. Labouchere's motion to adjourn, Mr. Curzon, Under Foreign Secretary, stated that the international squadron had no option but to forcibly prevent the insurgents from making an attack upon Canea. [Cries of "Oh, Oh!" and "Shame!"]

H. Campebll-Bannerman, who was Secretary of State for War in the Ministry of Lord Rosebery, asked that the House be furnished with a copy of the instructions which had been given to the admiral commanding the British warships at Canea, and said that the House would be glad to know whether his instructions bound him to do anything which the concerted European powers directed.

Mr. Balfour said he would enquire whether the instructions forwarded to the British Admiral could be produced. He would say, however, that the Admiral was not bound to act with the other powers against his own judgment.

Sir Charles Dilke (Liberal) said that the Greeks had reason to believe that Great Britain had twice led the concert of Europe to prevent them from getting what they otherwise would have obtained. The feeling of the country, he declared, was almost unanimously on the side of Greece.

Mr. Labouchere's motion was rejected by a vote of 243 to 125.

A despatch to the Central News from Constantinople says that official reports from Crete say that the total number of Moslems, men, women and children, who have been killed during the present troubles in that island is over 25,000, and 25 Moslem villages have been pillaged and burned.

No Greeks In It.

London, Feb. 22.—The Greek Charge D'Affaires here gives out the statement that no regular Greek troops took part in the attack which was made upon Canea yesterday. The Greek troops, in obedience to orders, he says, abstained and will continue to abstain from all hostilities toward foreigners in Crete.

Italy to Govern Pro Tem.

Paris, Feb. 22.—The Gaulois says the powers have agreed to entrust to Italy the authority to pacify and administer the affairs of the Island of Crete, pending the establishment of constitutional autonomy for the island.

Austrian Warships Sail

Vienna, Feb. 22.—Five Austrian warships sailed from Pola for Canea on Saturday. The powers have agreed that the granting of autonomy to the Island of Crete must be preceded by a complete cessation of Greek interference in the island.

GERMANY'S POSITION.

Her Main Object is Preservation of the Peace of Europe.

Berlin, Feb. 22.—In the Reichstag today the Government was interrogated on the attitude of Germany in the matter of the situation in Crete. Baron Marschall Von Bieberstein, Minister of Foreign Affairs, replied that the first task of Germany in Crete would be to secure the restoration of peace in the island and remove the danger of war which had been created by Greece's rupture of international law. Germany, he said, had no direct interest in the Orient. [Applause from the members of the Right.] She was mainly interested in the preservation of the peace of Europe. The powers would now endeavor to put a stop to the extension of hostilities and obtain a satisfactory settlement of the difficulties in Crete. He was not in a position at the present time to communicate to the Cahmber the character of the diplomatic negotiations in progress, but he would assure the House that Ger-

AN ACT RESPECTING COUNTY COUNCILS.

Text of the Bill Proposing Important Changes of Constitution.

The following is the text of the bill introduced into the Ontario Legislature by Hon. Attorney General Hardy, on Feb. 15th, in relation to the mode of electing town councillors:

1. The Council of every town having a population of over 4,000 according to the last Canadian census, shall consist of a Mayor, who shall be the head thereof, and of two councillors to be elected by the general vote of the municipal electors in the town, and of two councillors for each ward, to be elected by the vote of the municipal electors in the ward, in the manner provided by the Consolidated Municipal Act.

2. The Council of every town having a population of not more than 4,000 by the last Canadian census, shall consist of a mayor, who shall be the head thereof, and of six councillors to be elected by general vote of the municipal electors in the town.

3. The Council of every incorporated village shall consist of a reeve, who shall be the head thereof, and four councillors to be elected by general vote of the municipal electors of the village.

4. The council of every township shall consist of a reeve, who shall be the head thereof, and four councillors, who shall, where the township is not divided into wards, be elected by general vote; and where the township is divided into wards, the reeve shall be elected by general vote, and one councillor shall be elected for each ward.

6. In the cases of councillors to be elected by or for a ward or by general vote, every elector may vote therefor, as heretofore, in each ward in which he has the necessary qualifications; but in the case of mayor or reeve the elector shall, as at present, not be entitled to vote therefor at more than one polling place in the municipality.

7.—(1) Where the reeves are elected for municipalities within a junior county, they shall, upon the establishment of the provisional county council, be ex-officio members thereof.

(2) In the case of a town within a junior county for which no reeve is elected, the council of the town, shall, upon the establishment of a provisional county council, elect one of its own members as a member thereof.

(3) The members so elected and the reeves as aforesaid, shall form the provisional council.

8. Sections 69, 70, 71 and 73 of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1892, are repealed, and the foregoing provisions are substituted therefor; and wherever in the said Act it is provided that anything shall be done or suffered by or as to a reeve in municipalities in which, under this Act, reeves will not hereafter be elected, or by a deputy reeve in any municipality, either alone or in connection with other officers, such provision shall as to such reeve or deputy reeve, be deemed to be repealed by this Act; and all parts of the said Act which are inconsistent with this Act are repealed.

9. This Act shall apply to the next general municipal elections, and shall have effect thereat; and thereafter, but not before.

10. This Act shall be read with and as part of the Municipal Act.

THEY WORKED WONDERS.

Two Years of Bladder Torment—Had Attacks of Inflammation—Cured by a few Boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Owen Sound, Feb. 22, (Special)—The people of this town are talking again of another cure credited to Dodd's Kidney Pills. This is the case of Mr. W. Cruse, caretaker of town buildings, who, when seen had this to say of the matter:

"For over two years I have been an intense sufferer from kidney disease with occasional acute attacks of inflammation of the bladder.

"Was under doctors' treatment and have been compelled to resort to instrumental relief many times.

"I have taken eighteen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am satisfied with results being perfectly relieved of all suffering."

Rattlesnake Superstition.

The rattlesnake, because of its venomous bite, is universally dreaded, and numerous curious beliefs are current respecting this reptile, also the use to which various parts may be put, and the treatment of its bite. The rattle, if tied to a string and suspended from the neck of an infant, will serve to prevent convulsions; if carried by an adult, it will guard against rheumatism. The oil is employed as a remedy for deafness; and the venom, diluted, mixed with bread, and made into pills, has been administered internally to cure rheumatism. Another curious superstition, held by the young men, is that if one places a snake's tongue upon the palm of his hand—beneath the glove—it will cause any girl, regardless of her previous indifference, to ardently return his passion if he be enabled but once to take her hand within his own. This resembles to a certain extent the former use in Germany of a dove's tongue, which was similarly employed; and, furthermore, if one became aware that the choice of his heart failed to respond to his affection, he had only to place a dove's tongue within his mouth and snatch a kiss, when the girl's objections or indifference to him would instantly vanish.

Not Born for the Scaffold.

A curious case is told in the law records of Bristol, England. An elderly lady being found dead in her bed, a man named Lee was charged with the murder. There was little evidence against the man except that he was in the house when the crime was committed. Nevertheless, Lee was convicted and sentenced to be hanged. The scaffold was tested and found all right. Lee was led upon the platform, still protesting his innocence. The rope was adjusted, but when the hangman drew the bolt the trap refused to fall. He stamped on it with his foot, but it still refused to move. Finally, Lee was led to one side while the trap was examined. Then it was found that the trap was all right; in fact, would fall of its own weight. Again Lee was placed upon it, and again it refused to work. Tried again and again, it still refused to act. Then the sheriff ordered Lee back to his cell and telegraphed the Home Secretary for instructions. The case came up in Parliament, and it was decided that as Lee could not be hanged he should be imprisoned for life. A few years afterward a tramp confessed to the murder for which the authorities had tried to hang Lee.

VERY GOOD SHOWING

Made by the Trade Returns Last Year.

EXPORTS AND IMPORTS INCREASED

And the Aggregate Shows That the Business of the Country Was the Largest Since Confederation—Some of the Changes in Commercial Channels—Ottawa News.

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—(Special.)—The trade and navigation returns, issued to-day, show total exports valued at $121,013,852, the largest total export since Confederation. The increase over the previous year was $7,500,000. The imports were valued at $18,011,580, an increase of seven and a quarter millions over the previous year, but lower than any year of the five preceding. The grand aggregate trade for the year amounted to $239,025,360, an increase of $16,500,000 over the preceding year, and certainly the best year for trade in the history of the Dominion.

The blue book shows a remarkable change in Canada's trade with Great Britain and the United States respectively. Away back in the eighties our exports to the neighboring republic often exceeded those to the Old Country. During the last three or four years, however, our exports to Great Britain have, speaking generally, been 50 per cent. greater than to the United States.

Last year, for instance, the value of exports to Great Britain was $66,-690,238, and to the United States $44,-448,410, chiefly in raw material. In imports for home consumption the United States, however, is still ahead of the Mother Country. From Great Britain the value was $32,979,742, and from the States $58,574,084. Trade with France shows a slight increase, due perhaps to the operations of the French treaty, but still the total trade with France is a mere bagatelle as compared with other countries. The exports to France are valued at only $561,540, an increase of a quarter of a million. With Germany, Spain, Portugal, Italy and Holland, trade continues about the same. To Belgium our exports have fallen to the sum of $93,031; with Newfoundland our exports have decreased to the tune of half a million, and are now back to the figures of 1892. The exports to the West Indies have decreased by $900,000, but have increased with South America by $193,-000, the total value being $1,496,118. The exports to China and Japan are valued at $668 011, and to Australia, $517,258, a slight increase in each case.

As regards imports, more has come from Germany by $1,250,000 than the previous year, while our imports from Belgium have increased by half a million. There is a tremendous drop in values of imports from the West Indies, they being $4,794,020 in 1896, and $1,296,426 last year.

The total amount of customs duties paid per head of the population is given at $3.94, which is lower than any year since 1881, with the exception of 1894 and 1895.

The national Indian famine fund has now reached a total of $72,363. Another lac of rupees was cabled direct to Calcutta to-day. The Governor-General received the following acknowledgment from Sir Francis McLean, Chief Justice of Bengal, to-day: "Second instalment received to-day; warmly thank Canadian people."

The Governor-General and party leave Washington for Ottawa on Thursday.

Dr. Borden leaves for Lakewood, N. J., to-morrow. It is said that his resignation as a member of the Cabinet may come any day, his injuries being such as to necessitate his retirement. D. C. Fraser, M. P., who is here, is spoken of as Dr. Borden's successor.

Last week Mayor Bingham gave a lunch to 350 leading citizens. Now he has startled the town by issuing about 900 invitations to the ladies of the city for a luncheon to be given at the Russell House on Thursday. His Worship says that not a gentleman will be admitted. Not even a masculine form shall present itself in the orchestra gallery to mar the fair scene of feminine beauty. Yet there will be music and abundance of it, for fifty or more of the sweet-faced and sweet-voiced pupils of the Gloucester-street Convent will be there to add pleasure to the scene with their glees and choruses. The other day Mayor Bingham wrote to the Sister Superior of that institution, asking if she would consent to the pupils singing at the luncheon. This morning he received a reply, stating that his request had been acceded to. When the news got around this morning the aldermen looked at each other with curious smiles.

The Minister of Railways and Canals has caused an advertisement to be issued calling for tenders for constructing sections 4, 5, 6, 7 and 12 of the Soulanges Canal, the sections originally awarded to George Goodwin, but on which he has done very little work. Tenders must be in by March 16. Tenders will also be received up to the 20th March for completing one mile and three-quarters of the Grenville Canal enlargement.

The Fisheries Department is advised that 80,000 salmon fry presented to the Hawaiian Government four weeks ago reached Honolulu in safety, but immediately the officer in charge of them, an employe of the Hawaiian authorities, landed, his vigilance ceased. He had been warned that it was imperatively necessary to get the young fish into fresh water on landing, but instead of doing so he allowed them to remain on the wharf for a day or more and they were killed by the heat.

The Ministers think that while the new third storey is being erected on the Western block it would be well to replace the top flat of the Eastern block and the Parliament buildings with permanent material such as would leave no chance for a recurrence of the disastrous fire of a short time ago. One million dollars will do the work.

Concerning the proposed new Franchise Act, it consists solely in the adoption of the lists in use in the various provinces.

Dr. Mark, for many years coroner in this city, and a superannuated minister of the Methodist Church, died this afternoon after a short illness from pneumonia.

Major Sherwood, Commissioner of Dominion Police, returned to-day from the Pacific coast, where he has been looking up information in connection with the Behring Sea investigation.

Mr. William Smith, ex-Deputy Minister of Marine, has failed considerably during the past few weeks, and is now in very poor health.

The Supreme Court did not sit to-day, owing to Judge King's indisposition. He is suffering from grippe.

General Montgomery Moore and his aide-de-camp, Col. North, left for Halifax this afternoon.

There was a meeting of the Cabinet to-day.

Theresa Klasick, the Harmon school domestic, charged with incendiarism, was to-day acquitted, the evidence not being sufficient to convict.

Lady Aberdeen has issued cards for a skating "at home" for the evening of Monday, March 1.

RAILROADERS AND THE PREMIER.

Intercolonial Employes Ask for Fair Investigation, Which Mr Laurier Promises.

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—(Special.)—The Executive of the Dominion Board of Railway Employes had a lengthy conference with Mr. Laurier and Mr. Blair this afternoon when the question of investigating the charges of political partisanship preferred against certain Intercolonial Railway empolyes was discussed. The delegation included A. B. Hudson, chairman; A. B. Lowe, secretary; W. King, W. H. Hood and J. Litle. It is not generally known that the Government had appointed Mr. Bedard, barrister of Quebec, to investigate a few cases of alleged partisanship. Since the last meeting of the Executive with Mr. Laurier, Secretary Lowe has visited Moncton and explained to the railway unions the Government's intention to appoint Mr. Bedard to investigate all charges and railway men are favorable to him. The railway employes desired the Government to appoint two commissioners, but will be satisfied with one. The deputation pointed out that the matter had been allowed to drift long enough and expected a speedy reply to their request. If the Government decided not to cause an investigation into different charges the grand officers of the several railway orders will be called together and trouble might result.

After these representations the Minister of Railways and the Premier consented to allow Mr. Bedard to investigate the charges against Firemen Huard, Couture, Ringuet and Bernier; operators Gastonquay, A. P. Lebel, L. P. Jean, all of St. Charles' Junction; L. V. Dion, l'Islet, and I. E. Daugon, agent at Metapedia; trackmen D. Therreau, St. Charles; I. Lebel, St. Philippe; Daneri C. Cote, Notre Dame De Portage; H. Dube, St. Alexander; G. Souci St. Jean, Port Joli, and D. Laberge, Cap St. Ignace. It was admitted that George Chaurier of Levis had canvassed for the Conservative candidate, but it was claimed that his dismissal was unjust because he acted under leave from his trackmaster, and at the request of Conservative Candidate Dion. The following employes who have been dismissed claim they are innocent and want their cases investigated: Robert Douglas, Scotsburn, Pictou county; Findlay Chisholm, James River, Antigonish county; Alex Stewart, Linwood, Guysboro county. It was pointed out that Jas. Yeo had been appointed section foreman at Hadlow without having previously worked on the track. The deputation contended that in fair play to the men and for the safety of the traveling public such an appointment should be immediately cancelled. The deputation also submitted the following definition of political partisanship:

A political partisan, as applied to an Intercolonial Railway man, is one who at the last general election, in addition to casting his vote, canvassed for one or other of the two parties, or took the platform at a public meeting and spoke in favor of either of the candidates, or being at a public meeting disturbed the good order of the meeting by disorderly conduct, or interrupting with intent to annoy or insult a candidate or his friend who might be speaking. Ordinary conversation into which men might be drawn, not at a public meeting, or interchange of opinion as to the merits of a party, a policy or a candidate, shall not be strained to be partisanship, and all charges made under this head shall be investigated by an officer of the road the same as any other charges would. Investigation into an employe's conduct politically shall not go further back than the last general election. That is from the time of the issuing of the writs for said election.

The Ministers accepted the definition and other conditions, giving assurances that the men would get fair play. The deputation thereupon thanked the Premier and his colleagues and retired.

That the blood should perform its vital functions, it is absolutely necessary it should not only be pure but rich and life-giving elements. These results are best effected by the use of that well-known standard blood-purifier, Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

FELL WHEN SKATING

And Julia Donohue of London Struck Her Head So Forcibly on the Ice as to Cause Death.

London, Ont., Feb. 22.—Julia Donohue, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Donohue, died at the family residence, 866 Maitland-street, on Saturday, after an illness of only a few days. A week ago Saturday while skating Julia fell and struck her head with considerable force on the ice. On Wednesday she was taken so ill that the services of a doctor were called. Meningitis had set in, however, and the girl gradually sank until Saturday, when death resulted.

THE "BIG" FOUR.

A Quartette of Remedies that are Effecting Wonderful Cures.

"I was sick for three years," says James Simpson, of Newcomb Mills. "I tried various alleged patent cures and several boxes of a certain pill which has been greatly cracked up. I got no relief. Then I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since, I have been able to work every day and feel like a new man. Your pills alone cured me at a cost of 25c."

"I have been subject to severe colds every fall and spring," says Miss Hattie Delaney, of 174 Crawford street, Toronto. "I used many cough medicines, but none cured me until at a cost of 25 cents I tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine."

"My husband was troubled with the worst kind of piles," writes Mrs. Jane Potts, of Meyersburg. "He was often unable to work. Since using your Chase's Ointment he is completely cured. It is truly worth its weight in gold instead of the price you charge, only 60 cents."

"I bought a box of your Catarrh Cure for 25 cents at Mr. Boyle's drug store here," says Henry R. Nicholls of 176 Rectory street, London, Ont. "I am thankful to say it cured me."

Chase's remedies at all dealers. Edmanson, Bates & Co., manfrs., Toronto.

Mr. Benj. Scott, Van Horn, Ont., says: "My heart caused me great uneasiness, my appetite failed, and I became very weak and discouraged. Miller's Compound Iron Pills made me all right; I feel well and strong." Sold in Peterborough by Wm. Madill, druggist.

That hacking cough can be quickly cured by Hagard's Pectoral Balsam. Price 25c.

To banish indigestion in every form use Adams' Pepsin Tutti Frutti.

Too Good To Miss!
No Time To Lose!

GOUGH'S Winter Wind-Up.

These are WIND-UP DAYS, and GOUGH BROS' Slashing Cut in Clothing, Cloths, Boots and Shoes, Gentlemen's Furnishings, &c., to Wind-up the Winter Selling Season, is an extraordinary event too important to miss. Never since the days of Adam has good Clothing and Boots and Shoes been sold so cheap as we're selling them now. A colossal stock of Clothing and Boots and Shoes for Men, Women and Children at prices that revoulutionizes the trade, and emphasizes the possibilities of this great emporium for clothing the people.

THE STOCK MUST MELT!

The sudden thaw in prices must dissolve the Bargain Lots on Tables, Counters and Shelves, and the flood of bargains will lend spirit and snap to bargain lovers while they last. Our plan of campaign demands that all Winter Goods must be out of the way for Spring arrivals. Besides we want to do our share in alleviating present distress by helping the farmer, the mechanic, the business man, the women and the youth, and at the same time keeping our tailors and salesmen busy.

New Spring Goods are rushing in upon us faster than we can place them, so we have decided to let the "hide go with the hair" until our two big stores are clear of Winter lines.

More gigantic selling, forced on by tremendous buying, has never been planned, for we dump everything into this Colossal Sale at an average reduction all round of 20 Per Cent. Below Manufacturer's Prices!

These bargains now stare you in the face, and what is worth emphasizing is that in all the lines we show a large variety of patterns and sizes, both in Clothing and Boots and Shoes. It is not our policy to select two or three catch lines. You get the choice of the whole stock. You merely choose what you need—no question about the goodness of the material or workmanship.

The best local instrumental and vocal talent will also contribute to the programme, making this one of the finest entertainments of the season. tf

A DAKOTA BRIDAL.

Nuptials of Mr. J. J. Clarke and Miss E. J. Little, Late of Hall's Glen.

The following account of a wedding of local interest is taken from a Dakota paper: At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Bedmond, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 10th, 1897, at 9 o'clock, Mr. John J. Clark and Miss Elizabeth J. Little were joined together in the holy bonds of matrimony, Rev. A. J. Garry, officiating. The bridesmaid was Miss Johnson, while the groom was assisted by Mr. J. Braton. Mr. Clark has been a resident of Leedes for the past three years, and has earned for himself the reputation of being a steady, industrious and exemplary citizen, and liked by all who knew him.

The bride, Miss E. J. Little, daughter of Mr. James Little, Hall's Glen, only arrived here last Saturday from her home in Ontario, but during this short time has made many friends. The ceremony was witnessed by only a few friends. An elegant supper was served after by Mrs. Bedmond, which was greatly enjoyed by all, and the rest of the evening was spent in different amusements. Mr. and Mrs. Clark have the best wishes of a host of friends who would like to see them prosper, live long and enjoy many happy years. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Clark in Peterborough and surrounding district join their Dakota friends in wishing them happiness and prosperity in their new home as they were both well known and esteemed, especially in Lakefield and Hall's Glen, where the bride's home was.

ST. LUKE'S TEA AND SOCIAL.

A Very Pleasant Social Evening Spent in the Foresters' Hall.

By the kindness and courtesy of the Canadian Order of Foresters in Peterborough, who, of their own invitation, offered to the Young Women's Chapter of the Guild, the use of their commodious rooms on Simcoe street, St. Luke's young people and their friends were enabled to enjoy a very pleasant social evening last night. Tea was served from six o'clock till half-past seven, and was followed by a short programme of music and recitations, as follows:

THE SAME MAN.

He Also Gets Into Mr. Thos. Rehill's House and is Ejected.

The same individual who tried to effect an entrance into the residences of Messrs. R. S. Davidson, D. Lundy, Frank Matthews and D. Ullyott on Friday evening last, also called upon Mr. Thos Rehill, George street, asking for a room for the night.

Not liking his appearance, Mr. Rehill bid him begone and paid no further attention to the matter. This occurred at about ten o'clock. At eleven the man returned and got up stairs without being noticed. He entered a bedroom, where a boarder of Mr. Rehill's was asleep, and was about to undress, when the occupant of the bed woke up, and fired the intruder, who is described as being of medium height and wearing a long fawn coloured overcoat and cloth peak cap.

CLARKE ON LINCOLN.

Mr. John R. Clarke Delivers an Interesting Lecture in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church.

There was a small attendance at the Charlotte street Methodist church, last night to hear the lecture given by Mr. John R. Clarke, the popular lecturer, on the life of Abraham Lincoln. Rev. W. R. Young occupied the chair. Mr. Clarke's lecture was brimfull and running over with anecdotes connected with the life of the martyred president of the United States. The speaker faithfully portrayed the noble traits of character which were shown in the life of the great Lincoln. Although the audience was a small one, it was thoroughly appreciative, which was proved by the frequent applause that the lecturer received.

The lecture to-night is on "The By-ways of London."

Getting Into Form.

"It is curious to see how the bicycling craze has already altered the size of ladies' boots," said a George street dealer yesterday while in a reflective mood as he opened a case of ladies' boots. "Year after year doctors have been preaching against the high heels and the compressed toes of the French shoe. They have preached, but they have not been listened to, and all sorts of little limps and shuffles have to have a kind of vogue, and the girls have treated their toes as disrespectfully as though they were their waists. Now comes the bicycle and sets things right. The myth of the very small foot is being exploded. Indeed, it is almost inevitable it should. When you see almost level with your eye a thing you were accustomed to look at far beneath it you get a true idea of the size. A girl's foot on the pedal, now a common wayside object, shows that good looking girls have fairly proportioned feet. There has come a reaction against the Chinese deformity, and there is now a sympathy with nature. You cannot pedal with a foot like the castor of a pianoforte. If you do you risk your life, or what is more thought of, your appearance. And so fashion rushes in where physicians may not tread, but the doctors bear no malice. Since this bicycle craze for women has set in, I have to order ladies' shoes a full size larger on an average."

HOCKEY EXTRAORDINARY.

The Oriental and Huffman Boarders Cross Sticks.

At the close of the hockey season every year a number of challenges are inserted in the papers from the different trade teams; etc., and the contests always draw a large crowd and frequently prove most amusing, though in late years the game has been so thoroughly entered into by everyone who skates that not infrequently these scratch games are the scenes of quite scientific work.

When the boarders of the Huffman House and Oriental Hotel met last night, a number of most amusing incidents occurred, but there was also some good fast hockey witnessed.

Macgachen, for the Oriental, made some great rushes during the evening and put up a remarkably good game. Just how Peter Corkery managed to stop the shots on goal was a wonder, but stop them he did, as though to the manor born. Lewis played a strong game at cover point for the Huffman team, and Kerr and Innes being old stagers at the game, engineered a most intricate combination very successfully.

The referee gave the match to the Huffman House by six goals to five, but the Oriental men are hot over the decision, and claim that each team scored six points. Be this as it may the return match is looked forward to with interest.

The opposing sevens were composed as follows:

Oriental.		Huffman.
F D McKay	goal	P Corkery
W L Green	point	H Cluxton
E Ross	cover point	G Lewis
J McCaig	forwards	F D Kerr
A F McNee	forwards	W A Buchanan
H Macgachen	forwards	Chas Neill
T McDonough	forwards	W L Innes

Referee—Mr W J Montgomery.

Hon. Darkness did some most effective work on the defence but the hardware men watched him close and are on to his game now.

A protest was entered against My Keg's whiskers, but as the Oriental's also protested the barrister's hirsute adornment, matters were even.

McNee plyed with that careless abandon which characterizes him.

Cluxton wonders what he ever did to Macgachen.

Monty was gotten up in knickers for the occasion, "quite regardless."

Neil made his appearance in a natty golf suit, but it wasn't long before he had his coat and hat off and was mixed up in the melee.

"The Quill" covered himself with glory and scars in the defence of his flags.

Little Billee played the game for all it was worth, but Macgachen was too heavy for him to hold down.

Billy Allen had lots of friends along the side, who endeavoured to egg him on into touching the barrister up, but Billy knew what he was there for and paid strict attention to business.

Tom McDonough made his initial attempt at hockey.

In justice to the Oriental boarders it should be known that their four best players were barred from playing.

BATTALION NOTES.

The Peterborough Rangers Head the District Corps.

Appended will be found annual returns on the comparative efficiency of the Belleville and Peterborough corps of the Third Military District. The Belleville corps (15th Battalion) takes a higher standing than that of Kingston, but, as will be seen, Peterborough eclipses both:

LINES

DEDICATED TO A PETERBOROUGH MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL HOME READING COUNCIL.

Dear me! I'm really quite disturbed 'tis such a horrid bore,
I have to write an essay on the times of Thomas Moore.
They say, you know, that once before (but that's an awful libel)
I tried to prove that Cromwell was the author of the Bible;
That Luther sailed across the seas and landed at New York;
That Wyclyf to Chicago came and made his pile in pork;
Colleny was a Yankee bold, who fought the British troops,
And Washington, an Indian, all feathers, paint and whoops.
Columbus, too, I clearly proved, invented ivory soap.
And it happened in a year Savasarola ran for Pope.
I showed that Russian Peter bold, in boyhood used to play
At building little tin toy ships with Francois Xavier.
In short, my essays gained for me much credit and renown,—
They're a liberal education, too, for Peterborough town.

SIGMA.

EXCURSIONS AND BUSINESS INTERESTS.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I notice that both the hockey and the curling clubs have announced excursions to Toronto. Now, I wish to point out that these excursions are hostile to the interests of local trade. Through the medium of similar excursions thousands of dollars have been spent in Toronto that would otherwise have been placed with our local merchants.

This is the time of year when trade is dullest and money is scarcest, and it is unfair to local business men to have temptations in the way of low rates presented to the people to visit the city where they leave hundreds of dollars that, in a business sense, belong to Peterborough.

The object of the excursions is, I take it, to make money for the respective clubs, and as they are not charitable organizations, I fail to see what claim they have upon the patronage of the public. If the proceeds were to be devoted to some or one of our local charities there would be less objection. I do not find so much fault with summer excursions to the city, because at that season an outing is necessary, but these winter excursions, run solely as money making affairs, withdraw large sums of ready cash from the town which had better be used in paying overdue accounts.

I have no feeling against either of the clubs that propose holding excursions. They are comprised of my fellow-citizens, and I wish them every success in the special objects for which they exist. But I decidedly protest against the course they are taking to withdraw large sums of ready cash from local circulation. If the clubs want to have a match in the city it would pay the business men better pay their fares than to have them run excursions with the results I have pointed out.

In conclusion, I would ask what the Board of Trade is doing? The Board presumably exists for the purpose of protecting the interests of business men. Now is the time to act. Thanking you, etc.,

Yours very truly,

A MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF TRADE.

THE RIGHTS OF MAN.

The "Equality of men and "Fraternity," the subjects of the first and second chapters of Prof. MacCunn's book, were expressions which either originated or (for there is nothing new under the sun) were brought into prominence about the time of the French Revolution. When we observe that the same thing is true of "The Rights of Man," we shall realize how great a period the last quarter of the 18th century was. It was the birth-time of what we call modern thought. And yet it has been followed by a century of criticism wherein these very ideas of equality and fraternity, and liberty and rights of man have been torn to pieces and most of them have been shown to be utterly false in the form in which the enthusiasts of the French Revolution propounded them.

Thomas Paine, the famous author of "The Age of Reason," who would accept no religious doctrines that would not be plainly demonstrated to the reason, yet "accepted the rights of man," with an implicit faith which would have done credit to the orthodox believers, in whose eyes, one suspects, he was not averse to play the infidel. The French Assembly declared man's natural rights to be, life, liberty, pursuit of happiness, property, security, and proceeded to illustrate their faith by guillotining everybody who did not agree with them. "In the groves of their Academy," said Burke, "at the end of every vista, you see nothing but the gallows."

The doctrine of "The Natural Rights of Man" was subjected to a severe criticism by Bentham. Legal rights, says he, we know and can understand, but is there any intelligible sense in which we can be said to be endowed with rights by nature? "I have a right to be happy" says one. "Not so," is the reply. "You have a desire to be happy. The assassin pursues his happiness, or what he esteems to be such, by committing an assassination. He has a right to do so!" Certain of our desires are recognized by society, and being legally acknowledged become rights. "Rights," concludes Bentham, "properly so called are the creatures of law."

Bentham's conclusion is in turn criticised by Mr. MacCunn, who, however, agrees with him that "the Right of Man" are not self-evident, not to be laid down as Paine and the French Revolutionists laid them down as self-evident dogmas, against which it was heresy to argue. On the other hand Mr. MacCunn asserts that Law does not create rights, but only recognizes them. "Real laws do not give birth to real rights. They inscribe them on the statute book; they provide machinery for their enforcement; but they do not create them.

In regard to this subject, as is the case with all practical affairs of human life, we are guided by probabilities, and we are limited by circumstances. "Has man a natural right to a vote?" Surely that is a question dependent upon circumstances, and not to be answered one way or another. We can address strong arguments in favour of the proposition that every man ought to have the chance of so educating himself, that he shall be qualified to take an intelligent part in the government of his country, but few would agree that under all circumstances every man has an indefeasible right to vote.

There are some things that will never be regarded as rights. There are others about which their is doubt, doubt which can only be removed by free discussion. There are other things about which we entertain no hesitation. "As we think of security of person, of property, of contract, of reputation; or of the inviolability of family life, or of freedom of speech and freedom of worship; we need not long cast about to find reasons why these, and such as these, may be placed in the category of things that ought to be enforced.

Although, therefore, Bentham was right in demanding that those who shouted for the "Rights of Man" should demonstrate the grounds upon which they built their various claims, he was not correct in asserting that man has no natural but only legal rights. "We must not," says Mr. MacCunn, "fail to recognize that in its best exponents, it sprang from a right noble root. Its theoretical insufficiency, its historic groundlessness, its dogmatic enunciation, its rash enactment, its sanguinary results, all put together, must not hide the fact that there was bound up with it what is at once beginning and end of all true Democracy—the conviction of the worth and dignity of the individual man." Few people now read Tom Paine, but there is conclusive evidence that his writings influenced Burns and, in a familiar poem, have influenced succeeding generations. "The patriots of France," said Paine, "have discovered that rank and dignity in society must take a new ground. . . It must take the substantial ground of character, instead of the chimerical ground of titles." "The artificial noble shrinks into a dwarf before the noble of nature."

So Burns says:

A prince can mak' a belted knight,
A marquis, duke and a' that;
But an honest man's aboon his might
Guid faith, he mauna fa' that!

For a' that and a' that,
Their dignities, and a' that,
The pith o' sense, and pride o' worth,
Are higher rank than a' that.

Once more Paine's prose: "For what we can foresee, all Europe may form one great republic, and man be free of the whole." What is this but a further version of:

For a' that, and a' that,
It's coming yet, for a' that,
That man to man, the world o'er
Shall brithers be for a' that.

PERFECT DIAMONDS.

The Only Reliable in the World.

Do you make rag carpets, rugs and mats at home? If so you surely do home dyeing.

It is needless to say that success in your work depends upon the colours you give your cotton and wool rags. When you have a handsome design, rich, bright and brilliant colours give life and beauty to the work of your hands.

Let it be remembered that the best carpet, rug and mat makers in Canada always use the celebrated Diamond Dyes, and as a consequence achieve the success they desire.

The "Diamond" are the only dyes in the world that give perfect colours and satisfactory results. Ask your dealer for the "Diamond" and see that you get them; refuse imitations and adulterated dyes.

PURE GOLD

BAKING POWDER

PURE AS PURE GOLD

The other day a New Yorker started across Broadway. He was in the heyday of ambitious, vigorous youth. A puff of wind blew an insignificant, almost invisible atom of dust in one of his eyes. It blinded him. He clasped his hands over his eyes and staggered on, only to be run down and killed by a cable car. That man's death was due to an insignificant trifle, an atom of dust that was barely visible under the microscope. It is thus with health. Men find that they are suffering from a trifling disorder of the digestion. It doesn't amount to anything, they think, and time is precious. They don't stop to correct it, but stagger blindly on and are run down in the heyday of ambitious youth by death.

Neglected indigestion is the first cause of all manner of wasting diseases and all forms of nervous disorders. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all disorders of the digestion. It invigorates the liver, imparts a keen, hearty appetite and causes the life-giving elements of the food to be perfectly assimilated. It purifies the blood and builds healthy tissue. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, and nerve tonic. It cures consumption, wasting diseases and all disorders of the nerves.

"I was a sufferer five or six years from indigestion," writes B. F. Holmes, of Gaffney, Spartanburg Co., S. C., "also from sore stomach and constant headache. I then used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets,' which in a few days gave me permanent relief."

"The People's Common Sense Adviser" explains symptoms of ailments common to every family, and suggests remedies. It has several chapters on woman's diseases and weaknesses. An edition in heavy paper covers will be distributed absolutely free. Send the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of customs and mailing only. Cloth binding, 50 stamps.

MAKE-BELIEVE ELEGANCE.

Marble That Is Not Marble and Carved Wood That Is Not Wood.

People who live in large cities where the struggle for existence whets the inventive genius and stimulates competition, often learn the truth of the old saw: "Things are seldom what they seem," says The New York Tribune. Shams and imitations of all kinds are placed on the market, and the imitations range in all branches and lines of business, from skim-milk which masquerades as cream, to the piece of glass which has to do service as a "real diamond." These frauds are transparent to a great part of the population, and the sham jewelry, sham fur and the humbugs generally are palmed off on that class of the population which would rather have an imitation than nothing, or upon the rural visitor who lives in blissful ignorance of many tricks of the various trades. But some of the great metropolitan buildings which have been erected recently have within their walls shams in the way of decorations which are so well made, so artistically constructed that they are looked upon as genuine by men to whom the average sham is an open book. In a building which was recently erected in the residence part of the city there are groups and columns which look to the casual observer like shafts of highly-colored marble, seamed and veined so intricately and colored so harmoniously that a person with appreciation for the beautiful could not help noticing them and praising their beauty.

"But they are not marble," said one who knew all about the builder's shams. "They are not even stone. The highly-polished columns are made of iron and decorated to imitate marble."

"But the surface feels like stone and not at all like metal."

"It is not metal, nor is it stone," was the expert's reply. "Over the surface of the iron column there is a coating, the chief ingredient of which is powdered marble. This coating is several inches thick, and becomes a solid, homogeneous mass, susceptible to the highest polish; and when it has been rubbed down and painted its general appearance will deceive most people."

In the same building there are cornices and panels which seem to the casual observer masterpieces of the carver's art, but the garlands and groups of fruits and flowers which appear to be stone and ivory and polished wood are only plaster or prepared paper pulp coated with colors which aid in the work of deception. Ceilings which represent great areas of carving and chiseled stone are only plaster, and the fluted columns surmounted by highly ornate capitals which stand near the great make-believe monoliths may be unmasked with the prick of a pin and shown to be plain, ordinary wood, disguised and masquerading under colors and tints artistically applied.

LEND YOUR EARS

To Your Back and Listen to its Talk—A Peterborough Man Tries It.

Did you know the back could talk;
Tell you why it aches and pains;
Tell you why it's lame and weak;
Warn you of the kidney's ills;
Tell you of Doan's Kidney Pills?
Listen to them when they speak.
Relieve the kidneys, cure the ache.
Bad back, acute pains and kidney ills,
Are quickly cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Here is proof of it at home. The testimony of Mr. George N. Graham, the genial host of the Oriental Hotel, Peterborough, is as follows:—

He says:—"I have been a great sufferer for some time with pain across the back, extending up between the shoulders, swelling of the limbs, dizziness, loss of appetite, and in fact felt completely broken up.

"I had lost 17 pounds in three months, and thought that I would never get better. I have taken many kinds of patent medicines, and have also been treated by medical men, but did not seem to get any better at all, in fact was constantly growing worse.

"I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertisement and got a box of them at Lynch's drugstore, and by the time I had taken one box noticed a marked change for the better.

"I have taken seven boxes altogether, and am now free from pain; the swelling in the limbs has disappeared, and my appetite is good. In fact, I feel that I am completely cured.

"I can heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to those suffering from any form of kidney trouble. They are the best kidney medicine I have ever used.

Signed, GEO. N. GRAHAM.

GAMBOLING OVER A MAGAZINE.

The Lethargy of the Great Powers as Compared With the Activity of Greece.

New York, Feb. 21.—Mr. Isaac N. Ford cables to The Tribune: European diplomacy ceases to be a harmless game of blind's man's buff when a pistol shot is suddenly fired in the centre of the room. Greece, the spoiled child of Europe, has interrupted the game, and the powers are now aware that they have been gambolling over a powder magazine. The habit of lethargy has become a second nature, and the powers in the Cretan crisis have concentrated their energies upon prolonging the concert of inaction. They have induced the Sultan not to reinforce the Turkish garrisons in Crete, but to leave them at liberty to do his police work; they have raised six flags at Canea, and have landed a small force of marines, crying "Hands off" both to Turks and Greeks. A force of 2000 Greeks under Colonel Vassos has already landed without resistance from the European squadron, and this army cannot be expelled, since it is now reorganizing the civil administration of the island. The powers, having failed to prevent the Greek occupation of Crete, are now attempting to prohibit the despatch of further reinforcements, and are stopping transports and threatening to blockade the Piraeus.

Meanwhile, the Sultan, after mobilizing on paper a fleet which cannot float, is concentrating the Turkish army in Macedonia for a campaign on the mainland, and King George has called out the reserves, is accepting the help of revolutionary volunteers, and is sending every regiment into Thessaly. The powers are acting together, but find it impossible to hunt with the hounds and run with the hare. The Eastern question is apparently passing out of their control. The Greeks are lectured daily in The Times and other Conservative journals for their contumacy, obstinacy and recklessness. They are evidently the jingoes of the near East, who are inspired with generous and chivalrous impulses for a people in distress, and are lacking in reverence for the European concert of inaction, under which Turkey's appalling crimes in Armenia and Asia Minor have been licensed and condoned. They have gone to the rescue of Crete, just as Americans took up the cause of Venezuela, even at the risk of involving the Anglo-Saxon family in war.

Such conduct is not understood by the Conservative censors in England, but is condemned as jingoish, thoughtless and highly reprehensible. It arouses sympathy among Liberals and plain people. Mr. Gladstone and The Chronicle are already warning the Government that the English fleet must not be allowed to fire upon the Greek ships, and that the Sultan is an outlaw, whose battles cannot be fought by English sailors and marines. There is evidence that the Liberal leaders will offer a united opposition to the policy of blockading Crete and coercing Greece, and there are signs of popular agitation more powerful than the ill-directed Armenian movement.

What is apparent is that the Greeks have rescued Crete from the oppressive rule of the Turks, and it is not probable that the English people will consent to have the work of deliverance undone and the island handed back to the Sultan to be governed by methods of assassination. No majority is large enough to render secure the position of the Government which supports so wicked and abominable a policy as that. As for the trend of Continental opinion, it is most difficult to forecast it. France and Italy are friendly to the Greek cause from purely sentimental reasons, but are waiting for Russia to reveal her policy; Germany and Austria are the strongest opponents of Greek ambition, and are the real advocates of the blockade of the Piraeus. Russia remains as inscrutable as the sphinx. Constantinople is her goal, but she may not yet be ready to march.

Canada's Seigniorage Profits.

The profits on our Canadian silver coinage during the past year were $69,484, and the profits on copper coinage $7,123. Altogether, therefore, the country pronted $76,000 from supplying the people with silver and copper currency. It is learned, however, that this ought to be materially increased. The large amount of American silver in circulation has been pointed to as a considerable drain on the seigniorage Canada is entitled to on account of the currency. This matter is being looked into by the Finance Department with a view to a remedy. Quite as important, and, perhaps, more so, is the drain that goes in the direction of Newfoundland. A newspaper corresopndent was informed that one out of every five fifty-cent pieces in circulation is a Newfoundland coin. Anyone can test this for himself by observing the half-dollars that pass through his hands. Last year Newfoundland made fifty thousand dollars out of its coinage. A larg part of the profit arose out of the business of supplying Canada with half dollars. Many of the twenty-cent coins in circulation come from the Straits Settlements. Considering the invasion of American, Newfoundland, and Straits Settlements currency, it will be seen that the matter is of considerable importance.

SPICER WAS A CANADIAN.

The South Dakota Victim Once Lived Near Toronto and Married an Ontario Woman.

Quebec, Feb. 20.—The news of the terrible tragedy which occurred near Winona, North Dakota on the 18th, in which five persons were brutally murdered, created quite a sensation here, as a brother of John and Thomas Spicer has lived here for the last five years. Richard Spicer, a horse shoer and a trooper in the Royal Canadian Artillery, Mounted Division, was seen this evening at the barracks. Spicer said that Rev. Thomas Spicer was born in England, and came over to this country at the age of 3 years, and settled in Ontario, near Toronto. He was taught the trade of blacksmith, his father's trade, and subsequently married Miss Waldron of Egerton, Ont. He then settled in Dundalk, Ont. Five years ago Thomas Spicer went to North Dakota and opened a blacksmith shop near Winona. He then changed his mind and sold the shop to his elder brother, John, who was already established there. He then bought a farm and became a local Methodist preacher. Hence the prefix "Rev." John Spicer, the father of the Winona victim, is a resident at a country place in Ontario, and the address is as follows: "John Spicer, Robb P. O., Ont."

Richard Spicer says that news from his Dakota folks had been rare of late, and that he had an intention of wiring for news, when he read of the terrible tragedy in the papers. He has wired to the Chief of Police of Bismarck, N. D., for more particulars.

No Help From Medical Men—Suffered for Many Years—Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

North Bruce, Feb. 15 (Special)—An old and well known settler in this Township, named Thomas Brooks, who lives on lots 7 and 8 in the 14th concession is rejoicing with his neighbours over his recent recovery, and he said:

"I was cured by using twenty-four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and as nothing else ever helped me I say they saved my life."

"I had tried all the doctors of this locality and was treated for Diabetes, hoping and suffering for years."

"From reading of cures I determined to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I must say that after using the first box I would have considered them reasonable at ten dollars a box."

SHUTTING DOWN

LONG-WINDED CREDIT

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 10th, 1897.

NOTICE—From and after this date, Messrs. H. LeBRUN & CO. have decided to shorten the Term of Credit heretofore given, and, in future, no goods will be sold except for Cash, or on such limited time as may be mutually arranged.

We believe the safest way to do business in these days is to sell for Cash. The next best way is to sell on short dates. Many of our customers who have regularly paid their bills after a reasonable term of credit, would perhaps feel the "Spot Cash" system a hardship, especially while times are so hard and money so scarce. We regard these customers as among the best we have, and are quite satisfied to continue to extend to them the same terms of limited credit they have been accustomed to enjoy.

Our chief complaint is with the "long-winded" customer, who compels us to say that he makes business-life a down-right worry. It makes no difference to us whether a man is worth a million if he won't pay his account. When we need money for our business and are repeatedly put off with "promises to pay" by those who are well able to pay, we have no use for such trade. If every customer treated us in that way we could not carry on business at all. Besides, it is very disagreeable to us to have to "dun" a customer half a dozen times, or spend the profits in postage stamps, and wearing out shoe-leather to boot. We are compelled, therefore, to shut down at once on long credits. Those who can't pay within a reasonable time, we don't want their account in future.

There is a resolution all over the country in favour of Cash or shorter Credits. Cash is a more powerful friend now than ever, and if we must compete with the Cash Stores, who save their discounts, we can't afford to give long credit. Wholesale houses are now offering such big baits in the way of Cash Discounts that we must be prepared to take advantage of them or be handicapped.

All past due Accounts must be settled by the 1st of March; after that date they will be placed in Court for collection. All parties having contra accounts against us are requested to hand them in for settlement at once.

BUILT UP THE SYSTEM IN A WONDERFUL MANNER.

James A. Bell, of Beaverton, Ont., brother of the Rev. John Wesley Bell, B.D., prostrated by nervous headaches

A victim of the trouble for several years.

South American Nervine effected a complete cure.

In their own particular field few men are better known than the Rev. John Wesley Bell, B.D., and his brother Mr. James A. Bell. The former will be recognised by his thousands of friends all over the country as the popular and able missionary superintendent of the Royal Templars of Temperance. Among the 26,000 members of this order in Ontario his counsel is sought on all sorts of occasions. On the public platform he is one of the strong men of the day, battling against the evils of intemperance. Equally well known is Mr. Bell in other provinces of the Dominion, having been for years a member of the Manitoba Methodist Conference and part of this time was stationed in Winnipeg. His brother, Mr. James A. Bell, is a highly respected resident of Beaverton, where his influence, though perhaps more circumscribed than that of his eminent brother, is none the less effective and productive of good. Of recent years, however, the wrecking ability of Mr. James A. Bell has been sadly marred by severe attacks of nervous headache, accompanied by indigestion. Who can do fit work when this trouble takes hold of them and especially when it becomes chronic, as was, seemingly, the case with Mr. Bell? The trouble reached such intensity that last June he was completely prostrated. In this condition a friend recommended South American Nervine. Ready to try anything and everything, though he thought he had covered the list of proprietary medicines, he secured a bottle of this great discovery. A second bottle of the medicine was taken and the work was done. Employing his own language: "Two bottles of South American Nervine immediately relieved my headaches and have built up my system in a wonderful manner." Let us not deprecate the good our clergymen and social reformers are doing in the world, but how ill-fitted they would be for their work were it not the relief that South American Nervine brings to them when physical ills overtake them, and when the system, as a result of hard, earnest and continuous work, breaks down. Nervine treats the system as the wise reformer treats the evils he is battling against. It strikes at the root of the trouble. All disease comes from disorganization of the nerve centers. This is a scientific fact. Nervine at once works on these nerve centers; gives to them health and vigor; and then there courses through the system strong, healthy, life-maintaining blood, and nervous troubles of every variety are things of the past.

AYER'S PILLS

"I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have taken them for many years, and always derived the best results from their use. For stomach and liver troubles, and for the cure of headache caused by these derangements, Ayer's Pills cannot be equaled.

When my friends ask me what is the best remedy for disorders of the stomach, liver, or bowels, my invariable answer is, Ayer's Pills. Taken in season, they will break up a cold, prevent la grippe, check fever, and regulate the digestive organs. They are easy to take, and are, indeed, the best all-round family medicine I have ever known."—Mrs. MAY JOHNSON, 369 Rider Avenue, New York City.

THE GOVERNMENT OF THE DOMINION.

THE CANADIAN CONSTITUTION AND HOW IT WORKS.

The Powers of the Dominion and of the Several Provinces—The Senate and the House of Commons—The Governor-General and His Powers.

The Canadian system of Government is a Federal Union, having a general or central government controlling all matters essential to the general development, the permanency and the unity of the whole Dominion, and a number of local or provincial Governments, having the control and management of certain matters naturally and conveniently falling within their defined jurisdiction, while each Government is administered in accordance with the British system of parliamentary institutions.

Canada is consequently a semi-independent power. The powers vested in the Parliament of Canada are set forth in the Confederation Act, which provides that the Queen, with the advice and consent of the Senate and House of Commons, may make laws for the peace, order and good government of Canada in relation to all matters not coming within the class of subjects assigned by this Act exclusively to the Legislatures of the provinces, and for greater certainty it is declared that the exclusive legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada extends to all matters coming within the following classes of subjects: The public debt and property; the regulation of trade and commerce; the raising of money by any mode or system of taxation; the borrowing of money on public credit; postal service; the census and statistics; militia, military and naval service and defence; the fixing of and providing for the salaries and allowances of civil and other officers of the Government of Canada; beacons, buoys, lighthouses and Sable Island; navigation and shipping; quarantine and the establishment and maintenance of marine hospitals; sea coast and inland fisheries; ferries between a province and any British or foreign country or between two provinces; currency and coinage; banking, incorporation of banks, and the issue of paper money; savings banks; weights anw measures; bills of exchange and promissory notes; interest; legal tender; bankruptcy and insolvency; patents of invention and discovery; copyright; Indians and lands reserved for Indians; naturalization of aliens; marriage and divorce; criminal law, except the constitution of courts of criminal jurisdiction, but including the procedure in criminal matters; the establishment, maintenance and management of penitentiaries.

The Local Legislatures are empowered to make laws with regard to matters coming within the following classes of subjects: The amendment of the constitution of the province, except as regards the office of Lieutenant-Governor; direct taxation within the province in order to raise revenue for provincial purposes; the borrowing of money on the sole credit of the province; the establishment of provincial offices and payment of officers; the management and sale of the public lands belonging to the province and of the timber and wood thereon; the establishment, maintenance and management of public and reformatory prisons in and for the province; also of hospitals, asylums, charities and eleemosynary institutions other than marine hospitals; municipal institutions in the province; shop, saloon, tavern, auctioneer and other licenses, in order to the raising of a revenue for provincial, local or municipal purposes; local works and undertakings, other than railways, lines of steam or other ships, canals or telegraph, or other work or undertaking connecting the province with any other or others of the provinces, or extending beyond the limits of the provinces; the incorporation of companies with provincial objects; the solemnization of marriage in the province; property and civil rights in the province; the administration of justice in the province, including the constitution, maintenance and organization of the provincial courts, both of civil and criminal jurisdiction, and including procedure in these courts; the imposition of punishment by fine, penalty or imprisonment for enforcing any law of the province made in relation to any matter coming within any of the classes of subjects enumerated in this section; generally all matters of a merely local or private nature in the province.

There are certain rights which the Dominion and Local Governments may exercise in common, among which are public health, agriculture and immigration, respecting which the general Parliament may make laws for any or all of the provinces, and each Legislature may do the same for the province over which it has jurisdiction, provided that no provincial act is repugnant to any Dominion Act.

Either the English or the French language may be used in the debates in Parliament and in the Legislatures of Quebec, Manitoba and the Northwest Teritories. Either language may be used in pleadings or processes in the courts of Canada and in Quebec and Manitoba.

The seat of Government is fixed at Ottawa until the Queen otherwise directs.

The chief executive government and authority in Canada is vested in the Queen, in whom is also vested the chief command of the militia and of all naval and military forces in Canada. Her Majesty is represented by a Governor-General appointed by the Queen-in-Council, but paid by Canada, whose term of office lasts for five years. The Governor-General's salary is fixed at £10,000 sterling and forms the third charge upon the consolidated revenue of the country. The Governor-General is bound by the terms of his commission, and governs under the advice of a Council or Ministry, known as the Privy Council of Canada, which is responsible to Parliament. As the acting head of the Executive, he summons, prorogues and dissolves Parliament, and assents to or reserves bills in the name of Her Majesty, but in the discharge of these and other Executive duties acts entirely by and with the advice of his Council. Even in matters of imperial interest affecting Canada he consults with his Council and submits their views to the authorities in England. The royal prerogative of mercy in capital cases is administered pursuant to the advice of the Ministry.

As the members of the Council hold office only while they retain the confidence of the House of Commons the majority necessarily sit in that branch, though there is always a certain representation in the Senate. An Administration when defeated on an appeal to the country, usually retires without waiting for the assembling of Parliament.

The Parliament of Canada consists of, 1st, the Queen; 2nd, an Upper House, called the Senate; and 3rd, a Lower House, called the House of Commons. The privileges and immunities of the two Houses are defined by the Parliament of Canada. The sittings are annual, but may be oftener.

Senators are appointed by the Governor-General under the Great Seal upon the recommendation of his Council. They hold office for life, and must be of the full age of 30 years, and have real and personal property worth $4,000 over and above all liabilities.

The Senators from Quebec must reside in the electoral divisions for which they are appointed or have their property qualifications therein; in the case of other provinces, Senators are only required to reside and have their property qualification within the province limits. They must be natural born subjects of Her Majesty or become naturalized. The Speaker of the Senate is appointed by the Governor-in-Council. Fifteen members of the Senate, including the Speaker, constitute a quorum. Questions are decided by a majority of votes, the Speaker always having a vote, and when the voices are equal the decision is deemed to be in the negative.

No Senator can hold a seat in the House of Commons, nor can he sit in any Legislature of the several provinces, excepting in the case of the Legislative Council of Quebec.

Bills can originate in the Senate, excepting money or revenue bills, in which cases the action of the Senate is confined by usage to their rejection, which is justified only by extraordinary circumstances. At present the Senate consists of eighty-one members, twenty four each from Ontario and Quebec, ten each from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, four each from Prince Edward Island and Manitoba, three from British Columbia, and two from the Northwest Territories.

The House of Commons, which is elected for a term of five years, unless sooner dissolved, consists at present of 215 members. This number is fixed under the provisions of the Act of Confederation, and the representation is re-arranged after every decennial census by Act of Parliament, the basis being that Quebec is always to have 65 representatives, and each of the other provinces such a number as will give the same proportion of representatives to its population as the number 65 bears to the population of Quebec, as ascertained by the census. British Columbia, however, is never to have less than six members.

Members of both Houses are paid an indemnity at the rate of $10 a day, if the session is less than thirty days, and a maximum amount of $1600 if more than thirty days, $8 a day being deducted for each day of absence (beyond a certain number of days fixed at each session) if the House is sitting, unless the absence is caused by sickness after he has been in attendance. They also receive a mileage allowance of ten cents a mile going and coming.

The salary of each Speaker is $4000 a year.

When a member of the House of Commons is called to the Government as head of a department, he must at once resign his seat and seek re-election.

Facts About Jupiter

The weight of Jupiter is largely in excess of that of all the other planets and satellites put together, this calculation including the earth, of course. To express the weight of the giant planet in tons, we must use twenty-seven figures, thus: 242,760,000,000,000,000,000,000,000! Its bulk exceeds that of the earth 1300 times.

The full intensity of living is reached only by the perfectly healthy. Sickness discounts the capacity for enjoyment. If his body is all out of order and run-down, he will not be able to enjoy anything, no matter how full of enjoyment it may be for other people. If he is just a little bit out of order, if he "is not sick, but doesn't feel just right," he will only be able to enjoy things in a half-hearted sort of way. The nearer he is to being perfectly well, the nearer will his capacity for enjoyment be perfect. If this condition doesn't exist, something ought to be done. That means nine cases in ten the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It works directly on the digestive organs, and on the blood and through these on every tissue of the body. It makes the appetite good, digestion and nutrition perfect and supplies rich, red blood to all tissues, building up solid, healthful flesh.

ALTERATION AND CHANGE

FAIRWEATHER & CO.

Have decided that the next two weeks will be a hay-day for all bargain lovers, as we are going to push out our Furs at SACRIFICING PRICES to make room for the workmen during the renovation. The workmen are about to start a complete alteration on the interior of our store in the course of 2 weeks. New Ceilings, New Floors, New Front—enlarging of premises, etc, etc. This is but the forerunner of other changes which are to be made in our business arrangements, as we have announced through the press during the past month.

The most important of these changes to the public will be the placing of all our business on a SPOT CASH-NO-MORE-CREDIT-BASIS.

ON AND AFTER MARCH 15th 1897, we will conduct our business on a cash basis exclusively, in order to save the large losses which a credit business necessitates. We find there are expenses incurred from losses through Bad Accounts—by interest in carrying both "Long-Winded" and "Short-Winded" Accounts—by loss of Discounts in not having cash to pay for goods at once—by expenses of extra help required to keep track of and collect Accounts, etc. All these in the aggregate mean a very large expense added to any business. So we have determined to curtail this outlay and give customers the benefit of Cash Buying and Cash Selling on everything.

What we save in expenses our customers save in prices—as formerly those who paid, made up the losses, as above mentioned, incurred by credit. To all our old customers, both cash and credit, we would say that you will find it to your advantage more so now than ever, to see our stock and prices, under this new regime. You will find goods that under a credit system, must cost you $5, can now be sold, under cash, for $4. You will be better suited—we will be better pleased. The benefits of a Cash Business are mutual.

GREECE IS WRATHY.

many was responding to the demands of justice and humanity.

Continuing, Baron Marschall declared it to be imperative that the occupation of the Island of Crete by Greece should be promptly suppressed. The integrity of Turkey, he said, would certainly be upheld by the powers, though some measure of autonomy would be granted to the island.

Autonomy for Crete.

Paris, Feb. 22.—It is stated that the powers have accepted the proposal to grant autonomy to Crete. If this is true, it would naturally at once be followed by the despatch of an ultimatum to Greece. This accounts for the Bourse rumors regarding an ultimatum.

Anarchy Increasing.

Paris, Feb. 22.—A despatch was received at the Ministry of Marine today from Admiral Pottier, commanding the French warships off Canea, Island of Crete, in which he says that anarchy is rapidly increasing in the island, and that the foreign admirals are agreed and have so informed their respective governments that they cannot longer be answerable for the avoidance of conflicts unless they are authorized to prevent from landing provisions and the powers compel Greece to withdraw her troops and warships.

Admiral Pottier says that before the firing of the foreign warships began yesterday the admirals made repeated protests to the insurgents against their attacking the town of Canea. The insurgents paying no heed to the protests, advanced upon the town, whereupon the British, German, Austrian and Russian warships opened fire and continued the bombardment until the Greek flag was lowered.

Criticism in the French Chamber.

Paris, Feb. 22.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day the Government was sharply questioned by the Socialist leaders MM. Jaures and Millerand and others in regard to the situation in Crete, and in the course of the ensuing discussion of various motions the Government's general policy in the East was severely criticized. In reference to Crete MM. Jaures and Millerand, who were supported in their views by a number of other deputies, held that the manifestations in favor of the severance of the island from Turkish rule, which had been made by the French students, were in full accord with the generous and humanitarian sympathies of France, and declared that if Crete should be left to the Sultan for the renewal of massacres in the island, civilized Europe would be alone guilty of the outpouring of blood.

GREECE IS WRATHY.

An Indignation Meeting Denounced the Powers—People Full of Fight.

Athens, Febr 22.—The indignation caused by the bombardment yesterday of the insurgent position near Canea by the foreign warships has increased, and the action of the powers is denounced on every hand as a gross outrage and a wanton disregard of the rights of Greece.

A very largely attended indignation meeting was held to-day, at which strong protests were made against the interference of the powers. Prime Minister Delyannis addressed the meeting. He declared that the Cabinet was in perfect accord with the nation. The Government knew its duty fully, and would perform it in face of every obstacle.

There is no denying the fact that the whole Hellenic people are in a temper which would make war welcome, even against overwhelming odds. They are determined to uphold Greek rights and honor, and will persist in helping the Christians in Crete, notwithstanding the attitude of the powers in supporting the Turks.

It is reported that Col. Smolentz, Minister of War, has resigned.

M. Skouzes, Minister of Foreign Affairs, visited the Foreign Ministers today and protested against the bombardment and the consequent encouragement of the Turks. It is stated that several Christians were killed or wounded by the shells fired by the foreign warships, and that great havoc was done to property.

One hundred Turkish prisoners, including several officers, are in the camp of Col. Vassos, the commander of the Greek army of occupation.

Korakos, a Greek, at the head of 5000 Cretans, has invested the town of Heraklion. He has cut off the water supply, and has summoned the place to surrender, promising protection to those who do so.

Eight hundred Turkish troops will leave for Heraklion and Canea to-morrow. The transports conveying them will be convoyed by British and Italian cruisers to prevent interference with them by the Greek warships.

Greece Will Declare War.

London, Feb. 23.—The Athens correspondent of The Chronicle telegraphs that Greece will instantly declare war if the Turkish troops give provocation. He adds that it would be impossible to exaggerate the intensity of national feeling. Greece cannot and will not draw back. If she did there would be neither a Crown nor a Government in 24 hours. The correspondent admits that the Opposition in the Greek Parliament is partly answerable for the warlike demonstrations.

The Daily Mail has a despatch from Athens, stating that the German legation there is guarded by marines.

A despatch to The Times from Heraklion states that the Mohammedans in the vicinity of Hierapetra were given a safe conduct to the latter place on condition that the Moslems in town would allow the Christians to depart unmolested. The Moslems have broken faith and are detaining 150 Christians as hostages. The bishop has urged an appeal to the consuls of Heraklion to procure the liberation of the detained Christians. The despatch adds that the Mohammedans are pillaging the shops of the Christians.

The correspondent revives the story of the massacre of Mohammedans at Sitia, despite the denials given to it. Peasants who have arrived at Heraklion declare that 1147 were killed through treachery.

Fifteen Christians Wounded.

Canea, Feb. 22.—It was learned tonight that 15 Christians were slightly wounded during the bombardment yesterday. Three nuns in a convent adjacent to the insurgents' position were injured. The Greek warship Hydra landed surgeons and obtained permission to embark the wounded. It is stated to-day that the forts fired on the insurgents concurrently with the foreign warships.

A Little Fight.

Vienna, Feb. 22.—A despatch received here from Salonica states that an indecisive encounter between Turkish reserves and Greek troops has taken place at Naschlidza, on the Greek frontier. About 180 men were engaged on each side.

Experience proves the merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It cures all forms of blood diseases, tones the stomach, builds up the nerves.

HARVEY.

Council Meeting.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The Harvey council met at the clerk's office on Monday, Feb. 15th. Members all present. Minutes of 11th January read and confirmed. A petition was presented requesting the council to form a new school section at Deer Bay—to include con. one, two and three, of the township of Harvey. The clerk was instructed to notify the trustees of school section No. 4 and the Inspector, Mr. Brown. The council gave an order upon Davis & Son for one barrel of flour for Geo. Newton; account C. E. Stewart, for printing placards re diphtheria, etc.

A bylaw was passed appointing pathmasters, poundkeepers, fence viewers and deputy-returning officers for the current year.

On motion Jas. A. Purdy was appointed health officer and Henry Seymour pathmaster instead of Jas. Ingram.

On motion the collector was instructed to collect all the taxes and return the roll by March 15th, 1897.

The clerk was instructed to publish a notice in the Independent, forbidding any person or persons to haul or dump the carcases of dead horses or other cattle of any kind on the lakes, streams, marshes or on vacant land within the township of Harvey, and that any person so doing shall be prosecuted according to law.

On motion the clerk was instructed to notify Mr. Pearse, County Treasurer, to remove from his books all arrears of taxes against lot 18 con. 5, also lot 10, con. 6, if any.

On motion the council adjourned to meet at the school house at Buckhorn on Saturday, 27th March next.

The entering wedge of a fatal complaint is often a slight cold, which a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. Therefore, it is advisable to have this prompt and sure remedy always at hand to meet an emergency.

THE LATEST.

Don't You be Frightened if You See This Coming.

When the snow disappears and the raw winds of early spring time are blowing, the male bicyclist, skimming over some country road, need not flee affrighted, if he heeds this forewarning, at seeing aproach upon her wheel some fair creature wearing a mask of cloth or velvet that fits closely to her face. It is no highwaywoman bent on robbery, who has sought an effectual means of escaping detection or identification by covering her countenance. It is for no such reason as this that the woman cyclist of 1897 will hide behind a mask. It will be because she wishes to preserve her complexion against freckle and sunburn, and for the more potent reason that Dame Fashion, from her throne in Paris, has decreed the wearing of a mask for the purpose.

This is the revolution that is being got ready to burst upon the cycling world of women. No longer will the great question of knickerbockers against skirts, which once convulsed all the fair riders and made enemies of bosom friends, be discussed with bitter acrimony on both sides. In London and Paris this has been laid to rest, perhaps permanently, and the one question that is everywhere discussed concerns the face of the rider, and whether to mask or no.

As every woman knows, the raw airs of these latitudes make the skin rough and chapped, and if there is any hidden freckle or defect in the complexion a March wind will bring it out in hideous prominence. This has especially struck those women on the Continent, where they have more need to study such things than in this country. Most women, unless they have complexions that are quite unimpeachable, have found that even the balmiest of days, from a complexion point of view, no wind, a half-hid sun, etc., are quite deceptive when they mount their wheels and take a ten-mile spin, for, in addition to the healthy color that comes into their cheeks, there also comes roughness and coarseness to the skin that brings distress to the feminine heart. The faster one rides the more the wind roughens the face. Veils have been tried, but even the thickest are of little use.

But the mask will obviate all this, and that is why the women riders of the Continent have begun to go back to the times of the Valois and Henry IV. for their remedy, and are adopting the lesser of two evils—hiding their faces instead of ruining their complexions.

It is interesting to note that Liane de Pougy, the Paris beauty, wears a mask when she goes cycling, and that it was she who was the first to put one on. Following her lead, all the fair Parisiennes who wish to be thought of as fully up to date are wearing veils.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry cures Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Colic, Cramps, Cholera, Cholera Infantum, Cholera Morbus and all summer complaints and fluxes of the bowels in children or adults.

TALK ON THE BUDGET

Opposition Orators Air Their Eloquence.

THEY SING THE OLD, OLD SONG

Some Pointed Replies From the Government Side of the House—The Education Department a Special Point of Attack—Several Bills Read a First Time.

Toronto, Feb. 24

Dr. Ryerson resumed the debate on the budget at the Legislature yesterday. Answering the charge against the Opposition that they had been out in the cold for so many years, he said they would not stoop to go into power on promises they could not keep, as the late Opposition at Ottawa had done. Proceeding, he cited a preposterously large number of different offices created by the Government for patronage purposes. In all, about 2000 people were occupied in driving the people to the polls to vote aright. He quoted to show that the Province of Quebec was managed more economically under the Conservative regime than under the Liberals. The Ontario Government had no debt, because they had succeeded on municipalities obligations they should have met themselves. The municipalities were almost entirely free from debt in Quebec, while in Ontario they owed about $40,000,000. The succession duties were higher than those charged in any of the States. He thought that a man leaving the legacy should have some say as to how the tax should be spent, and if he left large sums to charity that should be enough.

Mr. McLean of East Huron replied for the Government. The previous speaker's arguments were not substantiated. It was a slander on the people of the Province to say they could be driven to the polls to vote at the dictation of any official. The hon. member had named over a lot of officials, but had not stated how they could be done without. The increased expenditures had not at least been caused by mismanagement or corruption. The obligations of the Province had decreased by nearly $100,000 during the year. The Opposition had wobbled on the Separate school policy. No one knew how they stood now. Regarding the Government aid to higher education, he thought that, were it not granted, only the rich could acquire a university education. The only examinations required for a pupil to pass from the Public schools to the university were two, the entrance to the High school and the matriculation. The charge of too many examinations was therefore groundless. Mr. McLean sat down at the end of his three-quarter-hour speech amid Government applause.

Mr. Meacham of Lennox followed. The hon. Treasurer had a reason for asking for suggestions, but not wishing for criticism. The sainted leader had gone, and none but the wicked partners were left. Mr. Stratton he considered to be, in baseball phraseology, "on deck," and therefore deserved attention. He had said the Government had not misspent a cent. When Mr. Stratton was at home he was said to be somewhat of an independent.

At the evening session Dr. Meacham continued an arraignment of the Education Department. He condemned the continual demand for expensive school books. At least young scholars should have cheap primers, in order that the people of the Province might save thousands annually. The speaker condemned the present system of granting

Mr. Harcourt: Would the hon. member give the names?

Mr. Meacham thought the Government should themselves investigate the matter.

Mr. J. T. Middleton continued the bearing of the Government standard. He devoted the greater part of his time to a refutation of the arguments of the previous speaker.

Mr. T. Magwood, North Perth, reminded the hon. gentlemen opposite that it was only a few years ago they were boasting of a surplus of $6,000,000 in hard cash; under their management this surplus was rapidly dwindling down. They had boasted of all they had done for agriculture. As a practical agriculturist, he did not hesitate to declare that their chief work had been to fill up the agricultural farm with so many party heelers that if any more were appointed they would have to buy another 100 acres of land, as the farm would not hold them. When a superintendent was wanted the Government had ignored the graduates of the College and had come to Toronto for a man. The whole agricultural policy of the Government was one of boasting and no work. Their educational policy also was one of discrimination against the rural in favor of the city schools.

Mr. John Craig moved the adjournment of the debate, and the House adjourned.

FIRST READINGS.

Mr. Ryerson—The City of Toronto Bill, which gives municipalities power to pass bylaws for authorizing the Park Commissioner to plant and remove trees, and to trim trees overhanging the streets; for holding Municipal and school elections on New Year's Day. All persons in cities of 100,000 inhabitants and over, who are of the full age of 21 years, subjects of Her Majesty, and whose names are on the last revised assessment roll of the municipality, shall have the right to vote at municipal elections. The bill reduces the real property qualification from $400 to $200; provides for the procedure on taking votes on questions submitted to the electorate by council; transfers the licensing powers from the council to the police commissioners; gives the council of any city power to include in its estimates for 1897 a sum to be expended in celebrating the sixtieth anniversary of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen—in the City of Toronto this sum is fixed at $5000; amends the Board of Control provisions that were passed last year, by providing that the board shall consist of the mayor and four aldermen, three of whom shall form a quorum, and the four aldermen are to be elected by the council at its first meeting for the year. It takes away the double vote of the mayor, by striking out the words giving him a second or casting vote, in the event of a tie.

Mr. Smith—Respecting roads laid out along side-lines in certain townships.

Mr. Chapple—To amend the Marriage Act, 1896; to do away with the necessity of both persons making the affidavit on application for a license.

Mr. Chapple—To amend the Municipal Act, repealing the provisions of section 293, which require the annual publication of a detailed statement of the receipts and expenditures in towns, townships and incorporated villages.

Mr. Dryden—To amend the Municipal Act, amending the sections requiring the return to be made by municipal treasurers, auditors and clerks to the Bureau of Statistics.

Mr. Dryden—To amend the Agriculture and Arts Act, enabling firms or incorporated companies to become members of agricultural societies. It also substitutes butter and cheese association for the dairymen's and creamery associations, and makes some changes in the boundaries of the agricultural districts of North Perth and West Wellington.

CECIL RHODES AGAIN.

The Ex-Premier Says Oom Paul Did Not Keep His Promises to the Uitlanders.

London, Feb. 23.—The examination of Cecil Rhodes by the Parliamentary Committee appointed to inquire into the Transvaal raid was resumed in Westminster Hall to-day. The Prince of Wales was again present, and Dr. Jameson, the leader of the raiders, made his appearance at the inquiry for the first time.

The examination of Mr. Rhodes occupied the entire sitting of the committee. The hall was not so well filled with spectators as at the former sittings, interest in the inquiry being apparently on the wane. Several times during the examination Mr. Rhodes attempted to justify the raid by calling attention to the fact that England is now in full sympathy with the Cubans in seeking to obtain their civil rights, whereas it was Britons who sought their civil rights in the Transvaal. He also reiterated the declaration he made on the first day of his examination that the people of Johannesburg would never cease their agitation until they had secured their popular rights.

Mr. Rhodes further declared that President Kruger, prior to the revolutionary measures of the Johannesburgers, had promised to grant their demands, but had failed to keep his promise.

In reply to a question by Hon. Edward Blake, Mr. Rhodes said he had been told that he had let Johannesburg in for the Transvaal trouble, but after examining the letters and telegrams he arrived at the conclusion that it was rather Johannesburg that let him in.

Referring to the conversation between himself and "Boddy White," Mr. Rhodes said: We were discussing the Egyptian question. I said: "If Great Britain decided to remain I should stop any foreign power from coming between Khartoum and Uganda." White replied: "We had no instructions." I answered: "Of course not, but it is not the Government's policy that you should lie on your backs and eat three meals a day. You ought to ascend the Nile and make it impossible for the French to cross." I did not know White would apply my remark to something else. It shows how careful you ought to be in what you say."

Mr. Rhodes, in answer to further questions, said that his determination to proceed to extreme measures was reached in conjunction with the leaders at Johannesburg. Owing to the hopelessness of obtaining redress for the existing grievances it was intended to change the Government.

Answering a question regarding the Matabele war, the witness said: "It is fortunate for you that you have'nt had to pay for it."

The committee adjourned until Friday.

NO FORMAL CONFERENCE,

But Matters of Interest May be Discussed With the Colonial Premiers.

London, Feb. 23.—In the House of Commons to-day Dr. James F. Hogan, anti-Parnellite member for Mid-Tipperary, asked if it was the intention of the Government to hold an Imperial conference while the Colonial Premiers were visiting London upon the occasion of the Queen's jubilee in June.

Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, answered that it was not intended to hold any Imperial conference, but if the colonial premiers came to London in accordance with their acceptation of the invitation, which had been extended to them, the Government would discuss any matters of common interest which the colonial visitors might bring up.

CLEVELAND'S CLEMENCY.

The President Has Caused a Violent Commotion Among New Mexicans.

Santa Fe, N.M., Feb. 23.—President Cleveland's action in granting a reprieve to four members of the Button gang, sentenced to be hanged here to-day, creates a furore. The territorial officials, members of the court, and most of the attorneys agree that as the crime for which these men are doomed to die is not one which can be classed as "offences against the United States," the President has absolutely no authority in the premises.

Local Option in Pickering.

Whitby, Ont., Feb. 23.—The scrutiny of the vote for the repeal of local option in Pickering township was continued to-day before Judge Dartnell, when 15 more votes were struck off, leaving a margin of five yet to play.

THE MANUFACTURERS

Put in a Day With the Tariff Commissioners.

BICYCLE AND REAPER MAKERS,

Shovel Men and Others Argue for Protection to be Maintained and in Some Lines Ask for a Higher Tariff—The Late Government Blamed for Their Doctoring.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—(Special.)—Messrs. Fielding, Paterson and Dobell sat as a committee of the Cabinet to-day to take further evidence regarding the tariff and they were kept going pretty steadily from 11 o'clock till after 5. Representatives of the electrical interests were first heard, consisting of Messrs. Robert Jaffray, Hugh Ryan and G. W. Waters of Toronto, members of the Canadian General Electric Company of Toronto and Peterboro. These gentlemen pointed out that the present tariff did not afford any protection to this industry, because it paid on an average a higher duty upon what constituted raw material than upon imported finished articles. The deputation are not seeking increased duty or protection. They simply wanted the present anamolies done away with. They claimed that the imported article paid duty running from 25 to 35 per cent., while on the raw material, which was necessary to enable them to run the business in Canada, including steam castings, copper, charcoal, sheet iron, fine line, varnishes, press board parchment papers, silver tubing, silver wire, etc., the duty ran from 72 to 75 per cent. Mr. Ryan said that the Peterboro works were the largest of the kind under the British flag.

Next came the shovel manufacturers, the deputation including Messrs. C. Jones, Gananoque; B. Willett of Chambly, and G. W. Edey of Montreal. The deputation claimed that in almost everything they use the duty was from 25 to 40 per cent. higher in Canada than in the States. They asked amongst other things a reduction in duty on crude oil for fuel. There was no combine in the shovel trade, but the deputation admitted the Association of Shovel Manufacturers had paid American firms to keep out of the Canadian market.

Messrs. R. Reford, R. B. Ross and D. W. Ross were then heard in private in regard to the duty on paddy rice, these gentlemen being interested in the Montreal rice mills. They do not want any reduction.

Agricultural implement manufacturers came next, being introduced by Mr. Frost, M.P. The deputation included Messrs. W. Massey and L. M. Jones of the Massey Harris Company, Mr. Noxon of Ingersoll, Mr. Hamilton of Peterboro, Mr. Sylvester of Lindsay, Mr. Cossett of Brockville, and Mr. Folkes of the Wilkinson Plow Works, Toronto. Mr. Frost claimed that gross injustice had been done the agricultural implement man, first, three years ago, by reducing the duty from 35 to 20 per cent, without a corresponding reduction in the duties of the raw material. Farm implements were being supplied as cheaply to farmers of Canada as to the United States. After the reduction of the duty, however, the Americans were able to bring in their manufactured products and, as the Canadian manufacturers had to pay a duty of from 50 to 60 per cent. on the raw materials, it made it almost impossible to continue the manufacture of farm implements in Canada at a profit. Briefly stated, that was the grievance. This industry, in point of size, was fourth in importance in the Dominion. The capital invested amounted to $8,500,000, and wages paid to $1,812,050 annually; the number of men employed between 5000 and 6000, the annual output was valued at $8,000,000. There was no combine, there being 211 manufacturing establishments in Canada. The trade was natural to the country and there had never been any demand for protection. The duty derived from imported farm implements amounted to $60,000 a year, and this, divided amongst the 600,000 farmers, only meant 10c a head.

Mr. Noxon then took up the parable, pointing out the different classes of articles entering into the construction of farm implements referring to bar iron, pig iron, nuts, bolts, tin, and other things. He said on all of these the duty was much higher than on the finished products. His own firm purchased coal at 50c a ton in Buffalo, paid 60c duty upon it, freight $1.20 per ton from the mine to the Suspension Bridge, and 90c per ton from the Bridge to Ingersoll. A ten-inch wrench was a portion of the completed machine and when imported from the American manufacturer only 20 per cent. duty was paid on the whole, but if the Canadian manufacturer imported these wrenches separately to add to his machines, he would have to pay a duty of 35 per cent. Another thing which militated against the successful competition of the American manufacturer was the question of freights, the charge being as great for shipping agricultural implements from Ingersoll to Napanee, as from Chicago to Napanee. The implements of Canada were classed as double first-class, and in the United States simply as first-class.

Mr. Fielding: Of the articles you have mentioned do you use the imported goods?

Mr. Noxon: Yes, chiefly imported from the United States.

Mr. Fielding: Why don't you buy them in England?

Mr. Noxon: The prices are somewhat lower in the United States. Besides I was in England last year and found they were so busy there that I could not get my orders filled.

Mr. Fielding: Why don't you use the Canadian manufactured article? I understand many of these you have mentioned are produced in Canada.

Mr. Noxon: Because the prices are a

NORWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

February has contributed some fine days to the memorable winter of '97.

Bicycle business is already on the move and local agents are looking forward to large spring sales.

Business generally is a little "off" at present and our merchants, taking advantage of the lull, are stock-taking.

Mr. W. A. F. Campbell, solicitor, was in Toronto last week on business.

Owing to illness of his mother, W. H. Brethen was unable to represent Court "Rob Roy," C. O. F., No. 114, at the meeting of the High Court at Niagara this week. Mr. W. H. Doughty acts as deputy and will present the interests of Rob Roy. Mr. R. J. Stewart also attends in the interest of Court Norwood.

Mr. W. H. Stephenson was in Toronto Wednesday and Thursday of last week attending the convention of A. O. U. W.

Another new book, "The Saracens," story of the nations series, has been placed on the shelves of the Public Library.

Russell C. P. Buck, son of John D. Buck, Asphodel, died on Thursday, February 18th, in his 6th year. The funeral, which was largely attended, took place on Saturday at 2.30 p. m. Service was held at the house, after which the remains were conveyed to the Norwood cemetery for interment. We extend sympathy to the bereaved parents.

Death also claimed, on Tuesday of this week, John E. McMillan, youngest son of Thomas and Bella McMillan, of Asphodel. The funeral services were held on Wednesday and a large number of sympathising friends followed the remains to their last resting place in the R. C. cemetery, Asphodel. Our sympathy is also conveyed to those who so keenly feel their loss in his death.

Owing to disappointment in securing a laundress last week our new enterprise did not commence operations until this week. Mr. Laing regrets the disappointment, but has everything O. K. now.

The total contributions from the Presbyterian congregation as free will offering towards reducing the debt amounts to $140.00.

Mr. and Mrs. Carman Waters are the happy possessors of a brand new son.

C. Blackett Robinson, editor and manager of the Canada Presbyterian was in town on Monday in the interest of the Presbyterian Printing and Publishing Co., Toronto.

Mr. Jas. Cameron returned to town last Monday from an extended business and pleasure trip to Peterborough and vicinity.

Mrs. James Meikle returned on Friday from Toronto, where she has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Smart, who has been ill.

An interesting curling match took place in the rink on Wednesday between Peterborough and Norwood curlers.

Miss Blezard, daughter of Mr. Blezard, M.P.P., was a guest at the Eatons' last week.

Miss Eaton is visiting at Westwood and vicinity this week and will be in Toronto on Friday to attend millinery openings to capture all the latest styles to suit the most fastidious fancy.

Mr. E. P. Caffe will attend the millinery openings in Toronto next week, and will no doubt look up the latest styles in headgear.

Miss Stephenson of Stephenson & Co., is also in Toronto in the interest of the firm, and will attend the openings next week.

Mr. T. Ratal has received the appointment of freight and baggageman at the C. P. R. to succeed the late J. McLachlan.

The receipts of the concert given by the choir of St. Paul's church, Peterborough, in the Presbyterian church here last Wednesday, amounted to $30.

Mr. W. H. Harrison is engaged at present sawing ties for the Rathbun Coy. to be shipped from here. The contract is for ten thousand ties.

Mr. T. Blezard, M. P. P., was in town on Saturday on business.

Quarterly communion services will be held in the Presbyterian church a week from next Sunday.

NORWOOD Y. P. S. C. E.

The Norwood senior Endeavour is still moving on. About fifty young people remained at the close of the regular Sunday evening service to discuss the topic, "Our little worries, and how to get rid of them," led by Rev. J. F. Somerville, who after singing appropriate hymns and Scripture reading and hymns, said he supposed there always would be to the end of time lots of opportunities for worry. After giving several instances of cause for worry, he said one of the greatest lessons taught through worry was patience, and that patience was often won through worries. Go forward, trust in God and meet the obstacles and become strong. Christ never worried or promised to do away with cause for worry, but will give us grace to overcome worries. Hard work was not killing people so much as hard worries. Worrying was a sinful denying of Christ's presence with us. Every life is a plan of God. The speaker recited the story of Joseph, how he might have worried over his ill luck, yet it was all a great plan of God. Trust in His will and grace, and the little worries will banish to a great extent. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

The entering wedge of a fatal complaint is often a slight cold, which a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. Therefore, it is advisable to have this prompt and sure remedy always at hand to meet an emergency.

HARVEY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The monthly temperance meeting was held on Wednesday night in the Nogie's Creek Methodist church. There was a very large attendance, numbers coming from a considerable distance and they were well repaid for their trouble, as the programme was excellent. Those who get up those programmes every month deserve great praise for the trouble they are put too. A collection was taken up to defray the expenses of the society. It was resolved that in future a collection be taken up at every meeting and the money thus collected be used as the members of the society desire.

The family of Louis Parker, who were in quarantine for scarlet fever, are able to be out again, as only the one case was contracted.

Carrie, youngest daughter of Nelson St. Thomas, who had been ill for some time and for whom her friends hoped for her final recovery until the last, quietly passed away about midnight on the 11th. The funeral took place on Sunday, the 14th, to the Roman Catholic cemetery, near Fenelon Falls. The family have the sympathy of all in their sad bereavement.

The council at their last meeting passed a bylaw prohibiting anyone from putting dead animals in the lake or from leaving those in that have been drowned. It is a move in the right direction and we hope that it may be followed by others on the same lines.

Miss C. Hunter, of Bobcaygeon, who was visiting at Harry Brumwell's, has returned home.

Two Years of Bladder Torment—Mad Attacks of Inflammation—Cured by a few Boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Owen Sound, Feb. 22, (Special)—The people of this town are talking again of another cure credited to Dodd's Kidney Pills. This is the case of Mr. W. Cruse, caretaker of town buildings, who, when seen had this to say of the matter:

"For over two years I have been an intense sufferer from kidney disease with occasional acute attacks of inflammation of the bladder.'

"Was under doctors' treatment and have been compelled to resort to instrumental relief many times.

"I have taken eighteen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am satisfied with results being perfectly relieved of all suffering."

THE MANUFACTURERS.

little higher and the quality is not quite as good. I can buy them in the United States and I lay them down in Canada cheaper after paying the duty than I can buy them here.

The sitting was suspended for the lunch hour.

The bicycle manufacturers had their innings at the afternoon session. Their interests were represented by Mr. Elliot of Toronto, who, in an elaborate and carefully-prepared statement, set forth the grievances under which the trade labors. He pointed out, for instance, that the duty on raw materials reduced the 30 per cent. protection upon the finished article in Canada to a net protection of only 20 per cent., and calculated that it would require a protection of 45 per cent. to place the Canadian manufacturer upon a footing of equality with the bicycle manufacturer in the United States. He proved that in the matter of wheels Canada was certainly being made a slaughter market for low grade machines, and it was against this class of wheel that protection was asked. For example, wheels, parts of which were principally the product of Yankee prison labor, were imported into Canada at a valuation of $18 each. Adding the duty these wheels cost the Toronto wholesaler $24 each, and he sold them retail at $60 apiece. This he was enabled to do by changing the name plate, because it was impossible for any but an expert to detect the difference between a high-grade and a low-grade machine.

Another injustice to the Canadian manufacturer of first-class wheels was the facility which the customs afforded to the assembling of machines in this country from parts imported into Canada. He calculated that of 37,000 bicycles sold in Canada last year 20,000 were imported ready-made and about 17,000 imported in parts and put together in this country. This latter process involved but a trifling outlay for labor, so that on the whole not less than $1,400,000 was sent out of the country for work that should be performed here.

Against the high-grade machine the present protection was all right; Canadians could compete with the world in that class. He therefore asked that the duty remain as at present on wheels costing $50 and upwards, but that on low-grade wheels costing under $50 each the duty be $10 each and 10 per cent. ad valorem. Further, that the duty on parts be the same proportionately as upon a finished wheel, and the present duty be in no way reduced.

Mr. Fielding suggested that according to the proposed low-grade schedule the duty upon an $18 American wheel, namely, $13 at present, would be a pretty steep protection.

The agricultural implement manufacturers then took another turn with the commissioners. Mr. Walter Massey, president of the Massey-Harris Company, complained that a great injustice had been done to implement makers by the late Government. There was an excessive duty on the raw material, and the duty on the finished product could certainly not be made less than at present, namely, 20 per cent.

Mr. Fielding: That is, if the duty on raw materials is left as it is.

Mr. Massey: No, but if they are reduced.

Mr. Fielding: If the duty on your raw material is reduced couldn't you do as well with less duty on the finished product?

Mr. Massey: No, sir. We are laboring under peculiarly disadvantageous conditions, which increase as time goes on.

Mr. Fielding remarked that the consensus of opinion among the Manitoba farmers at any rate was quite the other way, although in that perhaps they were a little selfish, just like the rest of humanity.

Mr. Hamilton of Peterboro, who said he had been in the business for 40 years, declared that they were better off under the Mackenzie tariff of 17 1-2 per cent. The late Government just to please the farmers, dropped the protective duty on harvesting machinery from 25 to 20 per cent. For himself he did not wish to be unjust to the iron manufacturers, and he thought the Government ought to be bold and brave enough just to increase the implement makers' protection to 25 per cent.

Mr. Richard Sylvester of Lindsay announced himself as a protectionist, who believed in Canada for the Canadians and in meeting the Americans with reciprocity. He feared Manitoba farmers were largely governed by prejudice in favor of American machines, when they asked a further reduction of the duty. They were now getting the Canadian machine as cheap as the Dakota farmer gets his United States made machine. There was no money in the industry now; in fact, from twenty-five ten years ago, the number of manufacturers of harvesting machinery had been reduced to 6.

Mr. Wallace of Terrebonne spoke in a similar strain on behalf of the industry.

Mr. Foulkes of the Wilkinson Plow Company, Toronto, asked for cheaper crude oil for tempering and complained of cut-throat tactics of American manufacturers.

Mr. Lyman Jones of the Massey-Harris Company had a list of duties paid on raw material, such as cotton duck, nails, malleable iron, chains, etc., to show that they far exceeded the rate of duty on the completed machine. He trusted than any change the Government might make would be introduced with the view to permanency in the tariff, to which all the delegates cried "Hear,hear." In the case of iron manufacturers, he showed that by being protected from step to step there was a net protection of $16 per ton on the quality known as angle steel, a ton of which could be bought in the United States for $20. After alluding to the excessive freight rates, he went on to say that the reason why so many of the agricultural implement makers voted against the late Government was because the latter had singled them out a sacrifice to the farmers. Being large exporters of machines, his firm asked for the retention of the drawback upon raw materials. In five years the Massey-Harris Co. had sent abroad two and a half million dollars' worth of agricultural implements, representing a large amount paid out in wages in this country.

Mr. W. W. Near, representing the Pillow Hersey Company of Montreal, spoke on behalf of the iron manufacturers. He urged a specific duty on certain manufacturers of iron to prevent fraud and protect the revenue. He, too, favored more equitable duties as between raw materials and the finished product. The iron manufacturers estimated their protection at an average of 35 per cent. Their export trade to Australia and the West Indies had been killed off by American competition. He suggested a bonus on exports instead of the present drawback of 99 per cent. of the duty paid on all raw materials entering into the manufacture of the articles exported.

Mr. Lillies of Gananoque complained that manufacturers of carriage hardware had to pay 35 to 40 per cent on their raw material, while the protection on the finished article was only 32 1-2 per cent.

Messrs. J. B. Reid, M.P., G. F. Benson and J. C. Magie appeared as representatives of the Edwardsburg Starch Company. What they desired to discuss was the duty on glucose. The duty of 7 1-2 cents a bushel on corn, it was pointed out, represented a tax of 22 1-2 cents per hundred pounds of glucose and 7 cents a bushel for freight represented another 21 cents. Thus they were paying a tax of 43 1-2 cents for their raw material, which quite wiped out the advantage of the protective duty on glucose. Owing to the comparatively small quantity produced the Canadian manufacturers were making less than one-eighth of a cent per pound profit. They wanted free corn and increased protection on confectioners' glucose.

Sam E. Lichtentein of the Montreal Cotton and Wool Waste Company, a firm which uses all the waste cotton produced in Canada, and supplies about one-fourth of the demand for cotton waste, asked for protection. At present cotton waste comes in free from the United States, where it can be manufactured cheaper than anywhere in the world. The importation last year amounted to $323,000 worth. A duty of one cent a pound would double the company's output and give $20,000 a year to the Government as revenue from duty upon the balance imported. He also asked a duty of three cents per pound on wool waste. On a capital of $90,000 last year his firm only cleared $3000.

Messrs. Belding & Paul of Montreal said they began business as manufacturers of silk thread with a 17 1-2 per cent. tariff, and had not increased prices with increased production. Mr. Wiman then came into competition with them, and the firm went into ribbons, building up a trade of $100,000 a year. They had done well and paid good salaries, but lately the Swiss manufacturers were running them closely. More protection was needed on ribbons, Mr. Paul said. He believed they made the prettiest goods in the world, paid $75,000 yearly in wages and employed $100,000 worth of machinery. Mr. Wiman's establishment was about half as large as theirs. What they wanted was no change in the duty on silk thread, but higher duty on ribbons; also that they be upon the same footing as woolen manufacturers, who were allowed to import spun silk free.

This concluded the business of the sitting and the commission adjourned until to-morrow.

Too Good To Miss!

No Time To Lose!

GOUGH'S Winter Wind-Up.

These are WIND-UP DAYS, and GOUGH BROS' Slashing Cut in Clothing, Cloths, Boots and Shoes, Gentlemen's Furnishings, &c., to Wind-up the Winter Selling Season, is an extraordinary event too important to miss. Never since the days of Adam has good Clothing and Boots and Shoes been sold so cheap as we're selling them now. A colossal stock of Clothing and Boots and Shoes for Men, Women and Children at prices that revoulutionizes the trade, and emphasizes the possibilities of this great emporium for clothing the people.

THE STOCK MUST MELT!

The sudden thaw in prices must dissolve the Bargain Lots on Tables, Counters and Shelves, and the flood of bargains will lend spirit and snap to bargain lovers while they last. Our plan of campaign demands that all Winter Goods must be out of the way for Spring arrivals. Besides we want to do our share in alleviating present distress by helping the farmer, the mechanic, the business man, the women and the youth, and at the same time keeping our tailors and salesmen busy.

New Spring Goods are rushing in upon us faster than we can place them, so we have decided to let the "hide go with the hair" until our two big stores are clear of Winter lines.

More gigantic selling, forced on by tremendous buying, has never been planned, for we dump everything into this Colossal Sale at an average reduction all round of 20 Per Cent. Below Manufacturer's Prices!

These bargains now stare you in the face, and what is worth emphasizing is that in all the lines we show a large variety of patterns and sizes, both in Clothing and Boots and Shoes. It is not our policy to select two or three catch lines. You get the choice of the whole stock. You merely choose what you need—no question about the goodness of the material or workmanship.

Married in Keene.

Yesterday morning the wedding of Mr. David McCarthy, of Otonabee, and Miss Margaret Kennealy, daughter of Mr. Martin Kennealy, also of Otonabee, took place in the Roman Catholic church at Keene. The ceremony was performed by V. Rev. Vicar General Brown, of Douro.

Lost.

A small pocket book bound in superior eel skin and faced with red flannel, containing something less than $14,000 in bills of various denominations, tied up with an order for $5.00 worth of best groceries obtained in town on E. BROWN & Co., 204 George street, Wholesale and Retail Grocers.

A Forester's Funeral.

The funeral of the late J. W. Jenkins took place this afternoon from the family residence, Park street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The members of Court Littlejohn, of which deceased was a member, took charge of the funeral, the following being appointed pall bearers: Bobt. Morrison, W. Hartley, Jas. Burnett, A. Sawers, — Cinnamon, Jos. Mann.

March will soon be here, and as Mr. LeBrun requires all overdue accounts to be settled by the first of the month, there's not much time to lose. Kindly remember and act accordingly. dw

The By-ways of London.

There was a rather small audience assembled in the Charlotte street church last night to listen to the lecture of Mr. John R. Clarke on The By-ways of London. Rev. J. J. Rae occupied the chair, and the subject of the lecture was presented in a very able and interesting manner, though the eloquence of the lecture was to some extent, perhaps, damped by the limited attendance.

A FINE TEAM DROWNED.

Mr. Robert Nurse, of South Monaghan, Loses a Couple of Horses.

Early arrivals at the market this morning from the southern part of the county on both sides of the river were well charged with curiosity, as to the fate of a team of horses and their owner, as the box and rear bob of a sleigh were discovered about one fourth of the way across the river at the edge of a hole in the ice.

The spot where this significant discovery was made was at the place where the new outfall sewer enters the river, just at the turn in the road on the west side, between the residences of Messrs. Coombs and Rightmyer. The river was all open at this point yesterday and no teams have crossed since last Saturday, when a couple of horses got in and were nearly drowned.

During the early part of the night the river became frozen over down to the point where the crossing is made, though it was open again only ten feet below the old road.

When the sleigh was found early this morning its front edge rested on the brink of a yawning hole in the ice about eight feet square. As the surface of the ice would have been broken up to a far greater degree if the team had been gotten out and the sleigh would probably have been removed if the driver had escaped, those who passed the spot were confronted with what seemed irrefutable evidence of an awful catastrophe consisting in the loss of both driver and team.

The report spread over the town like wild fire and a large number of citizens started for the scene. By the time the sleigh was brought to shore, it was ascertained however, that the calamity was not as great as feared, as although the team had been lost their owner was not in the sleigh at the time of the accident.

The turnout belonged to Mr. Robert Nurse, of South Monaghan, who was up in town yesterday bringing his brother, who was ill with diphtheria, to the hospital. On his way home, between ten and eleven o'clock at night, the team got frightened at the C.P.R. station and ran away, throwing Mr. Nurse out. Being accustomed to cross the river at the point mentioned, they evidently ran for home and got about forty feet from shore before the ice gave way under them and they dropped through. As the water in the channel just here is about thirty feet deep there would be no chance for them to get out without help, and consequently the fine team was lost.

CHILDREN'S AID NOTES.

A woman and two little children who had been under the care of the Children's Aid Society for the last few days, have gone back to the place from whence they came. On their arrival in town they sought shelter in the rink.

There are five children now in the care of the Society. An endeavour will be made to have Mr. Kelso, the General Superintendent of the Societies, take the little ones to Toronto, as the prospects for placing them in Peterborough county are somewhat indefinite.

BATTALION NOTES.

A Military Demonstration for the Queen's Birthday.

A meeting of the officers of the 57th Battalion was held last evening when the financial statement of the year was presented. The showing made was considered most satisfactory and the report was referred to the auditors.

The subject of again holding a military demonstration here on the Queen's Birthday was discussed and enthusiastically resolved upon.

The commanding officer was authorized to open communications with outside regiments with the object of inviting them here for the 24th of May and it is thought that the Footguards of Ottawa, and the 13th Battalion of Hamilton may be induced to come. A Montreal regiment on its way through to Toronto will also stop off here for a couple of hours during the day.

Amongst the items in a militia general order signed by Hon. Dr. Borden, Minister of Militia, yesterday, was the following of interest to Peterborough:

57th Battalion of Infantry, Peterborough Rangers—To be honorary chaplain, Rev. John Cheyne Davidson.

CURLIANA.

Skips E. B. Edwards, of the Granites, and D. Belleghem, of the Thistles, took their rinks to Millbrook to-day to give the curlers of that town a return match.

Two more draws were played off amongst the Granites in the Innes Medal series last night resulting as follows:

RINK NO. 1.

Col Rogers,	W Milne,

Skip LeBrun signally vanquished Skip Fortye at the rink last night in a contest for one hundred loaves of bread for the poor. The match out was a close one all through, but in the end Skip LeBrun's experience enabled him to out-general his adversary. The rinks were composed as as follows:

HOCKEY.

The Huffman House boarders have accepted a challenge issued by the boarders of the Grand Central. The match will take place next week.

Trial by jury is an everyday occurence, and grim rumours of "trial by fire" are wafted down from the by-gone centuries, but it was in the fertile brains of some of the town sports that the idea of a trial by hockey originated.

Bombadier Ames, who has charge of the "goose" in the Hall, Gilchrist & Co. establishment, has been accused, justly or unjustly, of unlawfully retaining a certain rat-trap, the property of the Peterborough Hardware Co. The Bombadier refuted the charge with all his well-known eloquence, but the men of putty were not to be put off by any bluff, and so it was decided that a hockey match would be the outcome of the disputed point—the winners to be entitled to own and possess the coveted trophy. A representative hardware team accordingly lined up as follows against the Hall & Gilchrist men:

Drygoods.		Hardwars.
Manning	goal	Higgins
Butler	point	White
Picard	cover point	Ferguson
Deane	forwards	Brown
Maher		Dumble
Choate		Burnham
Might		Comstock

Referee, T Connal.

The game resulted in the score of 5—0 in favour of the hardware representatives, but the Bombadier holds that inasmuch as "Sandow" Connal, his accuser, did not play in the match, he is not guilty of the charge and will accordingly hold on to the rat trap.

The hardware men give all the credit of the victory to "the Deacon," who allowed not a shot to be made on the goal—in fact not a drygoods man passed him with the puck.

The Clothier's challenge the Hall, Gilchrist & Co. team to a game of hockey on Friday evening next.

The Moulders have accepted the challenges of the Canoe builders for a game of hockey.

The "Greenies" met with defeat at Lakefield last night by the score of eight goals to three. The two sevens were composed as follows:

Lakefield,		Greenies.
J Newbury	goal	A McLennan
J Ridpath	point	R H Bradburn
G Davis	cover point	R Kelly
S Ridpath	forwards	C Graham
A M McKenzie		H King
T Ridpath		R Watt
J McDonald		F W Logan
R Griffin	umpire	H Thompson

Referee—W Wagner.

The Lakefield boys promise to come to Peterborough for a return game when the Greenies hope to reverse the score.

PREPARING FOR THE PLEBISCITE.

COUNTY PROHIBITIONISTS IN CONVENTION.

A Largely Attended Meeting of Those Interested in the Taking of the Plebiscite—Organization Effected—An Enthusiastic Mass Meeting in the Evening.

Several hundred of the most representative prohibition workers of the county assembled in convention in the Y. M. C. A. Hall yesterday afternoon to discuss ways and means in regard to bringing out the temperance vote in the prohibition plebiscite.

Mr. George W. Powell took the platform and explained that representatives from the different temperance organizations had met together some time ago to consider the holding of a convention for the purpose of organizing in connection with the campaign incident to the prohibition plebiscite. The delegates from these organizations had drawn up a set of resolutions, which would be presented later on. Other matters which would come up for consideration was the organization of the county and the arrangement of the best means of bringing out the temperance vote when

THE PLEBISCITE WAS TAKEN.

Mr. Powell then moved that Mr. George Stewart take the chair.—Carried.

Rev. Mr. McEwan opened the convention with prayer.

Mr. A. J. Johnston was elected to the position of secretary for the afternoon.

Dr. Fife explained that the convention had been called in order that everything might be fully arranged before the campaign began.

Seconded by Mr. Fletcher, he moved that—"As it appears the Government of the present day intend to take a plebiscite on the question of prohibition, likely within a few months after the next session of the Dominion Parliament, we prohibitionists and temperance workers of the County of Peterborough, assembled in convention, deem it advisable to organize in some way, so that the largest possible vote on the prohibition question may be given on that date."—Carried.

Mr. Powell stated that it was for the convention to decide whether organization should be undertaken at once or whether it was too early. If organized now, he thought that great good could be done by the distribution of literature. Speakers would not be required until the campaign opened.

Rev. W. Young asked if there was any accurate information as to when the plebiscite would be taken, or if it would be taken at all. He stated that he had little faith in ante-election promises.

Dr. Fife replied that he had certainly read in the newspapers that a prohibition plebiscite was promised by Mr. Laurier if his party were returned to power.

Mr. Powell was sure the promise had that at the first session of the Parliament Mr. Laurier would have legislation introduced, calling for the taking of a plebiscite on the prohibition question.

BEEN DEFINITELY GIVEN,

Rev. Mr. McEwan stated that the promise had been made to a deputation of temperance men and delegates from the W.C.T.U., and unless all trust had departed from the earth, would be carried out.

Mr. Samuel Armstrong, of Otonabee, was confident that Mr. Laurier and the Liberal party would stand by their promise and a plebiscite would be taken at the earliest opportunity.

Mr. H. S. Armstrong brought in a resolution calling for organization in all its details.

Mr. J. L. Hughes was opposed to organizing wards, etc., at present, as he thought by the time the plebiscite was taken the movement would be dead through inactivity. Going into such details as ward committees was not to be thought of yet, although the principal officers of such an organization as was proposed might be elected.

Rev. W. R. Young, seconded by Mr. Geo. Powell, moved that the convention resolve itself into the Peterborough Prohibition Association, its membership to be composed of the temperance workers of the town and country. The officers of the association shall be a president, a vice-president from each municipality of the county, a secretary and a treasurer.—Carried.

THE FOLLOWING OFFICERS

were then elected by the convention.

President—Dr. Fife.
Secretary—A. D. Russell.
Treasurer—K. Mark.

Vice Presidents: Otonabee, George Stewart; Smith, Solomon Northey; Dummer, A. R. Kidd; Douro, Wm. Garbutt; Asphodel, Dr. Ford, of Norwood; North Monaghan, Joseph Forster; South Monaghan, John Riddell; Ennismore, Richard Nurse; Belmont, Dr. Jeffs, of Havelock; Harvey, Robert Shaw; Burleigh, Anstruther, Galway, Cavendish and Chandos—to be appointed by the Executive; Lakefield, Wm. Harper; Peterborough, James Stubbs.

Moved by Geo. Powell, seconded by Dr. Fife, and resolved that as it will be necessary to have some campaign funds as the officers should give their time more especially to the general canvass of votes, it is deemed advisable to appoint a finance committee who shall arrange for the collection of subscriptions and other moneys, said amounts to be payable over to the general treasurer, to be used as the executive may see fit, said committee to be composed of five members—Carried.

The appointment of the Finance Committee was left to the Executive.

Amongst those attending were:

Peterborough—Isabella Paton, Isabella Alexander, Hannah Bathgate, W Peacy, Geo W Powell, J A Fife, F W Scott, C F Kerill, Wm Yelland, A J Johnston, George Stewart, V E Fraser, Mrs Geo McBurney, Mrs Robt Wright, Geo Braud, Ina Mowry, Miss B Hunt, Mrs Thexton, W Faint, K Mark, Emma Howson, Mrs Faint, Mrs K Mark, Mrs J W Bacon, Lizzie Davidson, S I Griffin, F S Martin, S H Best, Miss M Rae, Miss A Carruthers, W. A. Fletcher, Wm Bennett, A T Dykeman, Chas Griffin, Percy G Might, David A Lewis, D M Spence.

Otonabee—Samuel Sargent, A A Stewart, R A Deyell, R Hanbridge, Samuel Armstrong.

Smith—Wm Simpson, G W Mann, Jas Middleton, Wm Bennett.

Dummer—W A Payne, Stewart R Payne, W O Spencer, P Payne, Geo Robinson, W Wasson, F W Payne.

Hastings—R A Doxsee, Mrs J A Jewell, John A Jewell.

Baillieboro—R J Porter, J W Kirkpatrick.

Others present were: Rev John McEwan, Toronto; Adda Baker, Newburg; Dr Harrison, Keene; Mr and Mrs Wm Garbutt, A R Kidd, Douro.

The following paper was presented by Rev. Dr. McEwan of Toronto:

MANIFESTO OF THE PLEBISCITE CAMPAIGN IN THE COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH.

This call in convention places us on the elevation of time and position where we can, with advantage, take a retrospective and prospective view of the temperance reform.

The temperance reform in an organized condition is now fully sixty years of age. It began as a philanthropic enterprise simultaneously in Great Britain and America. Men were moved by the misery entailed upon individuals, families and society by the use and abuse of alcoholic liquors, and agreed to organize themselves, on the pledge of abstinence, from spirituous liquor, and achieved much good socially.

The next stage of reform embraced the pledge from all malt and fermented liquors—and this comprehensive programme of abstinence was followed by organization more compact and better fitted to protect and strengthen the victims of appetite—more influential in its character,—variously designated, Rechabites, Sons of Temperance, Good Templars, Royal Templars, and though last, by no means least, in the extent of its labours, the Women's Christian Temperance Union—all aiming, and in their measure, attaining very wide-spread influence in rescuing the victims of the liquor traffic, resisting the aggressions of the manufacturers, saving thousands from its snares, leavening society with a healthy public sentiment as to the importance of the temperance movement, pushing its principles before the attention of church assemblies in their subordinate and supreme departments—conferences, synods and assemblies, until the reform deepened in its volume of power and in the integrity of its principles, and the righteousness of its aims, so that now almost every church assembly in its representative character, definitely and almost unanimously declares the traffic as at present existing as a sin against God and society; damning alike to the purity of the kingdom of God on the earth and a constant menace to the purity and best interests of the state.

This latter view of the effects of the traffic on the state led men, good and true, to grapple with the political side of the movement and the responsibility of the state to the traffic and society, whose representative and guardian the state is bound to protect and promote for best interests. These facts brought the movement into the realm of political life—municipal, provincial and federal. In these departments the traffic was defended as a source of revenue, of political and party influence—all at the cost of the dearest interests of society, economically morally and spiritually. This collateral movement has had its stages of development and experiment in the Dunkin Act stage, Local option—the Scott Act wave of victory, the chapter on provincial rights vs. Dominion authority, the commission and its peregrinations, the judgments of the courts from local bench to the Privy Council; indeed the entire range of skillful political artifice, legal research and interpretation, judicial wisdom have all been taxed to the utmost—yea, they have been exhausted; and in every important measure and decision the air has been cleared and the outlook enlarged. Righteousness for society through the kingdom of God has been vindicated, and national prohibition is the outstanding and clearly defined duty of church and state; involving to both immense problems, requiring moral and spiritual courage on the part of both sides of society, cordial co-operation, forbearance and patience just because vested rights of a material kind are involved. Social interests that enter into the very life of the church, and the healthy administration of the affairs of the state will, with prohibition, come with a power that this land has never experienced.

This laboured-for day has dawned, in that the Dominion Government has pledged itself to the machinery we call a plebiscite, by this means to find the real state of public opinion, for and against prohibition. We have wrought this machine provincially throughout the Dominion with hopeful results.

This is our position and place in the Temperance Reform historically considered.

This plebiscite should be conducted by the advocacy, not of a political programme of solu-

The Original and Generous Device of Peterborough Cyclists.

Bicyclists as a rule are not ferocious but the bicyclists using the highway between town and Chemong have decided upon an amiable threat to cane one of the four pathmasters on the road in question. To explain; the 'cyclists using the road between town and Chemong Park for the purpose of reaching and returning from their summer cottages have decided to offer a present of a $15 gold-headed cane to the pathmaster on this stretch of highway who at the end of the season shall have been adjudged to have kept his beat in the best condition of repair.

The object of the 'cyclists in question is, it may be said, a selfish one, namely the improvement of the Communication Road for their own benefit, yet these and other 'cyclists have had a great share in the production of that great desideratum, good roads, and they may count upon the approval Mr. Good Roads Patullo, M.P.P., as well as Mr. Campbell, Provincial Road Instructor, in their novel and original crusade in the cause of good roads. The bicyclists should have the practical sympathy and support of the farmers of the vicinity who use the road in question, for a highway that is good for bicyclists is also good for the farmers in going to and from market. And there is no doubt that the liberal action of the cyclists mentioned will result in a decided improvement in the road under consideration in the interests of all who use it for any sort of conveyance—pneumatic or equine. The pathmasters on this road may consider themselves lucky—one of them is sure of winning the gold-headed cane, and the race for the coveted walking stick will not be a walk-over either, for it is to presumed that there will be a keen contest for the honour of having the best road beat and of beating competitors out of the coveted cane. No doubt they will do their duty faithfully in any case, but it will be strange if the chance of winning such a beautiful, valuable and useful trophy will not spur them them on to an extra spurt to distance competition. The result will be that we shall see the communication road greatly improved, and all who use it will get the benefit.

The question of who is to be entitled to the cane at the end of the season, will be decided by the ballots of those gentlemen who offer the splendid gold-headed cane for competition. The particular road-beat that gets the largest number of ballots, will give the pathmaster thereof the $15 gold-headed cane.

WARSAW CHEESE AND BUTTER COMPANY.

Successful Result of Operations in the Butter Department—Good Prices Realized.

Below we are privileged, through the courtesy of Mr. S. R. Payne, secretary, to present a tabulated statement of the result of the first year's operations of the butter department of the Warsaw Cheese and Butter Company, which has reason to congratulate itself on the success of the experiment of adding the making of butter to the manufacture of cheese, thus prolonging the season and securing the fullest value of the care and feed bestowed upon the dairy herd. The figures given below speak for themselves:

Total amount of butter sold (lbs)	3,705
Total receipts for butter	$687 50
Cost at 3½c per pound to manuf'r	129 67
Total cash paid to patrons	557 83
Average price of butter	18.56
Price per lb of butter fat to patrons	15.68

Milk delivered at factory yielded to patrons an average return per cwt of 64.64c or $19.39 per standard.

The enterprise and success of the Warsaw Cheese and Butter Company is an object lesson to other similar concerns, which might, with advantage and profit, take a leaf out of Warsaw's book.

There is no sadder sight than that of the orphan-child bereft of the loving care of a mother. If women would but learn the vital importance of taking proper care of their health, and always look after the health and vigor of the organs distinctly feminine, the pitiful Sabbath day procession of motherless children that goes to the cemetery to "put flowers on ma-ma's grave" would be materially reduced in numbers. Too many women bring a child into the world at the sacrifice of their own life. This sad tragedy may be avoided by any women who will resort to the right remedy.

The usual dangers of maternity are banished by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly and only on the important and delicate organs that bear the burdens of motherhood. It makes them healthy and strong, vigorous and elastic. It does away with the discomforts of the expectant period, insures the health of the newcomer, and makes its advent free from danger and almost free from pain. Over 90,000 have testified to its virtues. Druggists who offer substitutes are untrustworthy.

Mrs. William Vincent, of Sidnaw, Houghton Co., Mich., (care Birgland's Camp. Box B), writes: "When I first began to take your 'Favorite Prescription,' four years ago, I was suffering with local weakness and heart trouble. At times I could hardly endure the pain in my sides, quite low down, and had such a pain between my shoulders I could not sleep at night. Was just as tired in the morning as at night. At times there was a very sharp pain around my heart. When I would stoop over there was a dull aching just under the heart. My head ached and was continually sore to the touch. I took ten bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and one bottle of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I can most truly say that as a result I never felt better in my life. I was more like a young girl than a mother of a family. The pain all left me, so I know that your medicines will do all that medicine can do."

A headache is a symptom of constipation. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation, promptly and permanently. They do not gripe. Druggists sell them.

FUN FOR THE ICE MAID

THE RIBBON CHASE ON SKATES FOR THE WINTER GIRL.

A New Game That Is in Great Favor Among New York Fashionables Who Indulge in Many Fancy Strokes at St. Nicholas Skating Rink.

For the best-liked game on skates this season posts are set up at one end of the rink, five in all; from these flutter many gay ribbons, each about a yard in length, says a well-informed New York correspondent. They are so arranged that they can be easily detached, and the object of the sport is to secure the greatest number of the silk trophies as you skate rapidly by the posts. Only one ribbon can be taken at a time, and from one post only, and speed must not be slackened in detaching the ribbon. The skaters follow one another around the rink, at a rapid pace, and seize the ribbon as they glide past, pinning it upon the breast.

Finally the ribbons have all disappeared but one—a long, fluttering white scarf. This no one is allowed to touch until the signal from the leader, which comes while all are whirling gayly about, and possibly just after the post has been passed. The contestant who understands the art of wheeling about quickly and surely is the one who captures the trophy and the first prize. Second and third prizes are also awarded, and the game is voted the merriest sort of fun.

Figure work by skilful skaters forms part of the evening's entertainment at the St. Nicholas rink in New York city, where the smart set resort. The inside edge and the outside edge, from inside back to outside forward, the serpentine or a change of edge, q's and reverse q's—are all club figures, which are gracefully performed, with correct and accurate pose.

In one of the side-by-side figures the woman puts her hands behind her with the palms upward, and the man takes them in his hands, which are turned palms downward. He stands behind the woman to her left; the left hands are joined and brought forward, and the woman's right hand is passed behind and across her back, and is so held in the man's right. When the man is to the right side of the lady the position is, of course, reversed. This is the Austrian method, and was introduced at the club by a young woman who spent last winter at the Austrian capital. For many of the improvements and innovations in figure skating the world of sports is indebted to the progressive spirit of the St. Nicholas Club.

R. O. Babcock, of Little Rocher, N.B., writes: "As a cure for coughs Pyny-Pectoral is the best cough medicine I have ever met with. My customers will have no other."

ATHLETICS FOR WOMEN.

New Conditions Require a Higher Physical Development For the Sex.

Already there is talk of the organisation of women's athletic clubs in some of the large cities. This should cause no surprise, says a writer in the Woman's Home Companion. A higher physical development for women is required by the rapid advancement of the sex in those pastimes and business pursuits formerly monopolized by men. Public sentiment has undergone a marked change in the last few years, making it possible for women to engage in athletics for the improvement of their physical well-being without exciting horrified comment from those who have a high regard for the proprieties of life. It is no longer contended by any considerable number of peoeple that in doing this she necessarily sacrifices the dignity and refinement belonging to an ideal American womanhood.

All modern arguments seem to be in favor of stronger and more rugged physical development on the part of the weaker sex. It is the kind of development that brings the strength necessary to sustain the burdens and trials of maternity, the obligations of wifehood, the duties of home-making, the responsibilities of official trust and the exactions of the various fields of usefulness that have been opened to women all over this country. There has been an evolution of the popular conception of the ideal woman. She may represent the highest type of womanly grace and refinement and still boast of well-trained muscles, steady nerves, a healthful digestion and a sound organization. The woman who has been taught to fill only the place of the "clinging vine" is unfitted for the newer conditions of life. She is unprepared for any of the many emergencies that may burden her with responsibilities and duties requiring strength, self-confidence and endurance. Encouragement should be given to every form of athletics, properly conducted, that promises to increase the bodily strength and health of women.

Bike Muffs for Cold Weather.

The bicycling muff and the bicycle glove for cold weather riding is one of the necessities for the wheeling public which has led to the invention of several novelties. The latest is called a hand protector, and is fitted over the handle bars of a machine, giving the warmth of a muff and having all the advantages of a well-fitting glove. They are conical in shape, and the small and fits closely around the handle bar.

The body of the cone comes will up over the handle of the machine, and is large enough to allow the hand to enter and grasp the handle, the shield coming well up over the wrist. They can be easily removed from the handles when not needed for warmth by unbuttoning them as one would a glove.

The most popular sort for winter wear are made of corduroy in shades and colors of drab, tans, seal brown, navy blue and black. They are lined with eiderdown. For ladies' use there is a seal brown protector lined with white lambs' wool, or wool cotton.

The bicycle muff has come to be regarded as indispensable to the young woman who keeps up with the latest improvements and novelties for the wheeling sport. At all the bicycle departments in the big shops these useful hand coverings are on sale. The price ranges anywhere from 60 cents to $16.

FOR THE PUBLIC GOOD.

Mrs. Liscumbe Makes a Statement for the Benefit of Others.

Mrs. Liscumbe is well known in Havelock and this is how she spoke to our representative :—

"I have been troubled for some time with severe pains in the side and back. I took many medicines of various kinds, but got no relief.

"The box of Doan's Kidney Pills which I got at W. H. Jeff & Co's. drugstore gave me wonderful relief from the start. The improvement in my general health is not the least of the benefits which I have derived from the use of this remarkable kidney remedy.

"I can recommend them very highly to anyone troubled with any form of kidney disease."

GUARDING THE TONGUE.

If each of us, as we pass through life,
Would bridle and curb the tongue,
And speak of only the pleasant things,
To be said of everyone,
What a wonderful difference there would be Between this world of ours
And the paradise it might become
With all pathways strewn with flowers!

How surely a little reflection,
Will show us as plain as the day
The mistakes were made when we hastily
Allowed our tongue full sway.
When the day is done and we think it o'er—
Ah, me! that it should be true—
There are few of us who can honestly say
There is nothing we would undo.

Too often the faults we clearly see
In others are faults of our own—
And those who dwell in houses of glass
Should be wary in casting a stone,
So, have charity, much charity,
The loveliest virtue of all,
And look well to the member unruly,
For it's prone to slip and fall.

A CASE OF DIABETES.

No Help From Medical Men—Suffered for Many Years—Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

North Bruce, Feb. 15 (Special)—An old and well known settler in this Township, named Thomas Brooks, who lives on lots 7 and 8 in the 14th concession is rejoicing with his neighbours over his recent recovery, and he said:

"I was cured by using twenty-four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and as nothing else ever helped me I say they saved my life."

"I had tried all the doctors of this locality and was treated for Diabetes, hoping and suffering for years."

"From reading of cures I determined to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I must say that after using the first box I would have considered them reasonable at ten dollars a box."

THE BEST

FAMILY MEDICINE

She Has Been Known. Words of Praise from a New York Lady for

AYER'S PILLS

"I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have taken them for many years, and always derived the best results from their use. For stomach and liver troubles, and for the cure of headache caused by these derangements, Ayer's Pills cannot be equaled.

When my friends ask me what is the best remedy for disorders of the stomach, liver, or bowels, my invariable answer is, Ayer's Pills. Taken in season, they will break up a cold, prevent la grippe, check fever, and regulate the digestive organs. They are easy to take, and are, indeed, the best all-round family medicine I have ever known."—Mrs. May Johnson, 368 Rider Avenue, New York City.

THE JUBILEE OF TENNESSEE.

MANY OF THE EXPOSITION BUILDINGS ARE ALMOST COMPLETED.

Old Structures Reproduced—The Ancient Greek Parthenon Duplicated in All Its Glory—The Pyramid of Cheops, Etc.

From present indications it seems extremely probable that the Tennessee Centennial Exposition will be in a remarkable state of completion for the opening, on May 1.

The site of the exposition could not have been more fortunate. It was known as the Old West Side Park, to which adjacent property has been added, making a tract of 200 acres in all, and is situated a little more than two miles from the Public Square, and directly north of Vanderbilt University. It commands a beautiful view of the city of Nashville, and the picturesque scenery around and about the city. It is dotted over with shade trees, with a luxuriant growth of blue grass, beautified by thousands of evergreens, plants, shrubs and blooming flowers. Artistically terraced and divided by delightful drives and walks and charming lakes, and yet made still more attractive and enchanting by the erection of buildings which represent art and history, science and education in all things worth knowing, it now becomes a little city, that nestles languidly and happily amid the hills—a veritable paradise.

Lake Watauga and Lake Katharine relieve the broad vista of emerald green, which is also brought into pleasing contrast by the snow-white buildings, which enhance the beauty of the scene—the whole forming a picture of unequaled interest.

Thousands of incandescent lamps "will send a gleam across the way" from the eaves and domes and flagstaffs of the buildings. Hundreds of arc lights will stand as sentinels throughout the park, while the monster flagstaff, 330 feet in height, will be surmounted by a cluster of electric lights—a beacon that may be seen for many miles in every direction—dispelling darkness from every nook and corner, turning night into glorious day.

The construction of the main buildings, commenced in January, 1896, are nearly all completed, and only here and there in a few of them the statuary is yet to be placed or the finishing touches applied.

Among the completed structures are the following: Minerals and Forestry Building, 400 by 125 feet, and an annex, altogether affording about 77,000 square feet; the Rialto of Venice; Machinery Hall, 375 by 188 feet, with about 52,000 square feet; Agricultural Building, 525 by 175 feet, with 100,000 square feet; Transportation Building, 400 by 120 feet—50,000 square feet; Commerce Building, 591 by 258 feet, and extensions, about 250,000 square feet; Administration Building; Women's Building, 160 by 85 feet; Auditorium, with seating capacity for 6000; Parthenon (fine arts building); Pyramid of Cheops (Memphis building).

The beauty of the grounds will be greatly enhanced by real works of art, attractive and unique buildings, and decorations. In front of the Parthenon will stand Miss Yandell's heroic statue of Pallas Athene, forty-three feet high.

A reproduction of the Venetian Rialto will span an arm of Lake Watauga, certain to be a favorite resort for lovers of the picturesque and of the romantic. The principal flagstaff now stands 330 feet high, under which is the band stand, to be occupied by some of the finest military musical organizations in the world.

In the centre of the park, and on an elevated terrace, is the Parthenon or Fine Arts Building. As it is to contain invaluable works of art, it will be fireproof, with stone foundation, concrete floor, brick walls and glass roof in steel frame; the exterior being ornamented in molded staff in imitation of the original. Its fifty-eight fluted columns, and every detail possible, are true to the original in design and coloring. There is a large door at either end, opening upon the double columned porticos, but no windows—light being obtained through the glass roof and from myriads of incandescent lamps.

The sculpture to be placed on the pediments, metopes, and frieze are in imitation of the original, and are in molded staff, furnishing an object lesson in classic architecture not heretofore seen in this country. In front of the Parthenon will be erected a statue of Pallas Athene, which, with the pedestal, will be forty feet high. Around the Parthenon all of the other beautiful edifices are clustered. So it was when the original was created by the immortal Ictinus and decorated by the unrivaled Phidias. As their creation was the crowning glory of the Acropolis, so will this, its counterpart, erected twenty-four centuries later, excel any in this costellation of beautiful buildings. It is a notable coincidence that Nashville, known as the "Athens of the South," should be the first to reproduce the ancient Greek temple in all its artistic beauty.

The History Building will be an adaptation of the Erechtheon that stood on the Acropolis, near the Parthenon, and this reproduction will be appropriately located near the Fine Arts Building. It will contain relics and articles sacredly preserved by the Tennessee Historical Society, the Colonial Dames, the Confederate Veterans and the Grand Army of the Republic, and it has seemed appropriate, as far as possible or expedient, to reproduce for this purpose that venerable temple of Athens, the "Erechtheon."

One of the most remarkable and unique of the Centennial Buildings is and the city of Memphis, being a reproduction and adaptation of the Pyramid of Cheops, erected 3000 years before the Christian era, and antedating the Parthenon some 2500 years. It is about one-sixth of the original size, being 115 feet on its base line, 130 feet on its angle and 100 feet on its perpendicular line. The number and size of the porticos are increased, there being one on each side, making a more imposing effect, and adapting it to exposition purposes. The interior is a vast hall 85 feet square and fifty feet high, with galleries all around 15 feet in width. It is the intention to carry out the quaint and barbaric splendor of Egyptian architecture and art, both as to color and design. This is the first time since the building of the pyramids by the Egyptians that an attempt by any architect has been made to reproduce them, and it will, therefore, necessarily attract attention.

London's Newspapers.

Proportionately there is no great town in the civilized world that has so few daily morning papers as London. This is due to the large expenditure involved in starting one. Anyone contemplating starting a London morning paper must be ready to lose $150,000 to $200,000 per annum for the first two or three years.

The Composition of Pullman.

Measurements were taken recently for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of building material used in the construction of the town of Pullman, says the American Contractor. It seems a unique undertaking to contribute the qualities of a town containing over 900 buildings, including every variety of structure. The result was as follows:

Concrete, cubic feet	230,625
Rubble stone, cords	19,275
Dimension stone, cubic feet	44,900
Cut stone, cubic feet	152,875
Pressed brick, thousand	4,806
Common brick, thousand	77,527
Lumber, feet	27,770,000
Cast iron, pounds	1,342,256
Wrought iron, pounds	2,800,860
Roofing, square feet	1,906,758
Skylights, square feet	234,700
Plastering, yards	702,003
Area under cover, acres	50½
Cubic feet in all buildings	70,244,450

All of this work was designed and under the immediate supervision of Architect S. S. Beman. The number of drawings required was something enormous, running into thousands, and the weight of the paper could be measured by the ton. All this to graphically illustrate what was required of contractors. All of these drawings had to be unrolled and carefully measured to obtain the above results, and was about three months' continuous work on the part of C. A. Jordan, at Architect Beman's office. This is the largest job of figuring done during 1896 in Chicago.

SHE SAID SHE WAS DEAD.

Mr. Patenotre Turned the Tables on Mrs. Rockhill.

Eleven years ago Mr. Rockhill was secretary of the United States Legation at Peking, and his wife was a leader in the amusements of the diplomatic circle. While arranging for a picnic or some other function she asked the assistance of Mr. Patenotre, who was then the French Minister to China. That amiable gentleman rode twelve miles on horseback on a hot day to keep an appointment with Mrs. Rockhill, and when he arrived at her house she asked to eb excused from seeing him. He explained to the servant that he had come in from the country a long distance to see Mrs. Rockhill at her request, and was very certain that she did not understand that it was he when she sent the message. The servant went back to his mistress with the explanation. She retorted impatiently: "Tell him I cannot see him. It is too hot to talk business. Tell him anything to get rid of him. Tell him I am dead."

It so happened that the Chinese servant repeated her words literally and accurately to the Minister of France, but that was unnecessary, for he had overheard them through the lattice work, and since he left her door that day he has not recognized Mrs. Rockhill. When Mr. Rockhill was promoted to First Assistant Secretary of State he and his wife were admitted to the diplomatic circle here, and soon after met the French Ambassador and his wife at a dinner party. Being ignorant of the situation, the hostess assigned Mr. Patenotre to escort Mrs. Rockhill to the dinner table, and when he received his card he asked to be excuser, saying that he did not know the lady.

"But I will present you," said the hostess.

"I do not wish to be presented," was the Ambassador's reply. "This lady told me more than ten years ago that she was dead, and I do not care to be a resurrectionist."

The full intensity of living is reached only by the perfectly healthy. Sickness discounts the capacity for enjoyment. If his body is all out of order and run-down, he will not be able to enjoy anything, no matter how full of enjoyment it may be for other people. If he is just a little bit out of order, if he "is not sick, but doesn't feel just right," he will only be able to enjoy things in a half-hearted sort of way. The nearer he is to being perfectly well, the nearer will his capacity for enjoyment be perfect. If this condition doesn't exist, something ought to be done. That means nine cases in ten the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It works directly on the digestive organs, and on the blood and through these on every tissue of the body. It makes the appetite good, digestion and nutrition perfect and supplies rich, red blood to all tissues, building up solid, healthful flesh.

PREPARING FOR THE PPEBISCITE.

ties or partisan methods of revenue. Let us as temperance men in this campaign leave these to the politicians, and let us, as far and as fast as we can, entrust these confessedly difficult problems to men of righteous aims and strong moral character, to deal with the issues as they arise. It is our present duty to make the vote for prohibition so overwhelmingly convincing that the duty of Government shall be written on the wall of the House at Ottawa in letters of light. Let us advocate prohibition as synonimous with social Christianity.

The term Prohibition is suggestive of the Moral Law, as presented in the ten Commandments:

"Thou shalt not kill."
"Thou shalt not steal."
"Thou shalt not bear false witness."
"Thou shalt not covet."

Social Christianity is the purpose and method of the Kingdom of God in the earth.

Christianity has the inherent right to implant and realize itself in the social relations of men in the Home, in the Church, in the State and in Business, and whatever is obstruction or subversion of this realization in the individual, in the family or in society, must be removed, if for no other reason, because its presence is imperilling to all social interests, and if need be society must be reconstructed to this end. Such we take it to be the character and aim of Prohibition.

The nearer purpose and aim of the Plebiscite is to ascertain public sentiment as indicated above, and at the same time to educate this public sentiment as to the privilege and responsibility of the voter in this regard.

This century has already witnessed legal reform in equity, in the integrity of the judiciary, the adaptation of penalty to the enormity of crime, so that a man is no longer sent to the gallows for theft.

Prison reform so that our gaols are no longer pest houses or dens of filth.

Municipal reform, seeking the best results in the nearest manner and with the least possible expenditure to the constituency.

Parliamentary reform in the extended and purified franchise. Human slavery is wiped out from British and American soil, and we are summoned by the plebiscite to write another chapter in the temperance reform, which looks like the beginning of the end of a long and heroic conflict.

All reforms as enumerated above imply and have been accompanied with the remodelling of legal codes and statutory reconstruction of business relations, and the temperance reform is no exception. As in the past, so in this, it becomes the duty of the state to deal with it should the people demand it.

Institutions and laws are only instruments by which the moral decisions of the people are made effective, and the duty of the state is to make these instruments that they may be effective for the welfare of society, or in other words, give position and freedom to social Christianity. The motive power of these laws lies in the gospel of Christ in the lives of the people.

All change in laws modifies and alters the relations of the classes for whose advantage the change is made—to make the good better—by purity of reasoning the bad becomes worse—that is, this change in laws intensifies life in all affected by it, so that the class who always resist much and obey little become revolutionary, lawless, and imperil the cause of law and order, and the very existence of the state. We had sad illustrations of this in the enforcement of the Scott Act. Those who obey much and resist little become the strength and health of the nation, and instead of lawless resistance there is legitimate and constitutional aggressiveness. So much for the purpose and method of the proposed Plebiscite with prohibition in view.

The third position in this manifesto is the principle and programme of social Christianity. The church in her aggressive attitude to the evil of life has too long overlooked the fact that man is a creature of habits—largely under the influence of society, and that the legal conditions that create surroundings, selfish or unselfish, healthful and stimulating or malarous and deadning, yet these work night and day. The church has, to a large degree been working out the problems of the kingdom of God, by saving individuals instead of organizing these units in social forces, and making the doing of righteousness easier for the children that are unborn, and that thereby they may the easier deal with fresh problems in the kingdom of God.

"The Gospel to be such must proclaim war upon all social prejudices, and corrupt agencies that are fastened by or lie at the base of our political life.

The church has been too passive in the presence of evil, in her fear of entanglement with secular issues. She has preached and practiced the mediæval doctrine, that the evils of society were to be endured as a discipline to the soul, instead of being controlled and brought into subjection, doing evil made difficult of accomplishment. Justice and charity must not only be preached to men but the influence of these brought to them in the interests of life. Great prominence should be given to these things, well illustrated in the campaign for the plebiscite.

The preparation for power and success.—Organization is one of God's ways of strengthening the workers and giving success to His Kingdom in the earth.

Inspiration comes from association in work and counsel

Enthusiasm is begotten of simultaneous activity and uniformity of aim.

Moral attitude in addresses, sermons, canvassing, consciences, power with intelligence and prayer in all meetings for perfecting plans, will make the plebiscite felt throughout the country, and be a preparation for prohibition, when it comes. Purpose, principles, preparation, followed up by participation by pastors, church officers, municipal leaders of the people, individually and collectively, women's work for women as canvassers and voters, adult classes in Sunday schools. Christian Endeavourers in the line of good citizenship. Let every municipality be helped by the central committee, in directing the circulation of literature of which nothing is better than "The Plebiscite," by Rev. W. A. McKay, of Woodstock.

The Evening Mass Meeting.

There was a large attendance in the George street Methodist church last night at the mass meeting in connection with the convention. Previous to the meeting the Salvation Army Band played several selections on the lawn in front of the church.

His Worship Mayor Yelland occupied the chair and on the platform were Rev. Messrs. J. McEwan, Toronto, Rev. Dr. Torrance and Rev. Messrs. Dykeman and Young. After prayers by Rev. Dr. Torrance and the singing of a sacred duet by Mrs. Seward and Mr. James Brown, Mr. G. W. Powell explained the reasons for the absence of several ministers from the gathering.

Rev. Mr. Young said it was a matter of congratulation that the chief magistrate of the town was a staunch temperance man. After generally indicating the great evils of intemperance and that temperance and temperance reform were becoming a part of political life he said that till we had political party that would make prohibition a plank in its platform, there was not much hope of successful result. The speaker had not much faith in politicians, nor in royal commissions and plebiscites—they were, it seemed to him, a convenient political subterfuge. In the matter of the plebiscite the temperance people have everything to lose and nothing to gain, and with the liquor party the conditions are reversed. The speaker would like to see the definite question to which a plebiscite was to apply, and he condemned the indefinite character of the question submitted in the Ontario plebiscite, which was conditional on the province having the power to prohibit.

Miss Lily Pascoe contributed a sacred solo.

Rev. A. T. Dykeman began his address by saying that he was heart and soul in sympathy with the temperance movement. The primary meaning of the word bar was an obstruction, and so the bar of the rum shop was an obstruction to respectability, happiness, morality, purity, nobility of character and everything good. But the chief point he wished to make was that drink was a bar to the financial progress of the country. What we had to meet in this plebiscite campaign was the question of revenue and of the county being ready for prohibition. Temperance workers must prepare to answer these questions. The country would be better off, financially, if we had no liquor traffic. Gladstone said, "Give me a sober people and I'll provide a revenue." If we had prohibition it would increase our prosperity. If we had the capital absorbed in the liquor traffic applied to legitimate industries the result would be inestimably beneficial to the country. Legitimate industry increased the value of the raw material which a brewery did not do. The twenty or twenty-five millions locked up in the liquor traffic was an injury to the country greater than the loss of seven millions of revenue. The drink traffic lowered the industrial energy of the country to the extent of 1-10th, and that is equivalent to the loss of 100,000 out of our million of labourers in the Dominion. One million of producers exported 95 millions, and that meant 95 dollars per man or 9½ millions lost through 100,000 non-producers. Set these two items against seven millions of revenue. Then, drink destroyed 7,000 of our citizens every year, and putting a cash value of $1,000 on each, meant a loss of seven millions of dollars. Our penitentiaries, filled largely with drink, made criminals cost two millions a year. All this made forty-three millions of dollars spent in maintaining the drink traffic, and made the seven millions of revenue—a very costly revenue. The remedy for all these evils was prohibition, which, the speaker asserted, that Canada was ready for. Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario and Manitoba had declared by plebiscite, their readiness for prohibition. The speaker took his seat amidst loud applause.

During the collection Mrs. Seward, Miss Pascoe and Messrs. Miller and Marks sang the quartette, "Where is my Wandering Boy To-night."

Rev. A. C. Reeves, of Lakefield, spoke briefly as to the importance of the plebiscite contest. Mr. Young had regretted the indefinite nature of the issue, but the speaker said when we found temperance men voting as they prayed, and according to conscience, instead of party, then Governments would know where to find temperance men, and we could have a right to expect something definite. Temperance men had asked for the plebiscite, and it was the duty of temperance people to work for it. We might object to the plebiscite, but it will come, and we should be prepared for it. Some might say that the plebiscite was contrary to the British constitution, but several plebiscites has been taken and the constitution had not suffered. Unless interest was taken in the plebiscite vote, and a substantial majority given, no government would be warranted in granting prohibition.

Miss Phelps said the political parties were the people, and it was time to stop hitting the parties and hit the people. If the people wanted prohibition they could have it by their votes, and any political party would bow to votes. Prohibition was not a political question, but of the people, and no one person or political party is responsible. The speaker vigorously arraigned the members of Christian churches for their apathy in the temperance movement.

Mrs. Seward, Miss Pascoe, and Messrs. Miller and Marks sang the quartette, "Somebody's Boy."

"God Save the Queen," sung very fervently by the audience, followed by the benediction by Rev. Mr. McEwan, brought an enthusiastic meeting to a close.

A TERRIBLE ECZEMA

Her Face Covered with Scales. Could Not Leave Home. Had to Sacrifice Hair.

Tried CUTICURA REMEDIES. Improvement in Three Weeks. Six Weeks Complete Cure.

Four years ago Eczema made its appearance on my head in its worst form. I was attended by two physicians, but notwithstanding their treatment it continued spreading, until my face was covered with scales and became a horrid, loathsome sight. For three months I did not leave the house. I had a fine head of hair, seven years' growth, and had to sacrifice it. I was in despair. The physicians had failed even to relieve me, when one of them recommended CUTICURA SOAP. I used three boxes of CUTICURA (ointment), one half dozen cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and one bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and in three weeks from the time I began, the scales had left my face and the skin lost its florid hue. In six weeks I was entirely cured. My face was smooth and my complexion clearer than it had ever been before. LONG-WINDED CREDIT

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 10th, 1897.

NOTICE—From and after this date, Messrs. H. LeBRUN & CO. have decided to shorten the Term of Credit heretofore given, and, in future, no goods will be sold except for Cash, or on such limited time as may be mutually arranged.

We believe the safest way to do business in these days is to sell for Cash. The next best way is to sell on short dates. Many of our customers who have regularly paid their bills after a reasonable term of credit, would perhaps feel the "Spot Cash" system a hardship, especially while times are so hard and money so scarce. We regard these customers as among the best we have, and are quite satisfied to continue to extend to them the same terms of limited credit they have been accustomed to enjoy.

Our chief complaint is with the "long-winded" customer, who compels us to say that he makes business-life a down-right worry. It makes no difference to us whether a man is worth a million if he won't pay his account. When we need money for our business and are repeatedly put off with "promises to pay" by those who are well able to pay, we have no use for such trade. If every customer treated us in that way we could not carry on business at all. Besides, it is very disagreeable to us to have to "dun" a customer half a dozen times, or spend the profits in postage stamps, and wearing out shoe-leather to boot. We are compelled, therefore, to shut down at once on long credits. Those who can't pay within a reasonable time, we don't want their account in future.

There is a resolution all over the country in favour of Cash or shorter Credits. Cash is a more powerful friend now than ever, and if we must compete with the Cash Stores, who save their discounts, we can't afford to give long credit. Wholesale houses are now offering such big baits in the way of Cash Discounts that we must be prepared to take advantage of them or be handicapped.

All past due Accounts must be settled by the 1st of March; after that date they will be placed in Court for collection. All parties having contra accounts against us are requested to hand them in for settlement at once.

NO DRIFTWOOD!

NO BANKRUPT STUFF!

And we don't intend there shall be any in this store. This is a self-respecting business. The combination of the driftwood of merchandise with the bright New Spring Goods would be like the fly in the ointment—spoiling the spring-like flavour of our whole store.

Our stock is ALL this season's New Goods. Everything is new and right up-to-date. Constant newness will mark this store from day to day.

New Spring Dress Goods
New Spring Trimmings
New Spring Dress Silks
New Spring Prints and Muslins
New Spring Prints and Hosiery
New Spring Mantles and Jackets

Don't ask for last years Muslins or Dress Goods, or Umbrellas, or Gloves. We don't keep them—they have all been sold. If you must have them, inquire down street.

Our store blossoms with New Spring Novelties and Rare Values.

And remember, we propose selling the newest of the new season's goods just as cheap as the Bankrupt Sale Prices will be.

You can come and compare goods and values any time you like. Remember, too, that the new goods of this year are different from last year. The New Table Damasks are in entirely new patterns; the new Tweeds have no fringe, and so on.

You'll want no ancient styles or last year's bird's nests when you once see the crisp new things we have to show you.

We could have had lots of Bankrupt Stuffs if wanted—there's lots of it thrown on the market—but we couldn't afford to mar our new stock or take any risks.

FRANKING PRIVILEGE

The Restrictions Imposed by the Federal Government.

THE MATTER NOW IN SUSPENSE.

Mr. Haycock Wants to Know About Abolition of Government House—Discussion Over Insuring Government Buildings—The Budget Debate Continued in the Provincial Legislature.

Toronto, Feb. 25.

At the Ontario Legislature yesterday, Mr. Matheson enquired: "Has the Government received any notice from the Postoffice Department limiting the franking privilege on Government and departmental reports and papers, hitherto granted, and, if so, to what extent?"

Mr. Hardy replied that the Government had received notice which indicated the removal of the privilege from papers other than those ordered to be published by the House. A later order restricting still further had been found to be unauthorized. The matter now stood in suspense until the Dominion Government had obtained legislation.

Patron Leader Haycock's question as to whether the Government intended introducing a measure to abolish Government House was also replied to by the Premier, who stated that the matter would be referred to a committee, after which the Government could say more definitely what they would do.

Mr. Brower asked: "How many acres of farm land are under cultivation at the Asylum for the Insane at Mimico? What is the nature of the products raised, and in what quantities? What live stock is kept, and the number of each? How much butter is produced, and what is done with it?"

Hon. E. J. Davis replied that there were 133 acres under full cultivation and 30 partially so. The second question, he said, was answered in the inspector's report. Large herds of live stock were kept, but no butter was produced.

Dr. Ryerson's motion for a return showing the number and amounts covered by policies of insurance carried on the new Parliament buildings of Ontario, the companies by which they are carried, the percentage paid for insurance, the names of the agents through whom the insurance was effected, the rate per $1000 paid, and showing any special conditions attached to the policies and the general provisions of protection against fire in the buildings, adopted by the Government, was the occasion of a brief but warm debate.

In supporting his motion, the Toronto member said that the recent destruction of important property and documents at the Ottawa conflagration had drawn his attention to the subject he was introducing. He thought the Government should give some assurance of an indemnity in case of fire.

Mr. Harcourt told how the Government had refused to insure the Parliament buildings in 1895 because the insurance companies had exacted too high rates. It might be that at the present times rates as reasonable as those obtained by other corporations could be had. The School of Practical Science and Osgoode Hall were insured, and expert officials had said that everything possible had been done to afford fire protection to the legislative pile.

Mr. Miscampbell, who seconded the motion, claimed that the Provincial Treasurer had made no definite statement that any sum had been set aside as an indemnity fund in case of fire.

Mr. Harcourt contended that during the 11 or 12 years of immunity from fire the Province had saved all the premiums they would otherwise have paid out.

Dr. Ryerson thought that the Government was pursuing a reprehensible practice in not insuring the buildings. If the protection afforded the buildings was as good as was claimed, there was no necessity for charging exorbitant premiums by the companies.

Mr. Matheson contended that the Government should be their own insurers. Other large corporations, such as steamboat companies, etc., followed this principle, and set apart certain sums equal to premiums, which would otherwise be paid to insurance companies. This would be a commendable course for the Government.

Hon. Mr. Ross argued that the sum of $150,000, which had been paid out while the buildings were insured, had been virtually lost. The School of Pratical Science had been insured because of the inflammable material it contained. He did not think it was the practice of any Government to insure its public buildings. The Government had taken every precaution, and he considered had shown reasonable foresight.

Mr. Whitney retorted that if a fire were to occur to-morrow the Government would not be justified to have shown foresight.

Mr. Crawford agreed that the Government should act as its own insurer. To do this they should create a fund, and put away annually a reasonably low premium, so that if there was no fire for 10, 15 or 20 years, a nice sum could be added to the assets, while if a fire did occur they would have money to indemnify them.

Premier Hardy was surprised at the attitude of the Opposition. In former years they had attacked the Government for making an appropriation for insurance; now they were as strongly advocating one. The Government would be just as much its own insurer if it left the sum in the treasury as if it set it aside.

Mr. Rowland believed that the Government were keeping the people in a sort of fool's paradise. They claimed that they had money saved, but where was it? If a fire did occur the fast vanishing surplus would disappear altogether. He did not see any inconsistency in the two positions assumed by the Opposition. The former position was one assumed against favoritism to insurance companies in insuring the old and comparatively worthless Parliament Buildings. Passing on he referred to the present pile as "a large mountain of ill-designed stone and mortar." A very large proportion of the value of other Government buildings was stored within them. The fact that the insurance companies had recognized the greatness of the risk and demanded high rates was another case of fools' paradise.

Mr. Harcourt asked if the speaker knew that the companies had made such a contention.

Mr. Hardy was a little angry. He asked the Speaker to rule the honorable member out of order for making rash and unwarranted statements.

Mr. Whitney retorted that there was no breach of the rules in doing that.

Mr Howland then resumed that there was no occasion for dispute. He was simply quoting the words of the Provincial Treasurer himself. Concluding, Mr. Howland reiterated the argument that certain sums should be set aside for insurance purposes.

Dr. Willoughby claimed that the buildings were not fireproof and were inefficiently protected.

Hon. J. M. Gibson could see no clearly defined policy set down by the Opposition. The province had made money by the policy the Government had hitherto pursued. He was surprised at Mr. Howland's unwarranted reference to the Parliament Buildings. They were the pride of Torontonians, and that was one reason why the member for South Toronto should speak highly of them. Speaking personally, he would like to see the buildings insured and there was no reason why a high rate should be charged. Precautions against fire were unusually efficient.

Dr. Ryerson: Are they ever tested?

Mr. Gibson: Yes.

Mr. Matheson: Who oversees it?

Mr. Gibson: The housekeeper; and if it is not done, it is a matter of want of compliance with instructions. He asked the member for East Toronto to withdraw his motion.

Mr. Haycock thought the discussion a useful one. The statistics showed that [illegible] premiums had been paid insurance companies and only $38,000,000, or about 53 per cent., had been paid back in losses. The policy of having the Government its own insurer was right, but where would they get the money to set aside for premiums? [Opposition hear, hear.] To do so they would have to borrow money, sell annuities, or dispose of Crown lands.

The motion was then withdrawn, and the debate on the budget was resumed by Mr. Craig of Wellington. The honorable member defended the appropriations to education and agriculture. He challenged any member to point out an instance in which a License Commissioner in his riding had acted in a partisan manner.

Mr. Crawford replied for the Opposition. He thought it was an evidence of Mr. Harcourt's ability and tact that he had made so good a case with the material he had at hand. The Treasurer admitted that the province had liabilities and he had to admit that they must be paid. The Administration could not check expenditure and looked around to see what they could tax to make the revenue equal it. The deficits at the present rate must lead to direct taxation. He considered this due to the offices created and filled. He had no reason to doubt the word of the previous speaker, but was satisfied that at least in Toronto the License Commissioners acted against the wishes of the people.

The member for South Oxford, Dr. McKay, followed on behalf of the Government. He contended that the Government had continually decreased the expenditure for the past six years. Continuing, he arraigned Mr. Meacham for not giving the names of the hotel-keepers, whom, he had asserted, were coerced by the License Commissioners.

Mr. Meacham arose to contradict the statement. He had not refused to give the names. One of the men referred to was now dead, but he was perfectly willing to give the name of the other.

The member for Oxford retorted: "It is often very convenient to have witnesses dead, except for voting purposes, when they are often resurrected." [Laughter.] Concluding, the honorable member attacked the Opposition for looking to Quebec for a model in financial matters. The Speaker left the chair at 6 o'clock.

After recess Mr. St. John resumed the debate. He gave Sir Oliver Mowat great credit for knowing when to get out after holding power for a quarter of a century. The late Premier had left when the deficits came and direct taxation was in view, leaving behind him unfulfilled promises for his successor to carry out, notably in regard to prohibition. The Minister of Agriculture was charged with gross extravagance in incurring an expenditure of $96,261 for educating 250 pupils to be farmers at the Agricultural College, when the total receipts from fees, stock and crops only amounted to $16,482, or a deficit equal to nearly $600 per pupil per annum. The pretence of the Government that proper attention was given to agricultural subjects in the Public Schools was ridiculed as a hollow sham, inasmuch as the teachers were not qualified to teach the subjects. Another instance of extravagance was the Lands Title office in the County of York, in which the salaries alone amounted to $6712, while the total revenue was only $2055, the deficit being charged up to the Province.

Mr. German challenged the Opposition to show one instance where the license law had been administered in the interests of the Liberal party. The charge was entirely untrue. The policy of the Government was defended as economical, and the Opposition were challenged to show where expenditure could be reduced or the public money had been improperly expended.

Mr. Haycock dealt with the question of the alleged prosperity which the people of Ontario had been experiencing, which was belied by the fact that the public and municipal debt of the country was some $580,000,000, the annual charges upon which amounted to as much as the total value of the exports of cattle, sheep, hogs, swine, poultry, cheese and butter. The owner of the farm could only give a third mortgage upon his own property, as the Dominion and the municipal Governments had already put a first and second mortgage on for him. He objected to the expenditure of $10,825 for immigration, as the wrong class of immigrants were brought out, and advocated a policy which would secure the settling in Ontario of the tenant farmers, with capital, from the older countries. Regarding the franchise, he would give every person a vote between 21 and 30 years of age, but would withdraw the franchise from all who had not a certificate of education or an interest of at least $300 in property at 30 years of age. Compulsory voting might be made practicable by adopting the poll book at the last election as the basis of the voters' list.

Manufacturers Again Besiege the Commissioners.

MAKERS OF NAILS AND SCREWS

Show How, According to Their View, They Would be Ruined if the Duty Were Taken Off—Some Say They Are Not Now Protected Enough — Other Lines.

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—(Special.)—The Tariff Committee of the Cabinet, consisting of Messrs. Fielding, Paterson and Dobell, put in another busy day to-day, and had to put up with sound protectionist doctrine. At the morning sitting Mr. Stephenson of Montreal had a private interview, urging more protection to the manufacturers of book cloth. Mr. E. J. Atkinson of Gananoque had a private interview in behalf of the wire industry. Then the first public delegation were heard, and they had a two hours' siege. They represented the manufacturers of wire nails and kindred industries. Included in the delegation were representatives of the Montreal Rolling Mills, Dominion Wire Manufacturing Co., Peck, Benny & Co., Canada Saw Co., Pillow & Hersey Manufacturing Co., Canadian Lead and Barbed Wire Co., Western Wire and Nail Co., Hamilton Barbed Wire and Nail Co., James Purden & Co. of St. John were not represented, but concurred.

Mr. F. H. Whitton of the Ontario Tack Co., Hamilton, presented the case of his delegation. He said the wire nail industry at present had protection at the rate of $1 per hundred pounds, and if this were reduced it would be necessary to reduce the duty on wire. Practically there was only a protection of 30 cents per 100 pounds to the Canadian manufacturer, when his position was fully considered. He pointed out that wire in the States costs $1.15 on an average and in Canada $1.42. The average price of nails in Ontario was $2.42 at the factories; average price of nails in Pittsburg $1.50 at the factory. The average price of nails in New York was $1.60 at the factory; average price of nails in St. Louis $1.70 at the factory; average price of nails in Chicago $1.60 at the factory. Pittsburg being the cheapest market, Ontario was the chief section to be protected. Out of 92 cents duty the railroad takes 29 cents for freight on raw material and finished product, the wire drawer 13c and jobbers 20c, leaving 30c to the Canadian manufacturer to pay duty on his supplies, coal, etc., to cover difference in cost of manufacture and give 15 per cent. more nails to the keg than the American. Low prices in the States were only possible by reason of making finished products from the ore. The deputation objected to ad valorem duties. Owing to fluctuation in prices, ad valorem duties breed fraud and dishonesty, and by them the Government loses revenue. By the adoption of a system of specific duties the Government would realize a larger revenue without increasing taxes. Cases of undervaluation and sacrifice sales were pointed out, and it was also shown that in freight rates it cost double to distribute goods in Canada, compared with the United States. For instance, to points 40 miles distant, the rate from Cleve and was 8c per 100 lbs.; from Hamilton, 9c per 100 lbs. To points from 60 to 75 miles distant the rate from Cleve and was 7c, from Hamilton 13c. To points from 100 to 110 miles distant the rate from Cleveland was 8 1-2c, from Hamilton 17c. To show that American freight rates to Canadian points were lower than Canadian rates, it was pointed out that the 18c rate from Pittsburg to Canadian points carries from 340 to 400 miles; the 18c rate in Canada to Canadian points carries 74 to 76 miles. The 21c rate from Pittsburg to Canadian points carries 445 miles; the 21c rate in Canada to Canadian points carries 101 to 110 miles. The 25c rate from Pittsburg to Canadian points carries 473 to 659 miles; the 25c rate in Canada to Canadian points carries 161 to 168 miles. Mr. Whitton also showed that in closing Canadian factories, railroads, wire mills, producers of coal and other supplies, saw mills, box factories and cooper shops would be affected; farmers and others would lose the supplying of the employes' wants, and that in throwing trade to the United States it would enable them to market their surplus and keep their mills busy without giving employment to a single man discharged from Canadian factories.

Mr. Paterson said this wire nail industry was one of which much complaint had been made, that it placed special hardships on the purchaser, and the deputation did well to discuss their case in the open.

Mr. Whitton, replying to a question, said a reduction in the specific duty to 75 cents would close up every factory.

Mr. Paterson: Your figures would hardly bear that out.

Mr. Whitton: I think they do.

Mr. Paterson: When the trust collapsed in the United States, did prices go down?

Mr. Whitton: Yes, and so did raw material.

The deputation then discussed the duty on tacks, urging no reduction, but asked that the words "shoe nails" should be substituted for "sprigs," the latter word being now obsolete. Mr. Whitton said the conditions of the tack industry in the United States were vicious, manufacturers selling to-day at 40c lower than they need to do on export business, the design being to crush out small manufacturers. In view of this state of affairs a comparison of Canadian and American prices was hardly a fair one. In 1894 the duty on tacks was reduced on some lines 25 per cent., and on others 50 per cent. If there were a further reduction the trade would be seriously injured, and tacks would be still retailed at the same figure. The deputation

AUDITING MUNICIPAL ACCOUNTS.

The trend of the influence of the legislation of the Ontario Government is in the direction of promoting the public good and a notable example is the introduction by Hon. Attorney General Hardy of a bill to provide for a more thorough audit of municipal accounts. The EXAMINER has before pointed out and insisted upon the necessity of a better system of auditing the accounts of municipalities and indicated the necessity of employing auditors who were more particularly qualified for the work. The act introduced by Mr. Hardy provides not only for a better system of book-keeping in municipal and school board accounts but provides for the appointment of an officer to be known as a municipal auditor, and empowers such officer to frame rules, subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor-in Council, regulating the form of books to be used by treasurers, the system of book-keeping to be adopted, and the manner in which municipal and school board securities shall be kept. The act provides that such municipal auditor may, by his own motion, when directed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, or, if required, by a requisition in writing, signed by thirty ratepayers of a municipality, make a full audit and inspection of the books of a treasurer, or may direct such work to be done by a competent person. This official is to have full power to summon witnesses and compel the production of books and documents as in court and municipal treasurers are, within five days after their appointment, to furnish such auditor with a notice of their appointment and particulars of their sureties, and the auditor is to report to the municipality and make such recommendations as may be necessary for the carrying out of the law. The bill provides very fully for the proper audit of municipal accounts. It is a move in the right direction, and will operate as a check upon the few dishonestly inclined treasurers and at the same time protect the majority of treasurers, who are inclined to do their duty faithfully.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE increase in railroad earnings may be fairly taken as an indication of reviving business.

ON March fourth Major McKinley, President elect of the United States, will become President in reality.

A decision of the Quebec Court of Appeal is to the effect that strikes are legal so long as they are not accompanied by violence.

IT would seem that the gold mining boom has not developed any disturbing wild-cat speculation. If any such speculation has been indulged in it seems to have been done on capital that investors could afford to use for such a purpose. The latest Canadian bank statement shows that the call loans during the month of January this year were only $13,911,584, as against $15,068,200 for the corresponding month of 1896.

One of the fire-eating members of the United States Senate is considerably worked up over a discovery he made some time ago. He had evidently been reading the juvenile department of a weekly paper when he came across what is evidently an anagram or something of that sort. He discovered that the letters of the words "Great Britain" contain ominous words indicating the hated Britisher's characteristics thus:—

G-R-E-A-T B-R-I-T-A-I-N.
G-R-A-B, R-E-T-A-I-N I-T.

"There," said the Senator to a friend whom he had shown his discovery, "that tells the whole story of England's characteristics. We must watch her. She must not be permitted to out-wit us."

This may be galling to our neighbouring tail-twisters, but it seems to us to be all right. It is difficult to have too much of a really good thing. Anything that Britain grabs she retains—and her influence is always on the side of progress and enlightment. If the United States could coax its submarine navy to come to the surface once in a while she might be able to grab and retain something, too. But it appears that the only grab a certain class of American politicians are able to make is that of the British lion's tail.

The entering wedge of a fatal complaint is often a slight cold, which a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. Therefore, it is advisable to have this prompt and sure remedy always at hand to meet an emergency.

MILLBROOK.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Dr. Henry Needler, of Toronto, spent in town.

Miss Alma Throop, of Port Hope, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Henry Argue, Ann street.

Mr. R. Ruddy, Barrister, was in Toronto on Tuesday on business.

Master Eddie Cook, of St. James Cathedral, Toronto, sang in the St. Thomas church, on Sunday morning and evening last. The seating capacity of the church was taxed to its utmost on each occasion.

Mr. William Snowden, of Souris, Man., is in town, apparently in the best of health and spirits. Mr. Snowden, before his departure some years ago to Manitoba, was one of the most prominent men in this section of the country. He has undertaken the settlement of a large tract of land in the great West, and in the spring will take up a hundred settlers from around Millbrook.

A petition is being circulated in the northern part of the township of Cavan praying for the draining and opening up of a road through what is known as the "long swamp." Although the estimated cost for such an undertaking is $10,000, the petition is being well received and this is every reason to believe that the project will go through.

Millbrook will shortly lose one of its oldest and most respected citizens in the person of Dr. H. Turner, who intends leaving about the first of March for the Northwest. The doctor has been a great favourite for many years in this locality, and his many friends will be sorry to hear of his intended departure from our midst.

A social will be given in the Methodist church on Tuesday night next under the auspices of the Christian Endeavourers.

Miss Nellie McKee, who has been in town, the guest of Mrs. H. McCartney, returned home to Peterborough on Monday last.

Miss May Duncan returned home on Saturday after a two weeks visit with friends in Omemee.

Miss Lillie Pendrie who has been visiting at home for several weeks returned to Toronto last week.

Mr. F. Spencer, of Bloomfield, Prince Edward County, spent Sunday in town, the guest of Mr. Geo. F. Elliott.

Mr. Wesley Walch has been confined to his house for the past few days with a severe cold.

Mr. R. G. Johnston, the rink manager, has advertised another grand carnival to take place on Friday evening next. Suitable and valuable prizes will be awarded for gentlemen's best costume, ladies best costume and girls best costume, also prizes for different races. The citizen's band will be in attendance. Admission only 10 cents.

Miss Cotton, of Port Hope, is in town visiting Mrs. Tanner, Tupper street.

Mr. Walter Collins, of Peterborough, was in town on Tuesday.

The Smith family gave an entertainment in the town hall on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the citizen's band.

Two Years of Bladder Torment—Had Attacks of Inflammation—Cured by a few Boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Owen Sound, Feb. 22,. (Special)—The people of this town are talking again of another cure credited to Dodd's Kidney Pills. This is the case of Mr. W. Cruse, caretaker of town buildings, who, when seen had this to say of the matter:

"For over two years I have been an intense sufferer from kidney disease with occasional acute attacks of inflammation of the bladder.'

"Was under doctors' treatment and have been compelled to resort to instrumental relief many times.

"I have taken eighteen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am satisfied with results being perfectly relieved of all suffering."

OTONABEE.

From our own Correspondent.

Meeting of Otonabee council, February 15th. All the members present. A communication was read from the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Toronto, requesting aid for homeless girls. On motion no action was taken. The clerk was instructed to send for the Municipal World for the use of the council. The auditors' report was received and adopted and 200 copies ordered to be printed for distribution. The clerk was instructed to write to the Grand Trunk authorities asking them to have the planks at the crossings raised one inch above the rails, also that the approaches to some of the crossings are too steep. The following accounts were passed: D. P. McFarlane and A. Spencer, $3 each for auditing '96 accounts; Macfarlane Wilson, lamp for town hall, $5; Jas. McNeil, nails for sidewalk and culverts, $12 09 Council adjourned to March 15th.

FACTS FULL OF SUNSHINE.

FOR RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS.

Shakespeare says that "the miserable have no other medicine but only hope," but for those who are made miserable by Rheumatism, even hope has fled in a great majority of cases.

Twenty years is a long time to be the victim of a disease, and yet that is the time Thos. Stevenson, of 122 John St. South, Hamilton, makes oath that he was afflicted with Rheumatism. Twenty years' affliction is enough to banish any hope of cure, and yet Ryckman's Kootenay Cure, after everything else failed, restored Mr. Stevenson to health.

Seven years one would think too long to suffer indescribable torture, and yet Mr. C. B. Hamilton, of 131 Sydenham Street, London, Ont., endured the agonies of Rheumatism for that length of time. At times he could not use his limbs. Kootenay Cure has cured him, and he's truly thankful for it. Hundreds of others, besides these, have sworn to being cured by Ryckman's Kootenay Cure.

There is no mistaking its wonderful power. Thousands of Rheumatic Sufferers have had the sunshine of hope and health come back through its use. If you are afflicted with Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, or any Blood Disease, it will pay you to investigate. Particulars sent free on addressing the Ryckman Medicine Co., Hamilton, Ont.

THE MANUFACTURERS.

asked that the duty should be 1 1-2 cents per thousand, but not less than 35 per cent.

Mr. C. A. Birge of Hamilton then presented the case of the wood screw manufacturers, F. Fairmount of the Dominion Wire Manufacturing Company of Montreal being with him. Summed up in brief their request was "No reduction on duties." If specific duties were abolished the manufacturing establishments in Canada must be closed up and a large number of workmen thrown out of employment. Under an ad valorem duty of 35 per cent. Canadian manufacturers could not compete with the United States, owing to present peculiar conditions of the industry. The net price of Canadian manufacturers of screws of all sizes averaged 13 3-4 cents per gross, a not unreasonable figure. He asked for the retention of the present duties. The average reduction in 1894 amounted to 20.84 per cent.

Mr. Fairmount pointed out that the wood screw manufacturers in the States were now asking for an increased duty, and whatever protection was given them should correspondingly be given to the Canadian manufacturer.

Mr. Birge said the sweating process in the States was going on in regard to wood screws as with tacks. He particularly urged that the duty on the larger sizes of screws should be increased from 3 to 4 cents.

Mr. C. W. Briggs, Vice-President of the Canada Screw Company, Hamilton, submitted that in regard to machine screws (30 per cent.), stove bolts and tire bolts, stove rods and iron rivets (1c per pound and 25 per cent.), and copper rivets and bars (30 per cent.), there should be no change in the tariff, as the manufacturers "Find it hard now to compete with the present undervaluation and prices below the cost of production."

After an hour's intermission for luncheon the commissioners resumed and the barb wire manufacturers, represented by Mr. Fairman of Montreal, were heard. It was pointed out that in the United States the raw material, galvanized wire, cost from $1.50 to $1.55, and barb wire was sold at $1.65 to $1.70, a difference of only 15c to 20c, which is less than the cost of production. In Canada there are 11 factories, turning out 6000 tons, paying considerable for skilled labor, $6000 yearly for reels, and $30,000 for transportation. The lower price of raw material and larger output have enabled the manufacturers to reduce prices of barb wire until it is now being sold at $2.70 per hundredweight, delivered at almost every point east of Winnipeg. The present duty of 75c per hundredweight is used up as follows: On the galvanized wire, 32c; freight, 17c; jobbers, 14c; excess of freight over United States rates, 4 cents; total 64 cents, leaving a margin of only 8c as protection, so that if the present specific duty were reduced or removed it would mean the closing of every one of the eleven wire factories in Canada, and result in a net loss of $102,000 yearly to the country, in addition to the barb manufacturers.

The spring and axle makers were next heard, represented by Messrs. P. J. Coughlin, Montreal, carriage springs and axles and railway springs; K. W. Blackwell, Canada Switch and Spring Company; James Warnock, Galt Spring and Axle Company, and W. T. Sampson, Gananoque Spring and Axle Company. The latter submitted a statement showing that his company had $150,000 invested, employed 120 men, paid annually $70 000 in wages, and paid $10,000 in duties. Prices have been reduced in teh past ten years about 40 per cent, through local competition. The surplus product of United States factories, worked by cheap foreign labor was being slaughtered in Canada. The net protection on springs, etc., was only 15 per cent., against 45 per cent. protection in the United States. He submitted a confidential balance sheet to show the company's profits were not excessive.

Mr. Warnock pointed out that the retention of the specific duty of 1c per pound in addition to 20 per cent. ad valorem was necessary, the former being swallowed up in the duty of $10 a ton on spring steel.

Mr. Paterson having enquired if the witness had tried Nova Scotia steel, the reply was: "Yes, to a small extent; but I prefer the English to either United States or Canadian."

Mr. Matthews of Gananoque remarked that the Nova Scotia steel men asked the duty every time.

Mr. Coughlin said that while a free trader, heart and soul, he certainly thought "we should protect ourselves against the extraordinary and unfair competition from the United States." He noted that United States manufacturers were selling springs at 2 1-2c per pound, a little less than the witness could buy the spring steel for.

To a question by Mr. Paterson, he said he feared the Americans would soon control the iron and steel market of the world. He was opposed to the drawback system. Mr. Matthews added that his firm used Nova Scotia steel and found it of good quality.

Mr. Blackwell did not ask for free raw material, but urged no alteration in the specific duty on switches and springs.

Mr. H. D. Warren, President of the Gutta Percha and Rubber Company of Toronto, said their position was simply that they wanted to be left alone. He submitted a statement showing that the Canadian protection on rubber manufactures was less than the lowest tariff in the States. The duty on rubber did not affect the farmer, who was but a very small consumer of rubber. Except the Pioneer Company of Montreal, all the others had lost money. The market was so limited that machines were idle half the time and wages were higher than in the United States, because all round men had to be employed here instead of specialists. The output was quite miscellaneous, a severe handicap. He hoped that, a reduction having been made in 1894, no change would be made now. He added that the present tariff uncertainty was paralyzing business.

Mr. McGill of the Canada Rubber Company spoke in like manner.

Messrs. J. B. Payne and John Archibald of Granby, Que., gave their statement in private on the tobacco question.

The glass manufacturers were next heard. Mr. David Yuile, Montreal, representing the Diamond Glass Company, said there were eleven of the factories in Canada practically running as one. They paid half a million in wages annually and produced to the value of about a million. He complained of subsidized German competition. What cost the Canadian manufacturer $100 to turn out cost the German only $60; the production was only 20 per cent. He asked an added specific duty of 5c a dozen on blown tumblers and 1c per dozen on bottles.

Mr. Snider of the Dominion Glass Company, Montreal, gave some interesting evidence. His chief complaint was of slaughter sales of lamp chimneys from the United States. It was one particular firm he was after, to use Mr. Snider's own words. He produced a circular of this United States firm reading: "We will sell our second grade chimneys outside the United States for what they will fetch; we sell no seconds in the United States." Mr. Snider said this was just what this Yankee manufacturer was doing, selling seconds in Canada for what they would fetch. "Ten cents a dozen more duty will protect us against this unfair competition," he added. "It seems a large duty to ask, but it's right." His factory sold lamp chimneys at 26c to 38c per dozen, according to size; the selling price of these American seconds was 17c to 20c.

Mr. Fielding observed that the protection asked was about equal to 90 per cent., and suggested, facetiously, that it might be as well to provide that the American maker should not give his goods away.

Mr. Snider: He'll not do that. If we get this duty it'll pay him better to break up his seconds and use them over again.

Mr. G. S. Wilcox of the Ontario Rolling Mills, Hamilton, submitted a statement in support of the retention of the duty on their iron products. Amongst other things it was suggested that there should be a bonus on pig iron only, as puddle bar and steel ingot could not be produced cheaply enough in Canada to allow the rolling mills of this country to compete with those of the United States. He suggested confidentially certain changes in the duty on scrap iron.

Mr. William Abbott, Montreal, urged that no reduction be made in the duty on cut nails. He also asked that the present duty of 30 per cent. on horse shoes be changed to "once cent per pound specific, and not less than 30 per cent."

Mr. Wilcox asked that if any reduction be made in the duty on bar iron, the duty be reduced on bituminous coal for rolling mill purposes. At present, laid down in Hamilton, United States soft coal cost five times what it did in the States. The duty was 60 cents a ton, and it took a ton of coal to produce a ton of bar iron.

Mr. William Small, Canada Horse Shoe Nail Co., Montreal, representing also others in the business, asked practically that no change be made in the tariff.

The Paper Makers' Association, represented by Mr. J. C. Wilson, Lachute, Mr. Barber, W. H. Rowley of the E. B. Eddy Company and others, desired to be heard in private. Their spokesmen said they might have to mention names that it would not be well to have published. It is understood they asked, among other concessions, an export duty on pulp wood.

A delegation of wall paper manufacturers was also included in the private hearing with the paper manufacturers.

Messrs. H. E. Stearns and R. Henderson, Montreal, representing the cotton batting and wadding industry, desired no change in the tariff, but asked a different customs classification.

The last deputation was composed of representatives of the Canada Stone and China Ware Company. Messrs. Raoul Aube and E. P. Earle of St. Johns, P.Q. They represented that, although the present duty of 30 per cent. was insufficient protection, foreign competition was helped by the sale of surplus goods in Canada at slaughter prices. It was instanced that an ordinary printed dinner set which sells in France for $4.60 is laid down in Toronto for $3.75 f.o.b., while a similar plain white set could not be sold by the Canada Co. at less than $4.10. They therefore asked for the enforcement of the customs law which rates goods for duty at the selling price in the country of production. Also that duty be reimposed on packages, and that, as they were going into the manufacture of printed ware, duty on that class of goods be made 40 per cent.

It was after 7 o'clock when an adjournment was made, the sitting practically concluding the inquiry stage of the Tariff Commission's labors.

A CASE OF DIABETES.

No Help From Medical Men—Suffered for Many Years—Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

North Bruce, Feb. 15 (Special)—An old and well known settler in this Township, named Thomas Brooks, who lives on lots 7 and 8 in the 14th concession is rejoicing with his neighbours over his recent recovery, and he said:

"I was cured by using twenty-four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and as nothing else ever helped me I say they saved my life."

"I had tried all the doctors of this locality and was treated for Diabetes, hoping and suffering for years."

"From reading of cures I determined to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I must say that after using the first box I would have considered them reasonable at ten dollars a box."

Novel Way to Pay Debts.

Debt collecting is not an easy process in Kansas. This fact has long weighed on the mind of Mr. Fred Westhoff, blacksmith, of Wathena, who is obliged to give credit to the farmers for whom he works. After long thought, he decided to try a new method of debt collecting.

To all his debtors he sent out the following instruction:

"As I have to meet payment of a note I find it necessary to call upon all those who are indebted to me to help me out as much as you can. Therefore I have decided to select one day, and kindly request your presence at my shop at Wathena, and pay the amount herein stated, and to all those complying with this request will receive a special treat. Lunch and refreshments will be served from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. in my basement that day, and a very good time assured to all present. Please present this card when you call, and show the amount of your account which is —— dollars and —— cents. Hoping all will respond, and you will have a good social afternoon."

The treat offered was a great inducement to the thrifty Kansas farmers. It was all the more attractive because beer was provided and Kansas was a prohibition state. Hardly one of those who came had the cheek to refuse to pay his bill and the entertainment was a great success. The scheme will be employed regularly by Mr. Westhoff.—San Francisco Examiner.

Chase's Ointment Cures All Skin Irritations.

GRACIE AITON.

Of the many skin diseases, eczema is one of the worst and most common. The one effective remedy so far discovered for it is Dr. Chase's Ointment. It has never been known to fail. Mr. Andrew Aiton, of Hartland, N.B., says:

"My little daughter, Grace Ella, aged three and a half, was a dreadful sufferer from eczema for three years. We tried a number of alleged cures and several doctors, but all without effect. Her's was indeed a bad case. Her little body was entirely covered with rash. One day our local druggist, Mr. Wm. E. Thistle, recommended me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. I did so, and four boxes effected a complete cure and saved our child."

Dr Chase's Ointment is just as effective for piles, salt rheum and sores of all descriptions. For sale by all dealers and Edmanson, Bates & Co., manufacturers, Toronto; price 60 cents.

There is nothing to equal Chase's Linseed and Turpentine for severe colds and lung troubles. Large bottle 25 cents.

"The Eloquence of Art and Heart."

A lecture under the auspices of the W. F.M.S. will be given by the Rev. J. G. Potter in St. Andrew's school room on Friday, March 5th, entitled "The Eloquence of Art and Heart." Silver collection. 2d

"Owe No Man Anything."

This means that you should expect greater temporal happiness as well as prosperity if you "pay as you go." Read H. LeBrun & Co's. advertisement on this subject in another column. March will soon be here, and as Mr. LeBrun requires all overdue accounts to be settled by the first of the month, there's not much time to lose. Kindly remember and act accordingly. dw

Bring your bottles to the Great Perfume Sale, at MULLIGAN & POTTER'S Music Store, Friday and Saturday, Professor Hanison, of New York, will play all the latest music, on the world's renowned Gerhard Heintzman Piano. Sheet music 5 cents per copy. 2d-47

A Sudden Success.

Everyone is asking "What is the new tune, which I hear hummed and whistled wherever I go?" It is no secret. It is the chorus of "The Land of the Maple," the new patriotic song written by Mr. H. H. Godfrey, and published by the Mason & Risch Piano Co., 32 King street West, Toronto, at 25c a copy, (mail stamps). The melody and words are both so simple that they are learned in a few minutes. Public singers are using it freely as an encore song, and apart from the musical quality of the sentiment expressed, ensures a round of applause at every verse. We have so few Canadian national songs that this one is bound to make a mark.

OUR TAXES NOT THE HIGHEST.

Peterborough's Rate of Taxation Less per Head Than That of any Similarly Situated Municipality in the Province.

We in Peterborough think we are heavily enough burdened with taxation, but when we consider the plight of our sister towns and cities of approximately similar resources, we have occasion for congratulation. The Insurance and Finance Chronicle, a high authority in financial matters, presents a table showing the taxation of such a group of towns and cities, as follows:—

Cities and Towns.	Taxation per Head.
Montreal	$12 00
Toronto	17 22
Hamilton	10 34
Ottawa	8 89
London	9 81
Kingston	7 28
Brantford	7 51
Windsor	13 22
St. Catharines	9 47
Belleville	8 26
Stratford	5 14
St. Thomas	5 57
Peterborough	6 50
Owen Sound	5 16
Woodstock	6 55
Galt	6 61
Cobourg	9 04
Brockville	10 21
Guelph	8 68

In this table it will be seen that Peterborough has the lowest rate of taxation—$6.50 per head, and Toronto the highest, $17.22 per head of population. If outsiders, therefore, wish to take up residence in a town that has the lightest taxation in the province they will, of course, have to select Peterborough. We may growl and grumble at our civic rulers, but there is this comfort, that we have to pay a lower rate of taxation than any city or town in the province.

COST OF TOWN SEWERAGE.

The Expense of Drainage has Been Much Overestimated.

The citizens of Peterborough appear to have been labouring under a most erroneous impression regarding the cost of the construction of the new system of sewerage along those streets set forth in the report of the Sewerage Committee when the work for the year was being outlined. Through misstatements which were made the expense involved was imagined to be far greater than it is in reality.

In order to allay such fears and thus far satisfy the residents on the streets where the sewers will be excavated this year the following estimate of the cost, prepared by Mr. S. Belcher, Town Engineer, is submitted:

15 inch pipe sewer $1.55 per lineal foot.
12 " " 1.35 "
9 " " 1.10 "

The annual tax to cover sinking fund and interest under 30 years debentures per foot frontage on each side of the streets named will be as follows:

15 inch pipe 6½ cents per foot frontage.
12 " 4½ " "
9 " 3½ " "

The above figures are the result of the information gained by Mr. Best and Mr. Belcher, on their recent visit to Toronto, where they were given an opportunity of profitting by the experience of the engineering corps of that city.

Boys Brigade.

Last Sunday steps were taken in George street Methodist, St. Paul's and St. Andrew's Sunday schools to form a Boys' Brigade. It was decided to hold a mass meeting in the Sunday school room of St. Andrew's church to-morrow evening at 7.30 p. m. prompt, when full explanations will be given of the Boys' Brigades of Canada. All Sunday school teachers and superintendents will be heartily welcomed. It is expected that an example of the drill and other work will be given. All boys between the ages of ten and seventeen years are eligible and it is hoped that all interested in the movement will be in attendance.

DOURO WEDDINGS.

Two Matrimonial Events and a Golden Wedding.

Douro had two interesting weddings on Wednesday, Feb. 24th.

O'CONNOR—O'BRIEN.

In the morning in St. Joseph's church, at 7.30, V. Rev. Father Brown, V.G., performed the ceremony that united in the holy bonds of matrimony Mr. R. A. O'Connor and Miss Mary O'Brien, daughter of Mr. Michael O'Brien. The bride was assisted by Miss Bridget O'Connor, and Mr. J. O'Brien supported the groom. The happy pair left, after the ceremony, for Merrickville and points east on a bridal tour, followed by the good wishes of their many friends.

M'CARTHY—FOLEY.

At 10 a.m. St. Joseph's was again the scene of an interesting matrimonial event, Rev. Father Phelan performing the ceremony that united in the holy bonds of wedlock, Mr. J. F. McCarthy, of Asphodel, and Miss Mary Agnes Foley, daughter of Mr. James Foley, Indian River. The bride, who was charming in her bridal attire, was attended by her sister, Miss Ada Foley and Mr. D. J. McCarthy, of Norwood, supported the groom. At the conclusion of the wedding ceremony nuptial high mass was sung by Rev. Father Phelan. At the mass the choir of St. Paul's church Norwood, assisted Miss Dunn, the organist, singing several appropriate selections incidental to the service. A large number of friends of the contracting parties was present from Douro and Norwood, an evidence of the very high esteem in which they are held, and similar evidence was afforded by the great number of handsome and valuable bridal presents of which the bride was the recipient.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Another matrimonial event of great interest was the celebration of the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. John Crandley, of Douro. Fifty years ago, February 23rd, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, at that time parish priest of Douro, performed the ceremony that united in marriage Mr. John Crandley, of Douro, and Miss Catherine Dwyer, of Dummer. In pious commemoration of the unusual and auspicious event of the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Crandley, accompanied by a large number of their numerous friends, attended mass at St. Joseph's church, which was celebrated at 8.30 a.m., by Rev. Father Phelan. This solemn service was followed by the usual festivities at the home of the venerable couple, who are both, though they have passed the Psalmist's allotted period of life, in good health. The EXAMINER joins with their many friends in wishing them many more happy returns of their wedding anniversary with the hope that the evening of life may be peaceful and happy.

PETERBOROUGH CHEESE BOARD.

Largely Attended Annual Meeting—Important Matters Discussed—Meeting of the Eastern Dairyman's Association to be Held Here.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board, held in the town council chamber, on Saturday afternoon, was largely attended, there being present a large number of salesmen as well as patrons.

Mr. J. M. Drummond, president, occupied the chair and gave a brief but interesting summary of last year's operations, congratulated the board on the success of the season's operations and the justification afforded of the wisdom of selling instead of holding cheese. Altogether fair prices were realized during the season.

Mr. Middleton, secretary, read the minutes of the last annual meeting, which were on motion adopted.

The report of Mr. Samuel Edwards, treasurer, presented a gratifying condition of the finances, their being a cash surplus of nearly $100. It was adopted.

THE ELECTION OF OFFICERS

resulted in the selection of the old board with the exception of the secretary, Mr. G. J. Galvin taking the place of Mr. Middleton, who retired. The following are the officers elected for the current year:

President—Mr. J. M. Drummond.
Vice-President—Mr. Geo. Stewart.
Secretary—Mr. G. J. Galvin.
Treasurer—Mr. Samuel Edwards.

Several important subjects of technical interest to the board were discussed and strong ground was taken against the practice of beginning the manufacture of cheese before the first of May, such a practice tending to produce inferior cheese, which in turn tended to impair the reputation of cheese and consequently the lowered price of the season's make.

A committee was appointed consisting of the President of the Board, Mr. J. M. Drummond, the Vice-President, Mr. Geo. Stewart, the Secretary, Mr. G. J. Galvin, Wm. Yelland, Mayor of Peterborough, and Mr. Wm. Anderson, Warden of the county, to arrange for the holding of the next annual meeting of the Eastern Dairymen's Association in Peterborough. The committee was empowered to extend a cordial invitation and also, in case it was accepted, to make the necessary arrangements for the accomodation and entertainment of the members of the association.

The first meeting of Board for sales was fixed for Tuesday, May 18th, at one o'clock p. m.

$1,000,000 WAITING HEIRS.

All That is Necessary is to Establish Kinship to One John Kenneally.

In these hard times a cool million would be appreciated by almost any man, but it is seldom that such a sum lies waiting an owner. Notwithstanding there is $1,000,000 in the hands of an administrator in New York City and the money has lain there for some years awaiting the heirs of one John Kenneally.

Col. M. J. Hendrick, U. S. Consul, of Belleville, gives the following facts:

John Kenneally was born in the town of Tipperary, Ireland, and in 1818 enlisted in the 68th Regiment of Foot, which was afterwards sent to Canada and stationed at Amherstburg. His wife's name was Mary Finn. To them were born two sons. Upon Kenneally returning to Ireland with his regiment he left his sons in charge of a Catholic priest named Father J. B. Proulx, then a missionary among the Indians in the Manitoulin Islands. Since that time all trace of the two boys have been lost. Father Proulx was afterwards stationed at Newmarket and Toronto, and died in the Province of Quebec in 1885. John Kenneally had a bachelor brother who lived in New York and amassed the fortune which now awaits claimants. John Kenneally, after returning to Ireland, came again to Canada and took up land near Penetanguishine. He also lived at York (now Toronto) in 1832.

There are parties residing in Lima, N.Y. who claim to be the direct heirs of John Kenneally, but they lack certain links in their claim of identification. Col. Hendrick has interested himself in their behalf, and any information which will will lead to the two sons of John Kenneally or their descendants will be gladly received by him.

CARD OF THANKS.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—Permit me through your paper to express to the Temperance and General Life Assurance Company our sincere thanks for their very prompt payment of Policy on the life of Wm. W. Shearer. To their local agent, Mr. J. O. Fife, Keene, and the District Manager, Mr. H. P. LILY LAKE LITERARY SOCIETY.

An Interesting Debate Held Feb. 19th.

The Lily Lake Literary Society held its regular weekly meeting in the school house section No. 1, Smith, on Feb. 19th, the President in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed and the critic gave an interesting and instructive report. After the transaction of regular business, a short programme of vocal and instrumental music was rendered, interspersed with readings, recitations, etc., followed by a debate on the subject—Resolved, "That winter pleasures are to preferred to those of summer." Affirmative. Miss Lillie Middleton and Fred Agnew; negative, Miss Sadie Young and Jos. Middleton. The verdict in favour of the negative. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

The Late John W. Jenkins.

At a special meeting of Court Littlejohn, No. 92, C.O.F., held in the Court room, Hunter street, on Wednesday, 24th inst., the following resolution of condolence was passed to the widow and family of the late Bro. John W. Jenkins:

To Mrs. John W. Jenkins and family:

Whereas, the members of Court Littlejohn, No. 92, C.O.F., desire to tender to you their sincere sympathy and condolence in the sad bereavement you have been called upon to sustain by the death of your husband and our brother.

Resolved, that while we, the members of this Court, desire to express to you our sincere feelings of fraternal regret as Foresters in being called upon to mourn the loss of one of our useful and much respected brother, we know that our sorrow can bear no comparison to the great grief of the widow who has been deprived of her dearest life companion by the hand of death.

Resolved, that in the midst of these constantly recurring afflictions, we pray that the comforting promise of an all-wise and merciful Providence will come to you and your family and bring light out of these dark hours which shall chase away all sorrow and sighing. And when the hour comes for us to pass "within the low green tent whose curtain never outward swings," may we have the assurance of finding just beyond the line that separates time from eternity, our dear friends who have gone before, as well as the realities of which we have here only imperfect symbols.

Resolved, that our Charter be draped in mourning for 60 days, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the widow of our deceased brother, as well as engrossed on the minutes.

(Signed)

RAILWAY NOTES.

Sparks From the Wheels—Cinders for the Eye.

President Van Horne, of the C.P.R., has writen to the silverplate manufacturers who recently complained of the action of Mr. Geo. Chillas, the Inspector of Watches, in using unfair means to obtain orders for firms which he represented, a letter of which we subjoin a copy:

Referring to the Chillas case, Mr. Tait, our assistant general manager, who inaugurated the watch inspector system, has already secured information which convinces him that he has been deceived in the matter referred to, and he has taken steps for the immediate termination of the arrangement with Chillas. I am exceedingly annoyed that the name of the C. P. R. Co. should ever have been connected with such a thing, and I am greatly obliged to you for having called the attention of the management to it. Yours truly. (Signed.)
W. C. VAN HORNE.

Roadmaster McNabb, who has been in the employ of the Grand Trunk for the last forty-three years, and is now stationed on the local division, has received a notice from headquarters that his office has been abolished, and his services will therefore be no longer required.

For some weeks it has been rumoured among railway employees, says the Toronto News, that serious differences existed between the Grand Trunk and its telegraph operators. Reports have even stated that the latter were about to adopt similar steps to those taken by their brethren on the C.P.R. to obtain redress of grievances. Be that as it may, a general meeting was held in Montreal on Monday for the purpose of selecting a grievance committee to wait upon General Manager Hays and ask that the inequalities complained of be rectified. Some of the alleged grievances are low wages, improper work and the introduction of American labour. It is understood that the operators are trying to obtain the co-operation of the other branches of the G.T.R. service, such as the conductors, brakemen and engineers, and some of them think that joint action of all orders may be taken at no distant day.

Game Law Amendments.

County Councillor R. E. Moore, of Lion's head, Bruce County, interviewed the Commissioner of Crown Lands Wednesday with reference to certain game law amendments in the Bruce Peninsula. Mr. Moore stated that if the present slaughter of deer in that region was allowed to continue there will not be one left in the country ere long. He suggests that all outsiders be prohibited from shooting deer during the next four years and that the season for settlers be limited to one week. The Commissioner of Crown Lands expressed himself as favourable to the proposition.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BIBLE SOCIETY.

REPORTS SUBMITTED BY THE SECRETARY AND TREASURER.

Rev. W. F. Wilson, of Toronto, Delivers an Address to a Large Audience in the George street Methodist Church.

The sixtieth annual meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Bible Society, was held last evening in the George street Methodist church, with Sheriff Hall presiding.

The attendance was very large, the body of the church being well filled. On the platform were seated Rev. Dr. Torrance, Rev. W. R. Young, B. A., Rev. J. J. Rae, Rev. J. G. Potter, and Rev. W. F. Wilson of Toronto.

The annual reports of the society were submitted, after the devotional exercises had been conducted by Rev. A. T. Dykeman and Rev Dr. Torrance.

Rev. J. G. Potter as secretary, then read the following report:—

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

This is an eventful occasion in the life of the Peterborough Auxiliary to the British and Foreign Bible Society. A few months before Her Majesty Queen Victoria ascended the British throne this branch was organized. We thus reach our sixtieth year to-night and I trust that this notable occasion will be marked by a good liberal Victorian collection, in view of the fact that nothing has done more for the glory and success of Britain, and for the majesty of Britain's Queen than the Word of God.

In looking over the records I find that in the interests of the Bible Society have been found Peterborough's noblest sons, and revered and respected citizens, who have ever sought to further the work of the society, and stimulate a deep interest in the Scriptures.

The work of the Bible Society is a gigantic one. All over the world it has made great progress and the circulation of the Scriptures has been greater than ever before. In Mohammedan countries there has been an unusual desire for the Sacred Scriptures. In the vast Russian Empire the Word of God has been scattered abroad and even the Eastern troubles have opened up the way as never before for the diffusion of the Gospel. Last year 3,978,439 copies of the Scriptures, including Bibles, Testaments and portions were issued, being 132,217 in excess of the previous year. Since the organization of the parent society 147,328,699 copies have been issued. Yet we are not to imagine that our work is done. The demand for free circulation was never greater than at the present time. The population of the British Empire alone is estimated at 277,902,267. The society has gone hand in hand with the missionary enterprise and when many of the missionaries have fallen the sacred writings of the Son of God have found a lodging place in the hearts and minds of the natives, and to-day we find Uganda producing students of the Bible by thousands.

The work of the U. C. B. S. with which are identified has been progressive, although financially they have felt the effects of the general trade depression. Nevertheless the different departments of the work have been prosecuted with fidelity and with great success. The work consists mainly of colportage work, and this is carried on in Ontario, Manitoba, the Northwest Territories and British Columbia, while through the Quebec Bible Society we have been able to render material help for the propagation of the Holy Scriptures in that province. The following is the statement of our own work:

Rev. W. F. Wilson, of Toronto, who was ordained in Peterborough ten years ago and who has acquired a more than Provincial reputation as a speaker, then addressed those assembled. As a worker his energy justifies the appellation which is sometimes applied to him. "The Bible," of course formed the basis of the speaker's remarks. The name of Mary Jones, he claimed, would go down the ages as one who had as much to do with the organization of the Bible Society as Robert Raikes had to do with Sunday schools, or Luther with the "Reformation." The society stood unique amongst all organizations. It was prominently British and for that all were grateful, as Great Britain leads the world in liberty, justice, education, commerce and religion.

There were other societies whose objects were also sublime such as those for the conversion of the heathen, the evangelization of the Jews, etc. Yet it seemed that this society stood preeminent above them all as it held in its hands the Book which must be the torch of all organizations formed for the glory of God and the upbuilding of the world.

In speaking of the audience Mr. Wilson remarked that though they might differ in their views concerning church discipline and other small details, yet it was representative of the church of Jesus Christ, when gathering around the grand old Book and realising that millions had no knowledge of it.

The Bible was marvellous in its construction, its preservation and its power. Composed of sixty six different parts, written by forty different men in palaces and in prisons, by kings, statesmen, fishermen and shepherds, this grand old Book written by so many, differing in social standing and yet all through is found the same spirit and purpose inspiring them all. Take it from us, continued the speaker, and we ask to die—we love it. It comes to rich and poor, palace and cot, learned and unlettered and reveals to all God's message of matchless love.

It is criticised and defects pointed out, but this is not the feeling of kings and queens of intellect to-day. The great men of the day are those who bow low and pay tribute to the grand old book. If it is wrong why has not another been written, why has not another sermon been preached from the mount, and why are there not ten more commandments framed?

The Bible comes to us to-day in its majesty as eternal as the hills and as irresistible as the march of the stars. The book is the most restraining force in the world to-day. The Word of God is the great conscience book of the world. It is now playing a very important part in the formation of nations, in the establishment of homes and in the upholding of Christianity, and salvation of souls. It is a summary of man's rights and liberties. It never stood as high and as strong among nations as at this hour. It has helped more than any other force to build up commerce. The missionary with his Bible opens up the way for the mechanic and the merchant, and close upon the erection of the cross is the erection of the school house.

At the conclusion of his address the the speaker was made the recipient of a warm vote of thanks, on motion of Rev. Dr. Torrance and Mr. D. W. Dumble.

When a young couple runs away to get married half the world says: "How Romantic!" the other half says: "How silly!" But you can't tell either way until the "honey-moon" is over. When this young couple get settled down to the regular hum-drum of life, they'll manage all right and find solid happiness in any case, if they have good hearts and sound health. All depends on that.

It's wonderful how much health has to do with married happiness. Sickness affects the temper. You can't be happy nor make others happy if you're ailing. When you find yourself irritable, easily worried, beginning to "run-down" it's because your blood is getting poor. You need richer blood and more of it. Your blood-making organs need to be vitalized by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It imparts new power to produce an abundance of the healthy, red corpuscles, and gives you a fresh supply of pure, rich blood. It's a blood-creator; it is for everyone whose blood is impure or in a poor, "run-down" condition. It prevents the germs of disease from getting a hold on your system. Even after disease is settled on you, it is driven out by the blood-creating properties of the "Discovery." It is a perfect cure for general and nervous debility, catarrh, malaria, eczema, erysipelas, scrofula and every form of blood-disease. It is'nt called a consumption-cure but even consumption,—which has its roots in the blood—is driven out by the "Golden Medical Discovery" if taken in time.

The "Discovery" is the prescription of one of the most eminent physicians and medical writers in this country.

THE CRETAN TROUBLE

Foreign Warships Blockade the Island Coasts.

BRITISH VESSELS MOST ACTIVE.

Her Torpedo Boats Moving Rapidly Up and Down to Prevent Landing of Troops and Stores - Firing Resumed at Canea—Turkish Warship in Action.

Athens, Feb. 23.—A despatch to The Asty from Canea says that the foreign warships are now rigorously blockading the coast of Crete. The British torpedo boats are especially active, rapidly steaming along the coast and keeping a sharp look-out to prevent the landing of troops, provisions or munitions or war. Many vessels have been stopped by the blockading fleets and not allowed to proceed until they satisfactorily proved that they were engaged in legitimate business. So strict is the blockade that the carrying of letters to the Piraeus from the force of Col. Vassos, the commander of the Greek army of occupation, is prohibited.

The entire country is in a state of intense anxiety and unrest over the situation, and there is the wildest speculation as to what the final outcome will be. The people are deeply incensed against the powers for their intervention in Crete and their attitude is causing some apprehension in court and Government circles. King George today issued a proclamation that is intended to cool the popular passions and thus avert what might prove a national crisis. He enjoins the country to be calm and dignified and to confide in the Government, which, he says, is doing everything possible to uphold the honor of Greece and maintain the rights of the Hellenic peoples.

More Firing at Canea.

Canea, Feb. 23.—Great excitement was caused here last night by smart rifle firing to the westward of the town. It was soon learned that the firing was taking place between the Turkish outposts and Christian insurgents, and the report spread that the outposts had been driven back and the insurgents were approaching the town. Crowds of residents went to the ramparts of the city and anxiously watched the outcome of the fighting. The firing ceased in a short time without either side having gained any material advantage or so far as known causing any casualties.

A Turkish warship in Suda Bay and the soldiers in the arsenal there today fired repeatedly at the village, which was shelled Sunday by the foreign fleets. There was absolutely no reason for this attack except that the Turks were desirous of provoking an occasion for further intervention on the part of the European powers. A white flag was flying over the position occupied by the insurgents, but this did not prevent the firing. The insurgents, understanding probably the motives of the Turks, did not reply to the fire.

The leaders of the insurgents who were shelled Sunday have made through the Greek commodore a formal protest against the action of the foreign admirals. They declare in their protest that, acting in obedience to the powers, they refrained from actual hostilities against the Moslems as long as it was possible, but the Turks having shelled their position for two days, they were finally compelled to reply to the fire. They ask whether the powers are determined to allow the Turks to destroy the Christians in Crete, as they did the Armenians in Anatolia.

Fighting has been going on all day to-day above Tuzla on Suda Bay. No details have yet been received.

THE BOMBARDING SIGNAL

Was Given by the Italian Admiral, Who is Senior Officer.

London, Feb. 23.—In the House of Commons to-day Right Hon. George N. Curson, Parliamentary Secretary to the Foreign Office, said in reply to an inquiry upon the subject that the signal for the bombardment of the insurgents' position at Canea was given by Admiral Canevaro of the Italian navy as commander of the united fleets, by reason of seniority.

Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Treasury, replying to the request made yesterday by Sir William Harcourt that the instructions given to the British admiral at Canea be laid before the House, said that he was compelled to decline to comply with the demand as it would be impolitic to do so.

Turkish Troops Cut Up.

Berlin, Feb. 23.—A despatch received here to-day from Constantinople says that the Turkish Government has informed the Ambassadors that two companies of Turkish troops were cut up by the insurgents at Voukoulis, and that only one officer and sixty men escaped.

Withdrawal of Troops Demanded.

Vienna, Feb. 23.—According to despatches received here from Athens this morning the representatives of the powers made a demand upon the Government of Greece to-day for the withdrawal of the Greek troops from the Island of Crete.

It was the intention of Emperor Francis Joseph to have started for Cap Martin for a season of recreation yesterday, but in view of the still unsettled state of affairs in Crete the Emperor has deferred his departure until next Sunday.

MILITIA CHANGES.

Orders Signed by Hon. Dr. Borden Before He Left for Lakewood—Ottawa General News.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—(Special.)—Hon. Dr. Borden, Minister of Militia, left for Lakewood, N.J., to-day. Before his departure he signed a militia general order, in which the following appear: Lieut.-Col. John Gray, Inspector of Stores, is retired, to retain the rank of Lieut.-Col. on retirement.

The Governor-General's Body Guard—The services of Lieut. William B. Hagerman are dispensed with.

1st Hussars—A Squadron, to be second lieut., provisionally, Alexander St. Mackintosh; B Squadron, to be second lieutenants, provisionally, John Becket Kilgour and Henry Randolph Abbott.

9th Toronto Field Battery—To be second lieutenant, provisionally, Edward Hastings Bickford.

48th Battalion, Highlanders—To be second lieutenants, provisionally, Arthur Pearcy Taylor, and Colin Larke Harbottle.

34th Ontario Battalion—To be surgeon lieutenant, provisionally, Second Lieut. David Alexander Clark, vice Bogart, retired.

35th Battalion, Simcoe Foresters—No. 1 Company, Lieut. Charles Franklin Ward resigns his position.

36th Peel Battalion, No. 1 Company—Capt. James Scott Brown resigns his commission. To be second lieutenant, provisionally, John Alexander Trimble, vice Brown, retired.

57th Battalion of Infantry, Peterboro Rangers—To be honorary chaplain, Rev. John Cheyne Davidson.

77th Wentworth Battalion—Quartermaster and honorary captain, William Roddick, having left the limits, his name is removed from the list of officers.

Infantry—To be lieut.-col., from May 4, 1876, James Zaccheus Rogers, from the retired list of lieut.-colonels. To be major, from Dec. 16, 1892, John Dunlop Hay, from the retired list of majors.

Simcoe Regiment—To be lieut.-col., Capt. D. F. MacWatt, from No. 1 Company, vice John MacWatt, deceased.

The Department of Marine will issue in about ten days a new map, showing the navigation of the Lake of the Woods. It will be of great value to persons interested in mining in that district. Great care has been expended by Col. Anderson in preparation of the map, resort having been made to all available sources of information, as well as departmental records. It will be supplied through the Printing Bureau at the price of $1 per copy. The Marine Department has only two lights in operation on the Lake of the Woods, but two others are being constructed this winter. About 180 buoys are used in summer time to mark navigable channels.

As soon as a supply of Lee-Enfield rifles is forwarded to the different city corps about 50 rounds of blank ammunition will be sent to the headquarters of each corps in order that the men may be instructed as to the best way in which to load the new weapon.

A serious accident occurred this morning at the drill hall. As is customary since the P.L.D. guards started rifle practice with the Morris tube, several members of the troop were shooting, and Mr. Thomas Christian, caretaker of the Dragoon Guards, was acting as marker. When standing close to the target, and in no way protected, the rifle accidentally went off while Mr. McIntosh, son of Rev. Wm. McIntosh, was preparing to shoot. The ball penetrated Mr. Christian's left side and lodged in his back. Doctors succeeded in extracting the bullet. Christian is very low to-night.

The action to set aside the election of Ald. Butler in Victoria Ward came up for hearing before Judge Mosgrove this morning. Immediately on the opening of the court, Mr. Horace Pratt, on behalf of the relator, Andrew Masson, stated that his client had been deceived and he wished at that late hour to withdraw from the case and not to have anything further to do with the matter. The judge there upon dismissed the case with costs on plaintiff.

In Ministerial circles it is denied that Dr. Borden purposes to retire from the Ministry, and it is believed that with three weeks' rest he will be all right again. No one will rejoice more at such a consummation than his political opponents.

LONG-WINDED CREDIT

Peterborough, Feb. 10th, 1897.

NOTICE—From and after this date, Messrs H. LeBRUN & CO. have decided to shorten the Term of Credit heretofore given, and, in future, no goods will be sold except for Cash, or on such limited time as may be mutually arranged.

We believe the safest way to do business in these days is to sell for Cash. The next best way is to sell on short dates. Many of our customers who have regularly paid their bills after a reasonable term of credit, would perhaps feel the "Spot Cash" system a hardship, especially while times are so hard and money so scarce. We regard these customers as among the best we have, and are quite satisfied to continue to extend to them the same terms of limited credit they have been accustomed to enjoy.

Our chief complaint is with the "long-winded" customer, who compels us to say that he makes business-life a down-right worry. It makes no difference to us whether a man is worth a million if he won't pay his account. When we need money for our business and are repeatedly put off with "promises to pay" by those who are well able to pay, we have no use for such trade. If every customer treated us in that way we could not carry on business at all. Besides, it is very disagreeable to us to have to "dun" a customer half a dozen times, or spend the profits in postage stamps, and wearing out shoe-leather to boot. We are compelled, therefore, to shut down at once on long credits. Those who can't pay within a reasonable time, we don't want their account in future.

There is a resolution all over the country in favour of Cash or shorter Credits. Cash is a more powerful friend now than ever, and if we must compete with the Cash Stores, who save their discounts, we can't afford to give long credit. Wholesale houses are now offering such big baits in the way of Cash Discounts that we must be prepared to take advantage of them or be handicapped.

All past due Accounts must be settled by the 1st of March; after that date they will be placed in Court for collection. All parties having contra accounts against us are requested to hand them in for settlement at once.

the Has Ever Known. Words of Praise from a New York Lady for

AYER'S PILLS

"I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have taken them for many years, and always derived the best results from their use. For stomach and liver troubles, and for the cure of headache caused by these derangements, Ayer's Pills cannot be equaled.

When my friends ask me what is the best remedy for disorders of the stomach, liver, or bowels, my invariable answer is, Ayer's Pills. Taken in season, they will break up a cold, prevent la grippe, check fever, and regulate the digestive organs. They are easy to take, and are, indeed, the best all-round family medicine I have ever known."—Mrs. May Johnson, 368 Elder Avenue, New York City.

POWER OF WOMAN.

MRS. G. A. DRUMMOND POINTS OUT THREE GREAT IDEAS.

The Retiring President of the Montreal Council of the National Council of Women and Her Great Ideal of the Organization and Its Work.

I would point out three ideas, to which most of all our council is striving to give emphasis and expression, so much so that I think they may be called its ruling ideas. First, there is the home idea. It is our hope that through the council we may be enabled to realize better in our own lives, and to make more possible to others the true ideal of the home. To realize it in our own lives, and to make it more possible to others—it must be a twofold endeavor, if either aim is to be fulfilled.

She who does not love her own with a special devotion, to whom her home, her own home, is not most sacred and most dear, can have but a shadowy realization of the wider human affections, for it is from the sense of the peculiar ties of the family that the sentiment of the universal brotherhood has sprung; she, on the other hand, whose compassions and sympathies are shut up within the compass of her own, loves with neither a wise nor a far-seeing love—for awful in its reality is the tie that binds us all together—high and low, rich and poor, sinner and saint, and, alas! for the home if she the home-maker be indifferent to the sin and sorrow and toil that are without. She may never see the misery and destitution in the homeless courts of the city, but the pestilence that is bred there may creep silently and insiduously into her home and make it desolate; the moral shame of the lowest there may touch and contaminate her sons when they go forth from the shelter of the home into the open and perilous ways or that outside world.

So through all our work runs this twofold endeavor, which is in reality one—to make for ourselves and others—more possible, more pure and peaceful, more joyous and simple and complete, the life of the family and the home.

It is because we believe with Mr. Booth that it is impossible to elevate the conditions of a people above the condition of their homes, and because we can not be oblivious of the fact that there is much in the present conditions of our industrial life with its fiercely competitive adjustment of the terms of work and wage, that makes home in any true sense impossible for great masses of the people that we have interested ourselves in those grave economic problems which are pressing for a solution to-day. We would not pronounce rashly and unadvisedly on these questions, but we would learn to feel, and we would grow to understand.

It is because we believe that homes must be unfit, while air and water, nature's most bountiful gifts to man, are by the great majority in our cities so little appreciated and so scantily enjoyed, that we are endeavoring by free health talks to diffuse a knowledge of the laws of health, and would also plead for such facilities that these laws may be observed, pointing out for instance a need which has long been recognied in the cities of Europe, and is rapidly obtaining practical recognition in the cities of America, the need of public bath houses, where the people who earn their bread in the dust and sweat of manual toil, sometimes in trades that necessitate poisonous atmospheres, who remain all summer long in the stifling air of the city, and whose only facility at home for cleansing and refreshment is a sink and a cold water tap, may have a hot or a cold bath at a nominal charge. We have the experience of other cities to testify both to the very moderate cost of maintaining such baths after the initial expenditure, and to their absolute economy in the interests of the public health.

It seems to us, indeed, that in everything that pertains to the "City's Housekeeping," the cleanliness of the streets, the care of milk, the guarding of all foods from improper exposure, the woman's judgment is especially needed, and the woman's voice is entitled to be heard, for in all these things the home, her peculiar province, is vitally concerned.

It is for the moral purity of the home that we are endeavoring to stem the tide of a worthless or poisonous reading matter, and to cultivate a taste for a literature that is wholesome and pure. And it is a special feature of our National Home Reading Union that it aims not only at forming the tastes of the young, but at promoting the intellectual advancement of those of larger growth. It aims at Home Culture. Do you remember how Carlyle writes of "the all but omnipotence of early culture." And the school masters say the same thing when they tell us that they know at once whether a boy comes from a cultured home or not. How many of us realize as we should that self-culture is so large a part of our duty to our children and our homes?

So, if you consider our various lines of work and endeavor, you will find that they all tend directly or indirectly to the perfecting of the home. Even where objection has been made to subjects taken up by the council, as, for instance, when one of our own local councils could hardly see the good of our enquiry into the causes of insanity, we could not touch the fringe of that subject without learning lessons that are of most vital importance in the home. For we are told that in a large proportion of cases insanity can be plainly traced to "malign influences of childhood," to the over-indulgence that saps the power of self-control, or the depression and strain of too severe a discipline—to the horrors bred of the dark to the imaginative and highly strung child, or the tortures of self-questioning that afflict the child who has been taught from infancy that he is the child of the devil—we have learnt also that monotony does much more than over-work to fill our asylums, and that, therefore, there is wisdom in encouraging all sorts of wholesome hobbies in our children, and in having ourselves a "double line of rails." Surely these are lessons which we do well to lay to heart, as women, as mothers, as makers of the home.

Yes, men need not fear lest as our own sympathies broaden we should hold the home less dear, for deep in the heart of the woman lies the home-passion, and we would ask no greater service than this, to learn ourselves and to teach to others, the making of the home.

And now, as I have already occupied your time too long, let me in very brief words indicate those two other ideas to which our council would give emphasis and expression, the idea of service, the idea of unity.

The idea of service—that old lesson which in its full significance the world takes long to learn, that there is no honorableness save that of service, that all that one may have of wealth or rank, or force of intellect, or power of strength or beauty, has no value per se, but only as it gives wider opportunity and larger scope for service—a painful honorableness this one, which is worth striving for, but which those who seek great possessions or rank of power or place do well to estimate—the greatness which attaches to those things is the power of service.

Of the various ways in which our council would emphasize that great idea, the idea of unity, I have spoken on previous occasions and shall not enter now. Only a word to those who, amidst the conflict of opinion, the clash of opposing tendencies, the discord of social or religious feud, or of the nation's hate, are fain to confess that to them unity, even while they sigh for it, is but a visionary hope.

And, again, a word to those who, as they feel the burden of the world's sorrows and the mystery of its pain are moved to cry: What is individual effort worth? What use? To such as these a message comes in a voice which they, even they, the doubting ones, can trust, in the name of that science, which by many is regarded as inimical to faith, and the message is this: Man, who from the beginning has been dimly conscious of a divine unity, who amidst apparent discords has faintly divined an eternal harmony, has in these days of transition and unrest gained two great certainties—the certainty that this unity in which he has trusted is indeed the ultimate reality, the great and universal fact, the assurance that the motive of the eternal harmony is divine. All science is based upon the assumption of an ultimate unity. All knowledge as it grows proclaims the eternal tendency that makes for righteousness.

Here, then, is firm ground for hope and action even for those whose feet reeling to be set in the shifting sands. To them, as to those who stand upon the rock of a surer faith, is the message sent and the promise given, a promise seen it may be afar off, yet towards which we, under the impelling and dominating purpose, must ever move. It is in the confidence of this hope that we live and work—what else were our feeble efforts worth? But that we are working with that eternal tendency, that we are helping to realize that divine purpose, is enough. Enough to keen us individually, and as a council, patient in striving, rooted in charity joyful through hope.—From the address of Mrs. G. A. Drummond retiring president of the Montreal Council of the National Council of Women.

A mirror could lie if it wanted to. The glass has nothing to gain by flattery. If the roses of health and plumpness of beauty are leaving your face your mirror will tell you so. Health is the greatest beautifier in the world. When a woman sees the indications of ill health in the face, she may with almost absolute certainty look for the cause in one or both of two conditions—constipation and derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure permanently and positively any so-called "female complaints." Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will cure constipation. There is no reason in the world why a woman should not be perfectly healthy. She will gain in health, strength and flesh. Hollows and angles will give place to fullness, and grace. She will be that noblest and most beautiful of all creation—a perfect woman.

TEN YEARS TROUBLED

With Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia—Suffered Greatly and Found No Relief in the Scores of Medicines Prescribed.

South American Nervine Was Recommended, and Before Half a Bottle Was Taken Relief Came.

Have Since Improved Rapidly, and Am Now Completely Cured—So says Mr. David Reid, of Chesley, Ont.

What ills come to humanity from a disordered liver! Henry Ward Beecher has said that it was impossible for a man to hold correct spiritual views if his liver was out of order. The liver is so important a part of the mechanism of man that when it ceases to work with ease the whole man is unable to do his work aright. Can we not appeal to thousands, nay, tens of thousands, for a verification of this fact? Certainly it is, that Mr. David Reid, of Chesley, Ont., felt that the enjoyment of life had been taken from him, through the unhealthy condition of his liver. For ten years he says he was troubled with liver complaint and dyspepsia. Employing his own language: "At times my liver was so tender I could not bear it pressed or touched from the outside. Had tried a great many remedies without any benefit. Was compelled to drop my work, and being worse than usual, I decided as a final resort to try South American Nervine, which had been recommended to me by friends who had been cured by it." I got a bottle from A. S. Goodeve, local druggist, and commenced taking according to directions. Before I had taken half a bottle I was able to go to work again, and I have improved steadily since. I can conscientiously recommend South American Nervine to any suffering from dyspepsia or liver complaint." This is Mr. Reid's story as he tells it in his own words. Were it thought necessary it could be corroborated by a host of witnesses. Mr. Reid has lived a long time in Chesley, and his case was known to be a very bad one. But that makes no difference to Nervine. This great discovery rises equal to the most trying occasions. Let it be indigestion, the most chronic liver trouble, as with Mr. Reid, nervous prostration, that makes life miserable with so many, sick headaches, that sap all the effort out of man or woman, Nervine measures to the necessities of the case. It is a great medicine and thousands to-day in Canada are happier and healthier men and women, because of its discovery. There is no great secret about it, and yet there is an important secret. It operates on the nerve centers of the system from which emanate all life and healthfulness, or if disordered, sickness, even death. Nervine strikes promptly at the nerve centers, hence, as with Mr. Reid, where ten years' use of other medicines had done no good, less than a bottle of Nervine brought about encouraging results, and a few bottles cured.

ALTERATION AND CHANGE

FAIRWEATHER & CO.

Have decided that the next two weeks will be a hay-day for all bargain lovers, as we are going to push out our Furs at SACRIFICING PRICES to make room for the workmen during the renovation. The workmen are about to start a complete alteration on the interior of our store in the course of 2 weeks. New Ceilings, New Floors, New Front—enlarging of premises, etc., etc. This is but the forerunner of other changes which are to be made in our business arrangements, as we have announced through the press during the past month.

The most important of these changes to the public will be the placing of all our business

ON A SPOT CASH NO-MORE-CREDIT BASIS!

ON AND AFTER MARCH 15th 1897, we will conduct our business on a cash basis exclusively, in order to save the large losses which a credit business necessitates. We find there are expenses incurred from losses through Bad Accounts—by interest in carrying both "Long-Winded" and "Short-Winded" Accounts—by loss of Discount in not having cash to pay for goods at once—by expenses of extra help required to keep track of and collect Accounts, etc. All these in the aggregate mean a very large expense added to any business. So we have determined to curtail this outlay and give customers the benefit of Cash Buying and Cash Selling on everything.

What we save in expenses our customers save in prices—as formerly those who paid, made up the losses, as above mentioned, incurred by credit. To all our old customers, both cash and credit, we would say that you will find it to your advantage more so now than ever, to see our stock and prices, under this new regime. You will find goods that under a credit system, must cost you $5, can now be sold, under cash, for $4. You will be better suited—we will be better pleased. The benefits of a Cash Business are mutual.

At the rink last night the Thistles chose Skips T. Rutherford, J. B. Pentland and G. J. Hopkins to skip against the Toronto Granites in the Boucher-Davidson trophy competition here to-morrow. As the match is a twelve rink affair and six rinks play in Toronto on Wednesday next, S. Ray, W. G. Ferguson, and R. H. Kells were elected to skip the Thistle rinks which go up to the Queen City.

HOCKEY.

A strong representative team has been picked up to go to Toronto to-morrow and try conclusions with the Toronto Athletic Club septette. Wasson, Montgomery and Adams will make a stonewall defence, and forwards will be Aabe, Davidson, Bellegham and Crossley. The train which the majority of the boys will patronize will be "the special" on the Grand Trunk, leaving at four o'clock in the afternoon and returning after the match.

The Oriental boarders wish to play a return match for the oysters with the Huffman House boys.

The game of hockey which was to have been played on the Riverside Park rink this afternoon between the Business College and the Collegiate Institute, has been postponed until Saturday afternoon from three to four o'clock. Each team having scored seven points in the two matches played, this game is to decide who are the winners of the seven hockey sticks presented by Commodore H. Calcutt. No doubt a large number of scholars will witness the game on Saturday.

VARSITY SPRINGS A SURPRISE.

For the third season in succession Queen's world beaters own the Ontario senior championship. The Varsity team, which the Toronto press so warmly "roasted," seemed to have benefitted by the beating in Toronto, and pushed Queen's from start to finish at Kingston last night. So fast did the visitors push the home team that very little combination work could be brought to the fore. Every move Queen's made was closely check-mated by Varsity. Varsity men followed up Queen's men, and just as soon as the Presbyterian would make a pass a Varsity man would rake in the puck and spoil the cross-play. In this way was Queen's harrassed all through the game. Morrison played a particularly keen game, ably assisted by Elliott and Shepard. Waldie in goal stopped a half hundred hot shots. Queen's did not realize that they would have such hot opponents, and did not pull themselves together until late in the second half. At half time Varsity had 3 to Queen's 2 points. In the second half Queen's scored four and Varsity three points, tying the score, and giving Queen's the championship by a majority of five points, as they won from Varsity in Toronto by 6 to 1. The teams were :

Queen's—Goal, Hiscock ; point, Curtis ; cover, Merrill : forwards, Harty, Dalton, Brock, Weatherhead.

Varsity—Goal, Waldie ; point, Scott ; cover, Parry ; forwards, Shepard, Snell, Morrison, Elliott.

GALWAY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Mr. J. C. Brown, P.S.I., was visiting the schools in this vicinity a few days ago.

Mr. James Dixon, P.L.S., Fenelon Falls, was here last week. He run several lines for some of the farmers in this neighbourhood. Mr. Dixon has done considerable work in this township.

Mr. and Mrs. Long, of Otonabee, were visiting friends here last week.

Miss E. Crow, of Harvey, is here on a visit at present.

Mr. Daniel Reid, sr., has discovered a silver mine on his premises, lot 2, con. 15, Galway. The mineral is a distance of fifty feet from his residence. Mr. Reid has had a sample of it analysed. The results are reported to be favourable. It is found to contain silver and some gold. Operations will probably be continued when the weather becomes favourable.

A basket social was held under the auspices of the Roman Catholic church last Wednesday evening in Collins' school house. A very pleasant and enjoyable evening was spent. The attendance was large, which can be seen from the fact that the financial result was $50.00. When the meeting was called to order Mr. James Allen was unanimously selected chairman, and the following programme was rendered in an unusual good style :—

Rev. T. J. Edmison of Lakefield, was accompanied by Mr. W. Leonard. Both gentlemen referred to the erection of the church 20 years ago. Mr. Edmison was then a young man entering the ministry. Mr. Clare took for his subject "Ideals," and dwelt on the importance of every young man and woman entering life having some ideal before them and doing their utmost to attain it.

On Thursday evening a social was held when a very pleasant time was spent. The proceeds of the tea and social amounted to $36.84.

On Friday of last week Mr. Alex. Davis and his two sisters, Misses M. J. and Grace, of Nebraska, arrived home. They also brought with them the body of their mother, who died in Nebraska about six months ago. The body was interred in the Lakefield cemetery on Saturday, Feb. 20th.

SMITH COUNCIL MEETING.

The council met pursuant to adjournment on Feb' 1st, all the members present and the reeve in the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. A bylaw to confirm the appointment of township officers passed its several readings, also a bylaw to annul bylaw No. 432, regulating the salary of clerk and treasurer. The Reeve and Councillor Elliott were appointed to examine the road on the 7th con. line, across lots 13 and 14, with power to arrange for gravelling the same if they think it necessary. The clerk was instructed to notify Jas. E. and Thos. J. Cullan to remove fence off road allowance on 17th con. line ; also to notify Andrew and Jas. Miller to remove fence off road allowance between lots 30 and 31 in 10th con. The following claims were ordered to be paid : R. Heard, building culvert, $3 ; Hugh McIlmoyl, aid to Mrs. Smith, $10 ; Wm. Davis, aid to Wm. Freeborn, $25. After verbally appointing overseers of highways, poundkeepers and fence viewers for 1897, council adjourned to meet Tuesday, 2nd March.

Too Good To Miss!

No Time To Lose!

GOUGH'S Winter Wind-Up.

These are WIND-UP DAYS, and GOUGH BROS' Slashing Cut in Clothing, Cloths, Boots and Shoes, Gentlemen's Furnishings, &c., to Wind-up the Winter Selling Season, is an extraordinary event too important to miss. Never since the days of Adam has good Clothing and Boots and Shoes been sold so cheap as we're selling them now. A colossal stock of Clothing and Boots and Shoes for Men, Women and Children at prices that revoulutionizes the trade, and emphasizes the possibilities of this great emporium for clothing the people.

THE STOCK MUST MELT!

The sudden thaw in prices must dissolve the Bargain Lots on Tables, Counters and Shelves, and the flood of bargains will lend spirit and snap to bargain lovers while they last. Our plan of campaign demands that all Winter Goods must be out of the way for Spring arrivals. Besides we want to do our share in alleviating present distress by helping the farmer, the mechanic, the business man, the women and the youth, and at the same time keeping our tailors and salesmen busy.

New Spring Goods are rushing in upon us faster than we can place them, so we have decided to let the "hide go with the hair" until our two big stores are clear of Winter lines.

More gigantic selling, forced on by tremendous buying, has never been planned, for we dump everything into this Colossal Sale at an average reduction all round of 20 Per Cent. Below Manufacturer's Prices!

These bargains now stare you in the face, and what is worth emphasizing is that in all the lines we show a large variety of patterns and sizes, both in Clothing and Boots and Shoes. It is not our policy to select two or three catch lines. You get the choice of the whole stock. You merely choose what you need—no question about the goodness of the material or workmanship.

NO DRIFTWOOD!

NO BANKRUPT STUFF!

And we don't intend there shall be any in this store. This is a self-respecting business. The combination of the driftwood of merchandise with the bright New Spring Goods would be like the fly in the ointment—spoiling the spring-like flavour of our whole store.

Our stock is ALL this season's New Goods. Everything is new and right up-to-date. Constant newness will mark this store from day to day.

New Spring Dress Goods
New Spring Trimmings
New Spring Dress Silks
New Spring Prints and Muslins
New Spring Prints and Hosiery
New Spring Mantles and Jackets

Don't ask for last years Muslins or Dress Goods, or Umbrellas, or Gloves. We don't keep them—they have all been sold. If you must have them, inquire down street.

Our store blossoms with New Spring Novelties and Rare Values.

And remember, we propose selling the newest of the new season's goods just as cheap as the Bankrupt Sale Prices will be.

You can come and compare goods and values any time you like. Remember, too, that the new goods of this year are different from last year. The New Table Damasks are in entirely new patterns; the new Towels have no fringe, and so on.

You'll want no ancient styles or last year's bird's nests when you once see the crisp new things we have to show you.

We could have had lots of Bankrupt Stuffs if wanted—there's lots of it thrown on the market—but we couldn't afford to mar our new stock or take any risks.

IDOL OF THE LADIES

Is Mayor Bingham of Ottawa Just Now.

UNIQUE DINNER AT THE CAPITAL

Toasts Were Drunk in Coffee, and the Resolution Program Was Followed, but the Dear Creatures Broke Down on "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—(Special.)—All alone in his masculine glory sat Mayor Bingham in the large dining room of the Russell House this afternoon. There were ladies to right of him, ladies to left of him, and ladies in front of him, but not an individual of the male sex except perchance such an one had donned for the nonce feminine garb. The function was a huge success. People, who two or three days ago had declined the invitation to be present, "feeling insulted at His Worship's action in inviting them, you know," when they found that Madame Laurier and the wives of the Ministers of the Cabinet were to be present, fairly tumbled over each other in their eagerness to withdraw their letters of declination.

Over 300 ladies were present in the room and the scene of itself was a thing of beauty, and one may trust a joy forever, to the whole-souled Mayor and his good lady, Mrs. Bingham. "Sir Samuel" discharged the duties of host in a most becoming manner, and who could help doing so with such an array of feminine loveliness before him? There were wives of Cabinet Ministers—indeed, the Mayor himself took Madame Laurier down to lunch and placed her on his right. There were Salvation Army lasses, sweet-faced sisters from the Grey nunnery, the wives and daughters of public men, a gathering the like of which has not been seen in Ottawa for many a long day. And more would have been there could they have received invitations, and there were many who did not hesitate to ask for them.

The menu card was a tasteful little affair, having on the front the Bingham crest and motto, for His Worship has been dipping into heraldry lately and has decided upon a coronet with the motto, "In Christ is My Hope," done in green and gold, and the word Bingham at the bottom of the card.

Host St. Jacques got up a tasty luncheon and it was thoroughly enjoyed by the ladies. The toast list was a very short one. It was said in the morning that the toast of emancipated woman was to be proposed and responded to, but this feature was dropped from the toast list.

His Worship, in eloquent terms, proposed the toast of the "Queen," and it was drunk (in coffee) with such an enthusiasm and manifestation of loyalty that British and Canadian ladies alone can show for the noblest of their sex, Great Britain's greatest Queen.

Then Lady Grant rose and, with a charm and eloquence which reminded one of her husband, the orator of the Ottawa Valley, proposed the health of His Worship. The toast was received with great enthusiasm. An attempt was made to sing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," but the fair guests had not been sufficiently posted in this phase of social gaiety. Absence of husbands, etc., was keenly felt and the singing collapsed. However, the ladies meant it, and doubtless His Worship appreciated the compliment just as much as if the song had gone through without a hitch.

Mayor Bingham, on rising, was received with a volley of handclapping by the Salvation Army lasses. He briefly expressed his appreciation of the compliment, and the proceedings, which had been enlivened by music from the pupils of the Gloucester-street Convent, closed.

When the luncheon was over dutiful husbands, brothers and beaux who had escorted their ladies to the Russell, but had to cool their heels on the outside, while the luncheon was in progress, were waiting to conduct the fair dames home. It was a crushing day for the men of Ottawa. It was a glorious triumph for the women of the Capital. "All hail, Sir Samuel Bingham!" is the sentiment of the women folk.

MR. COWAN IS WRATHY.

The Member for South Essex on the Warpath Over the Alien Labor Law.

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—(Special.)—M. K. Cowan, M.P. for South Essex, is here. Mr. Cowan talkes very strongly on the question of the Corliss amendment. He says that it is high time for Canada to look after her own interests in this matter. He intends laying his views plainly before the Ministers. He will not only ask that the Dominion Government pass an alien labor law, but that reciprocity in wrecking be done away with. "Some three or four years ago," said Mr. Cowan, "Canada entered by legislation into an arrangement with the United States whereby reciprocity in wrecking was obtained. The result of this was that an American tug could go to the rescue of American vessels in Canadian waters and that Canadian tugs could do the same thing to Canadian vessels in American waters. This was of more advantage to the Americans than it was to the Canadians. What I propose now is to give this work to Canadians in Canadian water, and let the Americans stay on their own side."

Messrs. J. G. Shadford of Halifax and Joseph Bullock of St. John, N.B., representing the Eastern Oil Company, are in the city to try to arrange for a hearing before the Tariff Commissioners. They are understood to offer some points in contradiction of what was already adduced by the oil dealers of Ontario. Mr. Shadford called on the Finance Minister this morning to secure a hearing, but this is scarcely possible, as the committee has completed the taking of evidence, and any further representations can very well be sent in writing.

Hon. A. G. Blair is acting Minister of Militia in the absence of Sir Richard Cartwright, who was given charge of the department during Hon. Dr. Borden's illness.

The writ for Bonaventure election has been issued. Nomination is fixed for March 6, polling a week later. The reason for not ordering the writ for Champlain is that over 1000 electors are now working in the bush, and they would be disfranchised were a contest brought on at present.

A meeting of the French-Canadian Conservative Club was held to-night, at which addresses were delivered by Sir Adolphe Caron, Sir C. H. Tupper, Mr. Lachappelle, ex-M.P., and others. There was a large attendance. Sir Charles Tupper was not able to be present.

In the course of his remarks, Sir C. H. Tupper spoke contemptuously of the "sunny ways" by which the school settlement was reached, namely, the appointment of Mr. Sifton to a portfolio and the promise of a county judgeship to Mr. Prendergast. The latter had, he held, perpetrated the blackest piece of trickery in all our history, except perhaps Mr. Laurier's betrayal of the people of Quebec. Mr. Prendergast had pleaded the cause of the Manitoba minority with great zeal up to a certain point. "But," he continued, "since the day last fall when Mr. Laurier rushed down to the House of Commons for an appropriation for an additional county court judgeship, I have yet to learn that Mr. Prendergast has uttered one word on the subject of the rights of the minority." [Cheers.]

Sir Charles further reminded his hearers how, when he himself having pointed out that no precedent existed for voting a judge's salary when there was no district to appoint the judge to, Mr. Laurier declared it was absolutely and immediately necessary to the proper administration of justice in the province, but no appointment had yet been made. Mr. Prendergast resigned his seat, accepted the "settlement" and would doubtless find that settlement all the more agreeable by sliding into the position before very long. This, of course, was only suspicion as yet, but time would show it was justified.

The Premier was asked to-night about the Solicitor-General's visit to Europe. He replied laughingly that he understood Mr. Fitzpatrick had crossed the Atlantic in connection with the fishery cases. "That is the official story," remarked your correspondent, "but newspapers say he traveled further east." To which the Premier remarked, fencingly, "Well, you cannot interfere with a man's traveling on the Continent for health and recreation."

"Is that all?"

"That's all," remarked Mr. Laurier, sententiously.

A delegation headed by Mr. Lemieux, M.P., is in the city, and interviewed Mr. Laurier and Mr. Tarte to-day. They asked for a subsidy for the Chateauguay & Northern Railway of $3200 per mile, and $50,000 to bridge the Ottawa at Bout de l'Isle.

C. N. Paquin, postmaster of St. Cuthbert, Berthier county, Quebec, is $2100 behind in his payments. The matter has been reported by the Post-office Department to the Justice Department.

The Cabinet took up the sessional program to-day. The Crow's Nest Pass Railway matter has not yet been reported upon by the sub-committee.

The statement that the Postmaster-General proposes to wipe out five postal districts by uniting them with other districts is not correct. Mr. Mulock is anxious to economize in the administration of postal affairs and will adopt reasonable measures to that end, and will make provision as far as possible for the staffs of districts that may be amalgamated with others.

William Gibson, M.P., was in the city to-day; so was our old friend Thomas McGaw of the Queen's, Toronto.

L'Assomption sent a big delegation to Ottawa to-day to ask for a bridge over the Ottawa.

Sir Charles Tupper, Sir A. P. Caron and Sir C. H. Tupper left for Toronto to-night.

Information has reached the Fisheries Department that Russian commissioners are considering the case of the Canadian sealer, Willie McGowan, seized off Copper Island in 1892.

The Dominion statistician is compiling an analysis of returns of deaf and dumb persons in Canada as shown by the census of 1891.

It is probable that the argument before the Behring Sea Commission will take place in Charlottetown next August.

How a Horse Sleeps.

Horses always point one ear forward when they sleep. Exactly why this is done no human being can tell, but the probability is that the practice is a relic of the time when they were wild and obliged to be on their guard, even when asleep. Cattle, on the other hand, are apparently indifferent as to the position of their ears while sleeping, but no odds what position they are in both are always pointed alike. Ask some observing horseman if it is not a fact that a horse always throws one ear forward when he sleeps.

BRITAIN'S POLICY

Announced by Lord Salisbury in the Upper House

AND MR. BALFOUR IN THE COMMONS

Autonomy for Crete, With an Administrator Appointed by the Powers—To Remain Under Turkish Rule—Greeks Are Furious—Kings Dare Not Back Down.

London, Feb. 25.—There was a large attendance of peers and visitors at the opening of the sitting of the House of Lords this evening. Several peeresses were present, and a number of bishops other than those entitled to sit in the House of Lords, together with some members of the House of Commons, looked on from the galleries.

Soon after the House came to order Lord Dunraven rose and made a formal request that the Government inform the House as to the exact situation in the Island of Crete and the Government's negotiations with the powers looking to a settlement of the difficulties.

Lord Salisbury, upon rising to reply, was tremendously cheered, and when the cheering had subsided said that a telegram had been sent to the British representative at the capital of each of the combined European powers, the phraseology of which ran as follows: "Inform the Government to which you are accredited that Her Majesty's Government propose to make the following declaration of the policy they intend to pursue, which they believe to be in accordance with that of their allies:

"First, that the establishment of administrative autonomy in Crete is necessary to the termination of international occupation of that island.

"Second, that, subject to such system of administrative autonomy, Crete ought to remain a portion of the Turkish Empire.

"Third, that the Governments of Turkey and Greece ought to be informed of this resolution.

"Fourth, that if either Turkey or Greece should persist in a refusal when required to withdraw her naval and military forces from the island, the powers should impose their decision by force."

Lord Salisbury said it did not follow that the Turkish troops would be withdrawn from Crete immediately; nevertheless the practical withdrawal of her troops from the island was a necessary condition to the establishment of autonomy, and they would, therefore, be withdrawn.

The Premier then gave as instances of autonomous administrations the form of government which now exists in the Island of Samos, a Turkish possession, and which formerly prevailed in Servia, and proceeded to say he imagined that the powers would require the Greek troops in Crete to be withdrawn at an earlier date than the Turkish troops, but he was unable to give any further details until he knew what decision had been reached by the powers. Still, it was his belief that the powers recognized the principles he had announced as animating their policy.

Lord Kimberley, who was Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Cabinet of Lord Rosebery, said that the statement just made by Lord Salisbury was one of great gravity, and would require careful consideration on his part before he felt prepared to make any observations thereon. The House then adjourned.

The whole incident occupied twenty minutes. Subsequently the Earl of Kimberley held a conference with Sir William Harcourt in a private room.

The Commons Crowded.

London, Feb. 25.—The floor and galleries of the House of Commons were crowded with members and spectators at the opening of to-day's sitting, in view of the announcement in the newspapers this morning that the Government would define their policy in regard to Crete.

Shortly after the Speaker had taken his seat Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Treasury and the Government leader in the House of Commons, made a statement similar to the one made by Lord Salisbury in the House of Lords, at the conclusion of which Sir William Harcourt, the leader of the Opposition, said that the statement concerning the Cretan situation and the methods to be employed in its settlement which had just been laid before the House by Mr. Balfour was of the gravest character. It affected the present and future relations of Great Britain with the powers of Europe, besides Turkey and Greece, and its gravity was especially shown in its last paragraph relating to the employment of force in the event of the persistent refusal of Turkey or Greece to comply with the demands of the powers. He requested the Government to fix an early date for debating the matter.

THE THRONE IN DANGER.

Public Opinion in Athens Will Not Allow the Government to Back Down.

London, Feb. 25.—The Athens correspondent of The Standard telegraphs that it is reported that Col. Smolents, Minister of War, has renewed his offer to resign. There are signs that the remainder of the Cabinet are inclined to take a similar step, but any indication of retreat from the King's policy would involve the greatest danger to the throne. It is, therefore, unlikely that there will be any faltering in the highest quarters. There is doubtless a grim popular determination to follow the sacrifices already made to the bitter end.

THE HELP OF THE PRESS.

Newspapers are generally regarded as purely business concerns by those who do not regard them as published for the benefit of many who are averse to the formality of paying their subscriptions. Though they primarily exist for the purpose of making money, yet in this very process they are able to play in a practical manner the role of philanthropist, the influence they wield and the public confidence they enjoy making them especially fitted for such a role. A striking case in point is the success achieved by the Montreal Star in the management of the India Famine Fund, by which noble philanthropy alone $35,000 has been directly realized through the avenue of the Star fund. La Presse of Montreal, has had to spend no inconsiderable sum in defending a libel suit brought by parties whom it exposed in their attempts to delude citizens of the Province of Quebec into embarking into the disastrous emigration to Brasil. Thus La Presse has been subjected to serious expense to defend a course in the public interests, which the courts have decided it was justified in pursuing. Henry Labouchere, the editor of London Truth, which has stood out strongly in the cause of the people, has had to pay $300,000 in defending libel suits. But it is not only in these respects that newspapers serve the cause of philanthropy. Every day every newspaper in the land gives space in its columns to matters calculated to serve some good cause, which would hardly be need as mere news matter. When weighing the merits of the press the public should consider how much good is effected by the press, without a word of comment, and which, if done by any other business concern, would provoke a tremendous blowing of trumpets—through the press, of course.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Says the Ottawa Journal (Independent): "It is remarkable with what unanimity Canadian manufacturers testify how well they could get along with moderate customs protection if their raw materials had less. Apparently if all duties altogether were abolished our manufacturers would be no worse off than they are now. This is the spirit of British Free Trade."

Mr. Hugh John Macdonald can hardly regard the proposal to shelve him in the comparatively insignificant arena of a local legislature, as a compliment. A historic nose like his, that was a beacon light to the Conservatives at the last Dominion elections, should certainly have a greater function than interesting itself in the doings of the Manitoba Legislature. However, Winnipeg electors may be no more anxious to put Hugh John in the local house than they were to give him a seat in the House of Commons at Ottawa.

School children are apt pupils at other things besides their lessons. They quickly imitate the squabbles their elders have over educational matters. In a certain quarter of Montreal there is such a spirit of hostility between pupils of different schools and personal assaults are so frequent that the teachers have to convoy some of the children home to insure their safety. Verily the homely proverb is verified—"as the old cocks crow the young ones learn."

The Mail and Empire has a vivid imagination. It represents Hon. Mr. Ross, Minister of Education, as being "on pins and needles," while Mr. St. John, of Toronto, was speaking on the costs of examinations. Our contemporary can discover more points by its mental X rays than the saintly orator can furnish. Those who know Mr. Ross can fancy the absurdity of his suffering himself to be penetrated by pointless pins.

WESTWOOD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Miss M. Emmerson, Otonabee, is visiting relatives here.

Miss Maud Evans was visiting in town last week.

Miss Lettie Blezard has been visiting Norwood.

Our member, Mr. T. Blezard, is away attending the Legislature.

Messrs. J. and Dr. McColl were in Peterborough Thursday attending the funeral of their sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Blake and J. Blake left Saturday for the far West.

Miss K. Sharp has returned from visiting Norwood friends.

Mr. R. White, Peterborough, visited here Thursday.

Mr. J. W. Rork and Miss May Eaton spent Sunday here.

Rumours of a wedding in the near future.

Several of our young people attended the all-important lecture in South Dummer Tuesday evening. Scarcely any results. Everybody has been previously enlightened.

"Here's the preacher coming!" though an exciting remark, does not seem to scare as it used to, even the gentler sex, especially when the mill is running.

The entertainment under the auspices of the Epworth League of the village was, on Friday evening, up to every expectation, both financially and otherwise. At eight o'clock sharp Mr. Humphries, president, took the chair and the following programme was rendered:—

Chairman's address ..... Mr G L Humph y
Opening prayer ..... Rev J C Anderson
Chorus ..... League Choir
Instrumental ..... League Orchestra
Solo ..... Mr F W Warr
Wand exercise.. Misses E Wright, L Cardwell, B Sharp and M Cardwell
Address.. "A Visit to Mammoth Cave with 200 Epworth Leaguers" ..... Rev A C Crews
Lunch, Music and Social Chat.....
Solo ..... Mr F W Warr
Chorus ..... League Choir
Instrumental ..... Stringed Band
"God Save the Queen."

The programme was carried out to the letter. Each piece was carefully and skilfully executed. Mr. Warr's solos were performed with splendid effect and the duet and wand exercise were up to date.

The stringed orchestra, consisting of eight instruments, captured the audience with its excellent rendering and the members kindly responded to each hearty encore. The lecturer was greeted with loud applause and when he announced his subject the listeners heard with breathless attention to the pearls of weighty truth which dropped from the rev. gentleman's lips. His subject, "A visit to the mammoth cave, Kentucky, with 200 Epworth Leaguers," was exhausted in a very able and striking manner.

It is to be regretted that space will not permit of the excellent and detailed report furnished of this excellent address. In addition to being interesting, salient points of the speaker's description were seized and carefully utilized to point valuable moral lessons. Incidental references to the Epworth League Society and its marvellous growth and prosperity were listened with great attention.

THEY WORKED WONDERS.

Two Years of Bladder Torment—Had Attacks of Inflammation—Cured by a few Boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Owen Sound, Feb. 22, (Special)—The people of this town are talking again of another cure credited to Dodd's Kidney Pills. This is the case of Mr. W. Cruse, caretaker of town buildings, who, when seen had this to say of the matter:

"For over two years I have been an intense sufferer from kidney disease with occasional acute attacks of inflammation of the bladder.'

"Was under doctors' treatment and have been compelled to resort to instrumental relief many times.

"I have taken eighteen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am satisfied with results being perfectly relieved of all suffering."

TORONTO MARKETS.

Peas—The market is weaker, with sales at 39c north and west. Cables are lower.

Corn—The market is unchanged, with new quoted at 20c west.

Rye—The market is dull, with fair offerings. There were sales to-day at 33c east.

Oatmeal—The market is quiet and prices unchanged. Car lots $2.80 to $2.90.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

There was a very good market to-day, with receipts of 53 car loads, including 250 head of sheep and lambs and 1200 hogs. The demand for cattle was good, and prices rule firmer. Sales of choice exporters at 4c to 4½c per lb., and good cattle at 3½c to 3¾c. Stockers are quoted at 2½c to 3c per lb. Bulls bring 2½c to 3½c per lb., according to quality. Butchers' cattle steady for best qualities, which sold at 3½c to 3¾c per lb., the latter for fancy; good to medium at 3½c to 3¼c, and inferior at 2c per lb. Milch cows sell at $25 to $35 each, and calves at $4 to $8 each.

Sheep and lambs steady, with receipts of 200 head. Choice sheep sold at 3¼c to 3c per lb., and butchers' at 2½c to 2¾c. Lambs are firm, there being sales at 4½c to 4¾c per lb., according to quality.

Hogs are firmer for choice light qualities. The best sold at 4¼c per lb., weighed off cars; thick fats at 3¾c, light weights at 4c to 4¼, sows at 3c to 3½, and stags at 2c to 2½c per lb.

Mr. Benj. Scott, Van Horn, Ont., says: "My heart caused me great uneasiness, my appetite failed, and I became very weak and discouraged. Miller's Compound Iron Pills made me all right; I feel well and strong." Sold in Peterborough by Wm. Madill, druggist.

BRITAIN'S POLICY.

felt at the attitude of the powers was given to-day, when 300 volunteers, who had been prevented by the warships from landing in Crete, marched through the streets, accompanied by military bands.

It is understood that the note of the powers arrived to-day and that it will be presented to the Government to-morrow. The reply will probably be dictated by the resolution of the Cretans to yield only to superior forces. The proposal of the powers is regarded as a precarious makeshift, which will not end the crisis.

The Roman Catholic Bishop of Athens has sent details of the sufferings of the Cretans to the Pope, praying that he use his best offices to procure an equitable solution of the trouble.

The blockade of Crete is not being strictly maintained. The scarcity of provisions is beginning to be felt. The foreign admirals have stopped all communications between the Greek warships and Col. Vassos, the commander of the Greek army of occupation. A British torpedo boat has undertaken to convey communications from Col. Vassos to Athens.

A despatch from Athens to the Central News says that King George and his Cabinet proclaim their resolve to maintain their present policy. They declare that it is impossible for them to recall the Greek troops from Crete.

Mr. Gladstone's Sorrow and Indignation.

Paris, Feb. 25.—In reply to an enquiry from The Temps, Mr. Gladstone has written a letter to that paper saying: "The ideas which guided me at the time of the Bulgarian atrocities still dominate my mind, but Russia appears to have made a complete volte-face. I wonder what Alexander II. would have thought of Russia's conduct during the past two years and now? My feelings over the entire conduct of the powers during the past two years are sorrow and indignation. The powers are now applying themselves to filling the measure of their dishonor."

The View of the Liberals.

London, Feb. 25.—The Daily News, in its comments to-morrow on the latest developments in the Cretan trouble, while welcoming the broad fact of autonomy being granted to the island, will emphasise the necessity of a searching examination into the details, especially the proposal that the Greek troops shall be withdrawn prior to the Turkish troops. This proposal, the paper declares, must be reconsidered unless the international forces are ready to replace the Turkish garrisons. Apart from this, Greece, having extorted a settlement from the powers, can bow to superior force without disloyalty to the Hellenic idea. It is presumed that the article in The Daily News officially embodies the Liberal views.

Interview With King George.

London, Feb. 25.—The Chronicle to-morrow will publish an interview with King George of Greece. His Majesty declared that he was unable to express his profound astonishment and grief that the reports of the Christian powers had permitted the Turks to employ as a military base a place in which they had taken protection, and that for the purpose of imposing neutrality and peace also they had caused cannons to be fired on a Christian people who had been driven by outrage and massacre into a struggle for life and liberty.

The Chronicle's correspondent says he is authorized to state that Greece is prepared to pledge herself to fully accept the decision of the Cretans if the question of the union of Greece and Crete be submitted to a plebiscite.

The correspondent further says that the rumors of a Ministerial crisis are untrue, though the War Minister, Col. Smolents, will probably retire.

Bad Faith of Moslems.

Canea, Feb. 25.—On Monday last the despatches of the United Associated Presses told of the bad faith of the Moslems at Hierapetra, who, after their co-religionists in the vicinity of that place had been given a safe conduct to the town on condition that the Christians in the town be allowed to depart unmolested, broke the condition and held as hostages 150 Christians. Efforts were made to obtain their release, but the Moslems persisted in their refusal to let them leave, acting on the belief that their presence would prevent the insurgents from making an attack on the town, as the latter knew that an attack would be the signal for the massacre of the helpless captives. Another aspect was put on the matter to-day, however, and the Moslems learned that they were not to be allowed to do as they pleased under the sanction of the Christian powers. The Italian cruiser Etna arrived off Hierapetra to-day and notified the Turkish officials that if the Christians were not released she would bombard the town. Then a detachment of armed sailors and marines was landed, and the Christians were rescued, taken on board the warship and conveyed to Syra. The Turks are deeply chagrined, as they evidently thought that the foreign warships would uphold them in anything they pleased to do against the Christians.

Russia Gives Greece Notice.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 26.—Russia, through the Russian Minister at Athens, has called upon Greece to withdraw all of her troops and her fleet from Crete within three days.

MR. HAULTAIN'S IDEAS.

The Territories Are Not Ready for Autonomy and Don't Want to Divide With Manitoba—Crow's Nest Railway.

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Premier Haultain of the Northwest Territories is in the city on business with the Government in connection with territorial affairs. He recognizes the concessions which have been made to the territories in late years from a constitutional standpoint, but, on being asked by your correspondent what his view was with regard to complete provincial autonomy, he replied that the Territories were not ready for it. Neither is he in favor of any portion of the Territories being added to Manitoba. He points out that all the machinery of government in the Northwest now applies to the Territories as a whole, and that, if a part on of Eastern Assiniboia were transferred to Manitoba, it would destroy the system of government as it now exists. Mr. Haultain will ask for a change in the Northwest Territories Act to permit of the appointment of an Executive Council for the Territories, in place of an Executive Committee, such Executive Council to be chosen by any members of the Legislature who may be entrusted by the Lieutenant-Governor with this duty.

Asked as to his views with regard to railways in the Kootenay country, Mr. Haultain said he thought the Government should build a railway through the Crow's Nest Pass, but should make arrangements with the C. P. R. to run it, and in this way the Government would be able to dictate its own terms in the matter of passenger and freight rates, and use of the line by other companies.

THE RIFLES FOR BISLEY.

Lee-Metford or Lee-Enfield Will be Used for Nearly All the Principal Matches.

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—(Special.)—A communication has been received from Col. Mackinnon, secretary of the National Rifle Association, stating that all competitions at Bisley this year are to be fired with the .303 magazine rifle of service pattern, that is the Lee-Metford or Lee-Enfield rifle. This rule will apply to all competitions which count for the grand aggregate. The only exceptions will be those matches which are specially mentioned for sporting and match rifles, carbine and revolver. Volunteer and militia corps in England have been supplied with Lee-Metford rifles to the extent of 12 per cent. of the enrolled strength of battalions, to enable them to practice, and similarly our own corps are to be supplied with the Lee-Enfield.

TURKEY MEANS FIGHT.

The Sultan's Council Decided to Prepare to Advance on Athens.

London, Feb. 24.—The Standard tomorrow will publish a Constantinople despatch, saying it is reported that at the council held at the Yildis palace yesterday it was decided to make preparations for the eventual advance upon Athens of three columns, comprising six divisions of infantry. A note to the Greek Government would precede the advance, demanding the evacuation of Crete within a certain period, and threatening if this demand was not complied with the Ottoman troops would cross the frontier.

The despatch also says that the Minister of Marine has pledged his word that he would have thirteen warships ready for action within a week. Military preparations are being pushed with unparalleled activity. Reports from various sources state that energetic preparations are being carried on day and night, although many of the instructions issued are impossible of execution, and an ugly feeling of unrest prevails.

A CASE OF DIABETES.

No Help From Medical Men—Suffered for Many Years—Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

North Bruce, Feb. 15 (Special)—An old and well known settler in this Township, named Thomas Brooks, who lives on lots 7 and 8 in the 14th concession is rejoicing with his neighbours over his recent recovery, and he said:

"I was cured by using twenty-four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and as nothing else ever helped me I say they saved my life."

"I had tried all the doctors of this locality and was treated for Diabetes, hoping and suffering for years."

"From reading of cures I determined to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I must say that after using the first box I would have considered them reasonable at ten dollars a box."

Sarcasm.

They were looking over some of the children's instructive holiday books.

"Who is that creature with the immense head of bushy hair?" asked Mrs. Judden.

"That," replied her husband, with the fluency of a lecturer, "is a Circassian girl. She is famous not only for her magnificent hair and personal beauty, but as one of the few women who can remove their hats in a theatre and still be happy."

A Bad Spell.

"That Binks woman who is always borrowing is real mad at you."

"What have I done?"

"She sent over to you to borrow some plumes so her daughter Mary could trim up a hat and go to her Aunt Jane's funeral, and you sent back a can of plums."

"Well, she'd better borrow a spelling-book next. Her note said p-l-u-m-s plain enough."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

DR. CHASE'S CURES ITCHING PILES, ECZEMA, SALT RHEUM OINTMENT

LOCAL NEWS.

Primary Sunday School Teachers' Union.

A meeting of the local union will be held this (Friday) evening at 7.45 o'clock, in the parlour of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

Peterborough Cheese Board.

The first regular meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board for the purpose of sales will be held in the town council chamber, Peterborough, on Tuesday, May 18th, 1897, at the hour of one o'clock p.m.

An excellent Musical and Literary Entertainment will be given in the St. Paul's School Room to-night. Admission 10 cents.

Children's Aid Society.

The Children's Aid Society has four children for adoption in desirable homes. Two boys four and eleven years of age respectively and two girls five months and five years old each respectfully. All are fine healthy children.

Moved into Better Quarters.

Mr. James Sutherland, grocer and provision merchant, has secured new and more commodious premises on George street south, second door from the corner of Charlotte street, and opposite the market arcade. This change brings Mr. Sutherland into a more central and busy quarter, and in closer contact with the farmers, as well as a large portion of his customers from the southern suburbs of the town.

A Sudden Success.

Everyone is asking "What is the new tune, which I hear hummed and whistled wherever I go?" It is no secret. It is the chorus of "The Land of the Maple," the new patriotic song written by Mr. H. H. Godfrey, and published by the Mason & Risch Piano Co., 32 King street West, Toronto, at 25c a copy, (mail stamps). The melody and words are both so simple that they are learned in a few minutes. Public singers are using it freely as an encore song, and apart from the musical quality of the sentiment expressed, ensures a round of applause at every verse. We have so few Canadian national songs that this one is bound to make a mark.

MR. ROADMASTER McNABB'S DISMISSAL.

Summarily and Without Cause Assigned After 46 Years' Faithful Service.

Mr. Jas. McNabb called on the EXAMINER this morning and confirmed the statement made in a paragraph in yesterday's issue that his services as G.T.R. roadmaster had been dispensed with. His office has not been abolished, but his successor, Mr. S. Neale, has been appointed and will enter upon his duties next Monday. The following is the intimation received by Mr. McNabb that his services are no longer required:

[COPY.]

Grand Trunk Railway System, Office of the Chief Engineer. J. H. A.

MONTREAL, Feb. 22nd, 1897.

Mr. James McNabb, Roadmaster, Peterborough:

DEAR SIR,—I have to inform you that your services as roadmaster will not be required after Sunday next, the 28th inst.

Instead of a month's notice you will be paid a month's salary, with the understanding that you will give your successor, Mr. S. Neale, any information that he may require during the month of March.

On the 1st prox. kindly return your card pass, No. 714, and second-class trip pass both to this office.

Yours truly,
(Signed) JOSEPH HOBSON, Chief Engineer.

Mr. McNabb feels that in this matter he has been treated in a most summary, not to say severe, manner. He has been thirty-three years in the employ of the Grand Trunk Railway proper, and was ten years in the employ of the Great Western Railway. During that time he cannot recall a single complaint that has been made in respect to the manner in which he discharged his duties. He has served under several officials, to whom he has always given the utmost satisfaction in his official capacity and he has not the slightest idea of anything in the way of neglect of duty or imperfect discharge of duty that would justify his summary dismissal without any hint of a reason being assigned. Under the circumstances Mr. McNabb naturally feels that he has been treated in a manner far different from what a fair recognition of long and faithful service would suggest.

LAST NIGHT'S FIRE.

The Roof Taken Off a Terrace of Four Houses.

Shortly after ten o'clock last night the fire alarm called the brigade to Paterson street, where, at the west end, a terrace of four houses, belonging to Mr. P. J. Galvin, were discovered to be in flames.

How the fire originated is unknown, but the roof was burnt completely off the terrace and the upper stories badly damaged. The building was a frame one and the flames spread with such rapidity that the tenants had not time to dress before flying out into the open air.

The prompt arrival of the brigade checked the flames to a degree which enabled nearly all the furniture to be saved. One woman is described as actually working in her bare feet to save the contents of her home.

The loss on the building is estimated to be about $1,800 or $2,000. On this there is an insurance in the North British and Mercantile for $1,300.

Who Knows Him?

Chief of Police Rossel received a post card (en Francais) from St. Liboire, P.Q., which being translated, reads as follows: "There is a young man who got hurt last week, who calls himself Harry Barrow, and has relatives living in Peterborough. Will you kindly see to it and let me know if it is so, or any details you may give me?—JOSEPH LE'HEREUX. So far the Chief has not identified the young man, and will be thankful for any of the information desired.

Boys' Brigade Reminder.

Remember the mass meeting to be held in the Sunday school room of St. Andrew's church to-night at 7.30 p. m. prompt when full explanations will be given of the Boys' Brigade movement of Canada. All Sunday school teachers and superintendents will be heartily welcomed. It is expected that an example of the drill and other work will be given. All boys between the ages of ten and seventeen years are eligible and it is hoped that all interested in the movement will be in attendance.

B. B. A. Entertainment, St. Patrick's Day, March 17th.

At no time in the world's history has the desire been so universal as now among the thinking people of all lands for detailed information regarding that wonderfully interesting country, South Africa, touching historical personages and events. The most intellectual and artistic entertainment, the most pleasing at once to the eye and mind will be found in Mr. R. M. Roy's beautiful coloured views of "The Jameson Raid," comprising over sixty thrilling scenes. Come and see them on the above date; also vocal and instrumental talent, making this entertainment the event of the season. In the Opera House, March 17th. Plan of hall at Sallsbury & Co. Reserve seats, 50c.; general admission, 25c.

THE BOARD OF TRADE.

A SESSION WAS HELD LAST EVENING IN THE COUNCIL CHAMBER.

The Attendance was Limited to Less Than a Dozen—The Board Will Apply to the Legislature for Authority to Exempt Machinery from Taxation.

A special meeting of the Board of Trade was held last evening, but as the members are only called together at spasmodic intervals and regular monthly meetings are no longer held, the attendance was less than a dozen, those present being Messrs. B. Shortly, president; A. L. Davis, James Kendry, George McWilliams, B. F. Ackerman, G. W. Ranney, G. E. Whiten, Thos. Cahill, H. Burnham and Dr. Rose.

The small attendance was an important circumstance, as several questions of great importance were brought forward for discussion.

A COMMUNICATION

was received from R. J. Murphy, secretary of the Eastern Dairymen's Association, stating that an invitation to hold their next annual meeting in Peterborough would be favourably considered by that body.

The president, and Messrs. Carnegie, Whiten and Ackerman were appointed a committee to do all in their power to induce the Association to visit the town on the occasion referred to.

The following resolution was submitted by Mr. H. Burnham, seconded by Dr. Rose, "that the employment of the unemployed in Peterborough during the winter months be a matter for the consideration of the Council of this Board to report upon at the next general meeting.—Carried.

The council of the Board, it is understood, will, in this connection, consider the recent move of the council in providing a stone-pile for the prisoners of the gaol to work upon.

TO EXEMPT MACHINERY.

Mr. John Carnegie then brought up the question of petitioning the legislature for the power to exempt machinery from taxation in the case of established as well as new industries. A general law, he stated, was required from the Provincial Legislature to empower municipalities to grant such exemption. At present the council possessed authority only to exempt certain interests for a term of ten years.

A committee was appointed composed of Messrs. B. Shortly, Peter Campbell, R. Fair and W. Manson to confer with a committee of the town council with the object of discussing the advisability of jointly petitioning the Legislature on this behalf.

NEW INDUSTRIES.

Mr. A. L. Davis reported that he was in communication with several important industries, and read the following telegram which he had despatched in this connection:

Mr. W. Young, Fraser & Chalmers Co. of Chicago and London:

On your return west would like to show you Peterborough's inducements to manufacturers. Canadian General Electric Co. here, employing 800 hands, also Bridge Works, agricultural implement factories, machine shops, lock factory and woollen mills, employing several thousand hands. Can give power at about half the cost you will pay in Montreal, Toronto or Hamilton. Please reply.

W. YELLAND Mayor.
B. SHORTLY, Pres. Board of Trade.

As noticed, he had used the names of the Mayor and President of the Board of Trade in the telegram. Mr. Young was travelling through the country presumably seeking a location for a Canadian branch for the firm, which carries on one of the most extensive manufactories of mining machinery in the world.

The answer to the telegram had been received as follows:

"Will come to Peterborough if possible, but in any event our President will carefully consider and will visit your and other localities before forming a decision."

Mr. Davis also mentioned the fact that the New York Biscuit Company of Pittsburg, and the H. J. Heints Company of the same city, who carried on the largest pickling business in the world, were seeking locations in Canada.

The secretary was instructed to write both companies, concerning the advantages which Peterborough has to offer to new industries.

57TH BATTALION ORDERS.

HEADQUARTERS,
Peterborough, Feb'y 25th, 1897.

Orders by Lt.-Col. R. W. Bell, commanding the 57th Battalion of Infantry, Peterborough Rangers:

As a new issue of rifles is about to take place, all Snider rifles, bayonets, scabbards, cleaning rods and slings belonging to the 57th Batt. must be immediately returned into store for shipment to Headquarters. Any persons outside the Battalion armouries having any of these articles in their possession after this date will certainly be prosecuted. All helmets and other accoutrements must also be immediately returned to store for semi-annual inspection.

By order,
E. F. MASON, Capt., Adjt. 57th Battalion.

OTONABEE.

A Serious Accident and Sad Death of a Former Resident.

From our own Correspondent.

Yesterday Mr. John Moore of the Eighth line, met with a very bad fracture of the leg below the knee, while engaged in "skidding" logs. In some manner a log rolled against his leg, causing the injury mentioned. Dr. Harrison furnished the necessary surgical attention.

Much regret is felt over the news of the death of Mrs. John Weir in British Columbia. It will be remembered that last September Mrs. Weir and her four children went to the gold mining regions—Kelso, British Columbia, to join her husband. She contracted pneumonia, and last week died from the ravages of that malady. The remains were interred at Kelso, but the four young children thus sadly orphaned will be sent home to the care of relatives.

On Tuesday evening next a concert under the auspices of St. Mark's parish (Rev. W. L. Baynes Reed) will be held in the Foresters' Hall, Zion. A good programme will be presented.

NEWS NUGGETS.

Paragraphs Picked Up and Pencilled for Public Perusal.

—A street car left the track yesterday afternoon on George street but was easily put back on the rails.

—Evidence was heard in the Brady matter at the Court House till about four o'clock yesterday, when the case was enlarged for one week to secure the attendance of witnesses.

—Advices from Ottawa state that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries has given permisson for the use of nets for catching coarse fish on the Trent river, near Meyersburg and down in Bradley Bay. While it has been represented that coarse fish are very plentiful in that locality, this legislation has been effected through a largely-signed petition which was recently sent to the Government.

"Sing a song of cruelty,
A thing I don't admire;
Four-and-twenty dead birds
Perched up in a choir!
Don't you think the girl who did it
Must be a silly thing,
To put them in the choir,
When she knew they could not sing?"

—There has been, says the Bobcaygeon Independent, an active movement in the swine market, this week. Mr. J. Howden, of Peterborough, has purchased a large number of live lean pigs, for the purpose of fattening, and gave 5cts. a pound, live weight. They are being drawn to Peterborough on sleigh.

Boils

It is often difficult to convince people their blood is impure, until dreadful carbuncles, abscesses, boils, scrofula or salt rheum, are painful proof of the fact. It is wisdom now, or whenever there is any indication of blood, to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and prevent such eruptions and suffering.

Impure

"I had a dreadful carbuncle abscess, red, fiery, fierce and sore. The doctor attended me over seven weeks. When the abscess broke, the pains were terrible, and I thought I should not live through it. I heard and read so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I decided to take it, and my husband, who was suffering with boils, took it also. It soon purified our built me up and restored my health so that, although the doctor said I would not be able to work hard, I have since done the work for 20 people. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured my husband of the boils, and we regard it a wonderful medicine." MRS. ANNA PETERSON, Latimer, Kansas.

The Trophy on View.

The $15 00 gold-headed cane offered by Chemong Park cottage bicyclists is on view in the show window of Mr. H. S. Macdonald's drug store, corner of Hunter and George streets. It is a beauty—rosewood with elaborately chased gold head and well worth trying for. The four pathmasters, Messrs. Isaac Mann, Robert Telford, Jos. and W.W. Milburn, who will have charge of the Chemong road, should see and admire the beautiful stick. When they see it they will decide that it is a trophy well worth working for.

Lost Their Way.

Last Monday two Peterborough gentlemen, one being a cattle dealer, and a congenial companion, who should know the surrounding country as well as the way to the dinner table, got lost within half a dozen miles of Peterborough. They had been to Cavan and got as far as Smith's school house, on the Gravel Road, on their way home. A snow storm was raging last Monday morning and in consequence these two knowing ones got lost and were compelled to ask their way home and it took a good deal of persuasion to prevent them taking the way to Millbrook. Since their return they have been subjected to a large amount of chaffing and innumerable ingenious theories to account for their loss of way.

PERSONAL.

Rev. W. L. Baynes Reed, of Keene, was in town yesterday and to-day.

Miss Lillie Boyd has returned from an extended visit to Fenelon Falls.

Messrs. W. W. Daly, Geo. Gumpricht and Geo. Paton, of Peterborough, were all over in Lindsay yesterday.

Mr. Marmaduke Terrill passed through town this morning on his way to Selwyn to visit his son, Rev. A. J. Terrill, of that circuit.

Mr. C. W. Taylor, business manager of the Globe, Toronto, was in town to-day with the Toronto carlers and favoured the EXAMINER with a call.

Mr. J. J. Hardill of Port Perry, who has recently removed to town, has accepted a position as head clerk with Mr. T. H. Kerneghan, Mr. Thos. Brady's old stand.

The Lindsay Post says,—Miss Kate Menzies, of Peterborough, returned to her home last night after a pleasant month with her brother, Mr. R. J. Menzies, and other Lindsay friends.

It is learned from a personal letter that Dr. Clarke, who is at Clifton Springs recuperating, although he was quite run down, he is already greatly improved in health, and intends returning a week from Monday.

Mr. Geo. Buskin, of the Algoma and Northwest Evangelical and Colportage Mission, is making his annual trip through the district in the interest of the fourteenth years' work of the mission. He is at present in Lindsay.

Miss Cassie Purvis of Yonge Mills, near Brockville, who made many friends during a recent visit to town, was married on Wednesday to Mr. A. W. Mallory, of Mallorytown, a prominent and wealthy citizen and reeve of the townships of Yonge and Escott.

As the Port Hope Colts refused to come to Peterborough to play off the final draw for the Midland Colts Association trophy, Lindsay was settled upon as being the most accessible ice for the match and both clubs were ordered by the Executive to meet there yesterday.

Just before leaving to catch the five o'clock train for Lindsay, the local men received word that Port Hope couldn't get its rinks together and would be unable to play. The Peterborough Colts went on to Lindsay, and appearing on the ice claimed the game by default on the non-appearance of their opponents. It is understood that this course of action was recommended by the Executive.

The handsome tankard now passes into the hands of the Peterborough Colts "for keeps," as it has been won by them three consecutive seasons.

During the evening a pleasant game was played in Lindsay with the Colts of that town, resulting as follows:

PROSPEROUS CANADIAN FORESTRY.

Very Gratifying Progress of this Excellent Beneficial Organization.

At the annual meeting of the High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters at Niagara Falls, the High Chief Ranger in his annual address, set forth the prosperous condition of the Order, saying among other things:—"The order has made greater progress in point of membership since last High Court meeting than in any like period of its history, there having been initiated into the order 2,374 members between the 1st of June and the 31st of December last. There have been instituted 42 courts. Our membership at the close of the year was 24,092. The condition of our various funds is thoroughly satisfactory. On insurance account from the 31st of May, 1896, to 31st December, the income amounted to $117,814.27. To the beneficiaries of our departed brethren there has been paid in seven months the sum of $69,156.15, leaving a net increase in the surplus fund for the seven months of $48,658.12, the surplus at the end of the year being $5,251. The total receipts of the general fund account amounted to $16,012.01, but the payments totalled $17,305.06, showing a debit balance of $1,293.05. This, however, does not prove that the general fund is not in a prosperous condition, because the per capita tax, which is due on the 31st of December, is payable in January, and as it will amount to nearly $12,000, really leaves the fund with a balance of over $10,000 to commence the business of the Foresteric year. The sick and funeral benefit fund has been prosperous, the total receipts being $2,385 40. There have been forty-five claims paid, amounting to $807.42, so that the balance was $1,536.07 on the 31st December. I have singed 67 cheques for the payment of death benefits, 47 for sick and funeral benefits and 252 on general fund account, making the total number of cheques signed 364. On October 1st our surplus funds had reached over half a million dollars. The High Secretary reported the total number of members last June, including those temporarily suspended, as 22,651. The number permanently suspended from June 1st to December 31st, 1896, was 863, and 67 died during that period, making a total decrease in the membership of 963. Adding the number of initiations, 2,374, gives the membership on December 31st, 24,092. During the seven months covered by this report there have been issued 2,008 certificates for the first $1,000 insurance, 136 for second $1,000 and 221 for $500."

CANADIAN FORESTERS.

THE ELECTION OF OFFICERS BY THE HIGH COURT.

Rev. H. Gummer, M.C.R.—Peterborough Chosen for the Next Place of Meeting—The Constitutional Amendments.

Niagara Falls, Feb. 25.—The High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters resumed their labours this morning for the third day, and got through with a lot of work, and will in all probability finish their labours by to-morrow. The first work taken up this morning was the different clauses governing the sick and funeral benefits of the High Court. Clauses 8 to 14 were adopted, with slight amending. Clauses 15 and 16 were referred back to the Law Committee, Clause 17 was laid over for future consideration. Clauses 18 and 19 were, on motion, rejected.

The afternoon session commenced at 2 o'clock, when the Credential Committee made its final report, showing 311 delegates present, with total votes of 530. The rates in sick and funeral benefits of the High Court, as moved by W. E. Meredith, of Toronto, were carried, which are as follows:—18 to 25 years, 25 cents; 25 to 35 years, 30 cents; 35 to 45 years, 35 cents per month.

At this stage of the proceedings a resolution was carried restricting the speakers to five minutes, this being found necessary to facilitate matters.

The Committee on Grievances and Appeals made their report, which was adopted, as was also the report of the Committee on Good and Welfare, in which a valuable suggestion was made to appoint organizers to work the Lower Provinces, where the order is not yet extended. The Finance Committee reported on the various clauses of the officers' reports and minutes of the Executive Committee, which had been referred to them. The report was adopted. The High Court re-assembled at 8 o'clock when the election of officers was proceeded with. Br. F. T. Frost, M.P., Smith's Falls, who was nominated for office of High Chief Ranger, in a neat speech withdrew from the contest. On the first ballot being taken, the present H. C. R., Bro. H. Gummer, of Guelph, received 305 votes. His opponent, P. H. C. R., C. E. Britton, of Gananoque, received 213 votes. Majority for Mr. Gummer, 92. The first ballot for H. V. C. R. showed Bro. H. D. Henderson, of Whitechurch, 254 votes, Bro. R. Dowling, of Harrison, 251 votes; majority for Bro. Henderson, 3. Bro. Thos. White, of Brantford, High Secretary; Bro. John Neelands, of Wingham, High Treasurer; Bro. Dr U. M. Stanley, Brantford, of the Medical Board, were declared elected by acclamation. Bro. D. R. Kennedy, of Montreal, was elected High Chief Registrar, receiving 445 votes out of 518 cast. P. H. C. R., Rev. Bro. D. McRobbie, of Shelburne, received 278 votes for High Chaplain, to his opponent's 155. Bro. Thos. Gibson, of Toronto, was elected High Auditor, receiving 373 votes.

J. R. Allen, Toronto, secured third place; F. J. Jameson, Peterborough, fourth place, and R. Dowling, Harriston, fifth place on the Executive Committee. The High Court adjourned at 1.45 a.m., to meet at 10 a.m.

The contest for the place of next convention was next taken up. Several places were suggested and nominated. After several ballots had been cast the contest narrowed down to Peterborough and Goderich, the former place being the choice on the last ballot by 20 votes.

His Worship Mayor Cole extended an address of welcome from the citizens of Niagara Falls to the delegates, giving them the freedom of the town. At 12.30 the High Court officers and delegates were taken around the town, accompanied by the Niagara Falls Band.

A vote of $100 was carried unanimously for the sufferers in India.

Motion No. 18, recommending that the High Court be not responsible for the sick and funeral benefit was defeated.

Motion No. 19 was passed as follows:—"All members in good standing in the order on March 31st, 1897, identifying themselves with the High Court sick and funeral benefit fund, be rated as between the age of 18 to 25, provided such application be in before July 1st, 1897, and that the rate for new members be at the following scale: Eighteen to 25, 25c per month; 25 to 35, 30c.; 35 to 45, 35c."

LATER.

A special despatch received this afternoon states that the decision was arrived at with regard to sick and funeral benefits, leaving it optional for subordinate Courts to conduct their own sick benefits. The High Court also continues its sick and funeral benefit branch.

Mr. F. J. Jameson was re-elected a member of the Executive Committee.

LONG-WINDED CREDIT

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 10th, 1897.

NOTICE—From and after this date, Messrs. H. LeBRUN & CO. have decided to shorten the Term of Credit heretofore given, and, in future, no goods will be sold except for Cash, or on such limited time as may be mutually arranged.

We believe the safest way to do business in these days is to sell for Cash. The next best way is to sell on short dates. Many of our customers who have regularly paid their bills after a reasonable term of credit, would perhaps feel the "Spot Cash" system a hardship, especially while times are so hard and money so scarce. We regard these customers as among the best we have, and are quite satisfied to continue to extend to them the same terms of limited credit they have been accustomed to enjoy.

Our chief complaint is with the "long-winded" customer, who compels us to say that he makes business-life a down-right worry. It makes no difference to us whether a man is worth a million if he won't pay his account. When we need money for our business and are repeatedly put off with "promises to pay" by those who are well able to pay, we have no use for such trade. If every customer treated us in that way we could not carry on business at all. Besides, it is very disagreeable to us to have to "dun" a customer half a dozen times, or spend the profits in postage stamps, and wearing out shoe-leather to boot. We are compelled, therefore, to shut down at once on long credits. Those who can't pay within a reasonable time, we don't want their account in future.

There is a resolution all over the country in favour of Cash or shorter Credits. Cash is a more powerful friend now than ever, and if we must compete with the Cash Stores, who save their discounts, we can't afford to give long credit. Wholesale houses are now offering such big baits in the way of Cash Discounts that we must be prepared to take advantage of them or be handicapped.

All past due Accounts must be settled by the 1st of March; after that date they will be placed in Court for collection. All parties having contra accounts against us are requested to hand them in for settlement at once.

H. LeBrun & Co.

Is there anything more wholesome, more beautiful, more completely pleasing than a womanly woman? Such a woman is even tempered, intelligent, strong and healthy. Health really tells the whole story. Health means strong nerves and strong body, and they go far toward bringing good looks and amiability.

A woman worn and wearied by the dragging weaknesses peculiar to her sex, cannot be expected to find zest in any duty or amusement. Life is all one dead monotonous gloom to her. On her face is written the story of weakness and pain. The wholesomeness of health is lacking. The cheeks lack fullness, the eyes lack sparkle, the hair lacks luster.

Doctors have learned to locate nine-tenths of womanly sickness in the organs that ought above all others to be strong and healthy.

Sensitive women shudder at the thought of consulting a physician on such matters. A natural feeling of modesty makes them dread the examination, and subsequent stereotyped treatment by "local applications" on which most doctors insist.

Much more often than not, this is unnecessary. It should not be submitted to except as a last resort.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has cured thousands of severe cases of "female weakness." It works in a natural, sensible way. It begins by subduing the inflammation that is always present. Then it strengthens and invigorates the whole body, particularly the organs distinctly feminine. It promotes regularity, cures inflammation and ulceration, and stops the debilitating drain caused by them. Of all dealers.

OTTAWA GENERAL NEWS.

A summary of the mineral production of Canada last year was issued by the Geological Survey to-day, the total value being placed at $23,627,305, as against $22,000,000 in 1895. The value of the metal is given at $8,039,640, made up as follows: Copper (fine in ore, etc.), 9,385,556 pounds, $1,021,148; gold, $2,810,206; iron ore, 88,206 tons, $184,313; lead (fine in ore etc.), 34,199,977 pounds, $721,384; nickel (fine in ore, etc.), 3,580,000 pounds, $1,155,000; silver (fine in ore, etc.), 3,205,343 ounces, $2,147,589; total metallic, $8,039,640. The value of iron metallic totals $15,067,665, the chief items being coal, 2,743,234 tons, value $8,006,305, and petroleum, 726,822 barrels, value $1,155,644.

The official statistical statement shows increases in the production of coal, copper, gold, lead and silver, while the output of iron ore, natural gas ($276,301) and nickel, has fallen off to a considerable extent. The increase in coal is altogether due to Nova Scotia, which produced 296,153 net tons more than in 1895, but this increased output is offset in a large measure by a decrease of 104,629 tons in the production of British Columbia.

Copper shows a large decrease in Ontario, and a small increase in Quebec, while British Columbia's contribution is 3,818,556 lbs., which amount is 1,848,193 lbs. more than in 1895. In gold large increases are to be credited to Nova Scotia and Ontario, but British Columbia heads the list with an increase over the previous year of $497,675.

Owing to the dull state of the iron market during the year, the production of iron ore has fallen off to a considerable extent in all the provinces with the exception of Ontario. The exception is directly due to the erection of the blast furnace at Hamilton, Ont., the company obtaining all the Canadian ores smelted from that province.

The production of lead is altogether that of British Columbia, and has increased in the year by over 1,000,000 lbs., but a decrease in the market price of some 8 per cent. lessens the total value by $28,582.

Natural gas shows a decrease in value of $146,761, or about 34 per cent., which would seem to be due to a heavy falling off in the production of the Welland gas field.

Ontario's nickel production is reduced during the year by nearly 400,000 lbs., and shows a decrease in the value of over $200,000.

British Columbia shows an output of silver amounting to 3,135,343 ounces, valued at $2,100,689, an increase during the past 12 months of 1,429,660 ounces in quantity and in value of nearly a million dollars.

The statistics have been prepared under the direction of Mr. E. Drew Ingall, Mining Engineer of the Geological Survey.

According to advices which have reached the Department of Agriculture, Prof. Robertson has been instrumental in the Northwest in arranging for the establishment of fourteen creameries under Government management, with fourteen cream-gathering stations, in addition to supplying these creameries. When it is borne in mind that there were only three creameries in existence in Manitoba and the Territories last year, it will be seen that Prof. Robertson is doing good work.

Fishery Inspector O. B. Sheppard of Toronto has reported adversely to the request of the Indians of Georgian Island to use nets in Lake Simcoe.

Mr Charlton, M. P., was here to-day on departmental business.

The Minister of Public Works has been giving attention to the subject of rebuilding the Western Departmental buildings, but has not yet arrived at any definite conclusion as to what form the structure will take. It will most probably, however, be almost identical with the building as it stood before the fire, with the difference that the edifice will be fireproof. Mr. Ewart, Acting Chief Architect for the Public Works Department has been preparing plans for the repairs necessary for the roof as it now stands.

Mr. F. Stupart, chief of the meteorological service at Toronto, was in the city to-day.

Mr Cowan, M. P., is here on business with the Fisheries Department in regard to fishery matters on Lake Erie.

The rotunda of the Russell House was crowded as much to-day as during session time, there being many tariff delegations in the city.

STILL LOOKS WARLIKE

Now it is Turkey That is Preparing to Fight.

GREAT BRITAIN'S COURSE DEFENDED

The First Lord of the Admiralty Explains the Situation—Governor's Palace at Canea Burned—Report of the Massacre at Stilo Contradicted Latest News of the Trouble.

London, Feb. 24.—In the course of a speech delivered in London this evening Right Hon. George J. Goschen, First Lord of the Admiralty, defended the action taken by Great Britain in regard to Cretan affairs in terms similar to those used in the House of Commons two days ago. Mr. Goschen also repudiated the assertion which has been made that the British Government were acting in the interest of Turkey. The British ships overawing the Mussulmans in the seaports of Crete, he declared, had saved thousands of Christians from massacre. Besides this the British vessels were harboring refugees and supplying them with the necessaries of life. Lord Salisbury and Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Treasury, Mr. Goschen announced, would make clear statements in Parliament to-morrow regarding the future of the island. Meanwhile, he declared, no one who had read the declarations of Mr. Balfour, M. Hanotaux, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Baron Marschall von Bieberstein, the German Foreign Minister, will believe it possible that Crete will ever return to the rule of Turkey.

Governor's Palace Burned.

Athens, Feb. 24.—A despatch from Canea says that during the fire in the Governor's palace there to-day the Governor's safe fell from the floor on which it stood into the ruins and burst open. The safe contained seven thousand pounds Turkish. The soldiers who had gathered about the burning building and were engaged in trying to extinguish the flames, upon seeing the contents of the safe exposed, tried to steal the money, but were prevented by the European officers, who directed the sailors under their command to fire a volley of blank cartridges at the would-be robbers. The incident nearly caused a riot between the Turks and Europeans. Ismail Bey accused the sailors of plundering the palace, and an investigation was at once begun by the admirals of the foreign warships. The inquiry proved that the charges against the sailors were entirely without foundation.

A Vivid Description

London, Feb. 24.—The Daily News will to-morrow publish a despatch from Canea, giving a vivid description of the burning of the Governor's palace there to-day. Vice-Admiral Canevaro of the Italian squadron, who is in command of the united naval forces in Cretan waters, resided in the palace, which was guarded by a strong force of Italian sailors. The energetic efforts of the British marines, who form a part of the foreign force occupying the town, alone saved the thickly-populated district in which the palace was located from destruction. Detachments of sailors from the warships in the harbor were landed and rendered valuable aid in fighting the flames.

The fire destroyed the last vestige of machinery of the Turkish Government. All of the records were consumed, as well as contracts and financial, legal and municipal documents. While the palace was burning the Moslem rabble set fire to several houses in the town and suburbs. The Montenegrin police, who patrolled the town, extinguished these fires when it was possible for them to do so, but three large houses belonging to Christian merchants who were absent were destroyed.

Situation Causes Anxiety.

London, Feb. 24.—A despatch from Canea to a news agency here says the situation in that town causes much anxiety. The Mussulman populace are armed and greatly excited. Turks have been parading the streets, exhibiting their indignation in various ways.

The situation at Selino, the despatch says, is serious, the Benghazi Arabs threatening to burn the entire town because the Beys, as they assert, have deserted them. The suggestion of the consuls that a mixed force be landed in order to allow the besieged Moslems to retreat has not been adopted, the foreign admirals having decided to confine their action to the sending of warships to exercise a moral influence upon the contending parties, whom, it seems, however, there is little hope of reconciling.

Crete to Be Liberated.

London, Feb. 24.—The Daily News tomorrow will say that the statements to be made in Parliament by Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour regarding the Cretan situation are to the effect that the powers have agreed to Lord Salisbury's proposals and have decided to liberate Crete from direct Turkish rule.

Greece Will Persevere.

London, Feb. 24.—The Standard tomorrow will publish an Athens despatch, saying it is stated there upon good authority that the Greek Government rejects the proposals of the powers to establish autonomy in Crete and proposes to persevere in the policy adopted by King George.

The despatch also says that the official report of the engagement which took place outside of Canea on Friday last states that 500 Turks were killed and 105 captured.

A Point To Remember.

If you wish to purify your blood you should take a medicine which cures blood diseases. The record of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla proves that this is the best medicine for the blood ever produced. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures the most stubborn cases and it is the medicine for you to take if your blood is impure.

Hood's Pills are the best family cathartic and liver medicine. Gentle, reliable, sure.

One Laxa-Liver Pill taken each night during 30 days will cure Constipation, obstructions, Headaches and irregularities of the bowels. Laxa-Liver Pills leave no unpleasant after-effect.

Refining Influences of Poetry.

It is a great mistake for any young woman to judge poetry by the melodious tinkling of current verse, and to say that she "can't read poetry." Real poetry finds a home in every woman's heart. Its tenderness, its music, its vagrant fancies, its vivid emotions are more adapted to her nature than to the masculine hand. If she does not read the best poetry she is missing one of the most refining and consoling influences that can enter her life through the medium of books. A woman who has not read Keats' "Eve of St. Agnes," Coleridge's "Christabel," Mrs. Browning's "Aurora Leigh," Shelley's "Adonais," Wordsworth's "Ode to Immortality," Tennyson's "Idylls of the King," and Longfellow's "Evangeline," has unconsciously missed the greater part of her emotional inheritance.—Ladies' Home Journal.

That the blood should perform its vital functions, it is absolutely necessary it should not only be pure but rich and life-giving elements. These results are best effected by the use of that well-known standard blood-purifier, Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Two Box Cure

MILVERTON, 20TH JULY, 1895.

Gentlemen.—For the last ten years I had been troubled with kidney disease, being so bad at intervals that I could not lie in bed at night nor stoop to the ground.

I had tried all the remedies I could find without effect, but heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills and procured a box.

I am most happy to say it for my own sake as well as for others that I am perfectly cured after using four boxes.

THE BEST
FAMILY MEDICINE
She Has Known. Words of Praise from a New York Lady for
AYER'S PILLS

"I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have taken them for many years, and always derived the best results from their use. For stomach and liver troubles, and for the cure of headache caused by these derangements, Ayer's Pills cannot be equaled.

When my friends ask me what is the best remedy for disorders of the stomach, liver, or bowels, my invariable answer is, Ayer's Pills. Taken in season, they will break up a cold, prevent la grippe, check fever, and regulate the digestive organs. They are easy to take, and are, indeed, the best all-round family medicine I have ever known."—Mrs. MAY JOHNSON, 368 Elder Avenue, New York City.

FOR A FRENCH BRIDE.

CIVIC AND RELIGIOUS CEREMONIES OF MARRIAGE IN FRANCE.

The Wedding Gowns of the Bride—The Elaborate Toilets For Family and Bridesmaids—Requirements of a Fashionable Union of Heart and Hand.

(Special Correspondence.)

Paris, (Special).—A Young French girl with whom I became acquainted when she passed through New York to the World's Fair in Chicago, was married the other day, and some account of the wedding fineries may prove interesting. Not that marriages in France differ notably from marriages in other parts of the civilised world, but because in one essential the likeness is so strong—the occasion calls for a great display of pretty clothes.

French women have two chances at wedding dresses, for they are twice married. The civil ceremony requires discretion in the choice of a gown. The importance of the function must be recognized by a toilet fresh and charming, but there are many modifying considerations. The prospective bride is still a "jeune fille," and so by French custom must put on nothing of any great state or richness. On the other hand she is about to be transformed into a "jeune femme," and must look forward to her coming privileges. A quiet dress of some dignity, yet youthful-looking and modest, is the ideal aimed at for the ceremony at the mairie. As the gown is apt to be used afterward for visiting, it may be measurably like an English bride's "going away" dress, which is more decorative than a simple traveling gown. At times it approaches afternoon or quiet reception dress more closely. Everything depends, of course, on the means and position of the bride.

A GROUP OF GOWNS AT A FRENCH WEDDING.

The guests at the civil ceremony keep their finest clothes for the religious ceremony, and then dress as beautifully as they can.

The Bride's Rose Silk.

The young girl of whose frocks I am going to tell you, wore at the mairie a very charming gown. She has the clear, pale skin and delicate features that one learns to look for in Paris, with very pretty and abundant dark hair. She could not have chosen a color that suited her better than the old rose silk of quite a new shade of which her plain long skirt was made.

Her full bodice of white chiffon was just the right thing for her slim figure, and over it she wore a bolero of old rose silk like her skirt, daintily but not showily embroidered with gold. Her sleeves were of drawn chiffon, fitting the arm closely, with drooping puffs of silk at the top. Some fine lace at the throat and a folded belt of silk gave the finishing touches. She dressed her hair in its natural, every-day fashion, and covered it with a large hat of dark green velvet with old rose and white plumes. She wore trim, high shoes. The detail is of no consequence, except that in Paris it is held to be bad taste to wear slippers at one's civil wedding. High shoes are prescribed as giving some touch of businesslike seriousness.

Having already said that the witnesses save newest and choicest for part second of the wedding. I shall omit all other toilets except that of the bride's pretty cousin, who was present with her own sweetheart in a dress of sapphire blue silk with Louis XVI. coat and white brocaded waistcoat with gold buttons. A little toque of lemon-colored velvet, veiled with point de Venise and trimmed with ostrich plumes, was more jaunty than anything the bride was allowed to wear.

The White Bridal Gown.

Part II. was a different affair. Twenty-four hours after the first ceremony, the bridal white went on. The bridal white was of very rich ivory satin, which is even more generally used this winter than in past seasons, and indeed almost shuts out other materials. The dress was at once youthful in look and stately. The bodice was still that of the young girl; the sweep of the skirt and the train befitted the married woman. The skirt was cut rather scant in front, all the fulness being thrown back into the round train. It was edged all the way about with garlands of orange blossoms, and the same flowers ran up the side seams. The bodice was cut with a blouse front of white mousseline de soie gathered under a broad corselet of the satin and partly covered by a bolero of point d'Alencon lace. The high, wired Medici collar was of the same lace, as was the wrist garniture finishing the sleeves. Knots of orange blossoms were fastened upon the corsage and caught the veil to the hair. Not a jewel of any kind was to be seen. The tulle veil was worn quite off the face, hanging down upon the train behind. To cover the face, or partly cover it, is the fad this winter, but to throw the veil back is regular enough also. The white gloves were short, as demanded by the season's long sleeves. White slippers were worn, and a look of beautitude. A bride is not supposed to look pretty, but this bride was an exception. Perhaps the difference in her favor was the look of beautitude.

Fashion in Bridesmaids.

Fashion puts no limit to the number of bridesmaids. In this case there were six, two little tots and four young girls, educated in the same convent with the bride. The little tots, who were 7 years old, possibly, wore very short frocks of white liberty silk, with drawn yokes and sleeves of white chiffon and chiffon ruches about the hems. They had pale blue sashes edged with chiffon frills, and big hats of blue velvet with white plumes.

The grown up bridesmaids wore gowns of ivory satin with plain skirts. The bodices had sashes of pale blue velvet swathed round the figure and fastened with graduated paste buttons. They had very pretty fichus also, that you should look at in the picture, of fine white mousseline de soie, edged with lace and held in place by brooches of pearls and turquoise. They had cavalier hats of white velvet with long blue feathers and paradise plumes. French bridesmaids do not always dress alike. By failing to do so they spoil the picture, but there was no such drawback on this occasion.

I am not going to talk trousseau, because trousseau garments are all for one woman and one figure. It is more profitable to pick out a few of the prettiest frocks I saw at the ceremony.

The mother of the bride wore a very handsome princess costume in lilac moire. The bodice was finished with a guipure plastron and a bolero of amethyst velvet, from which two square tabs hung below the waist line. A Medici collar of fine old lace and some artistic buttons were the garnitures. Her capote was a pale blue satin with bouquets of violets. She caried a muff trimmed with violets and an air of content and satisfection.

A Creation in Green.

A conspicuous figure at the reception after mass and ceremony was a graceful young woman all in green. Her trim bodice was of very rich velvet, and apparently seamless, opening invisibly upon the shoulder and under the arm. The very high corselet was rounded in the back, but came up in two points in front, almost to the shoulders. This corselet was of green silk embroidered in silver, and was encircled by three narrow belts of green velvet, one above another, closing with tiny silver buckles and bows of green ribbon. Ribbon bows disposed in three rows made epaulets on the shoulders, while more ribbon formed a ruche of loops above the standing collar of mink fur. The sleeves were of velvet with mink bands at the wrist. The skirt was of dark gren silk laid in folds all around, and opening in front upon a panel of velvet simulating an underskirt. This panel was edged with mink at the hem. The silver embroidery on the corselet came down upon the side panels of the skirt, in arabesques and scrolls. In spite of its heavy materials the costume was jaunty and dainty looking, setting off well slightly flushed cheeks and dark curly hair. Her large hat of black velvet was trimmed with green ribbons and long black feathers.

The bridegroom's mother was an imposing figure in black velvet redingote, ground length and lined with white satin. Over the redingote she wore what is called a "dalmatique," or shoulder cape, with square ends coming to the waist or below. This was of white lampas broche, with scroll work in velvet and finished with a Medici collar and an edging of sable fur.

And the bridegroom? He doesn't matter. Men are of no account at a wedding. ELLEN OSBORNE.

That Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood and relieves a vast amount of suffering is not a theory but a well known fact.

Constipation Cured.

Gents,—I was in very poor health for over four years; the doctor said it was constipation. Not wanting to spend too much cash I got three bottles of B.B.B. and took it regularly, I can certify that I am now in the very best of health and feel very grateful to B.B.B.

FOUR PERSONS BURNED.

Raid on a "Speak Easy" Which Resulted in Loss of Life.

Sistersville, W. Va., Feb. 24.—Intelligence has just reached here of a calamity in the interior of the county, by which several persons are reported to have lost their lives and a number were injured. In the oil fields there has been a disorderly house and "speak-easy" running, and the neighbors decided to get rid of the objectionable characters. The mob at first attempted to tear down the house, but, as this was slow work, it was set on fire. The inmates made no attempt to get out while the crowd were tearing down the building, and it is said four of them were unable to reach the street after the place was fired. Those reported to have been burned to death are: Stella Woods of Pittsburg, Anna Johnson of Columbus, John Jackson of Pennsylvania and Frank Stewart of Indiana.

A mirror could lie if it wanted to. The glass has nothing to gain by flattery. If the roses of health and plumpness of beauty are leaving your face your mirror will tell you so. Health is the greatest beautifier in the world. When a woman sees the indications of ill health in the face, she may with almost absolute certainty look for the cause in one or both of two conditions—constipation and derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure permanently and positively any so-called "female complaints." Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will cure constipation. There is no reason in the world why a woman should not be perfectly healthy. She will gain in health, strength and flesh. Hollows and angles will give place to fullness, and grace. She will be that noblest and most beautiful of all creation—a perfect woman.

ALTERATION AND CHANGE

FAIRWEATHER & CO.

Have decided that the next two weeks will be a hay-day for all bargain lovers, as we are going to push out our Furs at SACRIFICING PRICES to make room for the workmen during the renovation. The workmen are about to start a complete alteration on the interior of our store in the course of 2 weeks. New Ceilings, New Floors, New Front—enlarging of premises, etc., etc. This is but the forerunner of other changes which are to be made in our business arrangements, as we have announced through the press during the past month.

The most important of these changes to the public will be the placing of all our business

ON A SPOT CASH NO-MORE-CREDIT BASIS!

ON AND AFTER MARCH 15th 1897, we will conduct our business on a cash basis exclusively, in order to save the large losses which a credit business necessitates. We find there are expenses incurred from losses through Bad Accounts—by interest in carrying both "Long-Winded" and "Short-Winded" Accounts—by loss of Discount in not having cash to pay for goods at once—by expenses of extra help required to keep track of and collect Accounts, etc. All these in the aggregate mean a very large expense added to any business. So we have determined to curtail this outlay and give customers the benefit of Cash Buying and Cash Selling on everything.

What we save in expenses our customers save in prices—as formerly those who paid, made up the losses, as above mentioned, incurred by credit. To all our old customers, both cash and credit, we would say that you will find it to your advantage more so now than ever, to see our stock and prices, under this new regime. You will find goods that under credit system, must cost you $5, can now be sold, under cash, for $4. You will be better suited—we will be better pleased. The benefits of a Cash Business are mutual.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

William Nealon, of Campbellford, Instantly Killed at a Mine.

Campbellford Herald.

The sad intelligence came over the wires from Marmora on Thursday night, that Mr. William Nealon, of this village, had been killed by a blast at a mine in Marmora township.

Only two days before the unfortunate man went to Marmora and from there proceeded to an iron mine now being opened up about six miles from that village, and two miles from the Delora mine. He started to work in the forenoon of Thursday, and in the afternoon death claimed him as its victim.

The men employed at the mine had put in a shot, and after igniting the fuse, ran over a little mound for safety. Nealon took another course alone, some distance from them, along a roadway, and sought refuge beside two trees, about 75 yards distant from the mine, where he had been once before. When the explosion took place, the men called out 'all right, but no reply coming from Nealon, one of them ran over to where he was, and found him lying on the ground unconscious with his head towards the roadway. He called to the others, and some water was procured to bathe his face, but he breathed only five minutes afterwards. Stones thrown by the blast struck him in three places, killing him. Over the right temple was a mark made by one stone, a severe cut behind the ear was made by another, and a bruise on the shoulder also proved that he had been struck there. His body was taken care of and brought to Campbellford on Friday afternoon, and interred in the Roman Catholic cemetery on Saturday.

Mr. Nealon was a widower, 46 years of age. He was twice married, and two daughters by his first marriage survive him one of whom resides in Campbellford and the other in Peterborough. The deceased was highly respected, and his sudden death has cast a gloom over the community. His brother, Mr. John Nealon, and his sister, Mrs. John Cleary, both of Toronto, attended the funeral.

TWEED TOPICS.

Mrs. James Davenport Makes a Statement for the Benefit of Others.

Mrs. Davenport is well-known in Tweed, and this is how she spoke to our representative concerning Doan's Kidney Pills. Said Mrs. Davenport:—

"I have suffered for some years from dizziness puffing under the eyes, pains in the side and back, sleeplessness, poor appetite, and in fact, was in a bad state generally.

"I took two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills which I got at P. K. Newton's drugstore, and experienced immediate relief from their use.

"I am now very much better indeed; appetite improved, pain almost disappeared and I feel stronger and healthier in every particular.

"I heartily recommend them to all sufferers from kidney trouble."

PRESS PLEADS FOR MERCY.

Don't Spoil the Editor by Foolish Waste.

St. John (Kansas) News: It takes money to run a newspaper.

Emporia (Kansas) Gazette: What an exaggeration; what a whopper! It has been disproved a thousand times; it is a clear case of fancy. The press can run without money. It is not a business venture. It is a charitable institution, a begging concern, a highway robber. A newspaper is the child of the air, a creature of a dream. It can go on and on, when any other concern would be in the hands of the sheriff or assignee and be wound up with cobwebs in the window.

It takes wind, a scintillating acrobatic imagination, and a half dozen white shirts and a railroad pass to run a newspaper. But money—heavens to Betsy and six hands round, who ever needed money in conducting a newspaper! Kind words are the medium of exchange that do the business for the editor—kind words and church social tickets. When you see an editor with money, watch him. He'll be paying his bills and disgracing his profession. Never give money to an editor. Make him trade it out.

Then when you die, after having stood around for years and sneered at the editor and his little jim crow paper, be sure and have your wife send in for three extra copies by one of your weeping children, and when she reads the generous and touching notice about you, forewarn her to neglect to send ten cents to the editor. It would overwhelm him. Money is a corrupting thing. The editor knows it and what he wants is your heartfelt thanks. Then he can thank the printers and they can thank their grocers and bakers.

Take your work to the job office, and then come and ask for half rates for church notices. Get your lodge letter heads and stationery printed out of town, and then flood the editor with reports of meetings and beautiful thoughts in resolutions of respect and cards of thanks. They make such spicy reading, and when you pick it up filled with these glowing and vivid mortuary articles, you are so proud of your little local paper!

But money—scorn the filthy thing. Don't let the pure, innocent editor know anything about. Keep that for sordid tradespeople who charge for their wares. The editor gives his bounty away. The Lord loves a cheerful giver. He'll take care of the editor. Don't worry about the editor. He has a charter from the country to act as a door mat for the community. He will get the paper out somehow, and stand up for you when you run for office, and lie about your pigeon-toed daughter's tasty wedding, and blow about your big footed sons when they get a $1 a week job, and weep over your shriveled soul when it is released from your grasping body, and smile at your giddy wife's second marriage. Don't worry about the editor; he'll get on. The Lord knows how—but somehow.

NORTH VICTORIA INDIAN RELICS.

Interesting Contributions to the Ontario Archæological Museum Made by Mr. Geo. A. Laidlaw, of "The Fort," Victoria Road.

The once powerful tribes of Indians who inhabited the region between Lake Scugog and Georgian Bay, and whose villages were established at strategic points on our inland lakes, have been swept away or have dwindled to miserable remants, but have left many interesting relics behind. Some of the villages had been abandoned or captured by the enemy, and the inhabitants butchered, years before Champlain passed through these waters with his Huron braves in 1615 to attack the bloodthirsty but intrepid Iroquois south of Lake Ontario, and several of the French axes lost by his party have been recovered. Many of our farmers, while guiding the plow, have turned up human bones and stone arrow heads, pipes, knives, etc., and have deposited them in fence corners, to be picked up, perhaps, by some curious visitor and carried away to form the nucleus of a collection of curios.

Perhaps the finest collection of the kind in Lindsay is that possessed by Mr. R. G. Cornell, the well-known insurance agent. In his frequent visits to the farmers roundabout he neglected no opportunity to add to his collection, and as it speedily became known that he was interested in Indian relics he was given his pick of many.

North Victoria is especially rich in such archæological treasures, and Mr. Geo. A. Laidlaw, of "The Fort," Victoria Road, has for some years taken a deep interest in such explorations. Last fall a notice was published asking for donations of Indian relics for the Ontario Archæological Museum, in connection with the Ontario educational department, and in response to the request he received a large number of interesting relics, which he forwarded to the museum, along with a very interesting account of his personal explorations. The relics (all of which were obtained in Bexley township) are described in the annual departmental report.—Post.

Too Good To Miss!

No Time To Lose!

GOUGH'S Winter Wind-Up.

These are WIND-UP DAYS, and GOUGH BROS' Slashing Cut in Clothing, Cloths, Boots and Shoes, Gentlemen's Furnishings, &c., to Wind-up the Winter Selling Season, is an extraordinary event too important to miss. Never since the days of Adam has good Clothing and Boots and Shoes been sold so cheap as we're selling them now. A colossal stock of Clothing and Boots and Shoes for Men, Women and Children at prices that revoulutionizes the trade, and emphasizes the possibilities of this great emporium for clothing the people.

THE STOCK MUST MELT!

The sudden thaw in prices must dissolve the Bargain Lots on Tables, Counters and Shelves, and the flood of bargains will lend spirit and snap to bargain lovers while they last. Our plan of campaign demands that all Winter Goods must be out of the way for Spring arrivals. Besides we want to do our share in alleviating present distress by helping the farmer, the mechanic, the business man, the women and the youth, and at the same time keeping our tailors and salesmen busy.

New Spring Goods are rushing in upon us faster than we can place them, so we have decided to let the "hide go with the hair" until our two big stores are clear of Winter lines.

More gigantic selling, forced on by tremendous buying, has never been planned, for we dump everything into this Colossal Sale at an average reduction all round of 20 Per Cent. Below Manufacturer's Prices!

These bargains now stare you in the face, and what is worth emphasizing is that in all the lines we show a large variety of patterns and sizes, both in Clothing and Boots and Shoes. It is not our policy to select two or three catch lines. You get the choice of the whole stock. You merely choose what you need—no question about the goodness of the material or workmanship.

NO DRIFTWOOD! NO BANKRUPT STUFF!

And we don't intend there shall be any in this store. This is a self-respecting business. The combination of the driftwood of merchandise with the bright New Spring Goods would be like the fly in the ointment—spoiling the spring like flavour of our whole store.

Our stock is ALL this season's New Goods Everything is new and right up-to date. Constant newness will mark this store from day to day.

New Spring Dress Goods
New Spring Trimmings
New Spring Dress Silks
New Spring Prints and Muslins
New Spring Prints and Hosiery
New Spring Mantles and Jackets

Don't ask for last years Muslins or Dress Goods, or Umbrellas, or Gloves. We don't keep them—they have all been sold. If you must have them, inquire down street.

Our store blossoms with New Spring Novelties and Rare Values.

And remember, we propose selling the newest of the new season's goods just as cheap as the Bankrupt Sale Prices will be.

You can come and compare goods and values any time you like. Remember, too, that the new goods of this year are different from last year. The New Table Damasks are in entirely new patterns; the new Towels have no fringe, and so on.

You'll want no ancient styles or last year's bird's nests when you once see the crisp new things we have to show you.

We could have had lots of Bankrupt Stuffs if wanted—there's lots of it thrown on the market—but we couldn't afford to mar our new stock or take any risks.

Warships Have Left Canea for Suda Bay—Great Indignation at Athens Against the Powers—Greece Will Not Withdraw Her Troops From Crete.

Canea, Feb. 26.—Most of the foreign warships that were lying in the harbor here have left and gone to Suda Bay, where there is a better anchorage than here. It is likely, hovewer, that their presence here will again be required, as the situation has become more critical than ever before, and it would not be surprising if a conflict should occur. In one respect the interposition of the powers has had a bad effect, in that it has led the Moslems to believe that Europe is back of them in their combat with the Christians. As a result there are this afternoon 3000 Moslem fighting men, besides the Turkish soldiers, all heavily armed, parading the streets of the city and demanding the blood of the Christian dogs who have dared to question the right of the Turks to rule them. The combined forces that have been landed by the several powers number only 300 men and it is believed that without the aid of the warships they would prove of no avail in preserving order in the city.

The popular passion has been added to by Ismael Pasha, the acting Governor, who has circulated false stories to the effect that the Greek troops are mutilating Moslem children. The Governor knows these stories to be untrue and apparently his object is to create among the Moslems deeper hatred of the Christians and to further excite the desire for revenge. He is carrying matters with a high hand and it is likely that the powers will have to intervene to check his ardor in behalf of the Turks. Accompanied by an armed body of Turks he left Candia to-day and occupied strategic positions in the vicinity of the city from which he attacked Christians, causing serious losses to them. The commanders of the warships remaining in the harbor protested to the Governor against his breaking the armistice, but the protest was unheeded. The admirals commanding the foreign fleets have been notified of Ismael's actions and there is much speculation as to the course they will pursue.

Athens, Feb. 26.—The popular indignation against the great powers shows no signs of waning, and if the people had their way they would fight with arms in their hands against the combined forces of Europe in defence of their right to protect the Christians in Crete. It is not alone among the people that this feeling prevails. Parliamentary and official opinion strongly favors resistance to the demands of the powers. The joint note addressed to the Greek Government has not yet been delivered and the delay is unexplained. Only the Russian, Austrian and German Ministers have been instructed by their Governments concerning the note. It is reported that one of the powers has withdrawn from the concert. If this is true it will leave matters in statu quo and will break up the concert, the efforts of which have been directed to overawing Greece by threats.

RUSSIA'S MOTIVES.

The Czar's Government Was Anxious to Prevent the War Extending.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 26.—The Russian demand (that Greece withdraw from Crete within three days) was accompanied by a statement of the motives actuating Russia, namely, that to prevent the extension of the revolution to other portions of the Turkish Empire, imperilling the peace of Europe, a stop must be put to the action of Greece, which is in opposition to international law. Before negotiations for a future Cretan constitution can be entered upon it is asserted Russia has resolved to restore order in Crete Then, after the Greek evacuation under the protection of the powers, an autonomous Government will be installed under the suzerainty of the Sultan. In this policy, it is said, Russia is supported by France, Germany and Austria. Throughout the entire statement neither England nor Italy is mentioned, but Greece is warned that should she, in blind misconception of her own interests, allow herself to be excited by self-seeking friends to persist in her present attitude under the false idea that the powers are not united, because at the outset one or another has not concurred in Russia's proposals, Russia is resolved to take reprisals, the first step being the blockade of the Piraeus.

The powers considered the Greek annexation of Crete out of the question, and it is asserted in the consciousness of their absolute support Russia will be in a position to prevent the Cretan question from imperilling the peace of Europe, even should any individual power refuse to accede to the proposed measure.

It Cannot be Revoked.

London, Feb. 26.—The Athens correspondent of The Times telegraphs that Prime Minister Delyannis has informed him that Greece's decision to maintain her army in Crete is irrevocable, but that the troops will abstain from the offensive. They will only protect the Christians. Greece will not declare war against Turkey unless the Turks invade Thessaly or the powers render the position of the Greek troops in Crete unbearable.

The correspondent adds that the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Athens has telegraphed to the Pope, asking His Holiness to mediate between Greece and the powers.

The Slippery Russian.

London, Feb. 26.—The Vienna correspondent of The Standard and the Berlin correspondent of The Daily News comment upon a despatch from St. Petersburg to a news agency here, which claims to semi-officially describe Russia's attitude on the Cretan question. The despatch says that Russia has ordered Greece to recall her fleet and all her troops from Crete within three days. Other stringent measures are announced and the pwers except Great Britain are named as being ready to co-operate in their enforcement. The opinion in Vienna and Berlin is that unless the despatch is apocryphal, the so-called unanimity of the powers is a mere farce.

Italian Sympathy.

Rome, Feb. 26.—A mass meeting was held at Palermo to night for the purpose of expressing sympathy with the Cretan Christians in their efforts to rid themselves of Turkish rule. Among the messages received was one from ex-Prime Minister Crispi, who, after expressing his approval of the object of the meeting, said: "It was due to Great Britain that Garibaldi in 1860 was not hindered in landing in Sicily. To-day the case is identical. If the powers intervene it ought to be for the liberation of oppressed nations and never to maintain a state of barbarism, living on incendiarism and assassination."

Turkey's War Preparations.

Salonica, Feb. 26.—The massing of Turkish troops and munitions of war on the frontier is proceeding with feverish haste. All the soldiers on furlough have been recalled and eleven batteries of artillery, a regiment of cavalry and two battalions of infantry have gone fro mhere, Monastir and elsewhere to Elassona.

Two additional battalions of infantry have reached Katerina. The reliefs from Smyrna, Brussa, Trebizond and elsewhere in Anatolia are on their way here and for the frontier where a total of six divisions will be formed with headquarters at Elassona.

King George Gets Down.

London, Feb. 26.—A Greek firm doing business in London has received a telegram from Athens, saying that King George of Greece has accepted the demand of the powers for the withdrawal of the Greek troops and warships from Crete.

The Kaiser's Hot Words.

Berlin, Feb. 26.—The Brandenburg Provincial Diet gave a banquet to-night at the Englischeshaus, at which Emperor William was present. His Majesty made a speech, in which he dwelt upon the centenary of William the Great, declaring that Germany's present commanding position was due to him alone. He then proceeded to attack in the angriest words the ever-growing Umsturs parties, which, he said, did not halt before the highest circles, not even the highest ladies. He declared that he was determined to use every means to crush those who were engaged in exciting revolutionary tendencies, and added that he reckoned upon the assistance of the Brandenburgers in this struggle.

CECIL RHODES UP AGAIN

The Ex-Premier of Cape Colony Crosses Oratorical Swords With Messrs. Blake and Labouchere.

London, Feb. 26.—The South African Committee of the House of Commons, appointed to inquire into the Jameson raid into the Transvaal, resumed its sittings to-day and the examination of Cecil Rhodes was continued. A number of peers and members of the House of Commons were present, but for the first time since the inquiry began the Prince of Wales was absent. Mr. Rhodes admitted that he had instructed Mr. Rutherford Harris, his agent in London, to communicate confidentially the plans of the secret movement to certain persons in England, but he refused to give their names.

Mr. Rhodes was asked whether he regarded his having a force ready to march into the Transvaal as consistent with his position as Premier of the Cape Colony, and replied that it was for the committee to judge his conduct, which did not appear to him to have been inconsistent.

Witness was then asked concerning the allusion in the statement read by him at the opening of the inquiry as to the intention of the Boer Government to introduce foreign influence into the Transvaal, Hon. Edward Blake adding that he assumed that Mr. Rhodes had adequate grounds for the statement.

Mr. Rhodes said that he had, but it he should state his reasons for his belief it might do harm and cause irritation to a friendly power. Nevertheless he absolutely did believe it.

To questions by Mr. Blake in regard to the Imperial character of the proposed federation of the South African states, Mr. Rhodes replied: "You must remember that when we federated Canada it was a local people federated, and the Imperial Government finally sanctioned it."

Mr. Blake: Do you think that the end justified the means?

Mr. Rhodes: If I had succeeded we should have had a union of Africa and the Chartered Company would have been profited greatly. As I failed, I must take the responsibility, and I hope that the future will accomplish the union. I also hope that the committee in their deliberations will take into consideration the objects I had in view.

Mr. Rhodes was then examined by Mr. Labouchere, who asked him whether Germany was the power he believed to have been favored by President Kruger, which question the witness answered in the affirmative.

In response to questions asking for evidence in support of this belief, Mr. Rhodes read extracts from a speech delivered by President Kruger before the German Club of Pretoria on the occasion of the birthday of the German Emperor in 1895, in which the Boer President claimed that Great Britain had relinquished her claims of supremacy over the Transvaal, and declared that he had been able to make a treaty with Germany, so that if one nation tried to kick the Transvaalers other nations would try to stop her.

Mr. Rhodes also said that he had reason for the belief that President Kruger intended by this speech to claim the right to make such a treaty and confirm it without the sanction of the Queen. The whole tendency of the Transvaal policy, he added, was in favor of foreigners, Germans especially, at the expense of the English.

Mr. Labouchere: Perhaps President Kruger's speech was an after-dinner oration.

Mr. Rhodes: President Kruger drinks nothing stronger than water.

Witness referred to the objection raised by the German Minister of Foreign Affairs in a speech in the Reichstag to a commercial union of the South African states as being likely to lead to a political protectorate and the exclusion of German goods, and denied that a policy of protection existed at the Cape. "Protection," he said, "means bad factories and bad artfcles for the benefit of a privileged few."

Mr. Rhodes further said that in some of the mines they intended to employ Americans only, because of their better acquaintance with deep levels.

To a question by Mr. Labouchere, as to the meaning of the words "civil rights," as used by Mr. Rhodes, that gentleman answered with much warmth: "The Johannesburgers have no civil rights and no body of Englishmen will ever remain in any place for any period without insisting upon their civil rights."

Evidence showing the animosity of the Transvaal towards the Cape Colony and Great Britain was introduced, in the course of which Mr. Rhodes took from his pocket and read aloud a long extract from a speech in regard to Crete, recently delivered in the House of Commons by Mr. Labouchere. As he finished reading, Mr. Rhodes said: "I quite agree with Mr. Labouchere, and transferred the same sentiments and state of affairs to the Transvaal." This remark created a laugh, in which Mr. Labouchere joined. Witness said that Mr. Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, had absolutely no knowledge whatever of the revolutionary movement, and at this remark Mr. Chamberlain said that he would be very glad to answer any question on the subject.

The committee adjourned until Tuesday.

BLAZE AT OWEN SOUND.

Parker's Block and the Tenants Therein Suffer Considerable Loss.

Owen Sound, Feb. 26.—(Special.)—Fire was discovered at 7.30 this morning in Parker's new block at the north end of Poulett-street. It comm nced in the rear of the law offices of Creasor & Smith, on the first floor, where a good deal of damage was done, and then burned through the floor into the large grocery establishment of Priest & Spragge, causing much injury to the stock. The weather was extremely cold at the time and difficulty was experienced by the firemen in getting the fire out. The loss will amount to $2000, divided between S. J. Parker, owner of the block, and Messrs. Creasor & Smith and Priest & Spragge, and is fully covered by insurance.

Frank Morrill's House Burned.

Yonkers, N.Y., Feb. 26.—The handsome country residence of Frank Morrill, owner of the steam yacht Vamoose, at Alpine, N.J., exactly opposite Yonkers, was totally destroyed by fire to-day. The fire was caused by an overheated flue. The house was worth $50,000, and it contained valuable furniture and handsome paintings. The amount of insurance could not be ascertained.

JAMES FRY'S VICTIM.

The Remains of the Late J. P. Shaw Sent to Stayner for Burial.

Emsdale, Ont., Feb. 26.—The remains of J. P. Shaw, the unfortunate victim of the Ravensworth murder, were sent by this morning's train to Stayner, where the funeral will take place to-morrow at 2 p.m., under the auspices of the I.O.F. and K. O.T.M.

Hugh P Shaw, brother of the deceased, left Vancouver on Sunday, and the body was held here until his arrival this morning on the Atlantic express.

McCook is Fastidious.

New York, Feb. 26.—A despatch received here to-night from Canton, O., says: "There is no longer any question that Col. J. J. McCook of New York has absolutely declined to accept any position in the Cabinet ex cept Attorney-General."

Venezuela Commissions Last Meeting.

Washington, Feb. 26.—The Venezuelan Commission held to-day what was probably the last session of this tribunal. To-day's meeting was in the nature of a winding-up of the affairs of the commission. During its existence it has heard and collected much valuable testimony, and prepared a great many exhaustive reports, which are now being printed. The work of the commission has not been lost, as the result of its labors will be to greatly simplify the work of the arbitration tribunal when it meets.

The Parliament is Now Supreme

Pretoria, Transvaal, Feb. 25.—The Volksraad to-day passed in its entirety the bill virtually placing the High Court under the Volksraad. This action was believed to be necessary in view of the persistent attempts of Cecil Rhodes to undermine the republic.

Scrofula

Infests the blood of humanity. It appears in varied forms, but is forced to yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies and vitalizes the blood and cures all such diseases. Read this:

A Sore

two inches across formed and in walking to favor it I strained my ankle. The sore became worse; I could not put my boot on and I thought I should have to give up at every step. I could not get any relief and had to stop work. I read of a cure of a similar case by Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to try it. Before I had taken all of two bottles the sore had healed and the swelling had gone down. My

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE Mail and Empire attributes recent business failures to "tariff uncertainty." If the organ had said uncertainty of custom it might have been nearer the mark. Would it be fair to say that failures under the regime of the late Government were the result of tariff certainty?

THE Quebec bye-elections will take place at different dates and for very good reasons. The writ for the Bonaventure election has been issued. The election will take place on the 13th of March and nomination a week earlier. The reason for not ordering the writ for Champlain now is that over 1,000 electors are working in the bush, and they would be disfranchised were a contest brought on at present.

A Conservative contemporary is finding fault with the Dominion Government for issuing commissions. In view of the fact that these commissions are rendered necessary by evidences of maladministration on the part of the late government or misconduct on the part of its supporters, it may be suggested that they are not so much out of the way. They cannot hold a candle to the notorious prohibition commission, for gratuitous uselessness and voluminous nothingness of result.

WE may expect somewhat of a rush of ladies, whose matrimonial hopes have fallen short of realization, into the ranks of the nursing profession. A Parkhill gentleman was lucky enough to spend a few weeks in the Brockville hospital, and was so enamoured of his nurse, who rejoices in the alkaline baptismal name of Pearline, that he married her the other day. With the fair Pearline exerting her mollifying influence on the "oil of gladness," incident to the hallucination period of the honeymoon, let us soap that a happy future awaits so romantic a conjunction of circumstances.

THE special audit of the books of the late treasurer of the county of Brant reveals a shortage of $6,760, and this does not include the House of Refuge and township council accounts which are now under special scrutiny. Six thousand seven hundred dollars would pay the cost of a proper audit by a properly qualified auditor for a hundred years. This is another evidence of the necessity of such a bill as Mr. Hardy's, providing for a better system of book-keeping and a better system of auditing municipal accounts. Shakspere's motto "safe bind; safe find" applies with special force to the auditing of such accounts.

AT first thought it would not be supposed that there was very much practical relation between "a dash of a bonnet" and the state of trade. But a Toronto paper states that the millinery openings, which are now in full flutter in the wholesale centres, are "helping business." From now until Easter a new bonnet or hat is the aim of woman—"when she will, she will, you may depend on 't"—and pater and hubby will have rest neither day nor night, till the necessary financial equivalent of the coveted headgear is forthcoming. Under such circumstances money must necessarily be put into circulation and trade stimulated. This important evidence of feminine influence in finance, constitutes, one might think, another plea for the extension of the franchise to women; to which some morose bachelor, hardened in the sour ways of celibacy, may reply that when woman becomes masculine enough to be an active factor in politics, she will disdain such frivolities as hyper-ornate hats and bonnets and content herself with a cheap and plain form of "tile."

IN regard to the matters involved in the threatened retaliation of Ontario manufacturing concerns towards the United States in regard to the Americans in their employ, the New York Times takes this sensible view: "Several important Canadian concerns have given notice that if the exclusion of Canadians from employment in this country be enforced by law, they will instantly discharge all Americans in their employ. This is perfectly natural, and our people can have no reason to complain but it would be an economic mistake, nevertheless. The Americans are now employed, no doubt, because they are needed, and their labour is profitable—in other words, for precisely the same reasons that Canadians are employed on this side the border. There is no benevolence nor international good feeling involved, but interest only. If we injure our interests by excluding Canadians, they will injure theirs by retaliation. The theory of our proposed law is fallacious, absolutely. It is that there is a fixed quantity of work which Americans will get if the Canadians are shut out. It may help the narrow-minded legislators to see the thing in its true light, however, if our people are forbidden to work in Canada.

The entering wedge of a fatal complaint is often a slight cold, which a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. Therefore, it is advisable to have this prompt and sure remedy always at hand to meet an emergency.

CANADIAN MINING RESULTS.

The Production of our Mines for the Past Year.

It will not probably add to the prevalent surimania to submit a few figures as to the production of minerals in Canada. By Mr. L. L. Brophy, the statistician of the Geological Survey, a summary report of the mineral production of Canada for 1896 has just been issued. The figures are significant. In 1886 the entire country produced of all kinds of minerals $12,000,000 worth. The figure rose gradually, the rate being a million a year, until 1896, when the total output was $23 637,305. Of this $23,637,000, no less than $8,000,000 was in coal, while $1,555,646 was petroleum. The metalic products were, of course, gold silver, copper, iron, lead and nickel. Of gold the production was $2,810,206, of silver $2,147,589, of copper $1,021,148, of iron $184,313, of lead $721,384, and of nickel $1,155,000, or a total of $8,039,640. The figures are subject to correction, when fuller returns are received. They will be, if at all erroneous, slightly under the mark. It is interesting to contrast the output of the precious metals with the outputs of former years. Take gold. It has jumped up from $1,042,055 in 1894 and $1,910,600 in 1895 to $2,810,206 in 1896. Silver has also risen rapidly. The production was only $369,488 in 1892. It rose $534,049 in 1894, to $1,158,633 in 1895, and to $2,147,589 in 1896. There was an increased production in these two metals in 1896 over 1894 of $3,381,591. For the former year the output was $1,576,204, for the latter $4,957,795. The statistics prepared by Mr. Brophy, far ahead of the usual time, do not give the results for each province. But the British Columbia Government has just issued a report of the output in British Columbia which, with the statistics of the Geological Survey for 1895, tells us what has been going on in the West. In the first place it may be mentioned that from the commencement of its experience in mining in 1858 British Columbia has produced gold to the value of $59,877,000 and silver to the value of $4.028,224. Of course the large production in the earlier years was the result of placer mining. By this process over three millions of gold has been exhumed in certain years but the amount fell gradually, until in 1892 the output was but $990,000. Since that year, quartz mining having been introduced, there has been a rise. In 1894 the figures were $456,066, and in 1895 $1,290.531, while in 1896, last year there were $1,788,000. Silver in British Columbia rose from $195,000 in 1893 to $1,105,000 in 1895. Last year, 1896, the output was $2,100,000. The richest district in British Columbia according to the figures was Kootenay. It turned out in 1895 $2,233,206 of minerals of all kinds, and in 1896 $4,002,735. This is an immense proportion of the entire output of the province, as will be seen when it is mentioned that the total output of metals in British Columbia for 1896 was $4,816,955.

Sir Oliver Mowat Afflicted With Kidney Trouble.

The news has been flashed across the wires from the old country that Sir Oliver Mowat, who is there seeking medical advice, is a victim of kidney disease. His friends say that the case is not as alarming as the press reports stated. But there seems to be no disguising the fact, that with Ontario's Premier, as thousands of others, kidney disease has seized the system. It is laying waste the lives of our best people in all parts of the Dominion. And yet those who have learned to use South American Kidney Cure are finding in it a remedy far surpassing a sea voyage, or even the skill of England's greatest physicians. It is a kidney specific, not a cure-all, but as a specialist in this particular it gives relief within six hours after the first dose and renewed health to all who use it. Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

Will it Be Success or Failure?

Your Decision Means Life or Death

Paine's Celery Compound Guarantees New Life and Long Years.

The Use of Medicines That Have no Record or Reputation is Foolish and Suicidal.

You must choose between success or failure—health and misery—suffering brother or sister. Your decision or verdict means either life or death.

Paine's Celery Compound guarantees freedom from disease; it gives to the sick one health, strength and long years of life. The use of medicines that have no reputation or record to commend them means prolonged agony and death. The wise and prudent make use of Paine's Celery Compound; the foolish experiment with anything that is suggested to them.

Paine's Celery Compound is the world's grand life-boat that has so successfully rescued tens of thousands from the storms and tempests of ravaging disease. Will you, while struggling in the billows of suffering, trust the life-saving and life-giving powers of Paine's Celery Compound? Be assured it is able to rescue those who are in the most desperate straits, and will land them safely on the solid rock of health.

Paine's Celery Compound has done a mighty work for your friends and neighbours in past times; its work goes on every day successfully and triumphantly, spreading joy and gladness everywhere.

Britain's Loss at Sea.

The British Board of Trade has issued a statement of the number of lives lost by accident in British merchant ships during last year. The total statement shows the average loss to be about five-sixths of 1 per cent. of the number of men employed. The percentage of lives lost in sailing vessels is somewhat larger than that of steamers.

Altogether there were 218,224 men employed on British ships registered in the United Kingdom. If these 56,095 were employed on sailing ships and 162,129 on steamships. The latter suffered a loss of 313 seamen and 34 passengers, making a total of 347. Sailing vessels lost 1029 seamen and 21 passengers.

"77"

FOR

GRIP

La Grippe is epidemic in nearly all parts of America.

That it is not so fatal as in 1889 is largely due to the universal use of Dr. Humphreys' "77," the only Specific ever discovered for the prevention and cure of Grip.

Taken early, cuts it short promptly.

Taken during its prevalence, preoccupies the system and prevents its invasion.

Taken while suffering, relief is speedy and cure certain.

"77" cures stubborn COLDS that "hang on" and do not yield to treatment. Relieves in a few hours—cures in a few days.

THERE IS NOTHING ELSE THAT CAN TAKE ITS PLACE

TWO MONTHS TO LIVE.

THAT IS WHAT A DOCTOR TOLD MR. DAVID MOORE.

The Remarkable Experience of One Who Was an Invalid for Years—Six Doctors Treated Him Without Benefit—He Owes His Renewed Health to Following a Friend's Advice.

From the Ottawa Journal.

Mr. David Moore is a well-known and much esteemed farmer living in the County of Carleton, some six miles from the village of Richmond. Mr. Moore has been an invalid for some years, and physicians failed to agree as to his ailment. Not only this but their treatment failed to restore him to health. Mr. Moore gives the following account of his illness and eventual restoration to health. He says: "My first sickness came on me when I was 69 years of age. Prior to that I had always been a strong healthy man. I had a bad cough and was growing weak and in bad health generally. I went to North Gower to consult a doctor, who after examining me said, Mr. Moore I am very sorry to tell you that your case is very serious, so much so that I doubt if you can live two months. He said my trouble was a combination of Asthma and bronchitis, and he gave me some medicine and some leaves to smoke which he said might relieve me. I took neither because I felt sure I had neither trouble he said, and that he did not understand my case. Two days later I went to Ottawa and consulted one of the most prominent physicians there. He gave a thorough examination and pronounced my ailment heart trouble, and said I was liable in my present condition to drop dead at any moment. I decided to remain in the city for some time and undergo his treatment. He wrote a few lines on a piece of paper giving my name and place of residence and trouble, to carry in my pocket in case I should die suddenly. I did not seem to be getting any better under the treatment and finally left the city determined to consult a doctor nearer home. I was again examined and the idea that I had heart disease was scouted, the doctor saying that there was many a man following the plow whose heart was in a worse shape than mine. I remained under the treatment of this doctor for a long time, but got no better. Then my case was made worse by an attack of la grippe, which left behind it a terrible pain in my neck and shoulders. This became so severe that I could not raise my head from my pillow without putting my hand to it and lifting it up. I doctored on until I was trying my sixth doctor, and instead of getting better was getting worse. The last doctor I had advised me to wait until the heat of summer was over when he would blister me for the pains in my neck and shoulders, which he felt sure would relieve it. I was on my way to Richmond to undergo the blistering, when I met Mr. Geo. Argue of North Gower, who told me of the wonderful cure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had wrought in him, and advised me strongly to try them. I went on to Richmond, but instead of going to the doctor's I bought some Pink Pills and returned home, and began using them. Before I had finished my second box there was no room to doubt that they were helping me. I kept on taking the Pink Pills, and my malady, which the doctors had failed to successfully diagnose, was rapidly leaving me. The pain also left my neck and shoulders, and after a couple of months treatment I became strong and healthy. I am now in my 77th year and thank God that I am able to go about with a feeling of good health. I still continue taking the pills occasionally, feeling sure that for a person of my age they are an excellent tonic. After the failure of so much medical treatment I feel sure that nothing else than Pink Pills could have restored me to my present condition."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills create new blood, build up the nerves, and thus drive disease from the system. In hundreds of cases they have cured after all other medicines had failed, thus establishing the claim that they are a marvel among the triumphs of modern medical science. The genuine Pink Pills are sold only in boxes, bearing the full trade mark, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Protect yourself from imposition by refusing any pill that does not bear the registered trade mark around the box.

WHO'LL BUILD IT?

Mr. Blair Was in Favor of a Government Road

THROUGH THE CROW'S NEST PASS

A Majority of the Ministers, However, are Said to Favor Construction by the C.P.R. of the Railway to the Kootenay Country—General News From Ottawa.

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—(Special.)—Crow's Nest Railway is the question in Canadian politics to-day and it is likely that it will be considered in council to-morrow. The sub-committee, which has been devoting a good deal of attention to the subject for the past 10 days, is about ready with its report. It is said that the Ministers, recognising the peculiar position in which a Government road in the Rockies would be placed, as regards its connections, will recommend that aid be given to the C.P.R. to construct the line. Mr. Blair spent three weeks in the Kootenay district and came away thoroughly imbued with the idea of safeguarding the interests of the public in the matter of freight rates. Indeed, Mr. Blair himself would prefer a Government railway, and it is rumored has only deferred to the views of his other colleagues on condition that the C.P.R. forgoes the clause in its charter which forbids any interference with freight rates until such time as the company is earning 10 per cent. on the capital invested. It is stated that this is the offer which will be made to the C.P.R., and that from this there will be no deviation.

Dr. Milne of Victoria, who has a good deal to say on Government matters in British Columbia, has not given up the fight for an independent line. During the past two or three days he has diligently interviewed members of Parliament to secure their influence for a Government or independent road from the coast to Lethbridge.

J. E. Prendergast, former Provincial Secretary in the Greenway Cabinet, has got his reward, an Order-in-Council having been passed appointing him to a county judgship from March 1. It will be remembered that Mr. Prendergast recently resigned his seat for St. Boniface and espoused the Laurier settlement of the school matter.

Mr. Fielding has not yet decided whether he will send the Superintendent of Insurance to Boston to examine into the affairs of Massachusetts Benefit Association, as requested by Mr. Lount, M.P. A high authority to-day discussed the point as to whether the Government can take any action in the matter on behalf of the policyholders. In ordinary mutual insurance the companies practically have the power to make the premiums as high as they like. People who go in for mutual benefit insurance assume that risk in so doing. But Mr. Lount, who is acting for the Canadian policyholders of the company, takes the position that when the Canadian Mutual Company transferred its business in 1892 to the Massachusetts Company there was an agreement as to maximum premium charges. It is stated that the company's assessments in the United States are equally as high as in Canada; that in fact, the organization is making a fight to keep up, and is only demanding unusual payments from its policy-holders because of an unusual death rate. There is a desire also to squeeze out old policy-holders and run the business on good risks, that is with young men.

Hon. E. H. Bronson, M. L. A., for Ottawa, is in a precarious state of health, and yesterday was so ill as to cause fears that his recovery was doubtful. He was attacked by heart failure and for a while it was a question as to whether the end was not very close. Six medical men were unremitting in their attentions upon him. The family were summoned, but toward evening the Minister rallied and this morning is much better, but very weak. The trouble is explained as being a collapse of the nerves affecting the heart's action, the primary cause being prolonged over-exertion. Mr. Bronson will have to take a rest from all business cares for some considerable time.

Domat Grand Maitre, a 7-year-old boy living in Hull, was almost instantly killed yesterday by a telegraph pole falling upon him while passing along the street, where employes of the Hull Electric Company were working erecting new poles. The employes were removing a pole from a hole to put it in another, when it fell on the child, who happened to pass at the time, coming from school. The boy had his skull crushed and his face badly cut. He was taken to his father's residence, where he died two hours afterwards.

Coroner Graham was called and held an inquest this morning. After examining a number of witnesses, the following verdict was returned by the jury: "That death was caused by the falling of a telegraph pole, and that the employes are to blame for not taking the necessary precaution in their work."

Thomas Howard Christian, the victim of Tuesday's shooting accident at the drill hall, died in the Water-street Hospital this morning. Mr. Christian suffered intense agony for some time. Deceased was 35 years of age and was every inch a soldier. He had served twelve years in the British army, and at the time of his death he was a member of the P. L. D. G. and caretaker of their armory. The funeral will be borne by the officers of the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards.

Notice is given of application to Parliament for incorporation of three new insurance companies. Two of these are for life insurance and the third for the purpose of insuring against bad debts. Once before this branch of insurance was tried in Canada, but did not turn out an unqualified success, and in the end the company retired from business.

In the Supreme Court to-day, Mr. Fitzpatrick, Q. C., and Mr. Ferguson, Q. C., on behalf of the respondent, moved to quash the appeal entered in Demers v. Bank of Montreal for want of jurisdiction, the appeal being from a mere interlocutory order. Lane, contra, opposed the motion on the ground that the appellant was by the order finally deprived of the right to have a trial by jury. Motion allowed with costs. Cream v. Davidson was next called.

LINSEED AND TURPENTINE

Linseed and Turpentine is not only a popular remedy, but the best known to medical science for the treatment of nervous membranes of respiratory organs.

DR. CHASE compounded this valuable syrup so as to take away the unpleasant taste of the turpentine and linseed. It was the Doctor's last and greatest remedy, and more of it is sold in Canada than all other cough medicines combined.

"I tried a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for a troublesome affection of the throat," writes Manager Thomas Dewson, of the Standard Bank, now of 14 Melbourne avenue, Toronto. "It proved effective. I regard the remedy as simple, cheap and exceedingly good. It has hitherto been my habit to consult a physician in troubles of this nature. Hereafter, however, I intend to be my own family doctor."

TWO YEARS IN THE CENTRAL.

This was the Sentence Imposed on Wm. Yorke This Morning.

Magistrate Dumble sentenced Wm. Yorke to two years in the Central Prison, this morning, on a charge of stealing a horse.

The facts of the case are that several days ago Yorke met Henry O'Brien driving along the street and, hailing him, offered to trade horses. O'Brien didn't want to trade and said so, but was persuaded to drop into a hotel to talk the matter over. Yorke plied O'Brien with liquor to the extent of half a dozen drinks and then took him home to dinner with him, when more liquor was partaken of.

The harness was changed on the two horses "just to see how it would fit, etc., and O'Brien's horse was sent off, presumably to the blacksmith shop, but in reality to a hotel in town, where it was kept until after dark and then taken back to Yorke's. In the meantime O'Brien had been turned adrift with Yorke's old horse, although he kept protesting all the time that he did not want to trade equines.

A complaint was made to the police department with the result that Yorke was arrested and tried on the charge of stealing the horse.

County Crown Attorney Wood conducted the prosecution and brought forth a very black record against the prisoner, whom he showed to have been convicted eight times on different charges in Ontario County and Lindsay. His Toronto record was not to hand, but his Orillia record of shooting a man has just arrived.

Yorke promised to turn over a new leaf and leave the town, if allowed another chance, but the magistrate decided that he could reform in prison, if he really wanted to do so and accordingly, as stated, imposed a sentence of two years.

PETERBOROUGH CURLERS WIN FROM TORONTO.

The Annual Match Played Off Between Six Local Rinks and Six From the Toronto Victorias.

Six rinks of the Toronto Victorias came to town yesterday to play the first half of the annual twelve rink match between them and the local clubs for the Boucher-Davidson medal. As will be seen by the appended score the visitors were beaten by seven shots. The Granites were two down all around, but the Thistles were nine points up. To the Colt rink, however, the greater credit is due, as they won from their opponents by a score of 23 to 8. The individual rinks scores were as follows:

Thistles.	Victorias.

Grand total, 86-79.
Majority for Peterborough, 7 shots.

The contests were fairly even all around and the visitors were more than delighted with the quality of the ice furnished.

The skating rink was flooded for the occasion and six grand rinks of ice were prepared being particularly true. Great credit is due Peterborough's "ice maker," Mr. Angus McIntosh, who has the science of his work down to such a fine point that untrue ice is a thing unknown to the local players. Although accustomed to fairly good ice the visitors thought they had never run across anything like that provided for them yesterday.

The remaining half of the match will be played in Toronto on Wednesday next.

The Victorias were three men short and were loaned W. H. Meredith, R. S. Davidson and T. P. Attrill for the occasion.

PETERBOROUGH HOCKEYISTS IN TORONTO.

They Ran up Against a Strong Seven From the T.A.C.

The Peterboroughs took a composite seven to Toronto to play against the Toronto Athletic Club's septette yesterday and were beaten by six goals to four, in a fast game.

The Toronto Mail and Empire gives the following account of the game:—"There was an exciting game of hockey at the Caledonian rink last night, when the Peterborough seven faced the T.A.C. team. The score was T.A.C. 6, Peterborough 4.

The visitors were without the services of King, Phelan, Belleghem and Wasson, their goal-keeper, so that Graham and Crossley, two juniors, figured on the team, and Holingshead, of the intermediate seven, was in goal, a position he had never played before.

It will be seen that the Toronto players were exhibiting new faces on their aggregation.

Helliwell, of the Dominion Bank, was in goal; Labatt, of the Bank of Toronto, was on the forward line; and "Dutchy" Donaldson, the bright spot of the Wellington team, graced the Toronto seven.

Altogether the spectators saw:

Peterborough — Goal, Hollingshead; point, Montgomery; cover-point, Adams, (capt.); forwards, Ashe, Graham, Crossley, Davidson.

T. A. C.—Goal, Helliwell; point, Windyer; cover-point, McArthur; forwards, Carruthers, Labatt, Donaldson, Miller.

Referee, Gordon Crawford, Bank of Toronto.

Umpires—E. H. Anderson, Imperial Bank, and J. D. Bailey, Tecumseh Lacrosse Club.

From end to end the players chased the puck until "Dutchy" Donaldson broke the ice for the home team by scoring on a neat pass from Carruthers.

Davidson and Ashe combined well in the second game, carrying the rubber up the rink, giving it into the keeping of Crossley whose red cap took a circle or two and a game had been scored for Peterborough.

Graham, the junior, went down the ice alone with the disc. He delivered the message which Capt. Adams sent him on when in two minutes he shot successfully, putting Peterborough ahead 2 to 1.

Donaldson stopped some manoeuvres of Adams in the fourth game. Graham was doing lively work. Helliwell and Windyer cleared frequently. Labatt mistook the Peterborough stakes and shot crooked. "Holly," in the visitors' goal, lifted the puck far out of sight as he came down the ice in thunderbolt style, but he could not shoot with any degree of satisfaction. That was Peterborough's weakness all through. Windyer passed the multitude, but didn't score. The Peterborough point tried the same trick, and duplicated Windyer's feat, but ended by scoring. Peterborough 3, T. A. C. 1.

"Gordie" Crawford rang his dinner bell and the players went off the ice in search of a free lunch.

After half-time Carruthers made a pass with which Donaldson failed to connect. Hollingshead got in the way of a couple of fast shots from Donaldson and Carruthers. Helliwell stopped a fast shot just before Miller took the puck down to score for T. A. C. Peterborough, 3; T.A.C., 2.

Donaldson rushed a game through for the home men from a scrimmage in front of the visitors' goal. Peterborough, 3; T. A. C., 2.

"Dutchy" repeated this play in 1½ minutes.

Graham evened the score at four all after some very neat combination work on the part of the Peterborough forwards.

It took Miller just five minutes to get the three last goals, which gave the club men the match.

For an exhibition game the play was close and exciting. The Peterborough contingent present were well pleased with the hockey put up by their club, weakened as they were, by the absence of some of their best players.

The Globe gives the following summary: First, T.A.C., Donaldson, 2 30; second, Peterborough, Graham, 3 min.; third, Peterborough, Graham, 2 min.; fourth, Peterborough, Montgomery, 9 min. Second half—Fifth, T.A.C., Miller, 9.30; sixth, T. A.C., Donaldson, 3 min.; seventh, T.A.C., Donaldson, 1.30; eighth, Peterborough, Graham, 6 30; ninth, T.A.C., Miller, 4.30; tenth, T.A.C., Miller, 30 sec.

HEART DISEASE STRIKES DOWN ALL CLASSES.

The Essential Matter is to be Prepared for any Emergency.

It is painful to pick up the daily papers and observe how people of all classes are being stricken down with heart disease and apoplexy. One day it is the farmer in the field, again the labourer carrying his hod or, as this week, a prominent architect in Ottawa. Perhaps it is not too strong a statement that 80 per cent of the people of Canada are afflicted with heart disease to some extent. What a blessing it is then that there exists a medicine like Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart, which is so quick in producing relief. Instantly the patient obtains that ease which that is so longed for when the heart is afflicted. There is absolutely no case of heart disease that it will not help, and with few exceptions, will produce a radical cure. Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

This means that you should expect greater temporal happiness as well as prosperity if you "pay as you go." Read H. LeBrun & Co's. advertisement on this subject in another column. March will soon be here, and as Mr. LeBrun requires all overdue accounts to be settled by the first of the month, there's not much time to lose. Kindly remember and act accordingly. dw

A Sudden Success.

Everyone is asking "What is the new tune, which I hear hummed and whistled wherever I go?" It is no secret. It is the chorus of "The Land of the Maple," the new patriotic song written by Mr. H. H. Godfrey, and published by the Mason & Risch Piano Co., 32 King street West, Toronto, at 15c a copy, (mail stamps). The melody and words are both so simple that they are learned in a few minutes. Public singers are using it freely as an encore song, and apart from the musical quality of the sentiment expressed, ensures a round of applause at every verse. We have so few Canadian national songs that this one is bound to make a mark.

Collection of Curios.

Mr. R. T. Hartley has a considerable collection of curios, Indian implements, flint arrow heads, stone knives petrifactions, etc. Some of the petrified objects were picked up at Jubilee Point, Stony Lake, and some at Lake St. John, Quebec. It would be a good idea to have such collections added to the museum of the Historical Society at West Nicholls Park. An individual collection, however large, as such makes a small showing compared to a large number of such collections brought together in one place, and the museum mentioned is the proper place, for once established and opened its treasures will be open to the inspection of the public generally. A collector who makes a contribution to the museum has his name associated with the gift, and the greater satisfaction of contributing to the interests of science and the pleasure of his fellows.

QUEBEC HEARD FROM.

Henry G. Carroll, M.P., for Kamouraska, Que., Sounds the Praises of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder.

It will be noticed by those who have studied the testimonials for this wonderful catarrh remedy, that they are thoroughly unsectional in character. Every province in the Dominion, through its members of Parliament, and most prominent citizens, has told of the peculiar effectiveness of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. It is of a character that overcomes any local or climatic conditions, and as with Mr. Carroll, it is a most effective remedy for catarrhal troubles, in whatever shape, not omitting hay fever, where it works like a charm, and in every case is speedy in effect. Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

CURLIANA.

In yesterday's issue Judge Edmison was credited with winning from Judge Weller by the score of 14—10 in the Innes medal competition. The score should have been reversed, as Judge Weller was the victor in the match.

The Colts are anxious for another match with Skip Belleghem for the oysters.

Skip Pentland won from Skip Ray in the second draw of the first series of the LeBrun medal contest last evening by the appended score:

W E Loch,	Alf Terrill,
C Rutherford,	W J Thompson,
John Stanger,	Gus Hay,
S Ray, sk.....13	J B Pentland, sk.....17

A challenge match for the brooms for the winning rink was played between Messrs. Harry LeBrun and J. D. Baptie, last night, resulting in a win for Mr. LeBrun by two points. The rinks were composed of

R H Fortye,	Gus Gough,
A Slade,	G Giroux,
T Rutherford,	G W Hatton,
J D Baptie, sk.....14	H LeBrun, sk.....16

An interesting match was played amongst the veterans last night, the rinks being composed as follows:

G Cochrane,	Geo Edmison,
J McClelland,	Jno A Cameron,
Geo Brown,	Judge Weller,
D Belleghem, sk....19	H M Allen, sk.....16

Skip Belleghem scored an 8 end against his opponents, and in turn had a six end scored on him.

PORT HOPE'S DEFAULT.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I noticed in last night's paper that the Port Hope Colts didn't turn up at Lindsay to play the final for the silver cup. They had the game post poned, the place of meeting changed and everything done to suit them, and after getting their own way in everything, they flanked at the last minute. That is Port Hope all over, Wrangle, wrange, wrangle—fight, fight, fight, and then turn tail at the critical moment. 'Twas ever thus! I remember—but it would take a page for me to recount and recall all the meanness of Port Hope sports during the last twenty years, and it looks as if this latest and youngest sporting organization of that town is simply keeping up the reputation of their forbears. The greatest mistake made by the Colts's Association was in allowing Port Hope to enter the league. The first time they played they kicked, and before their first series was over they protested the very men who organized the Association. This year they were in the finals, and they started right in at their old work of objection, and finally to keep peace in the family, the Peterboroughs agreed to play in Lindsay on Thursday afternoon. Later on Port Hope asked for a postponement until evening. They should never have asked for that postponement. They are not accustomed to being out after sundown, and in consequence of their unusual action of leaving their native town after four o'clock they were lost, strayed or stolen; for they never arrived in Lindsay, and the game and cup were given to Peterborough by default. But these Port Hope Colts, or at least some of them, were seen on the train that afternoon and it was supposed by their friends at home that they had gone to Lindsay to battle for the cup. If they had arrived it would have been another case of "Port Hope also played." When the anxious people at home heard that the game had been claimed by Peterborough by default, the town was in an uproar. Where were the fiery, untamed colts? After a hurried consultation among the friends of the Colts who had left their native pastures, and a quick look through "Sleuth on Clues," the police of Port Hope made the wires hot with frantic telegrams to the different hamlets between that town and Lindsay. Imagine the "joy unbounded," the "hearts lightened," and "peace, perfect peace" that swiftly overspread the town and caused it to lapse once more into its usual state of turgid quiescence, when it was known that the dear little colts—frisky things!—had mistaken Millbrook for Lindsay. They had stopped there to play, either thinking that they were in Lindsay, or afraid to come any farther into the wilds of this northern country. How is it that the Colts could go to Millbrook and not to Lindsay when the same train went through both places.

AN OLD TIMER.

HOCKEY.

The Collegiate Institute team, through their study practice are developing into quite a strong junior septette. In the early part of the season they were "easy," but it would take a particularly fast team to get away with them now. A few weeks ago the town Colts beat them by three goals to one, but the little fellows in a remarkably fast game won from their opponents yesterday on the Riverside rink by one goal to nil. The two teams were composed as follows:—

Colts.		Coll. Inst.
Routley	goal	L Best
Graham	point	Burnham
Bradburn	cover point	Robinson
McBain, H Armstrong, R Armstrong	forwards	Dixon, Dumble, McGrath
		L Hall

AN EVIDENCE OF BAD TASTE.

What is more wretched or ugly than a miserable, faded looking black? Such blacks when seen in ladies' home or street dresses, or in men's wearing apparel, are evidences of bad taste, poor judgment and indifference.

The sickly and repulsive blacks just referred to are products of inferior and worthless black dyes.

Had the never-fading Fast Black Diamond Dyes been used, the result would have been rich, full, clear and lovely jet blacks.

Diamond Dye Fast Blacks will not crock, fade or wash out; they are fast to light, soap and water, and are the strongest and easiest to use.

Beware of the dealer who asks you to take a substitute for Diamond Dyes.

WELCOME THE VISITORS.

The High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters has just closed its sittings at Niagara Falls. Through the exertions of the influence of the Peterborough representatives, it has been decided to hold the next High Court in Peterborough next February. The distance of a year is not too great to think of properly entertaining the 300 or 400 delegates which the occasion will bring to Peterborough. The presence in town for nearly a week of such a number of representative Canadians, not only from the chief centres, but also from every hamlet, means a good deal to the town. The material profit arising from the money that must necessarily be spent, will be an important feature, and to this is to be added the prominence into which the resources and advantages of the town will be brought, and, through the medium of visitors who are well treated, be carried to all parts of the country. The visit of such a body of men, though representing a so-called secret society, is of significance to the whole town and it is perhaps unnecessary to suggest the wisdom, not to say duty, of extending the most courteous and cordial hospitality to the prospective visitors. Peterborough has a good name for hospitality now; the sporting organizations—the hockeyists, especially, are noted for the hearty attention they give their guests, and we must make it not only a point to maintain but, if possible, to improve upon that reputation. We are well situated in every respect for entertaining such gatherings. We have abundant hotel accommodation and a hospitable disposition toward the stranger that may be within our gates. The more of such gatherings we can attract to Peterborough the better for the town. As the presence of the Foresters with us next February is a matter of interest and advantage to the whole town, it is suggested that the town council take an active interest in assisting in the cordial welcome that is due so important a body. Steps are being taken by the council and the Board of Trade for bringing the annual meeting of the Eastern Dairymen's Association to Peterborough, and it would not be amiss to include the matter of arrangements in relation to the visit of the Foresters to the same or similar committees. Let us all unite to give both a hearty welcome. Peterborough is one of the most important centres of Canadian Forestry in the Dominion, and the centre of the banner cheese district of Ontario, and, where but here should the representatives of such interests get the great welcome we are sure they will receive.

OBITUARY.

DEATH OF DR. W. V. LYNCH.

The Lindsay Post says:—"It is with the most profound regret and sorrow we announce the sudden death of Dr. W. V. Lynch, a prominent and much respected citizen, which occurred at his residence, Glenelg street, at an early hour this morning. The deceased was as well as usual on Wednesday evening, when he attended the meeting of the Horticultural Society, in which he took a great interest. Yesterday morning, while at breakfast, he was taken with a violent attack of vomiting, which continued at intervals until noon. He attributed the trouble to biliousness, but not feeling better after dinner Dr. Poole was called in. Before the arrival of the latter he relapsed into unconsciousness, in which state he continued until death relieved his sufferings shortly after 2 o'clock this morning. Apoplexy was the cause of death. Arrangements will not be completed for the funeral until the arrival of his friends this evening. A more extended obituary notice will appear in these columns to-morrow."

Dr. Lynch was well known in Peterborough, having many friends in town. At one time he represented Lindsay in a debate here with the Catholic Literary Association. At the time of his death he was compiling a history of Peterborough and Victoria counties.

MR. "JIM" MONTGOMERY DEAD.

Yesterday afternoon, says the Lindsay Post, a rumor spread about town that a man had died very suddenly at the Central House, kept by Mr. John Maunder. Upon enquiry our reporter learned that the person referred to was "Jim" Montgomery of Bobcaygeon. It appears that the deceased had been ill for the past six or seven weeks at his lumber camp near Squaw River, where he had men at work getting out logs, but feeling better on Tuesday he drove to the village and on to Lindsay on Wednesday morning, being anxious to see Mr. J. D. Flavelle in connection with the logs he was cutting. He became ill on the way up, and after dinner Mr. Maunder called Dr. Burrows in, who found indications of a general breakup of the system. Yesterday morning Mr. Montgomery said he felt much better, and insisted that he was able to proceed home, but was dissuaded from doing so. Shortly after dinner he suffered a relapse, and passed away about 4 o'clock. Mr. Maunder at once telephoned the news to Bobcaygeon, but up to noon to-day had not heard from the relatives of the deceased with regard to the disposition of the body, as the message would have to be sent to the camp, nine miles from the village. The deceased was about 68 years of age, and was well-known to everyone in Bobcaygeon and vicinity, and was intimately connected with the early history of that village."

Mr. Montgomery was a brother of Mr. John Montgomery, of town, who is now in Lindsay looking after the remains.

The advantage of a policeman over a burglar is that the officer has the law on his side. Health has the same advantage over disease. The Law of Nature is for people to be healthy. When they are sick, Nature helps to cure them. Nature's law is the guide for curing sick people. There is no way but Nature's way. What the doctors call many different diseases Nature cures in one way; by nourishing the whole body with good, pure, rich, red blood. That is Nature's way of curing scrofula, erysipelas, kidney and "liver complaint," consumption and every form of eruptive and wasting disease. When you want to help Nature with medicine the medicine must work the same way as Nature works, then it has the laws of Nature on its side to make it powerful. That is the secret of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery's wonderful cures. It assists Nature according to her own laws; it is on Nature's side and Nature helps it; it imparts new power to the nutritive and blood making organs to create a large quantity of fresh, red, healthy blood which drives every germ of disease out of the system and builds up strong healthy tissues and solid flesh. The "Discovery" completely clears away every form of blood-disease from the system; it even cures consumption. It is the only true radical cure for that disease; facts and testimony to prove it.

"I would like to tell the whole world what your 'Golden Medical Discovery' has done for me. The doctor, who is considered an expert on lung troubles, told me I had consumption. He said both my lungs were diseased and I could not live long. I felt down-hearted for I have dear little children to live for. I just went to him to get his opinion. I am glad I did for now I know what your medicine will do. When I started on the second bottle I was better in every way and was able to take a walk on every fine day. I enjoyed my sleep, my appetite was good, and by the time I had finished the second bottle I began to feel like a new woman. I still had a cough, so I got a third bottle and by the time it was half gone I was completely cured."

HAIL INSURANCE.

Manitoba People Want the Legislature to Pass a Bill in That Line—General News From Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Hail insurance was the principal topic in the Legislature this afternoon. Two bills are before the House to empower a provincial levy and payment of damages. They will be consolidated on coming before committee, as both are identical in principle.

Fire at Qu'Appelle early this morning destroyed three business places, occasioning a loss of about $20,000. All the losers carried insurance.

The provincial contributions to the India relief fund now aggregate nearly ten thousand dollars, of which the school children donated twelve hundred.

James Yuill, electrician, an old resident, formerly of Montreal, died this morning.

The case against Parker, another of the Macdonald deputy returning officers, was dismissed to-day.

A deputation of the Winnipeg School Board has interviewed the Government and received a promise that in future representative trustees will be named as members of the Advisory Board.

Organized labor is working for the establishment of a labor bureau. At a meeting to-night resolutions were adopted in endorsation of the bill prepared, which will be presented to the Government with a request that it be passed.

The Council of Portage la Prairie is seeking legislation to spend one hundred thousand dollars in the construction of a dam and the creation of water power.

A CASE OF DIABETES.

No Help From Medical Men—Suffered for Many Years—Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

North Bruce, Feb. 15 (Special)—An old and well known settler in this Township, named Thomas Brooks, who lives on lots 7 and 8 in the 14th concession is rejoicing with his neighbours over his recent recovery, and he said:

"I was cured by using twenty-four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and as nothing else ever helped me I say they saved my life."

"I had tried all the doctors of this locality and was treated for Diabetes, hoping and suffering for years."

"From reading of cures I determined to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I must say that after using the first box I would have considered them reasonable at ten dollars a box."

THE SALE OF LIQUOR

Mr. Harcourt's Amendment Brought Down

IN THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Municipal Councils May Regulate the Number of Licenses—Druggists Prohibited From Selling Except on Prescriptions From Doctors—Another Whack at the Budget Bills Introduced.

Toronto, Feb. 26.

Hon. Richard Harcourt brought down his long-expected bill amending the Liquor License Act yesterday. As was generally expected, he gives the temperance people a little the best of it. Among the half dozen principal features, the Provincial Treasurer explained, was one effecting the unit of population for a license.

The limitation according to population is to be one tavern license for each 250 of the first thousand, but not to exceed three for the first thousand, but this limitation is not to apply to county towns having a population of 2500 or less.

The councils of cities, towns, villages or townships may, between the 1st of January and the 1st of March, in any year, pass bylaws fixing the number of tavern licenses within the limits imposed by this act for three years, commencing with the 1st of May following the calendar year after the passing of such bylaw; such bylaw shall not be amended or repealed, and no other bylaw limiting the number of licenses to be issued in the municipality shall be passed until after the 1st day of January in the third license year during which the said bylaw shall be in force, and then only if passed before the 1st day of March in such year.

The holders of shop licenses in the District of Nipissing, Algoma and Thunder Bay or Rainy River and the northern part of the County of Renfrew are permitted to sell cigars in unbroken packages or five pounds of tobacco.

Druggists are now prohibited from selling any quantity of liquor except upon a prescription signed by a registered medical practitioner, and such prescription shall not exceed six ounces.

The hours for closing bar rooms during every day of the week except Saturday nights and Sundays will be limited to 10 o'clock in townships, villages and unorganized territories, and in cities and towns to 11 o'clock. Any existing regulations of the Boards of License Commissioners that fix the hour of closing at a longer period than the above are to be null and void.

The age of a minor is extended from 18 to 21 years of either sex.

Provision is now made that municipalities under Local Option bylaws shall contribute their share of the expenses of enforcing the law.

No saloon licenses are to be issued after the 30th day of April, 1899. One-half of the existing saloons are to be cut off in 1898 and the balance in 1899; but this provision is not applied to eating houses at railway stations now under license.

One hundred persons, being at least three-fifths of the electors of any polling subdivision, may petition the Board of Commissioners for any city and pray that any tavern license issued for premises situate in the polling sub-division be not renewed on the ground that the locality is residential and not a business locality. Power is given to the board to determine whether the locality is residential or otherwise. One month's notice in writing, setting forth the substance of the petition and signed by at least ten electors resident in the polling sub-division, shall be personally served upon the owner of the premises and shall also be published once a week for two successive weeks in a daily newspaper published in the city. If the board decide that the premises are not situate in a residential locality no similar petition shall be presented for three years.

In cases of conviction for selling during prohibited hours, for sales on Saturday nights and Sundays or for selling to minors or for offences against the rules and regulations of the board, if the magistrate in the case of a prosecution or the judge in the case of an appeal, shall find that the holder of the license was a party or privy to the offence or connived thereat, the magistrate or court shall at the request of the inspector or the person prosecuting, certify as to the finding to the Board of Commissioners. If three of such certificates have been issued within one year, the board shall, by resolution, declare that the license shall be cancelled, and the holder thereof for three years shall be disqualified from obtaining another license.

In case of the insolvency of the holder of a license provision is made for carrying on the business until it is wound up.

Mr. Howland resumed the budget debate. He condemned what he termed the abject servitude of the Government followers, instancing a case in which a member had spoken of Sir Oliver Mowat and his successor as kings of the province. He criticised the Government for not admitting that they had been carrying on the administration out of capital funds. The receipts from all sources had totalled $4,900,000. Deducting the amount spent on public buildings, there was still $2,000,000 of Provincial capital for which they could not account. If crime had increased in the Province as, from the increased expenditure in the administration of Justice Department, it might be suspected, it was not saying much for the Minister of Education's Department.

Mr. Gibson of Huron attacked the system of the late Sandfield Macdonald administration in controlling the different penal and charitable institutions in the Province. Had he continued in office his expenditure in connection with them would have equalled that of the present administration. The Central Prison, which was a legacy from that administration, should never have been foisted upon the Province, and two-thirds of the expenses connected with it should be borne by the Dominion Government. Concluding, he criticised the Opposition for their deprecatory remarks about the Legislative Buildings, which, he said, were a credit to the Province, and were built without the taint of any scandal.

At 6 o'clock Mr. Miscampbell moved the adjournment of the debate.

Mr. Carnegie—To amend the Public Schools Act of 1896.

Mr. German—To amend the Electric Railway Act.

Mr. Mathieson—To amend the County Council Act; provides that County Councillors shall be ex-officio justices of the peace.

Mr. Crawford—To amend the Assessment Act, by providing that instead of the judges of adjoining counties being called in in cases of appeal from the Court of Revision where large amounts are involved, that the three judges of the county shall sit as a board to hear the appeals.

Mr. Bush—Enquiry of Ministry—Has John Dickinson been dismissed from office of Division Court bailiff at Kemptville? If so, what was the reason for his dismissal, and what is the date of it? Has any appointment been made to the vacancy? If so, who has received the appointment and when?

Mr. Ryerson—Order of the House for a return showing the names, residences and dates of appointment of the coroners in this Province.

Mr. Ryerson—Order of the House for a return showing the names, occupations and dates of appointment of the issuers of marriage licenses; also the number of marriage dicenses issued in 1894-95-96, and the amounts received by the Province from this source of income.

Mr. Howland—Order of the House for a return from the clerks of the Police Courts of Toronto, Hamilton, London, Kingston and Ottawa giving statistics for the year 1896 of the number, age, nationality, religion, etc., of the children brought before the courts and also as to where they were sentenced for punishment.

Will Wait No Longer.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations held a special meeting this morning for the purpose of again considering the resolution reported yesterday, instructing the President to demand the immediate release of Julio Sanguilly, an American citizen, now confined in prison in Cuba. The case was carefully discussed, and the committee reached the unanimous conclusion that the Senate could afford to wait no longer for Spain to keep her promises made to Secretary Olney to release him, and the discussion was reached to insist upon the consideration and passage of the resolution to the opposition of appropriation measures and everything else.

Spain Ready to Punish.

Madrid, Feb. 25.—The Epoca, in an article discussing the Cuban situation as affecting the relations of Spain with the United States, alludes to the killing of Ricardo Ruiz, an American citizen, in a Spanish prison in Cuba, and adds: "The Ruiz affair cannot assume the proportions of international importance. Spain is ready to punish any person who shall be proved to have ill-treated Ruiz, and the friendly relations between Spain and the Government at Washington preclude any diplomatic strain over the matter."

Two Murderers Hanged.

Pine Bluff, Ark., Feb. 25.—Two colored men were hanged on the same scaffold here to-day. Robert Coy, for the crime of criminal assault, and Jim Davis, for the murder of Lawrence Williams, a boy.

That the blood should perform its vital functions, it is absolutely necessary it should not only be pure but rich and life-giving elements. These results are best effected by the use of that well-known standard blood-purifier, Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

NELSON'S EXPLOITS.

STORY OF HOW HE CAPTURED TWO LINE OF BATTLE SHIPS AT ONCE.

A Thrilling Narrative of the Eighteenth Century — England's Man Did His Duty Upon This Occasion, Ably Seconded by Others.

It was on the 14th February, 1797, that the memorable naval engagement between the English and the Spaniards took place off Cape St. Vincent, on which occasion the fleet of this country, under the command of Sir John Jervis, afterwards Earl St. Vincent, gained so decisive and memorable a victory. There took part in the hard-won fight a detachment of 300 men of the 69th regiment, which now forms the 2nd Battalion of the Welsh Regiment, and in recognition of the valorous conduct of the troops throughout the battle, Her Majesty in 1891 "was graciously pleased to approve of the words 'St. Vincent,' being added to the distinctions already borne upon the regimental colors." This result was brought about mainly through the instrumentality of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, who supported the efforts in this direction of Colonel Barnett Anley, the officer commanding the battalion, by every means in his power. We believe we are correct in stating that no other regiment in Her Majesty's land forces bears this engagement on its colors. It is interesting at this distance of time to recall the fact that the 69th acted as marines to the fleet during the year 1797. A detachment was on board Nelson's ship, the Captain, when the unparalleled exploits of boarding and capturing two line-of-battleships at once, the one across the other was performed.

Nelson himself led the boarders in this daring act, and he thus describes it in his own words: "The San Nicholas luffing up, the San Josef fell ahead of her, and the Captain resumed her station ahead of them, and close alongside. At this time, the Captain having lost her foretopmast, not a sail shroud or rope left, her wheels shot away and incapable of further service in the line or in chase, I directed the helm to be put a starboard, and calling for the boarders, ordered them to board. The soldiers of the 69th Regiment, with an alacrity which will ever do them credit, and Lieutenant Pearson, of the same regiment, were amongst the foremost on this service. The first man who jumped into the enemy's mizzen chains was Captain Berry, late my first lieutenant. A soldier of the 69th Regiment having broken the upper quarter gallery window, jumped in, followed by myself and others as fast as possible. I found the cabin door fastened, and the Spanish officers fired their pistols at us through the windows, but having burst open the doors, the soldiers fired, and the Spanish brigadier (commodore with distinguishing pendant) fell as retreating to the quarter deck. I passed with my people and Lieutenant Pearson on the larboard gangway to the forecastle, where I met two or three Spanish officers, prisoners to my seamen, and they delivered me their swords. At this moment a fire of pistols or muskets opening from the admiral's stern gallery in the San Josef, I directed the soldiery to fire into her stern, ordering more men into the San Nicholas. I directed my brave fellows to board the first-rate, the San Josef, which was done in an instant, and on the quarter-deck of a Spanish first-rate—extravagant as the story may seem—did I receive the swords of the vanquished Spaniards. I was surrounded by Captain Berry, Lieutenant Pearson (69th Regiment), John Sykes, John Thompson, Francis Cook and William Fearney, all old Agamemnon men, and several other brave men, soldiers and seamen. Thus fell their ships. The Victory, passing, saluted us with three cheers, as did every ship in the fleet."

At the time when this heroic deed was done Nelson was commodore and had command of the Captain, 74 guns. He had at an earlier stage of the fight a terrible conflict with the Santissima Trinidada, of 136 guns. In boarding the San Nicholas, Private John Ashcroft particularly distinguished himself by striking the Spanish flag and hoisting the British colors before the boarders had established themselves on the deck of that ship. It was Private Stevens, afterwards quartermaster, who broke the upper quarter gallery windows and jumped in, followed by Nelson himself.

A mirror could lie if it wanted to. The glass has nothing to gain by flattery. If the roses of health and plumpness of beauty are leaving your face your mirror will tell you so. Health is the greatest beautifier in the world. When a woman sees the indications of ill health in the face, she may with almost absolute certainty look for the cause in one or both of two conditions—constipation and derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure permanently and positively any so-called "female complaints." Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will cure constipation. There is no reason in the world why a woman should not be perfectly healthy. She will gain in health, strength and flesh. Hollows and angles will give place to fullness, and grace. Ten Thousand Miles in 5 Seconds.

How much actual time is necessary to transfer a telegraphic message from London to Valparaiso, Calli, was the question propounded by some South American editors last summer. The reply was furnished by a special communication, when an arrangement was made with the telegraph and cable companies to keep open wires and get the telegraphic results of a recent sporting event to Valparaiso with the least possible delay at the intervening stations. Ten minutes before the message was to be sent the wires were cleared along the entire distance and all the ordinary communications through the cables were suspended. At the given astronomical time the despatch was sent from London to Carcavellos, when the message was transferred through a submarine cable to Pernambuco, wherefrom the Brazilian coast cable conducted the message to Buenos Ayres. It was from there despatched over the South American Transcontinental telegraph line and arrived at Valparaiso 55 seconds after leaving the London office, although the distance it had to travel in this short space of time amounted to almost 10,000 miles, and the eight words of the message had to be repeated four times.

MATTERS ARE CRITICAL.

A Good Deal of Anxiety as Regards War Between the United States and Spain.

New York, Feb. 25.—A despatch to The Herald from Havana, via Key West, says: The situation here is critical. Every soldier and every scamp in Havana knows of the threatened breaking off of relations between the United States and Spain, and they are preparing for it. The work upon defences is being pushed on with great energy, and it is rumored every five minutes of the day that Gen. Lee has received his passports and that war is declared.

Americans are flocking in from the country, and if one-half the Americans who want to leave for the United States on the Mascotte to-day board her she will sink.

The position of our citizens is most critical. The rumor, whether true or false, has gone abroad that the American Government would not intervene, that Americans can be murdered with perfect impunity so long as the trade interests of the country are not interfered with.

Unless something firm and decided and strongly American is done by our Government in Washington, Americans are in great danger of their lives.

The amusement and the great hilarity which were to be observed at the palace yesterday have changed to-day. Minister De Lome, always accurate as a news-gatherer, has cabled the Cptain-General that Lee will not be recalled, that his resignation is not accepted, and that he may be sustained.

The defences of Havana have been the scene of phenomenal activity during the last 48 hours. Last night the work of mounting guns was carried on by electric light on the Morro, the Cabana and the land batteries. Four torpedo tubes were mounted and six of the new heavy guns of the Orondos pattern.

Gen. Navarro, head of the navy, has ordered all available war vessels to concentrate in Havana harbor. The Reina Mercedes was already here. The Legaspi arrived this morning. The slight repairs to the Infanta Isabel, the Nueva Espana and the Nunez Pinson are being pushed day and night with the greatest urgency. The Conde Vendanito and the Alfonso XII. are cruising and patrolling the north coast. They have been communicated with and will be in Havana within two days. The gunboats Reina Christina and Vasco Nunez Balboa are also expected.

The Captain-General has cabled to Liverpool for 50,000 tons of Cardiff Welsh coal for the vessels. Hundreds of cablegrams are pouring in on Gen. Lee from every quarter of the globe, congratulating him upon the stand he has taken, those from the United States promising patriotic action in Congress.

The report that Consul-General Lee had been given his passports by the Spanish authorities in Cuba caused a flutter at the Senate end of the Capitol, where the action of the Senate committee on the Sanguilly case has revived interest in Cuban affairs. Senators are guarded in their utterances, preferring to await some confirmation of the report before committing themselves. It is not beyond the truth to say that a very considerable portion of the Senate hope the report is accurate, for they say that nothing short of an overt act on the part of Spain sufficient to compel this Government to assert itself will bring the trouble on that island to an end or bring about the protection of American citizens.

"Some years ago, as a result of too close attention to business, my health failed. I became weak, nervous, was unable to look after my interests, and manifested all the symptoms of a decline. I took three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to improve at once, and gradually increased my weight from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred pounds. Since then, I and my family have used this medicine when needed, and we are all in the best of health, a fact which we attribute to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. SHUTTING DOWN

—ON—
LONG-WINDED CREDIT

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 10th, 1897.

NOTICE—From and after this date, Messrs H. LeBRUN & CO. have decided to shorten the Term of Credit heretofore given, and, in future, no goods will be sold except for Cash, or on such limited time as may be mutually arranged.

We believe the safest way to do business in these days is to sell for Cash. The next best way is to sell on short dates. Many of our customers who have regularly paid their bills after a reasonable term of credit, would perhaps feel the "Spot Cash" system a hardship, especially while times are so hard and money so scarce. We regard these customers as among the best we have, and are quite satisfied to continue to extend to them the same terms of limited credit they have been accustomed to enjoy.

Our chief complaint is with the "long-winded" customer, who compels us to say that he makes business-life a down-right worry. It makes no difference to us whether a man is worth a million if he won't pay his account. When we need money for our business and are repeatedly put off with "promises to pay" by those who are well able to pay, we have no use for such trade. If every customer treated us in that way we could not carry on business at all. Besides, it is very disagreeable to us to have to "dun" a customer half a dozen times, or spend the profits in postage stamps, and wearing out shoe-leather to boot. We are compelled, therefore, to shut down at once on long credits. Those who can't pay within a reasonable time, we don't want their account in future.

There is a resolution all over the country in favour of Cash or shorter Credits. Cash is a more powerful friend now than ever, and if we must compete with the Cash Stores, who save their discounts, we can't afford to give long credit. Wholesale houses are now offering such big baits in the way of Cash Discounts that we must be prepared to take advantage of them or be handicapped.

All past due Accounts must be settled by the 1st of March; after that date they will be placed in Court for collection. All parties having contra accounts against us are requested to hand them in for settlement at once.

THE NORTHWEST COLPORTAGE MISSION.

Visit From Mr. Geo. Buskin Who is Engaged in the Work.

Mr. Geo. Buskin, of the Algoma and Northwest Evangelical and Colportage Mission, is making his annual visit to Peterborough in the interest of the fourteen years' work of the mission. By its agency 15,000 Scriptures and scriptural books have been supplied in that district alone in eighteen languages: also more than six hundred religious services have been conducted, and the twenty seven editions of rudimentary Scriptural publications in five languages, necessary for the work, is near completion. The liabilities for publishing and supplies of Bibles and books and the like, amount to $1200. There is also being formulated by the mission a ten acre homestead colony, providing comfortable dwellings and necessary supplies for industry for a thousand families, and employment for as many of them as may have need, upon an agricultural and dairy farm attached thereto. Applications have for some time past been made to the Crown Lands Commissioner of Ontario for suitable sites. It is designed the lands shall be the inalianable possessions of the locatees and their heirs. The benevolent capitalist and the industrious poor can well unite in this matter to their mutual profit and the well being of the country. The missionary will attend to the enquiries of any interested in the proposal. The contributions received in Peterborough last year for the work of the Colportage Mission was $29.90, which the missionary gratefully acknowledges, and again respectfully presents the cause for renewed support to continue the work.

Intense Pain From Sciatica—The Mystic Remedy—South American Rheumatic Cure Conquers it in Two Days.

The following comes from the wealthy lumberman of Merrickville, Ont., Mr. E. Errett: For a number of years I have suffered intense pain from rheumatism and sciatica in my left hip. It is needless to say I have doctored constantly, but without receiving anything but temporary relief. South American Rheumatic Cure was at last tried and its effect was truly magical. In two days the pain was all gone, and two bottles of the remedy cured me completely. I was so bad that for two years I could not lie on my left side if I got the universe for so doing. At present I have not a symptom of sciatica or rheumatism, and hence it is with much pleasure that I recommend this great remedy. I know it will cure. Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

The Ethics of Citizenship. No. 8.

Citizenship.

Prof. Maccunn's chapter on "Citizenship" is one of the best in the book, and the following quotation deserves a place in the minds of us all. "Not the possession of rights, but the energetic use of rights makes the citizen; the real free man is he who finds fullness of development in and through active civic life." Every right and every privilege entails duties. The base of the democratic state is the misuse of powers and privileges by the democracy. The individual who sells his vote, or misuses it, is probably as great a sinner as the absolute monarch who impoverishes his people for his own selfishness. Never can it be enough realised, in democracies especially, that men become citizens in truth and in substance, only when they use their rights. We do not make a man a sportsman by the gift of the best of breech-loaders. Nor do we make him a citizen by conferring upon him rights. Rights are not words, nor decorations, nor ends in themselves. They are advantages, they are opportunities, they are instruments."

The real advantages of the possession by the people of civic rights, are to be found only in the intelligent and honourable and earnest use of their rights. The conditions upon which our author maintains that a man may become a good citizen are:

1. The opportunity to earn an adequate livelihood. The workman who but barely escapes starvation is a bad bargain. A man who is capable and honest has a right to something more than this, and it is to the advantage of the community that he gets it. An adequate livelihood is the foundation of that honest independence, which is the mother of courage, tenacity, endurance, thrift, cheerfulness, hope. Penury only too often wears out a man's moral stamnia, and ends in meanness, servility, shiftiness, perhaps worse. An adequate livelihood means the opportunity for happy family life, for the advantages of education, for national recreation, for an interest in some of the common goods of life.

* * *

2. The second condition of intelligent and useful citizenship is physical health. The number of men and women who, through unhealthy surroundings, insufficient nourishment, or a heavy burden of care, exist rather than live, work with pain and sorrow, rather than with that zest and enjoyment which congenial labour gives to a healthy man is very great. I do not say that the healthy man, earning a good livelihood, should not strive to better his position, but it is certain that he has two chief ingredients of happiness. Thousands have exchanged health for wealth and found the bargain a bad one. "I do not," said Edmund Burke, "call a healthy young man, cheerful in his mind, vigorous in his arms, I cannot call such a man poor.

3. To livelihood and health, Maccum adds participation in the influences of family life. The family is the training ground for citizenship. It stimulates industrial motive. It fosters political contentment. "And although it would be rash to deny that some of the world's best work is done by those who have no domestic relationships to divide their devotion, the central fact remains that no man can miss this relationship without sacrificing one of the great formative influences of citizenship."

But citizenship, though it begins with the home, does not end there. Political or civic rights are also an educational power. It has been said that no man should have a vote until he is fit to use it. But men only become fit to have votes by using them. After all it is not only the uneducated who misuse votes. We are very far from being perfect in our use of votes. But as Mr. Maccunn points out, it is "better that men should learn the lesson of political citizenship, even at some cost of blundering, than that they should never learn it at all."

It is refreshing to find that Prof. Maccunn, in discussing this splendid subject of citizenship, does not as so many philosophers and writers are in the habit of doing, quietly put religion on one side, as though it were that one interest in life which could be hedged around and separated from every other interest. Of course the very opposite is the truth. Religion is simply nothing, a sham and a mockery, if it do not enter into and leaven every interest of life. Mazzini, the patriot of Italy, continually insisted upon the truth that not until Democracy became a religious movement could it hope to carry the victory. A democratic citizenship needs the alliance of religion for the following persons:—

1. Religion brings to man, as nothing else can, a sense of personal responsibility, and Democracy is very apt to be without this sense from its immense mass. It is like a corporation, that is said to have neither a body to be kicked nor a soul to be saved.

2. Religion strengthens the individual against the tyranny of the majority. Religion can do this, because behind all differences of creed, ritual or church government, it brings the perennial message that there is a Power with which the feeblest can ally himself, in comparison with which all the forces which can be arrayed against him are as the dust in the balance.

3. Religion "can habituate an ordinary citizen to live for unseen and distant ends, thereby counterworking that impatience for quick results, and that fatal proclivity for legislative short cuts, which too surely brand the ill-starred union of democratic materialism and democratic power."

AN AWFUL SORE

A Babe's Untold Suffering And Mother's Many Sleepless Nights.

CUTICURA WORKS WONDERS.

I herewith write out in full the beginning and end of that terrible disease, Eczema, which caused my babe untold suffering, and myself many sleepless nights.

My baby was born seemingly a fair, healthy child, but when she was three weeks old a swelling appeared on the back of her head, and in course of time broke. Every one called it a boil, and, now it had broken, would soon heal, but that was only the beginning of the trouble. It did not heal but grew worse, and the sore spread from the size of a dime to that of a dollar. I used all kinds of remedies that I could think of but nothing seemed to help, in fact it grew worse, her hair fell out where the sore was and I feared it would never grow again. It continued until my aged father came on a visit, and when he saw the baby he told me "to get CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA ointment right away." To please him I did so, and to my surprise, by their use the sore began to heal over, the hair grew over it, and to-day she has a nice head of hair, her skin is as fair as a lily, and she has no scar left to recall that awful sore.

CUTICURA soothes and allays all itching and burning that cause a child to fret and the mother to worry, and gives rest and comfort both to parent and child.

THEY WORKED WONDERS.

Two Years of Bladder Torment—Had Attacks of Inflammation—Cured by a few Boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Owen Sound, Feb. 22, (Special)—The people of this town are talking again of another cure credited to Dodd's Kidney Pills. This is the case of Mr. W. Cruse, caretaker of town buildings, who, when seen had this to say of the matter:

"For over two years I have been an intense sufferer from kidney disease with occasional acute attacks of inflammation of the bladder.

"Was under doctors' treatment and have been compelled to resort to instramental relief many times.

"I have taken eighteen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am satisfied with results being perfectly relieved of all suffering."

Badge for the Vets.

Chief Horsey, of Kingston, has designed a very neat and appropriate badge, intended to be worn by the veterans of the Fenian raid of 1866, on the occasion of the celebration of Her Majesty's diamond jubilee, and at the same time to commemorate the thirty-first anniversary of the Fenian raid. It is in the form of a circular medal, and on one side is the inscription, "Defenders of our Homes and Firesides. Veterans 1866. Canada." On the opposite side is the Queen's head, and the date 1897. To the medal is attached a clasp by which it is to be suspended from the breast by a ribbon of appropriate color.

Too Good To Miss!

No Time To Lose!

GOUGH'S Winter Wind-Up.

These are WIND-UP DAYS, and GOUGH BROS' Slashing Cut in Clothing, Cloths, Boots and Shoes, Gentlemen's Furnishings, &c., to Wind-up the Winter Selling Season, is an extraordinary event too important to miss. Never since the days of Adam has good Clothing and Boots and Shoes been sold so cheap as we're selling them now. A colossal stock of Clothing and Boots and Shoes for Men, Women and Children at prices that revoulutionizes the trade, and emphasizes the possibilities of this great emporium for clothing the people.

THE STOCK MUST MELT!

The sudden thaw in prices must dissolve the Bargain Lots on Tables, Counters and Shelves, and the flood of bargains will lend spirit and snap to bargain lovers while they last. Our plan of campaign demands that all Winter Goods must be out of the way for Spring arrivals. Besides we want to do our share in alleviating present distress by helping the farmer, the mechanic, the business man, the women and the youth, and at the same time keeping our tailors and salesmen busy.

New Spring Goods are rushing in upon us faster than we can place them, so we have decided to let the "hide go with the hair" until our two big stores are clear of Winter lines.

More gigantic selling, forced on by tremendous buying, has never been planned, for we dump everything into this Colossal Sale at an average reduction all round of 20 Per Cent. Below Manufacturer's Prices!

These bargains now stare you in the face, and what is worth emphasizing is that in all the lines we show a large variety of patterns and sizes, both in Clothing and Boots and Shoes. It is not our policy to select two or three catch lines. You get the choice of the whole stock. You merely choose what you need—no question about the goodness of the material or workmanship.

NO DRIFTWOOD! NO BANKRUPT STUFF!

And we don't intend there shall be any in this store. This is a self-respecting business. The combination of the driftwood of merchandise with the bright New Spring Goods would be like the fly in the ointment—spoiling the spring like flavour of our whole store.

Our stock is ALL this season's New Goods Everything is new and right up-to-date. Constant newness will mark this store from day to day.

New Spring Dress Goods
New Spring Trimmings
New Spring Dress Silks
New Spring Prints and Muslins
New Spring Prints and Hosiery
New Spring Mantles and Jackets

Don't ask for last years Muslins or Dress Goods, or Underclothing, or Gloves. We don't keep them—they have all been sold. If you must have them, inquire down street.

Our store blossoms with New Spring Novelties and Bargains.

And remember, we propose selling the newest of the new season's goods just as cheap as the Bankrupt Sale Prices will be.

You can come and compare goods and values any time you like. Remember, too, that the new goods of this year are different from last year. The New Table Damasks are in entirely new patterns; the new Towels have no fringe, and so on.

You'll want no ancient styles or last year's bird's nests when you once see the crisp new things we have to show you.

We could have had lots of Bankrupt Stuffs if wanted—there's lots of it thrown on the market—but we couldn't afford to mar our new stock or take any risks.

SERIOUS IRRITATION

Said to Exist Between Great Britain and Russia

OVER THE SITUATION IN THE EAST

Hastily-Summoned Meeting of the British Cabinet on Saturday—Russia Adopts a Threatening Tone—Greeks Still Show a Disposition to Fight—Russia's War Preparations.

New York, Feb. 28.—Mr. H. R. Chamberlain cables from London to The Sun: The Graeco-Cretan situation is, in its larger aspect, less hopeful. The announcement of an agreement of the powers for its final settlement was, to say the least, premature. There exists at the present moment serious irritation between Russia and Great Britain, which has provoked the former power to adopt an attitude that can hardly be described by a milder term than threatening. I do not pretend to know the exact cause of the trouble. It was discussed at a hastily summoned meeting of the British Cabinet this afternoon, with what result it is, of course, impossible to say. Singular semi-official communications from St. Petersburg are published today, in which it is set forth: "In the event of Greece, with blind misapprehension of her own advantage, offering further opposition to the well-meant advice of Russia and of the powers in alliance with her, or creating difficulties, or in the event of her allowing herself to be encouraged in her present attitude by self-seeking friends, perhaps on the false supposition of a lack of unanimity among the great powers, because one or another power did not support at the outset the proposals of Russia, which is in perfect agreement with Germany and France, Russia, in such an emergency, is determined upon her course of action, conscious of her unity with France and of her absolute agreement with Germany and also Austria.

"Even if isolated powers should not associate themselves in the steps she is resolved to take, Russia will be in a position, at any rate, not to allow the peace of Europe to be endangered by events in Crete.'"

This is a tone which Russia has not adopted toward any power within living memory. England, of course, is the country meant, and the words employed suggest some exceedingly grave suspicions. It may be, however, that this language was used in the interval between the reception of Lord Salisbury's note, saying in effect that England would do nothing in regard to Greece until the fate of Crete is decided and before England had notified her acceptance of Russia's proposal for solving the difficulty.

That proposal, although agreed to in principle by the six powers, will not be enforced in the form interpreted by Lord Salisbury in the House of Lords on Thursday. Neither England nor Italy nor France will fire a gun to drive the Greeks from Crete in order that the island may be delivered to Turkish troops for "police" purposes. Public opinion in all three countries would put an absolute veto upon that proposition.

Every despatch received from Greece and Crete makes it perfectly clear that such an arrangement will never be submitted to. In fact, the reply of Greece to Lord Salisbury's discouraging speech on Thursday night has been a summons to two more divisions of reserves to mobilize. Nothing but absolute autonomy for Crete will be accepted by public opinion in this country, and Lord Salisbury is fully aware of this fact by this time.

Public anger is slow to kindle in England. Cause and effect in this, as in all things else, are separated by a wider interval than in almost any other country. But public opinion is fully roused now. It did not need another of William Watson's lyrics and a series of Mr. Gladstone's notes to inflame it. Watson's lines are sufficiently savage. This is one of the verses addressed to Greece:

Who are these would bind thy hands?
Knaves and dastards, none beside.
All the just in all the lands,
Hail thee blest and sanctified.
Curst who would thy triumph mar,
Be he Kaiser, be he Czar.

An Englishman who passed through Salonica at the beginning of this week writes that nobody, seeing the Turkish recruits arriving there, would suppose they would be able to make much of a fight against the well-fed and well-clothed Greek soldiers. The newly-mobilized Redifs in particular, who have been called from their homes and families for the third time within twelve months, are ragged, hungry-looking and depressed. Many of them have served since the beginning of last year in Armenia and Crete, but they have not received a single piastre of the pay due them, and are not likely to get anything but hard knocks in the coming campaign. If, indeed, there is to be war, the Porte has announced, blithely, its intention to put 110,000 men on the Thessalian frontier, but so far has been able to obtain funds to equip and transport only about 15,000 men for that purpose. The Porte has no money, but he would be oblivious to history who should lightly assume that this fact indicates that Turkey is not in a position to wage war.

The troops who lately passed through Salonica were without ambulance equipment or surgical appliances of any kind, but their arms were evidently all right, and their ammunition trains appeared to be ample. Their artillery, too, was in good condition and their batteries were well horsed.

RUSSIA'S PREPARATIONS.

Talk of an Advance Into Turkey at Easter if Not Before.

New York, Feb. 28.—Mr. Harold Frederic cables from London to The Times: The Russian war preparations in the south are now so open and extensive, with whole corps mobilized and Grand Dukes hurrying to their military posts, that it is impossible not to believe that there will be a Russian advance into Turkey at Easter or before.

This accentuates the mystery of Russia's present posture in the "concert" and strengthens the impression that there is something underneath the published accounts of negotiations about which we know nothing. The natural idea is that an outbreak of hostilities on the Macedonian frontier is known by experts to be more imminent than the public supposes, but I heard tonight from members of the Armenian Committee that new massacres in Asia Minor are more likely to be the pretext Russia is waiting for before she moves.

The Turk Means Mischief.

London, Feb. 28.—The Daily News to-morrow will publish a despatch from Constantinople saying that many officials there declare that Turkey will never give her consent to the scheme of the powers to establish an autonomous government in Crete. Well-informed persons believe, basing their belief on the military and naval preparations, that Turkey is making that the Porte intends to resist coercion should the powers attempt to apply it. The same paper's Paris correspondent telegraphs that the French Government has certainly received information that Abdul Hamid means to take advantage of the present imbroglio to commit mischief. The correspondent quotes from an article in The Temps, which he believes to have been inspired, in support of his statement.

MILITIA GENERAL ORDERS.

The Glengarry Chief is No Longer "Major" But Lieut.-Col. McLennan, if You Please.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—(Special.)—Hat's off for the new colonel! The Glengarry "chief" is no longer major; hereafter it will be Col. McLennan. This is the principal change announced in the militia general orders yesterday as affecting Ontario. Lieut.-Col. Beer of the 74th Battalion, N.B., also retires and is succeeded by Lieut.-Col. Baird.

1st Hussars, London, A Squadron—Provisional Lieut. Walter Simpson Smith is permitted to retire.

Royal Reg. C.I.—Brevet-Capt. Robert Cartwright is granted the brevet rank of major, as a special case.

14th Battalion, The Princess of Wales' Own Rifles—Provisional Second Lieut. John Plant Oram retires.

That part of general order 51 of 1896 promoting Lieut. Courtland MacLean Strange to the rank of captain is hereby cancelled at the request of that officer.

16th Prince Edward Battalion, No. 4 Co.—Provisional Second Lieut. William J. Jamieson retires.

To be second lieutenant, provisionally—Color-Sergt. Frederick B. Ashton, vice Jamieson, retired.

22nd Battalion Oxford Rifles, No. 2 Co.—Provisional Second Lieut. Crandall Munroe retires.

34th Elgin Battalion—Capt. Frank T. Tracey retires.

27th Lambton Battalion, No. 1 Co.—To be second lieutenant, provisionally—Thomas H. Cook, vice McMillan, transferred.

No. 2 Co.—To be lieutenant—Second Lieut. John McMillan, from No. 1 Co., vice O'Neil, transferred.

No. 4 Co.—To be second lieutenant, provisionally—William Francis B. Colter.

25th Waterloo Battalion, No. 6 Co.—To be second lieutenant, provisionally—Corp. Harry Cummings, vice Hall, retired.

30th Wellington Battalion, No. 2 Co.—Capt. David L. Schults resigns and to retain the rank of captain on retirement.

32nd Bruce Battalion, No. 3 Co.—To be captain—Second Lieut. James Keith McD. Gordon, from No. 8 Co., vice Jeqeris, retired.

No. 8 Co.—Provisional Lieut. Hugh Morrison retires.

No. 5 Co.—To be second lieutenant, provisionally—Alexander Cowan, vice Spry, transferred.

47th Frontenac Battalion—To be paymaster with honorary rank of captain—Thomas Kelly, from the retired list of majors.

49th Hastings Battalion, No. 5 Co.—To be second lieutenant, provisionally—Louis Virlan, vice Vincent retired.

No. 6 Co.—To be captain—Lieut. John Wilson Arnott, vice Smith, appointed adjutant.

59th Stormont and Glengarry Battalion—Lieut.-Col. James R. Bredin resigns the command of this battalion and is transferred to the infantry reserve of officers.

To be lieutenant-colonel—Major Roderick Rory McLennan, vice Bredin, transferred.

Education Drill Associations—Upper Canada College—To act as captain—James R. Boaf, vice Ogilvie, left the college.

On the last day of 1896 the Voce Della Verita, the Vatican organ, says that the Pope in a recent speech explained his longevity thus:

A nun who had always been in good health visited him, saying she had offered herself as a sacrifice to God in order to prolong the Pontiff's life. God had signalled his approval and the nun had died, while he himself still flourished.

A CABINET SITTING.

Crow's Nest Railway Matter Did Not Come Up.

SESSIONAL PROGRAM DISCUSSED.

Trade Returns for Seven Months—Matters of Interest to Military Men—Free Ammunition for the Military League Matches Again This Year—Ottawa News.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—(Special.)—The Cabinet had a long sitting yesterday afternoon, but contrary to expectations the Crow's Nest Railway matter did not come up, the report of the sub-committee of the Cabinet not being quite ready for presentation. The sessional program was under consideration, the chief measure discussed being the bill to wipe out the present Franchise Act.

In ministerial circles the impression is growing that the Government may in the end decide to do nothing in the Crow's Nest Railway matter this year or for some time to come.

Conversing with one of the Ministers yesterday he stated most emphatically that personally he was opposed to the expenditure of fifteen or twenty millions on work which Canada could do without for the next ten years. He pointed out that instead of considering whether a railway through the Crow's Nest was really needed, newspapers and public bodies were taking that for granted, and were now simply arguing whether the road should be built by the Government or the C.P.R. Considerably less than half a million people would be affected by such a road. British Columbia had not yet a population of a million, and if the Crow's Nest Railway were constructed out of public money the Pacific province would never be satisfied unless the line was completed through to the coast, meaning ten or fifteen millions of money. Then the Territories, with their sparse population, could not be said to be in dire need of such a railway. There is to-day direct railway communication into the Kootenay country by two lines of railway, while from Revelstoke on the C.P.R. and by steamer on the Arrow Lakes, Rossland can be easily reached ten months in the year. These were considerations, he pointed out, which should be well weighed by the public before compelling the Government or Parliament to embark on the vast expenditure the Crow's Nest Railway would involve.

The Canada Gazette of yesterday contains the trade returns for the seven months ending January 31 last. The imports are $65,566,611, as compared with $66,844,765, or a decrease for the present year of $1,270,154. The duty collected was $11,131,408, as compared with $11,845,773 in 1896, or a decrease of $814,315 in revenue. Exports show an increase of over six million dollars, but fell off over two millions in January.

Hugh Sutherland, ex-M.P., is here. He has had considerable correspondence with the Department of Marine and Fisheries in regard to the vessel to be sent to Hudson Bay, suggesting the employment of a larger craft than the sealer, which the Minister favors. Mr. Sutherland has been engaged for months back in looking after mining property in the Slocan region, and is said to have been fortunate in securing one of the best paying silver mines in that district.

Lieut.-Col. Irwin, A.A.G.A., has sent the following notice to district commanding officers: "It is intended to make an issue of Martini-Henry rifles to garrison artillery corps in the districts under your command to replace present Snider-Enfields. You will, therefore, be good enough to cause requisitions to be forwarded in the usual manner for the number of these rifles required to complete the authorized establishment of the different corps. Requisitions to return the Snider rifles into store should also be forwarded."

The Minister of Militia has decided, like his immediate predecessors, to grant free ammunition for all associations competing in the coming season's matches of the Military Rifle League.

The following official notification has been sent out from headquarters to district officers of militia:

"The Major General commanding has approved of the issue of a complete equipment of Lee-Enfield rifles to city corps (garrison artilleries excepted) that have suitable accommodation in their armories. You are, therefore, requested to notify commanding officers concerned in your district to send requisitions for return into store of rifles now in possession, and for an issue of Lee-Enfield rifle to complete."

Another order in connection with the Lee-Enfields is as follows: "The general officer commanding has approved of the issue of dummy cartridges to all corps armed with the Lee-Enfield rifle. The cartridges will be issued at once in the proportion of 200 to each unit of the permanent corps (cavalry and infantry) and 150 to each city corps entitled to them. These dummy cartridges are for use in imparting instruction in the use of the magazine."

F. X. Demers, one of the French translators of the House of Commons debates, is dead at the age of 51. He was a newspaper editor in the Province of Quebec for many years before taking up his residence here.

Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Countess of Aberdeen returned home from the south yesterday.

Mr. E. H. Sheppard, "Don," was in town on Saturday.

If sufficient accommodation can be secured, the Interior Department will be moved over to the Langevin Block in place of the Indian Department, so that the valuable papers in the Lands Department may be safe from fire, and the Indian Department moved to where the Interior now is.

THE CROW'S NEST PASS RAILWAY.

The point known as the now much talked of Crow's Nest Pass on the Canadian Rocky Mountains, is only forty miles north of the boundary line between Canada and the United States. At Medicine Hat the Canadian Pacific Railway, which has been running pretty generally due west, takes a turn north rather sharply. If it had gone on straight west it would have struck the now famous Crow's Nest Pass, which is the western gateway from the prairies of the west to the new El Dorado, the occidental Ophir, the Kootenay country, whose rocks are ribbed with gold and silver and just now attract the eyes of the world. The C.P.R line, instead of striking this heart of gold, bends northward till it reaches Rogers' Pass, the northernmost limit, and thence it bends south again to reach Vancouver. This northern loop has between the most northern point and the boundary the best of the vast region of golden possibilities. Since the region cannot be reached by the C. P. R., consequently to prevent the immense trade, incident to the full development of this region, from going south to the United States boundary line, a new line must be constructed. But a railway from some point on the C. P. R., say Medicine Hat, through the Crow's Nest Pass, would tap the heart of the Kootenay country and, en route, touch the Fort McLeod Region, where abounds coal, which will be so important a factor in the development of the Kootenay region, and the one great thing that district needs. At first sight such a railway seems a simple matter as there is a spur line, now reaching from near Medicine Hat to Fort McLeod, which is only fifty miles from the pass, but the distance from the Crow's Nest pass to Vancouver, as the Crow would fly is nearly 400 miles, and a line 400 miles long over a most difficult region would cost millions.

There is no doubt the question of building the much desired line and of protecting the public interests in the matter of charges for freight, etc., is a most difficult one. If the line were built as a government road, the government would in that case have full control as to rates, but that would be a small matter, for the moment connection was made with the C.P.R., the only existing means of the products of the Kootenay district reaching Eastern Canada, or the products of the latter reaching the new region—the moment the connection was made the exclusive privileges the C.P.R. possess would no doubt be exercised. It is well known that the government has no power according to the privileges granted, of having anything to say in the matter of regulating C.P.R. freights till the earnings of the road shall reach ten per cent. of the capital invested. The only feasible way seems to be to make some arrangement by which the C.P.R. shall surrender some of the special privileges enjoyed, and will put the government in a position to regulate freight charges. In the event of such an attempt being successful, then a great difficulty which now exists in connection with the building of the Crow's Nest Pass railway will have been surmounted. But in any event the building of the line must be accompanied with guarantees that there shall be no discrimination in rates, but that the latter shall be based upon such a principle as will lead to a public benefit from the immense capital, whether goverment or private, that will of necessity, be invested in the construction of the line. The line in question is a necessity in the public interests, and unless it is constructed and operated on principles that will yield promotion of such interests, there will be no object in building it.

MIDNIGHT AT PICCADILLY.

The Bishop of London Opens Religious Services for the Uplifting of the Night Owls.

New York, Feb. 28.—A special from London to The Sun says: All the world knows that Piccadilly and other streets of the West End of London are given up nightly to a parade of the vast army of purveyors and patrons of vice. The night scenes of London have no parallel in any other great city, but they have come to be regarded as a necessary evil by most Londoners, for all the legal and other ordinary methods of reform have availed nothing. This week, however, a new influence has been brought to bear, and Piccadilly at midnight has had a novel experience. The Bishop of London, co-operating with Bishop Barry, the rector of St. James', the fashionable church in Piccadilly, has entered upon a well-organized crusade against vice in its very citadel. A series of "social purity" services has been held three nights of the present week in St. James' fashionable church. The church has been thrown open at 11 o'clock, and a large number of gentlemen, including many of high social position, have spent the ensuing hour in the street inviting those of their own sex in the gay throng outside to attend the midnight service. In response to these invitations and the ringing of the church bell the house has been filled each evening before midnight, when the service begins.

The Bishop of London delivered an address on the first night, the Bishop of Durham on the next and Bishop Barry on the third. The audiences were mixed. Nearly half were gentlemen who are associated with the clerical leaders, who are making this attempt to secure some reform in the matter of restraining the parade of vice in London. The remainder were persons whom it is designed to reach—idle promenaders who were seeing the sights of the town, and who came in out of mere curiosity. They heard some plain talk.

The Bishop of London spoke from the text, "The body is not for fornication, but for the Lord; and the Lord for the body." He said he was there to speak plainly on a subject of vital importance, both to individual and to national life. It was useless to speak of it except directly and straightforwardly. There was a strong temptation to pick up habits and ways of looking at things from those around, but true manhood meant facing questions for one's self and reaching principles. Religion saved men from a low and irresponsible view of life, because it demanded that they should view their life in its relation to God. Under the term life everything was included, the body as well as the soul. No part of man could be dismissed as outside the sphere of religion, least of all the body. The Bishop proceeded to show the difference between the body which was natural and holy and the flesh, which meant bodily appetites undisciplined and unrestrained. He dwelt upon the danger of impurity to society as destructive of the race and of the higher forms of civilization. He pointed out its brutalising effect on character, as cruelty and callousness of heart always accompanied lust. Pure love was the foundation of home and of family and purity, once lost could never be completely regained.

The eminent preacher was, of course, listened to with closest attention, the large congregation remaining, [illegible] tions, until dismissed, shortly before 1 a. m. It is announced that the Bishop of London will lead a much larger movement, which will be of the nature of a united crusade of the church against vice in London.

Such methods, however, as those pursued by Dr. Parkhurst in New York are not for a moment to be thought of. The Bishops and their followers are, however, urging the local authorities of the West End to pursue a more vigorous policy against disorderly houses, and an appeal will be made to the Home Secretary for a resort to some legal measures dealing with the street evil.

Meantime, London at large is watching the movement with considerable interest, but little faith as yet in its practical efficacy.

"A crick in the back," a pain under the shoulder-blades, waterbrash, biliousness, and constipation, are symptoms of disordered stomach, kidneys, liver, and bowels. For all ailments originating in a derangement of these organs, take Ayer's Pills.

The Age of Trees.

The annular, or ring-growths, of trees and their relation to the age of the average specimen of the "forest monarch" has been the leading subject of discussion in the scientific journals for the past two months. It is pretty generally admitted by the forestry experts that where the "zone test," as it is called, can be properly applied, the age imputed to the tree will not err in the way of excess. It is also admitted by the very best of the great host of writers upon the subject that a clearly-marked ring infallibly denotes a season's growth. Assuming, then, that these growths are true age indicators, it is plain that where there is an unusually thin, or, perhaps, indistinguishable layer, one year's credit will remain unentered in the tree's life register. On this ring basis of computation a German scientist has been engaged in preparing a table of the ages of certain European trees. He finds that in Finland and Sweden the pine and fir trees attain to the maximum age of 700 years. The greatest ascertained age of the larch (this is Bavaria) was 274 years, while the silver fir of the same locality often grows until after it is 400 years old. The oldest known German specimen of the oak is one of the "holm" variety, which formerly stood near Aschaffenburg, which the ring growths proved to be 410 years of age. The maximum ages of other German trees—as formed by counting the ring growths—is as follows: Red beech, 245; ash, 170; elm, 139; birch, 200; aspen, 210, and alder, 145.

CHRISTIAN OR ROMAN?

Ribbon Remains Dug Out of the Gravel In England.

An interesting discovery has been made near Horncastle, England, says a correspondent. In the outskirts of the town Mr. G. W. Smith, seedsman and greengrocer, was employing a laborer to dig gravel on his premises. About two feet below the surface the man's pick struck against something hard, which on investigation proved to be a leaden coffin. It was embedded in the gravel, and proved to be in a fairly good state of preservation. The sides and ends, however, had lost cohesion between themselves and the lid, the latter being also broken in the process of uncovering it. Owing to this want of cohesion the soil had fallen in and filled the interior. This was carefully removed, when there was disclosed to view a perfect skeleton, since pronounced by medical experts to be that of a female. The coffin was five feet 2 inches in length, the body, of course, being rather shorter. Last week, as the gravel digging was continued, a second leaden coffin was exhumed about a yard to the north of the former. This was in very much the same condition, the lid only being rather more broken in extricating it. This coffin was 5 feet 7 inches in length. The bones were larger, and are pronounced to be those of a male. Some twenty-four years ago three leaden coffins were found within 100 yards of the same site while workmen were digging with a view to laying the foundation of a nonconformist chapel. No care was taken of these, and they were disposed of as old lead. Several Roman cinerary urns have been dug up at different times in this locality, as well as many Roman coins and other antiquities. The main question is, Were these lead coffins Roman or Christian? On the same side of the town there is a public recreation ground called the "Wong"—an old Saxon word for "field." Were they Saxons? From their lying east and west the correspondent is inclined to consider them Christian. Their somewhat rude construction, as well as the absence of any kind of inscription, also incline him to suppose that they were originally inner "shells," inclosed in a wooden exterior, but no trace of decayed wood was perceptible.—Boston Herald.

One loaf of bread may be light, sweet and digestible. You may use the same materials for another and have it heavy, sour and soggy. The knack is in putting the ingredients together just right. A substitute for Scott's Emulsion may have the same ingredients and yet not be a perfect substitute, for no one knows how to put the parts together as we do. The secret of "how" is our business—twenty-five years of experience has taught us the best way.

FIGHT ON SATURDAY

Christians Whipped Moslems Near Canea.

A TURKISH WARSHIP OPENED FIRE

But Was Speedily Silenced by the Representatives of the Powers—Turks Allowed to Leave Heraklion to Cultivate Their Lands—Cretans Want Union With Greece.

Canea, Feb. 28.—The presence of foreign warships off this port has not had the effect of preventing fighting between the insurgents and Turks save in the town itself, where a comparatively small force of sailors and marines were recently landed for the purpose of preserving order. A skirmish occurred to-day at Malaxa, a short distance from Canea, in which the Turks were worsted, although they outnumbered the Christians.

A Turkish warship in Suda Bay today began the bombardment of a position occupied by the insurgents, but before she had done much firing her commander received word from the representatives of the foreign powers that he must silence his guns or take the consequences. This is the second time that the insurgents near Suda Bay have been fired on by a Turkish warship.

The Greek, Korakas, who at the head of 5000 insurgents, has invested the town of Heraklion, has given permission to the Turkes to leave the place in order that they may cultivate the lands adjacent to the town. His action, however, is looked upon with suspicion by many Moslems, they believing that it is his intention to benefit from the labors of the Turks by seising their crops when they are ripe. On the other hand, those who are acquainted with the character of Korakas declare that he is a just and humane man and that his only object in permitting the Turks to till the fields is to prevent suffering from famine among the women and children in the beleaguered town.

Several British and Italian officers recently visited the camp of Korakas, where they were treated with much courtesy. They were astonished by the excellent discipline maintained among the insurgents and by the perfection of their organization, all of which is due to Korakas, who appears to be a born leader of men. He is enthusiastic in support of the cause of Crete and his force will prove no unimportant factor should Turkey attempt to quell the insurrection by force of arms.

The fighting at Malaxa arose from a fruitless attempt on the part of the Moslems, aided by a detachment of Turkish troops, to re-victual the block house where the Turkish garrison has been blockaded for a number of days. The Moslems made a sortie, but the insurgents were prepared for just such a move and attacked the party furiously, finally driving them back. During the fighting a heavy fire was directed upon the Christians from the Turkish arsenal in Canea. It had, however, very little effect, and the Christians still maintain the position held by them prior to the fight.

Further fighting has occurred in the vicinity of Heraklion. As heretofore, the insurgents under Korakas repulsed the Turks.

Tewfik Pasha, the new military Governor, arrived here to-day and paid visits to the several consuls.

A new danger threatens this unfortunate island, and if it is to be averted a speedy settlement of the present difficulties must be arrived at. Every day the situation is becoming more desperate, owing to the fact that throughout the island the state of war prevents any attention being paid to the crops. In the towns which are besieged by the insurgents the situation is much worse than it is in the country districts. In Heraklion alone, where there has been a very large influx of refugees, the outlook is very serious. There are now in the town, counting the regular Moslem population and the refugees, fully 25,000 persons. Provisions are very scarce and a famine is imminent. Large numbers of refugees are already dying of starvation, and it was the knowledge of this fact that led Korakas, the Greek leader, to issue his order permitting the cultivation of the fields near the town. The lines of the besiegers are absolutely impassable, as has been proved by the failure of the several sorties that have been made. The officials in the town have telegraphed to Canea, imploring the assistance of the foreign warships in raising the siege, but it is not considered likely that their supplication will receive a favorable response, though provisions may be sent to the starving. Korakas has not yet cut off the water supply of the town, which he threatened a few days ago to do. Should he carry this threat into effect the condition of the besieged people will be pitiable indeed.

Korakas, with part of his forces, is advancing upon Hierapetra. He will pass through the turbulent district of Lasithi and the populace there is certain to join him. It is pretty certain the garrison at Hierapetra will have to capitulate when the insurgents reach there unless the foreign warships help the Turks.

On March 3 the armistice of a week, agreed to between the Moslems and Christians at Selino, will expire. The position of the Moslems there is very precarious. The insurgents are so incensed over the bombardment of Akrotiri that it is considered doubtful whether they will listen to the persuasion of Col. Vassos, the commander of the Greek army of occupation, who has promised to use his influence with the insurgents to obtain the release of the besieged Moslems. It has been learned that the fighting at Malaxa resulted in the killing of eight Turks and the wounding of many others. The Christian losses, if any, are unknown. The engagement caused the most intense excitement here and prompted incendiarism in the vicinity of the town. Two villages and several isolated houses were destroyed.

MOSLEMS DEFEATED.

Sharp Fight at Canea in Which Christians Had the Best of It.

Canea, Feb. 27.—A sharp fight took place yesterday between Moslems and Christians near Retimo. The Moslems were repulsed with small loss.

Another Report.

London, Feb. 27.—The Sunday Sun has a despatch from Athens saying that one hundred Moslems were killed in a battle that occurred yesterday near Retimo. The despatch adds that the Moslems retreated, leaving the Christians masters of the field.

Alarming Rumors.

London, Feb. 27.—The Observer will to-morrow publish a despatch from Paris saying that alarming rumors are in circulation, and if the rumors are true they show the situation is extremely grave. Two of the rumors receive credence. One of them concerns Russia's attitude toward the policy of Greece, an attitude which, apparently, nothing will mitigate. The other is to the effect that the Dragoman attached to the Russian Embassy at Constantinople has notified the Porte that Russia will occupy Armenia if hostilities break out.

King George Warned.

Athens, Feb. 27.—In view of the fact that the Chamber has not been in session for some days, the leaders of the Opposition met today and signed a protest, which has been presented to the King. The protest declares that the Crown is entitled to act alone in such a case as the present, and if it does not act the Opposition cannot be answerable for the situation.

Dread of Reprisals.

Canea, Feb. 27.—Colonel Vassos, the commander of the Greek army of occupation, has promised to use his influence with the insurgents at Selino to obtain the release of the Moslems who are besieged there. The result is awaited with anxiety, as the continued confinement of the Moslems is causing dread of reprisals.

Want Union With Greece.

Athens, Feb. 28.—A number of Cretan deputies, headed by the Bishop of Retimo, visited King George to-day and presented to him a memorial, which in effect declared that the establishment of an autonomous Government in Crete would not result in the pacification of the island. Such a form of Government would only prepare the way to a fresh revolution and further endanger the peace of Europe. The Cretans, therefore, had firmly decided not to accept autonomy, but to continue their struggle to realize union with Greece, which the memorialists added even the Mussulmans were beginning to agree was the only practical solution of the question.

Killed His Wife and Himself.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—During a quarrel this afternoon Frederick Rosell, a saloon keeper at 5028 Ashland-avenue, shot and instantly killed his wife, and then shot and killed himself.

The Fortifications Bill.

Washington, Feb. 26.—The Senate Committee made very little change in the fortifications bill, which was reported to-day. They add $463,816, making the total $9,717,141. The estimates called for $18,410,256.

THEY WORKED WONDERS.

Two Years of Bladder Torment—Sad Attacks of Inflammation—Cured by a few Boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Owen Sound, Feb. 22, (Special)—The people of this town are talking again of another cure credited to Dodd's Kidney Pills. This is the case of Mr. W. Cruse, caretaker of town buildings, who, when seen had this to say of the matter:

"For over two years I have been an intense sufferer from kidney disease with occasional acute attacks of inflammation of the bladder.

"Was under doctors' treatment and have been compelled to resort to instrumental relief many times.

"I have taken eighteen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am satisfied with results being perfectly relieved of all suffering."

THE INAUGURATION.

All Arrangements About Made for the Big Display Next Thursday.

Washington, Feb. 27.—The police arrangements for the inauguration ceremonies have been completed. Six hundred special officers will assist the regular force of police, and seventy-five detectives from other cities will also be on hand. A special force to maintain order at the Capitol will be sworn in to-morrow.

A test of the building in which the inaugural ball will be held was made to-day. Fifty arc lights and 8700 incandescent burners are used. One of the features of the ball room is an American flag in colors composed of incandescent lamps. By means of a mechanical contrivance the effect of waving is given. Hundreds of canary birds in cages, guaranteed to sing, despite electric brilliancy and crowds, will be another feature of the ball room decorations.

Divorce Not So Easy.

Bismarck, N. D., Feb. 27.—The House to-day passed a bill extending the period of residence from three months to one year before action for divorce can begin. The bill carried an emergency clause, declaring that the State and its judiciary are scandalized and the moral standing of the State degraded by the conduct of those who come to this State for divorce purposely.

AT STITTSVILLE!

The Town's Leading Merchant Laid Up

Rheumatism in various forms is one of the most common diseases there is. It arises generally from impure blood and a broken down system. In the limbs it is painful; in most of the internal organs dangerous, and in the heart usually fatal.

The experience of Mr. S. Mann, the well known general merchant of Stittsville, is interesting:

"Last winter I was badly afflicted with rheumatism. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Pills. To my surprise, I got immediate relief, and before I had used one box my affliction was gone.

"I was also troubled with biliousness for years, and at intervals of three or four weeks would be laid up with a severe headache and sick stomach. Since using Chase's Pills I have not had an attack of either.

"I may add that Dr. Chase's Ointment for piles and skin diseases is just as effective as Dr. Chase's Pills for blood troubles. I have a clerk who suffered terribly from bleeding piles. He tried Chase's Ointment and in a few days was completely cured."

This morning at ten o'clock at St. Joseph's church, Douro, Rev. Father Phelan performed the ceremony that united in holy matrimony Mr. Patrick McMurray and Miss Emma Horne, both of Douro. The bride was attended by Miss Hannah McAuliffe, of Emily, and Mr. Francis McMurray performed the duties of best man.

Battalion Notes.

The Belleville Battalion is making a great effort to attain as high a standing in the District as the Peterborough Rangers, and if the latter corps do not keep abreast of the times the proud distinction of being at the head of the Military District will be wrested from them. A regular course of lectures has been delivered during the winter in the Belleville armoury to the non-commissioned officers and men.

Important Foresters' Meeting.

The Joint Committee of the C. O. F. from Courts Langton, Littlejohn and Peterborough will meet for the transaction of important business on Monday evening, March 1st, in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, at 8 o'clock. By order.—W. Mountain, General Secretary. 1d

GASOLINE EXPLOSION.

Mr. Milt Walker Tried to Light the Fire With Gasoline.

This morning as Mr. Milt Walker was lighting the fire in the Brantford bicycle establishment on Simcoe street, he picked up a small can, which he supposed was coal oil, and poured the liquid on the blaze. The can contained gasoline, and of course instantly exploded. Mr. Walker was stunned by the concussion, and not knowing what he was doing, ran into his brother's bedroom, with his clothes all ablaze. Here, however, he was quickly wrapped in quilts and the flames extinguished, though not before he had been most severely burned about the back.

In wrapping the quilts around him, his brother Herbert had his right hand also burned badly.

Fortunately the can of gasoline was a small one, or the consequences might have been even more serious.

It is just two years ago this week since he was caught in the big storm between Orono and Pontypool, and was found unconscious and almost frozen to death. Two such escapes in a life time are almost sufficient for an ordinary man.

A CATHEDRAL WEDDING.

Nuptials of Miss Margaret Spencer and Mr. John Connors.

This morning at eight o'clock Ven. Archdeacon Casey performed the marriage ceremony between Miss Margaret Spencer, of town, and Mr. John Connors, of Lindsay.

The ceremony was performed in St. Peter's Cathedral where a large number of the bride's friends were assembled.

Miss Agnes Herrington was the bridesmaid and the groom was supported by Mr. John Gifford, of Ennismore. Mr. and Mrs. Connors left by the morning train for their future home in Lindsay.

PETERBOROUGH CHEESE MAKERS.

The Thirteenth Annual Meeting—Important Addresses on Practical Dairy Subjects.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Makers' Association will be held in the Council Chamber on Wednesday, March 17th. There will be two sessions; the morning session commencing at 10.30 a.m., and the afternoon session at 2 p.m. The morning session will be chiefly devoted to patrons of cheese factories, and will be addressed by Mr. D. Derbyshire, of Brockville, one of the best up-to-date dairy specialists of Eastern Ontario. The afternoon session will be more particularly devoted to cheese and butter makers, and will be addressed by Prof. J. A. Ruddick, Supt. of the Kingston Dairy School, and other prominent men. Patrons and cheese makers are urgently invited to attend, as there are even yet many things of importance to be learned in connection with the great dairy interests of our country.

As there are over sixty views in the set, the entertainment will be most interesting. Reserved seats 50c, general admission 25c. Plan of hall at Sailsburys & Co's store.

Elite Event of the Season.

The management of the Opera House takes pleasure in announcing that they have secured the Smyth and Rice Comedy Company for a one night's engagement at the Opera House, next Friday, March 5th. This company will present "My Friend from India," which is without doubt the funniest farce comedy of the age, having had a continuous run of 112 nights in New York City. The company is a very strong one and the play a very enjoyable production, free from vulgarity of any kind, and should fill the Opera House on next Friday night. The prices for the engagement are 25c., 35c. and 50c., with a few of the best reserved seats at 75c. Secure your seats early, as a packed house is expected. 1d
